Revised Scheme of Education and Training: Bridging the competence gap

The role of a chartered accountant is evolving continually to assume newer responsibilities in a dynamic environment. There has been a notable shift towards strategic decision making and entrepreneurial roles that add value beyond traditional accounting and auditing. The causative factors for the change include globalisation leading to increase in cross border transactions and consequent business complexities, significant developments in information and technology and financial scams underlining the need for a stringent regulatory set up. These factors necessitate an increase in the competence level of chartered accountants to bridge the gap in competence acquired and competence expected from stakeholders. Towards this end, the scheme of education and training is being continuously reviewed so that it is in sync with the requisites of the dynamic global business environment; the competence requirements are being stepped up to enable aspiring chartered accountants to acquire the requisite professional competence to take on new roles.

Concurrent Practical Training along with academic education: Key to achieving the desired level of Professional Competence

Under the Revised Scheme of Education and Training, at the Final Level, you are expected to apply the professional knowledge acquired through academic education and the practical exposure gained during articleship training in addressing issues and solving practical problems. The integrated process of learning through academic education and practical training should also help you inculcate the requisite technical competence, professional skills and professional values, ethics and attitudes necessary for achieving the desired level of professional competence.

Direct Tax Laws: Dynamic Subject Area

Direct Tax Laws is one of the dynamic subjects of the chartered accountancy course. The subject "Direct Tax Laws and International Taxation" at the Final level is divided into two parts, namely, Part I: Direct Tax Laws for 70 marks and Part II: International Taxation for 30 marks. Part I: Direct tax laws comprises of the law and procedures under the Income-tax Act, 1961. The direct tax laws of the country undergo significant changes every year with the passing of the annual Finance Act. Apart from these significant amendments ushered in every year through the Finance Act, notifications and circulars are also issued from time to time by the Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT), the statutory authority in charge with the administration of direct taxes, to implement the provisions of the Act and clarify issues regarding the meaning and scope of certain provisions. Further, decisions are pronounced by various Courts interpreting the provisions of tax laws.

With increased cross border transactions and the whole world virtually becoming one market, there is a need for chartered accountants to enhance their knowledge base in international taxation. Countries across the globe are entering into tax treaties to avoid double taxation of a single transaction. In a highly advanced IT enabled business scenario where an entity operates from many establishments spread throughout the globe, chartered accountants have to be well versed with the nuances of international taxation to be able to give an informed and correct advice and ensure compliance with tax laws. With this objective, a dedicated part on International Taxation has been introduced in the Revised Scheme of Education and Training for 30 marks in Paper 7 - Direct Tax Laws and International Taxation.

The relevant Finance Act and Assessment Year

This Study Material is based on the provisions of direct tax laws, as amended by the Finance Act, 2019, the Finance (No.2) Act, 2019 and other legislations; as well as the significant notifications and circulars issued upto 30th September, 2019. The computational problems have been solved on the basis of the provisions of direct tax laws applicable for A.Y.2020-21. The Study Material is, therefore, relevant for May 2020 and November, 2020 examinations. The amendments made by the Finance Act, 2019, the Finance (No.2) Act, 2019 and other legislations as well as the latest notifications/circulars are indicated in italics/bold italics in the Study Material. The significant circulars and notifications issued upto 31st October, 2019 and 30th April, 2020, but not covered in this Study Material, would be webhosted as Statutory Update in the BoS Knowledge Portal on the Institute's website www.icaai.org. Likewise, the Judicial Update containing latest significant court rulings relevant for May, 2020 and November, 2020 examinations, not covered in this Study Material, would also be webhosted at the BOS Knowledge Portal

The amendments by the Taxation Laws (Amendment) Ordinance, 2019 have also been incorporated in the Study Material. Further changes, if any, at the time of enactment of the same would be webhosted as Statutory Update at the BoS Knowledge Portal.

Read the Bare Act & Rules along with Study Material

At the Final level, along with the Study Material, students are also advised to read the Income-tax Act, 1961 and Income-tax Rules, 1962, available at the website of the income-tax department www.incometaxindia.gov.in. This will help understand the language of law and sequence of sections and rules. The circulars and notifications issued by CBDT, the income-tax return forms, important provisions relating to firms, companies, trusts, FAQs etc. are also available at this website. Students are advised to visit the income-tax department's website and enhance their knowledge.

Applicability of the Study Material for Final (Old) Paper 7 Direct Tax Laws

This Study Material is also relevant for Final (Old) Paper 7 Direct Tax Laws, with the exception of chapters 6,7 and 8 in Module 4. In effect, all chapters in Modules 1, 2 and 3 and Chapters 1 to 5 in Module 4 are relevant for Final (Old) Paper 7 Direct Tax Laws for May, 2020 and November, 2020 examinations.

Framework of Chapters: Uniform Structure comprising of specific components

Efforts have been made to present the complex direct tax laws in a lucid manner. Care has been taken to present the chapters in a logical sequence to facilitate easy understanding by the students. The Study Material has been divided into four modules for ease of handling by students. The first three modules are on direct tax laws and the fourth module is on international taxation.

Each chapter of the Study Material has been structured uniformly and comprises of the following components:

	Components of each Chapter	About the component
1.	Learning Outcomes	Learning outcomes which you need to demonstrate after learning each topic have been detailed in the first page of each chapter. Demonstration of these learning outcomes would help you achieve the desired level of technical competence
2.	Content	The concepts and provisions of direct tax laws and international taxation are explained in student-friendly manner with the aid of examples/illustrations/diagrams/flow charts. Diagrams and Flow charts would help you understand and retain the concept/ provision learnt in a better manner. Examples and illustrations would help you understand the application of concepts/provisions. These value additions would, thus, help you develop conceptual clarity and get a good grasp of the topic.
3.	Exercise Questions with Answers	The exercise questions and answers would help you to analyse the provisions of direct tax laws and international taxation and apply the same in problem solving, thus, sharpening your application skills. In effect, these questions would test your ability to analyse and apply the concepts/provisions learnt in solving problems and addressing issues. Small case scenarios have also been given to test your analytical ability and interpretational skills.
4.	Significant Select Cases	The recent significant select Supreme Court and High Court rulings have been reported at the end of each chapter to help you appreciate the interpretation of the provisions of tax laws by the Courts.

We hope that these student-friendly features in the Study Material improves your learning curve and sharpens your analytical and interpretational skills.

Happy Reading and Best Wishes!

BASIC CONCEPTS

LEARNING OUTCOMES

After studying this chapter, you would be able to -

- ❑ recap the basic concepts of income-tax law, its components and the meaning of important terms used;
- ❑ interpret the provisions of income-tax law by applying the rules of interpretation;
- ❑ examine whether a receipt is capital or revenue in nature, in the context of the provisions of income-tax law;
- ❑ appreciate the difference between application of income and diversion of income by overriding title;
- ❑ examine the circumstances when income of the previous year would be assessed to tax in the previous year itself;
- ❑ appreciate the differences in the rates of tax and surcharge applicable to different categories of persons;
- ❑ apply the rates of tax applicable on different components of total income of a person and the rates of surcharge, wherever applicable, and health and education cess for the purpose of determining the tax liability of such person.

1.1 OVERVIEW OF INCOME TAX LAW IN INDIA

The Constitution of India, in Article 265 lays down that “No tax shall be levied or collected except by authority of law.” Accordingly for levy of any tax, a law needs to be framed by the government.

Constitution of India gives the power to levy and collect taxes, whether direct or indirect, to the Central and State Government. The Parliament and State Legislatures are empowered to make laws on the matters enumerated in the Seventh Schedule by virtue of Article 246 of the Constitution of India.

Seventh Schedule to Article 246 contains three lists which enumerate the matters under which the Parliament and the State Legislatures have the authority to make laws for the purpose of levy of taxes.

The following are the lists:

- (i) Union List: Parliament has the exclusive power to make laws on the matters contained in Union List.
- (ii) State List: The Legislatures of any State has the exclusive power to make laws on the matters contained in the State List.
- (iii) Concurrent List: Both Parliament and State Legislatures have the power to make laws on the matters contained in the Concurrent list.

Income-tax is the most significant direct tax. Entry 82 of the Union List i.e., List I in the Seventh Schedule to Article 246 of the Constitution of India has given the power to the Parliament to make laws on taxes on income other than agricultural income.

Income-tax is a tax levied on the total income of the previous year of every person. A person includes an individual, Hindu Undivided Family (HUF), Association of Persons (AOP), Body of Individuals (BOI), a firm, a company etc. The income-tax law in India consists of the following components –

The various instruments of law containing the law relating to income-tax are explained below:

Income-tax Act, 1961

The levy of income-tax in India is governed by the Income-tax Act, 1961. In this book we shall briefly refer to this as the Act.

- It came into force on 1st April, 1962.
- It contains sections 1 to 298 and XIV schedules.
- It undergoes change every year with additions and deletions brought out by the Annual Finance Act passed by Parliament, and other legislations like the Taxation Laws (Amendment) Act.

The Finance Act

Every year, the Finance Minister of the Government of India introduces the Finance Bill in the Parliament's Budget Session. When the Finance Bill is passed by both the houses of the Parliament and gets the assent of the President, it becomes the Finance Act. Amendments are made every year to the Income-tax Act, 1961 and other tax laws by the Finance Act.

The First Schedule to the Finance Act contains four parts which specify the rates of tax -

- Part I of the First Schedule to the Finance Act specifies the rates of tax applicable for the current Assessment Year.
- Part II specifies the rates at which tax is deductible at source for the current Financial Year.
- Part III gives the rates for calculating income-tax for deducting tax from income chargeable under the head "Salaries" and computation of advance tax.
- Part IV gives the rules for computing net agricultural income.

Income-tax Rules, 1962

The administration of direct taxes is looked after by the Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT).

- The CBDT is empowered to make rules for carrying out the purposes of the Act.
- For the proper administration of the Income-tax Act, 1961, the CBDT frames rules from time to time. These rules are collectively called Income-tax Rules, 1962.
- It is important to keep in mind that along with the Income-tax Act, 1961, these rules should also be studied.

Circulars and Notifications

Circulars

- Circulars are issued by the CBDT from time to time to deal with certain specific problems and to clarify doubts regarding the scope and meaning of certain provisions of the Act.
- Circulars are issued for the guidance of the officers and/or assesseees.
- The department is bound by the circulars. While such circulars are not binding on the assesseees, they can take advantage of beneficial circulars.

Notifications

- Notifications are issued by the Central Government to give effect to the provisions of the Act.

For example, under section 10(15)(iv)(h), interest payable by any public sector company in respect of such bonds or debentures and subject to such conditions as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, specify in this behalf would be exempt. Therefore, the bonds and debentures, interest on which would qualify for exemption under this section are specified by the Central Government through Notifications.

- The CBDT is also empowered to make and amend rules for the purposes of the Act by issue of notifications.

For example, under section 35CCD, the CBDT is empowered to prescribe guidelines for notification of skill development project. Accordingly, the CBDT has, vide Notification No. 54/2013 dated 15.7.2013, prescribed Rule 6AAF laying down the guidelines and conditions for approval of skill development project under section 35CCD.

Case Laws

The study of case laws is an important and unavoidable part of the study of Income-tax law. It is not possible for Parliament to conceive and provide for all possible issues that may arise in the implementation of any Act. Hence the judiciary will hear the disputes between the assessee and the department and give decisions on various issues.

The Supreme Court is the Apex Court of the Country and the law laid down by the Supreme Court is the law of the land. The decisions given by various High Courts will apply in the respective states in which such High Courts have jurisdiction.

Rules of Interpretation

Rules of Interpretation are principles that have evolved over the years, on account of interpretation of provisions of law by various Courts. These rules help in interpretation of law. The object behind use of these rules is to ascertain the intention of the lawmakers. These rules are not static and keep on evolving. At times, there may be more than one rule of interpretation which appear to be applicable to a given situation. The Courts then decide the most appropriate one in the given situation considering the facts of the case.

In the ensuing paragraphs, we have made an attempt to discuss the Rules of Interpretation, largely in the context of income-tax law, citing appropriate instances.

I. Significant rules of interpretation used by Courts:

- Rule of literal interpretation - This rule is based on the age-old doctrine that "judges do not legislate, they only interpret law". It stipulates that the intention of the legislation must be found in the words used by the legislature itself. Attention must be given to what has been said and also what has not been said. Nothing should be added or subtracted. If the provision is unambiguous and if from that provision the legislative intent is clear, the other rules of construction of statutes need not be called into aid.

Example:

The Supreme Court in CIT v. Rajendra Prasad Moody [1978] 115 ITR 519, noted that the plain natural construction of the language of section 57(iii) of the Income-tax Act, 1961, irresistibly leads to the conclusion that to bring a case within that section it is not necessary that any income should in fact have been earned as a result of the expenditure. Section 57(iii) requires that the expenditure must be laid out or expended wholly and exclusively for the purpose of making or earning income. The section does not require that this purpose must be fulfilled in order to qualify the expenditure for deduction: it does not say that the expenditure shall be deductible only if any income is made or earned.

Where the assessee borrowed monies for the purpose of making investment in certain shares and paid interest thereon during the accounting period relevant to the assessment year but did not receive any dividend on the shares purchased with those monies: Held, accordingly, that the interest on monies borrowed for investment in shares which had not yielded any dividend was admissible as a deduction under section 57(iii) of the Income-tax Act, 1961, in computing its income from dividend under the head "Income from other sources".

- Mischief rule - The mischief rule originated in 16th century in the Heydon's case in the United Kingdom. It is commonly known as the Heydon's Rule or Purposive construction. Under this rule, the position before an amendment or enactment of an Act is examined to find out the mischief sought to be remedied to determine the rationale for the remedy. In order to do so, the following aspects are looked at:
  - What was law before the provision was introduced or amended?
  - What was the mischief or the defect for which the earlier provision of law did not provide a remedy?
  - What remedy has the Parliament effected in the provisions of law to cure the mischief or defect?
  - What is the intended effect of such remedy?

Courts then have to make a construction that suppresses the mischief and advances the remedy.

Example:

The Bombay High Court made a landmark judgment in Commissioner of Income-tax v. A.N. Naik Associates (2004) 136 Taxman 107. The Court applied the "mischief rule" on interpretation of statutes and pointed out that the idea behind the introduction of sub-section (4) in section 45 was to plug in a loophole and block the escape route through the medium of the firm. The High Court observed that the expression 'otherwise' has not to be read ejusdem generis with the expression 'dissolution of a firm or body of individuals or association of persons'. The expression 'otherwise' has to be read with the words 'transfer of capital assets by way of distribution of capital assets'. If so read, it becomes clear that even when a firm is in existence and there is a transfer of capital asset, it comes within the expression 'otherwise' since the object of the amendment was to remove the loophole which existed, whereby capital gains tax was not chargeable. Therefore, the word 'otherwise' takes into its sweep not only cases of dissolution but also cases of subsisting partners of a partnership, transferring assets in favour of retiring partners.

- The Golden rule – It allows a judge to depart from a word's normal meaning in order to avoid an absurd result. It is a compromise between the literal rule and the mischief rule. Like the literal rule, it gives the words of a statute their plain, ordinary meaning. However, if this leads to an irrational result which is unlikely to be the legislature's intention, the court can depart from this meaning.

In such a case, the Court would also look at the context in which a provision appears. The same words may mean one thing in one context and another in a different context. While ascertaining the true intention of the Legislature, the court must not only look at the words used by the Legislature but also have regard to the context and the setting in which they occur. The meaning of words in an enactment is not to be ascertained by reading them in isolation.

Issue: Let us take the issue of whether the Assessing Officer can make an assessment on the basis of an issue which came to his notice during the course of assessment, where the issues, which originally formed the basis of issue of notice under section 148, were dropped in its entirety. The Delhi High Court, in Ranbaxy Laboratories Ltd. v. CIT (2011) 336 ITR 136, applied the Rule of Literal Interpretation whereas the Karnataka High Court, in N. Govindaraju v. ITO (2015) 377 ITR 243, applied the Golden Rule while deciding this issue.

Provision of law: As per section 147, the Assessing Officer may assess or reassess such income and also any other income chargeable to tax which has escaped assessment and which comes to his notice in the course of proceedings under this section.

Application of Rule of Literal Interpretation by the Delhi High Court: The Delhi High Court, in Ranbaxy Laboratories Ltd. v. CIT (2011) 336 ITR 136, observed that the words "and also" used in section 147 are of wide amplitude. The correct interpretation of the Parliament would be to regard the words 'and also' as being "conjunctive and cumulative with" and not "in alternative to" the first part of the sentence, namely, "the Assessing Officer may assess and reassess such income". It is significant to note that Parliament has not used the word 'or' but has used the word 'and' together and in conjunction with the word 'also'. The words 'such income' in the first part of the sentence refer to the income chargeable to tax which has escaped assessment and in respect of which the Assessing Officer has formed a reason to believe for issue of the notice under section 148. Hence, the language used by the Parliament is indicative of the position that the assessment or reassessment must be in respect of the income, in respect of which the Assessing Officer has formed a reason to believe that the same has escaped assessment and also in respect of any other income which comes to his notice subsequently during the course of the proceedings as having escaped assessment.

The Delhi High Court, applying the rule of literal interpretation, held that if the income, the escapement of which was the basis of the formation of the “reason to believe” is not assessed or reassessed, it would not be open to the Assessing Officer to independently assess only that income which comes to his notice subsequently in the course of the proceedings under the section as having escaped assessment. If he intends to do so, a fresh notice under section 148 would be necessary.

Application of Golden Rule by the Karnataka High Court: On the other hand, the Karnataka High Court took note of Circular No. 5/2010 issued by CBDT after the amendment in Paragraph 47 with caption ‘Clarificatory amendment in respect of reassessment proceeding under section 147’. Para 47.3 reads as under:

“Therefore, to articulate the legislative intention clearly Explanation 3 has been inserted in section 147 to provide that the Assessing Officer may examine, assess or reassess any issue relevant to income which comes to his notice subsequently in the course of proceedings under this section, notwithstanding that the reason for such issue has not been included in the reasons recorded under section 148(2)”.

Applying the Golden Rule, the Karnataka High Court held that, in effect, once satisfaction of reasons for the notice is found sufficient i.e. if the notice under section 148(2) is found to be valid, then, the Assessing Officer may do reassessment in respect of any other item of income which may have escaped assessment, even though the original reason for issue of notice under section 148 does not survive.

- Rule of Harmonious construction - The entire statute must be read as a whole. Further, all parts of a section should be read harmoniously. Construction should be such that it provides meaning to all parts of a statute. A construction which creates inconsistency or repugnancy between the various sections or parts of the statute should be avoided.
- Principle of beneficial construction - If the court finds that two views are possible construction which is most beneficial to the taxpayer should be adopted. This principle is also widely used in case of interpretation of fiscal laws.

Apart from these rules, there are several other rules such as ejusdem generis, notitur a sociis and stare decisis which are often used by Courts.

- Rule of *ejusdem generis is used when particular words pertaining to a class, category or genus are followed by general words. In that case general words are construed as limited to things of the same kind.
- The principle of noctur a socius implies that meaning of a word may be ascertained by reference to words associated with it. Words derive colour from the surrounding words.
- The principle of stare decisis stipulates that a view which is operating for long and is accepted and acted upon should not be easily departed from.

II. Interpretation of different provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961

In context of the Income-tax Act, 1961, the ensuing table summarizes how different types of provisions are typically construed by Courts.

Type of provision	Interpretation
Charging provisions	Tax is levied by a charging section i.e., it imposes a charge or liability to pay tax. If a person has been brought to tax within the ambit of the charging section by clear words, he has to be taxed, subject to specific exemption/ deduction, if any, available under the provisions of the Act. Charging sections should be strictly construed.
Machinery provisions	Machinery provisions provide machinery for assessment and collection of charge created by the charging section. Machinery and charging provisions constitute an integrated code. The machinery provisions should be construed in a way that makes the machinery workable.
Penal provisions	Penal provisions are required to be construed in a strict manner. In case of ambiguity, the taxpayer should be entitled to the benefit of doubt.
Deeming provisions	Deeming provision is intended to enlarge the scope of chargeability of income under a particular head or scope of coverage of a certain provision. It includes matters which otherwise may or may not fall within the provision. Deeming provision should be strictly construed. It should be given its full effect and carried to its logical conclusion.
Appeal and refund provisions	The taxpayer has a right to appeal only if there is a statutory provision for the same. It cannot be implied. Appeal provision should be liberally construed in a reasonable and practical manner. Similarly, provisions granting refund must also be read liberally, in favor of the taxpayer.
Provisions giving exemptions and reliefs	Provisions giving deduction, exemption or relief should be interpreted liberally and in favor of taxpayers. They should be construed to effectuate the object of legislature and not to defeat it.

III. Aids to interpretation

An aid is a device that helps or assists Courts in interpretation of statutes. They can be broadly classified as:

- Internal Aids
- External Aids

Internal aids to construction

Internal aids of construction refer to aids present within the statute itself, such as the long title, the preamble, heading, marginal notes, punctuations, definition sections, provisos and explanations. Let us now examine some of these:

- Explanations – Explanation is generally meant to explain or clarify the meaning of certain words and expressions contained in the main provision. Explanation appended to a section is an integral part of the section. It does not have independent existence apart from the section. In exceptional cases an explanation may widen the scope of the main section by introducing a legal fiction.
- Provisos – Generally the function of a proviso is to carve out an exception or to qualify a provision. A proviso cannot control the enactment. A proviso is not applicable unless the main provision is applicable to the facts of the case. It must be construed harmoniously with the main provision.

Examples:

- ❖ Sections 80GGB and 80GGC provides for deduction from gross total income in respect of contributions made by companies and other persons, respectively, to political parties or an electoral trust.
- ❖ The proviso to sections 80GGB and 80GGC provide that no deduction shall be allowed under those sections in respect of any sum contributed by cash to political parties or an electoral trust. Thus, the provisos to these sections spell out the circumstance when deduction would not be available thereunder in respect of contributions made.
- ❖ The Explanation below section 80GGC provides that for the purposes of sections 80GGB and 80GGC, “political party” means a political party registered under section 29A of the Representation of the People Act, 1951. Thus, the Explanation clarifies that the political party has to be a registered political party.

- Non-obstante clause – Non-obstante clause is a clause which begins with the phrase “notwithstanding anything contained in any other provision of the Act” or “notwithstanding anything contained in a particular provision(s) of the Act”. Use of this phrase shows that the intent of lawmakers is to give it an overriding effect, in case of a conflict, over the other provisions of the statute mentioned in the provision.

Example:

*Section 43B provides deduction of certain specified sums for computing of income under the profit and gains from business or profession on actual payment basis. It begins with the phrase “notwithstanding anything contrary in any other provision of this Act”. Thus, it overrides the other provisions of the Act and provides deduction of payments or expenditures specified therein only on the basis of actual payment.

- Marginal notes and headings - Headings may be prefixed to a section or a group of sections. Marginal notes are the notes which are inserted at the side of the sections in a statute and express the effect of the sections stated. Headings and marginal notes cannot control the plain words of the provisions. Only in the case of ambiguity they may be referred to throw light on intention of legislature.
- Definition clauses and undefined words –The object of a definition clause is to avoid the necessity of frequent repetitions in describing the subject matter in the statute. When the statute defines a particular word, the same should be used, unless the context otherwise requires. A word occurring more than once in a statute should be generally given the same meaning, unless the context requires otherwise. Words not specifically defined must be taken in their legal sense, dictionary meaning, commercial or common meaning. Definition from any other statute cannot be borrowed and used ignoring the definition contained in the statute itself.

In the Income-tax Act, 1961, definitions contained in section 2 are for the purposes of the Income-tax Act. However, definitions contained in a particular Chapter of the Income-tax Act, 1961 are generally relevant only in the context of the provisions relating to that Chapter, unless reference to such definition(s) has been made in any other provision(s)/ Chapter of the Act.

External aids to construction

External aids refer to aids which are external to the statute such as legislative history, dictionaries, foreign decisions, reference to other statutes. Let us examine some of them:

- Legislative history - Historical setting cannot be used as an aid if the words are plain and clear. If the wordings are ambiguous, one can look at the historical facts and circumstances that prevailed at the time when the law was passed for determining the object and purpose. Reports of Commissions including Law Commission or Committees including Parliamentary Committees preceding the introduction of a bill can also be referred to as evidence of historical facts, surrounding circumstances or mischief intended to be remedied.
- Circulars - CBDT Circulars issued under section 119 of the Income-tax Act, 1961 are binding on the tax officers and persons employed in the execution of the Income-tax Act 1961. They express the views of CBDT on any issue. They are, however, not binding on the Appellate Authorities, Tribunal, Courts or the taxpayer. Taxpayers can however take benefit of the beneficial circulars.

- Speech - The speech made by the mover of the Bill can also be used to ascertain the mischief sought to be remedied, the object and purpose of the legislation. However, speeches made by the Members of the Parliament at the time of consideration of a Bill, are not admissible as an aid.
- Explanatory Memorandum - Notes on clauses and memorandum explaining the provisions of the Finance Bill can also aid in construction, in case of ambiguity.
- Dictionary meaning - The dictionary meaning of a word should not be looked at where the word has been statutorily defined or judicially interpreted. However, when there is no such interpretation or definition, the Court may take aid of dictionaries to ascertain a meaning of the word.

1.2 IMPORTANT DEFINITIONS

In order to understand the provisions of the Act, one must have a thorough knowledge of the meanings of certain key terms like 'person', 'assessee', 'income', etc. To understand the meanings of these terms we have to first check whether they are defined in the Act.

Terms defined in the Act: Section 2 gives definitions of the various terms and expressions used therein. If a particular definition is given in the Act itself, we have to be guided by that definition.

Terms not defined under the Act: If a particular definition is not given in the Act, reference can be made to the General Clauses Act or dictionaries.

Students should note this point carefully because certain terms like "dividend", "transfer", etc. have been given a wider meaning in the Income-tax Act, 1961 than they are commonly understood.

Some of the important terms defined under section 2 are given below:

(1) Assessee [Section 2(7)]

"Assessee" means a person by whom any tax or any other sum of money is payable under this Act. In addition, it includes –

- Every person in respect of whom any proceeding under this Act has been taken for the assessment of -
  - his income; or
  - the income of any other person in respect of which he is assessable; or
  - the loss sustained by him or by such other person; or
  - the amount of refund due to him or to such other person.

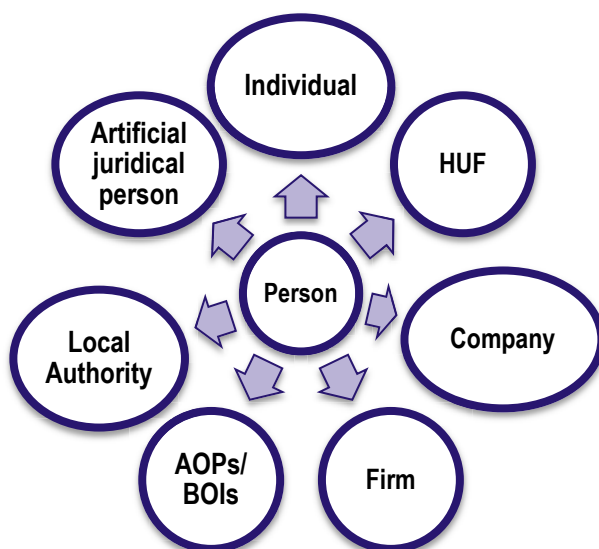

- Every person who is deemed to be an assessee under any provision of this Act;
- Every person who is deemed to be an assessee-in-default under any provision of this Act.

(2) Assessment [Section 2(8)]

This is the procedure by which the income of an assessee is determined by the Assessing Officer. It may be by way of a normal assessment or by way of reassessment of an income previously assessed.

(3) Person [Section 2(31)]

The definition of 'assessee' leads us to the definition of 'person' as the former is closely connected with the latter. The term 'person' is important from another point of view also viz., the charge of income-tax is on every 'person'.

We may briefly consider some of the above seven categories of assessee each of which constitute a separate unit of assessment or a separate tax entity.

(i) Individual

The term 'individual' means only a natural person, i.e., a human being.

- It includes both males and females.
- It also includes a minor or a person of unsound mind. But the assessment in such a case may be made under section 161(1) on the guardian or manager of the minor or lunatic who is entitled to receive his income. In the case of deceased person, assessment would be made on the legal representative.

(ii) HUF

Under the Income-tax Act, 1961, a Hindu undivided family (HUF) is treated as a separate entity for the purpose of assessment. It is included in the definition of the term "person" under section 2(31). The levy of income-tax is on "every person". Therefore, income-tax is payable by a HUF.

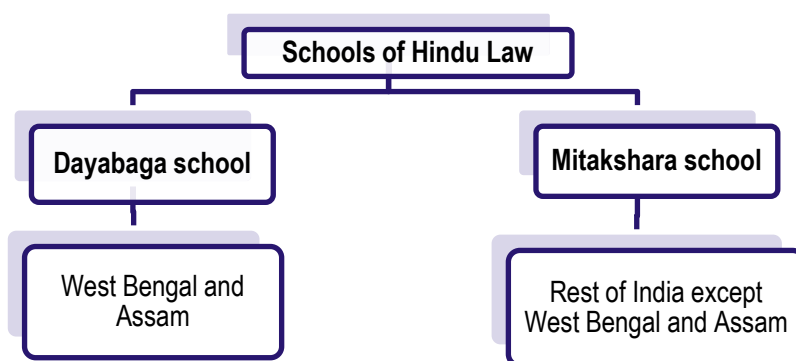

"Hindu undivided family" has not been defined under the Income-tax Act, 1961. The expression is, however, defined under the Hindu Law as a family, which consists of all males lineally descended from a common ancestor and includes their wives and daughters.

Some members of the HUF are called co-parceners. They are related to each other and to the head of the family. HUF may contain many members, but members within four degrees including the head of the family (Karta) are called co-parceners. A Hindu Coparcenary includes those persons who acquire an interest in joint family property by birth. Earlier, only male descendants were considered as coparceners. With effect from 6th September, 2005, daughters have also been accorded coparcenary status. It may be noted that only the coparceners have a right to partition.

A daughter of coparcener by birth shall become a coparcener in her own right in the same manner as the son. Being a coparcener, she can claim partition of assets of the family. The rights of a daughter in coparcenary property are equal to that of a son. However, other female members of the family, for example, wife or daughter-in-law of a coparcener are not eligible for such coparcenary rights.

The relation of a HUF does not arise from a contract but arises from status. There need not be more than one male member or one female coparcener w.e.f. 6th September, 2005 to form a HUF. The Income-tax Act, 1961 also does not indicate that a HUF as an assessable entity must consist of at least two male members or two coparceners.

Under the Income-tax Act, 1961, Jain undivided families and Sikh undivided families would also be assessed as a HUF.

The basic difference between the two schools of Hindu law with regard to succession is as follows:

Dayabaga school of law	Mithakshara school of law
Prevalent in West Bengal and Assam.	Prevalent in rest of India.

Nobody acquires the right, share in the property by birth as long as the head of family is living.	One acquires the right to the family property by his birth and not by succession irrespective of the fact that his elders are living.
Thus, the children do not acquire any right, share in the family property, as long as his father is alive and only on death of the father, the children will acquire right/share in the property. Hence, the father and his brothers would be the coparceners of the HUF.	Thus, every child born in the family acquires a right/ share in the family property.

(iii) Company [Section 2(17)]

For all purposes of the Act, the term 'Company', has a much wider connotation than that under the Companies Act. Under the Act, the expression 'Company' means:

- (a) any Indian company as defined in section 2(26); or
- (b) any body corporate incorporated by or under the laws of a country outside India, i.e., any foreign company; or
- (c) any institution, association or body which is assessable or was assessed as a company for any assessment year under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 or for any assessment year commencing on or before 1.4.1970 under the present Act; or
- (d) any institution, association or body, whether incorporated or not and whether Indian or non-Indian, which is declared by a general or special order of the CBDT to be a company for such assessment years as may be specified in the CBDT's order.

Classes of Companies

(1) Domestic company [Section 2(22A)] - It means an Indian company or any other company which, in respect of its income liable to income-tax, has made the prescribed arrangements for the declaration and payment of dividends (including dividends on preference shares) within India, payable out of such income.

Indian company [Section 2(26)] - Two conditions should be satisfied so that a company can be regarded as an Indian company -

- (a) the company should have been formed and registered under the Companies Act, 1956<sup>1</sup> and
- (b) the registered office or the principal office of the company should be in India.

The expression 'Indian Company' also includes the following provided their registered or principal office is in India:

- (i) a corporation established by or under a Central, State or Provincial Act (like Financial Corporation or a State Road Transport Corporation);
  - (ii) an institution or association or body which is declared by the Board to be a company under section 2(17)(iv);
  - (iii) a company formed and registered under any law relating to companies which was or is in force in any part of India;
  - (iv) in the case of the State of Jammu and Kashmir, a company formed and registered under any law for the time being in force in that State;
  - (v) in the case of any of the Union territories of Dadra and Nagar Haveli, Goa, Daman and Diu, and Pondicherry, a company formed and registered under any law for the time being in force in that Union territory.
- (2) Foreign company [Section 2(23A)] - Foreign company means a company which is not a domestic company.

- (3) Company in which public are substantially interested [Section 2(18)] - The following companies are said to be companies in which the public are substantially interested:
- (a) A company owned by the Government (either Central or State but not Foreign) or the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) or in which not less than 40% of the shares are held by the Government or the RBI or corporation owned by that bank.
  - (b) A company which is registered under section 25 of the Companies Act, 1956<sup>2</sup> (formed for promoting commerce, arts, science, religion, charity or any other useful object and which prohibits payment of dividends to its members).
  - (c) A company having no share capital which is declared by the Board for the specified assessment years to be a company in which the public are substantially interested.

- (d) A mutual benefit finance company which carries on its principal business of accepting deposits from its members and which is declared by the Central Government under section 620A of the Companies Act, 1956<sup>3</sup> to be Nidhi or a Mutual Benefit Society.
- (e) A company whose equity shares (not being shares entitled to a fixed rate of dividend) carrying at least 50% of the voting power have been allotted unconditionally to or acquired unconditionally by and were beneficially held throughout the relevant previous year by one or more co-operative societies.
- (f) A company which is not a private company as defined in the Companies Act, 1956<sup>4</sup> and which fulfills any of the following conditions:
- its equity shares should have, as on the last day of the relevant previous year, been listed in a recognised stock exchange in India;
  - its equity shares (not being shares entitled to a fixed rate of dividend) carrying at least 50% (40% in case of industrial companies) of the voting power should have been unconditionally allotted to or acquired by and should have been beneficially held throughout the relevant previous year by
    - I Government or
    - II a Statutory Corporation or
    - III a company in which public are substantially interested or
    - IV any wholly owned subsidiary of company mentioned in III.
- (4) Person having substantial interest in the company [Section 2(32)] – is a person who is the beneficial owner of shares (not being shares entitled to a fixed rate of dividend), whether with or without a right to participate in profits, carrying at least 20% of the total voting power.
- (iv) Firm [Section 2(23)]

The terms 'firm', 'partner' and 'partnership' have the same meanings as assigned to them in the Indian Partnership Act, 1932. In addition, the definitions also include the terms limited liability partnership, a partner of limited liability partnership as they have been defined in the Limited Liability Partnership Act, 2008.

However, for income-tax purposes a minor admitted to the benefits of an existing partnership would also be treated as partner.

A partnership is the relation between persons who have agreed to share the profits of business carried on by all or any of them acting for all. The persons who have entered into partnership with one another are called individually 'partners' and collectively a 'firm'.

Section 2(q) of the LLP Act, 2008 defines a 'partner' as any person who becomes a partner in the LLP in accordance with the LLP agreement. An LLP agreement has been defined under section 2(o) to mean any written agreement between the partners of the LLP or between the LLP and its partners which determines the mutual rights and duties of the partners and their rights and duties in relation to the LLP.

(v) Association of Persons (AOP)

When persons combine together for promotion of joint enterprise they are assessable as an AOP, when they do not in law constitute a partnership. In order to constitute an association, persons must join for a common purpose or action and their object must be to produce income; it is not enough that the persons receive the income jointly. Co-heirs, co-legatees or co-donees joining together for a common purpose or action would be chargeable as an AOP.

(vi) Body of Individuals (BOI)

It denotes the status of persons like executors or trustees who merely receive the income jointly and who may be assessable in like manner and to the same extent as the beneficiaries individually. Thus, co-executors or co-trustees are assessable as a BOI as their title and interest are indivisible. Income-tax shall not be payable by an assessee in respect of the receipt of share of income by him from BOI and on which the tax has already been paid by such BOI.

(vii) Local Authority

The term means a municipal committee, district board, body of port commissioners or other authority legally entitled to or entrusted by the Government with the control or management of a municipal or local fund.

Note: A local authority is taxable in respect of that part of its income which arises from any business carried on by it in so far as that income does not arise from the supply of a commodity or service within its own jurisdictional area. However, income arising from the supply of water and electricity even outside the local authority's own jurisdictional areas is exempt from tax.

(viii) Artificial Persons

This category could cover every artificial juridical person not falling under other heads. An idol, or deity would be assessable in the status of an artificial juridical person.

(i) Definition of Income

The definition of income as per the Income-tax Act, 1961 begins with the words "Income includes". Therefore, it is an inclusive definition and not an exhaustive one. Such a definition does not confine the scope of income but leaves room for more inclusions within the ambit of the term.

Section 2(24) of the Act gives a statutory definition of income. At present, the following items of receipts are specifically included in income:—

- (a) Profits and gains.
- (b) Dividends.
- (c) Voluntary contributions received by a trust/ institution created wholly or partly for charitable or religious purposes or by an association or institution referred to in section 10(21) or by a fund or institution referred to in section 10(23C)(iiiad)/(iii ae)/(iv)/(v)/(vi)/(via) or an electoral trust.

Research association approved under section 35(1)(ii)/(iii)	10(21)
Universities and other educational institutions	10(23C)(iiiad)/(vi)
Hospitals and other institutions	10(23C) (iii ae)/(via)
Notified funds or institutions established for charitable purposes	10(23C)(iv)
Notified trusts or institutions established wholly for public religious purposes or wholly for public religious and charitable purposes	10(23C)(v)
Electoral trust	13B

- (d) The value of any perquisite or profit in lieu of salary taxable under section 17(2) and (3), respectively.
- (e) Any special allowance or benefit, other than the perquisite included above, specifically granted to the assessee to meet expenses wholly, necessarily and exclusively for the performance of the duties of an office or employment of profit.

- (f) Any allowance granted to the assessee to meet his personal expenses at the place where the duties of his office or employment of profit are ordinarily performed by him or at a place where he ordinarily resides or to compensate him for the increased cost of living.
- (g) The value of any benefit or perquisite, whether convertible into money or not, obtained from a company either by a director or by a person who has a substantial interest in the company, or by a relative of the director or such person, and any sum paid by any such company in respect of any obligation which, but for such payment, would have been payable by the director or other person aforesaid.
- (h) The value of any benefit or perquisite, whether convertible into money or not, which is obtained by any representative assessee mentioned under section 160(1)(iii) and (iv), or by any beneficiary or any amount paid by the representative assessee for the benefit of the beneficiary which the beneficiary would have ordinarily been required to pay.
- (i) Deemed profits chargeable to tax under section 41 or section 59.
- (j) Profits and gains of business or profession chargeable to tax under section 28.
- (k) Any capital gains chargeable under section 45.
- (l) The profits and gains of any insurance business carried on by Mutual Insurance Company or by a cooperative society, computed in accordance with section 44 or any surplus taken to be such profits and gains by virtue of the provisions contained in the first Schedule to the Act.
- (m) The profits and gains of any business of banking (including providing credit facilities) carried on by a co-operative society with its members.
- (n) Any winnings from lotteries, cross-word puzzles, races including horse races, card games and other games of any sort or from gambling, or betting of any form or nature whatsoever. For this purpose,
  - i. "Lottery" includes winnings from prizes awarded to any person by draw of lots or by chance or in any other manner whatsoever, under any scheme or arrangement by whatever name called;
  - ii. "Card game and other game of any sort" includes any game show, an entertainment programme on television or electronic mode, in which people compete to win prizes or any other similar game.
- (o) Any sum received by the assessee from his employees as contributions to any provident fund (PF) or superannuation fund or Employees State Insurance Fund (ESI) or any other fund for the welfare of such employees.
- (p) Any sum received under a Keyman insurance policy including the sum allocated by way of bonus on such policy will constitute income.

“Keyman insurance policy” means a life insurance policy taken by a person on the life of another person where the latter is or was an employee or is or was connected in any manner whatsoever with the former’s business. It also includes such policy which has been assigned to a person with or without any consideration, at any time during the term of the policy.

- (q) Any sum referred to in section 28(va). Thus, any sum, whether received or receivable in cash or kind, under an agreement for not carrying out any activity in relation to any business or profession; or not sharing any know-how, patent, copy right, trade-mark, licence, franchise, or any other business or commercial right of a similar nature, or information or technique likely to assist in the manufacture or processing of goods or provision of services, shall be chargeable to income tax under the head “profits and gains of business or profession”.
- (r) Fair market value of inventory as on the date on which it is converted into, or treated as, a capital asset, determined in the prescribed manner [Section 28(iva)].
- (s) Any consideration received for issue of shares as exceeds the fair market value of the shares [Section 56(2)(viib)].
- (t) Any sum of money received as advance, if such sum is forfeited consequent to failure of negotiation for transfer of a capital asset [Section 56(2)(ix)].
- (u) Any sum of money or value of property received without consideration or for inadequate consideration by any person [Section 56(2)(x)].
- (v) Any compensation or other payment, due to or received by any person, by whatever named called, in connection with termination of his employment or the modification of the term and conditions relating thereto [Section 56(2)(xi)].

[For details, refer to Chapter 8 “Income from Other Sources”]

- (w) Assistance in the form of a subsidy or grant or cash incentive or duty drawback or waiver or concession or reimbursement, by whatever name called, by the Central Government or a State Government or any authority or body or agency in cash or kind to the assessee is included in the definition of income.

Subsidy or Grant which are not included in the definition of income u/s 2(24)

Subsidy or grant or reimbursement taken into account for determination of actual cost of depreciable asset in accordance with Explanation 10 to section 43(1)

Subsidy or grant by the Central Government for the purpose of the corpus of a trust or institution established by a Central Govt. or State Govt., as the case may be.

(ii) Concept of Income under the Income-tax Act, 1961

- Regular receipt vis-a-vis casual receipt: Income, in general, means a periodic monetary return which accrues or is expected to accrue regularly from definite sources. However, under the Income-tax Act, 1961, even certain incomes which do not arise regularly are treated as income for tax purposes e.g. Winnings from lotteries, crossword puzzles.
- Revenue receipt vis-a-vis Capital receipt: Income normally refers to revenue receipts. Capital receipts are generally not included within the scope of income in general parlance. However, the Income-tax Act, 1961 has specifically included certain capital receipts within the definition of income e.g., Capital gains i.e., gains on sale of a capital assets like land.
- Net receipt vis-a-vis Gross receipt: Income means net receipts and not gross receipts. Net receipts are arrived at after deducting the expenditure incurred in connection with earning such receipts. The expenditure which can be deducted while computing income under each head is prescribed under the Income-tax Act, 1961. Income from certain eligible businesses/ professions is also determined on presumptive basis i.e., as a certain percentage of gross receipts.
- Due basis vis-a-vis receipt basis: Income is taxable either on due basis or receipt basis. For computing income under the heads “Profits and gains of business or profession” and “Income from other sources”, the method of accounting regularly employed by the assessee should be considered, which can be either cash system or mercantile system. Some receipts are taxable only on receipt basis, like, income by way of interest received on compensation or enhanced compensation.

(iii) Concept of revenue and capital receipts

Students should carefully study the various items of receipts included in the definition of income. Some of them like capital gains are not revenue receipts. However, since they have been included in the definition, they are chargeable as income under the Act. The concept of revenue and capital receipts is discussed hereunder –

The Act contemplates a levy of tax on income and not on capital and hence it is very essential to distinguish between capital and revenue receipts. Capital receipts cannot be taxed, unless they fall within the scope of the definition of “income” and so the distinction between capital and revenue receipts is material for tax purposes.

Certain capital receipts which have been specifically included in the definition of income are compensation for modification or termination of services, income by way of capital gains etc.

It is not possible to lay down any single test as infallible or any single criterion as decisive, final and universal in application to determine whether a particular receipt is capital or revenue in nature. Hence, the capital or revenue nature of the receipt must be determined with reference to the facts and circumstances of each case.

Criteria for determining whether a receipt is capital or revenue in nature

The following are some of the important criteria which may be applied to distinguish between capital and revenue receipts.

Fixed capital or Circulating capital: A receipt referable to fixed capital would be a capital receipt whereas a receipt referable to circulating capital would be a revenue receipt. The former is not taxable while the latter is taxable. Tangible and intangible assets which the owner keeps in his possession for making profits are in the nature of fixed capital. The circulating capital is one which is turned over and yields income or loss in the process.

Income from transfer of capital asset or trading asset: Profits arising from the sale of a capital asset are chargeable to tax as capital gains under section 45 whereas profits arising from the sale of a trading asset being of revenue nature are taxable as income from business under section 28 provided that the sale is in the regular course of assessee's business or the transaction constitutes an adventure in the nature of trade.

Capital Receipts vis-a-vis Revenue Receipts: Tests to be applied

- (a) Transaction entered into the course of business: Profits arising from transactions which are entered into in the course of the business regularly carried on by the assessee, or are incidental to, or associated with the business of the assessee would be revenue receipts chargeable to tax.

For example, a banker's or financier's dealings in foreign exchange or sale of shares and securities, a shipbroker's purchases of ship in his own name, a share broker's purchase of shares on his own account would constitute transactions entered and yielding income in the ordinary course of their business. Whereas building and land would constitute capital assets in the hands of a trader in shares, the same would constitute stock-in-trade in the hands of a property dealer.

- (b) Profit arising from sale of shares and securities: In the case of profit arising from the sale of shares and securities the nature of the profit has to be ascertained from the motive, intention or purpose with which they were bought. If the shares were acquired as an investor or with a view to acquiring a controlling interest or for obtaining a managing or selling agency or a directorship the profit or loss on their sale would be of a capital nature; but if the shares were acquired in the ordinary course of business as a dealer in shares, it would constitute his stock-in-trade. If the shares were acquired with speculative motive the profit or loss (although of a revenue nature) would have to be dealt with separately from other business.

Note: However, securities held by Foreign Institutional Investor which has invested in such securities in accordance with the regulations made under the SEBI Act, 1992 would be treated as a capital asset. Even if the nature of such security in the hands of the Foreign Portfolio Investor is stock in trade, the same would be treated as a capital asset and the profit on transfer would be taxable as capital gains.

- (c) A single transaction - Can it constitute business?: Even a single transaction may constitute a business or an adventure in the nature of trade even if it is outside the normal course of the assessee's business. Repetition of such transactions is not necessary. Thus, a bulk purchase followed by a bulk sale or a series of retail sales or bulk sale followed by a series of retail purchases would constitute an adventure in the nature of trade and consequently the income arising therefrom would be taxable. Purchase of any article with no intention to resell it, but resold under changed circumstances would be a transaction of a capital nature and capital gains arise. However, where an asset is purchased with the intention to resell it, the question whether the profit on sale is capital or revenue in nature depends upon (i) the conduct of the assessee, (ii) the nature and quantity of the article purchased, (iii) the nature of the operations involved, (iv) whether the venture is on capital or revenue account, and (v) other related circumstances of the case.
- (d) Liquidated damages: Receipt of liquidated damages directly and intimately linked with the procurement of a capital asset, which lead to delay in coming into existence of the profit-making apparatus, is a capital receipt. The amount received by the assessee towards compensation for sterilization of the profit earning source is not in the ordinary course of business. Hence, it is a capital receipt in the hands of the assessee.
- (e) Compensation on termination of agency: Where an assessee receives compensation on termination of the agency business being the only source of income, the receipt is a capital nature, but taxable under section 28(ii)(c). However, where the assessee has a number of agencies and one of them is terminated and compensation received therefore, the receipt would be of a revenue nature since taking agencies and exploiting the same for earning income is the ordinary course of business and the loss of one agency would be made good by taking another. Compensation received from the employer or from any person for premature termination of the service contract is a capital receipt, but is taxable as profit in lieu of salary under section 17(3) or as income from other sources under section 56(2)(xi), respectively. Compensation received or receivable in connection with the termination or the modification of the terms and conditions of any contract relating to its business shall be taxable as business income.
- (f) Gifts: Normally, gifts constitute capital receipts in the hands of the recipient. However, certain gifts are brought within the purview of income-tax, for example, receipt of property without consideration is brought to tax under section 56(2).

For example, any sum of money or value of property received without consideration or for inadequate consideration by any person, other than a relative, is chargeable under the head "Income from Other Sources" [For details, refer to Chapter 8 on "Income from Other Sources"].

(5) India [Section 2(25A)]

The term 'India' means –

- (i) the territory of India as per article 1 of the Constitution,
- (ii) its territorial waters, seabed and subsoil underlying such waters,
- (iii) continental shelf,
- (iv) exclusive economic zone or
- (v) any other specified maritime zone and the air space above its territory and territorial waters.

Specified maritime zone means the maritime zone as referred to in the Territorial Waters, Continental Shelf, Exclusive Economic Zone and other Maritime Zones Act, 1976.

(6) Maximum marginal rate and Average Rate of tax

As per section 2(10), "Average Rate of tax" means the rate arrived at by dividing the amount of income-tax calculated on the total income, by such total income.

Section 2(29C) defines "Maximum marginal rate" to mean the rate of income-tax (including surcharge on the income-tax, if any) applicable in relation to the highest slab of income in the case of an individual, AOP or BOI, as the case may be, as specified in Finance Act of the relevant year.

1.3 PREVIOUS YEAR AND ASSESSMENT YEAR

The concepts have been dealt with at the Intermediate level. Let us have a quick recap of these concepts -

(1) Assessment year [Section 2(9)]

The term has been defined under section 2(9). This means a period of 12 months commencing on 1st April every year. The year in which income is earned is the previous year and such income is taxable in the immediately following year which is the assessment year. Income earned in the previous year 2019-20 is taxable in the assessment year 2020-21.

The term has been defined under section 3. It means the financial year immediately preceding the assessment year. As mentioned earlier, the income earned during the previous year is taxable in the assessment year.

Business or profession newly set up during the financial year - In such a case, the previous year shall be the period beginning on the date of setting up of the business or profession and ending with 31st March of the said financial year.

If a source of income comes into existence in the said financial year, then the previous year will commence from the date on which the source of income newly comes into existence and will end with 31st March of the financial year.

Examples:

1. A is running a business from 1993 onwards. Determine the previous year for the assessment year 2020-21.

Ans. The previous year will be 1.4.2019 to 31.3.2020.

2. A chartered accountant sets up his profession on 1st July, 2019. Determine the previous year for the assessment year 2020-21.

Ans. The previous year will be from 1.7.2019 to 31.3.2020.

(3) Previous year for undisclosed sources of income

There are many occasions when the Assessing Officer detects cash credits, unexplained investments, unexplained expenditure etc, the source for which is not satisfactorily explained by the assessee to the Assessing Officer. The Act contains a series of provisions to provide for these contingencies:

(a) Cash Credits [Section 68]

Where any sum is found credited in the books of the assessee and the assessee offers no explanation about the nature and source or the explanation offered is not satisfactory in the opinion of the Assessing Officer, the sum so credited may be charged as income of the assessee of that previous year.

Further, any explanation offered by a closely held company in respect of any sum credited as share application money, share capital, share premium or such amount, by whatever name called, in the accounts of such company shall be deemed to be not satisfactory unless the person, being a resident, in whose name such credit is recorded in the books of such company also explains, to the satisfaction of the Assessing Officer, the source of sum so credited as share application money, share capital, etc. in his hands. However, this deeming provision would not apply if the person in whose name such sum is recorded in the books of the closely held company is a Venture Capital Fund (VCF) or a Venture Capital Company (VCC) defined under section 10(23FB).

Where in the financial year immediately preceding the assessment year, the assessee has made investments which are not recorded in the books of account and the assessee offers no explanation about the nature and the source of investments or the explanation offered is not satisfactory in the opinion of the Assessing Officer, the value of the investments are taxed as deemed income of the assessee of such financial year.

(c) Unexplained money etc. [Section 69A]

Where in any financial year the assessee is found to be the owner of any money, bullion, jewellery or other valuable article and the same is not recorded in the books of account and the assessee offers no explanation about the nature and source of acquisition of such money, bullion etc. or the explanation offered is not satisfactory in the opinion of the Assessing Officer, the money and the value of bullion etc. may be deemed to be the income of the assessee for such financial year. Ownership is important and mere possession is not enough.

(d) Amount of investments etc., not fully disclosed in the books of account [Section 69B]

Where in any financial year the assessee has made investments or is found to be the owner of any bullion, jewellery or other valuable article and the Assessing Officer finds that the amount spent on making such investments or in acquiring such articles exceeds the amount recorded in the books of account maintained by the assessee and he offers no explanation for the difference or the explanation offered is unsatisfactory in the opinion of the Assessing Officer, such excess may be deemed to be the income of the assessee for such financial year.

Example:

If the assessee is found to be the owner of say 300 gms of gold (market value of which is ₹ 25,000) during the financial year ending 31.3.2020 but he has recorded to have spent ₹ 15,000 in acquiring it, the Assessing Officer can add ₹ 10,000 (i.e., the difference of the market value of such gold and ₹ 15,000) as the income of the assessee, if the assessee offers no satisfactory explanation thereof.

(e) Unexplained expenditure [Section 69C]

Where in any financial year an assessee has incurred any expenditure and he offers no explanation about the source of such expenditure or the explanation is unsatisfactory in the opinion of the Assessing Officer, Assessing Officer can treat such unexplained expenditure as the income of the assessee for such financial year. Such unexplained expenditure which is deemed to be the income of the assessee shall not be allowed as deduction under any head of income.

Where any amount is borrowed on a hundi or any amount due thereon is repaid other than through an account-payee cheque drawn on a bank, the amount so borrowed or repaid shall be deemed to be the income of the person borrowing or repaying for the previous year in which the amount was borrowed or repaid, as the case may be.

However, where any amount borrowed on a hundi has been deemed to be the income of any person, he will not be again liable to be assessed in respect of such amount on repayment of such amount. The amount repaid shall include interest paid on the amount borrowed.

Section 115BBE provides the rate at which such cash credits, undisclosed income, undisclosed expenditure etc. deemed as income under section 68 or section 69 or section 69A or section 69B or section 69C or section 69D would be subject to tax. See Special rates of tax in para 1.5 of this Chapter

(4) Certain cases when income of a previous year will be assessed in the previous year itself

The income of an assessee for a previous year is charged to income-tax in the assessment year following the previous year. For instance, income of previous year 2019-20 is assessed during 2020-21. Therefore, 2020-21 is the assessment year for assessment of income of the previous year 2019-20.

However, in a few cases, this rule does not apply and the income is taxed in the previous year in which it is earned. These exceptions have been made to protect the interests of revenue. The exceptions are as follows:

(a) Shipping business of non-resident [Section 172]

Where a ship, belonging to or chartered by a non-resident, carries passengers, livestock, mail or goods shipped at a port in India, the ship is allowed to leave the port only when the tax has been paid or satisfactory arrangement has been made for payment thereof. 7.5% of the freight paid or payable to the owner or the charterer or to any person on his behalf, whether in India or outside India on account of such carriage is deemed to be his income which is charged to tax in the same year in which it is earned.

(b) Persons leaving India [Section 174]

Where it appears to the Assessing Officer that any individual may leave India during the current assessment year or shortly after its expiry and he has no present intention of returning to India, the total income of such individual for the period from the expiry of the respective previous year up to the probable date of his departure from India is chargeable to tax in that assessment year.

Example:

Suppose Mr. X is leaving India for USA on 10.6.2019 and it appears to the Assessing Officer that he has no intention to return. Before leaving India, Mr. X will be required to pay income tax on the income earned during the P.Y. 2018-19 as well as the total income earned during the period 1.4.2019 to 10.06.2019.

(c) AOP/ BOI/ Artificial Juridical Person formed for a particular event or purpose [Section 174A]

If an AOP/ BOI etc. is formed or established for a particular event or purpose and the Assessing Officer apprehends that the AOP/ BOI is likely to be dissolved in the same year or in the next year, he can make assessment of the income up to the date of dissolution as income of the relevant assessment year.

(d) Persons likely to transfer property to avoid tax [Section 175]

During the current assessment year, if it appears to the Assessing Officer that a person is likely to charge, sell, transfer, dispose of or otherwise part with any of his assets to avoid payment of any liability under this Act, the total income of such person for the period from the expiry of the previous year to the date, when the Assessing Officer commences proceedings under this section is chargeable to tax in that assessment year.

(e) Discontinued business [Section 176]

Where any business or profession is discontinued in any assessment year, the income of the period from the expiry of the previous year up to the date of such discontinuance may, at the discretion of the Assessing Officer, be charged to tax in that assessment year.

1.4 CHARGE OF INCOME TAX

Section 4 of the Income-tax Act, 1961 is the charging section which provides that:

- (1) Tax shall be charged at the rates prescribed for the year by the annual Finance Act.
- (2) The charge is on every person specified under section 2(31);
- (3) Tax is chargeable on the total income earned during the previous year and not the assessment year. (There are certain exceptions provided by sections 172, 174, 174A, 175 and 176 discussed above);
- (4) Tax shall be levied in accordance with and subject to the various provisions contained in the Act.

This section is the back bone of the law of income-tax in so far as it serves as the most operative provision of the Act. The tax liability of a person springs from this section.

1.5 RATES OF TAX

Income-tax is to be charged at the rates fixed for the year by the Annual Finance Act.

Section 2 of the Finance (No.2) Act, 2019 read with Part I of the First Schedule to the Finance (No.2) Act, 2019, seeks to specify the rates at which income-tax is to be levied on income chargeable to tax for the assessment year 2019-20.

Part II lays down the rate at which tax is to be deducted at source during the financial year 2019-20 from income subject to such deduction under the Income-tax Act, 1961;

Part III lays down the rates for charging income-tax in certain cases, rates for deducting income-tax from income chargeable under the head "salaries" and the rates for computing advance tax for the financial year 2019-20.

Part III of the First Schedule to the Finance (No.2) Act, 2019 will become Part I of the First Schedule to the Finance Act, 2020 and so on.

The slab rates applicable for A.Y.2020-21 are as follows:

(1) Individual/ Hindu Undivided Family (HUF)/ Association of Persons (AOP)/ Body of Individuals (BOI)/ Artificial Juridical Person

(i)	where the total income does not exceed ₹ 2,50,000	NIL
(ii)	where the total income exceeds ₹ 2,50,000 but does not exceed ₹ 5,00,000	5% of the amount by which the total income exceeds ₹ 2,50,000
(iii)	where the total income exceeds ₹ 5,00,000 but does not exceed ₹ 10,00,000;	₹ 12,500 plus 20% of the amount by which the total income exceeds ₹ 5,00,000
(iv)	where the total income exceeds ₹ 10,00,000	₹ 1,12,500 plus 30% of the amount by which the total income exceeds ₹ 10,00,000

ILLUSTRATION 1

Mr. X has a total income of ₹ 12,00,000 comprising of his salary income and interest on fixed deposit. Compute his tax liability.

SOLUTION

Computation of Tax liability

Tax liability = ₹ 1,12,500 + 30% of ₹ 2,00,000 = ₹ 1,72,500

Alternatively:

Tax liability :

First ₹ 2,50,000	- Nil
Next ₹ 2,50,000 – ₹ 5,00,000	- @ 5% of ₹ 2,50,000	= ₹ 12,500
Next ₹ 5,00,000 – ₹ 10,00,000	- @ 20% of ₹ 5,00,000	= ₹ 1,00,000
Balance i.e. ₹ 12,00,000 – ₹ 10,00,000	- @ 30% of ₹ 2,00,000	= ₹ 60,000
		₹ 1,72,500

It is to be noted that for a senior citizen (being a resident individual who is of the age of 60 years but not more than 80 years at any time during the previous year), the basic exemption limit is ₹ 3,00,000. Further, resident individuals of the age of 80 years or more at any time during the previous year, being very senior citizens, would be eligible for a higher basic exemption limit of ₹ 5,00,000.

Therefore, the tax slabs for these assessees would be as follows –

For senior citizens (being resident individuals of the age of 60 years or more but less than 80 years)

(i)	where the total income does not exceed ₹ 3,00,000	NIL
(ii)	where the total income exceeds ₹ 3,00,000 but does not exceed ₹ 5,00,000	5% of the amount by which the total income exceeds ₹ 3,00,000
(iii)	where the total income exceeds ₹ 5,00,000 but does not exceed ₹ 10,00,000;	₹ 10,000 plus 20% of the amount by which the total income exceeds ₹ 5,00,000
(iv)	where the total income exceeds ₹ 10,00,000	₹ 1,10,000 plus 30% of the amount by which the total income exceeds ₹ 10,00,000

For resident individuals of the age of 80 years or more at any time during the previous year

(i)	where the total income does not exceed ₹ 5,00,000	NIL
(ii)	where the total income exceeds ₹ 5,00,000 but does not exceed ₹ 10,00,000;	20% of the amount by which the total income exceeds ₹ 5,00,000
(iii)	where the total income exceeds ₹ 10,00,000	₹ 1,00,000 plus 30% of the amount by which the total income exceeds ₹ 10,00,000

Clarification regarding attaining prescribed age of 60 years/ 80 years on 31st March itself, in case of senior/very senior citizens whose date of birth falls on 1st April [Circular No. 28/2016, dated 27.07.2016]

An individual who is resident in India and of the age of 60 years or more (senior citizen) and 80 years or more (very senior citizen) is eligible for a higher basic exemption limit of ₹ 3,00,000 and ₹ 5,00,000, respectively.

The contentious issue is regarding the attainment of the aforesaid qualifying ages for availing higher basic exemption limit in cases of the persons whose date of birth falls on 1st April of calendar year. In other words, the broader question under consideration is whether a person born on 1st April of a particular year can be said to have completed a particular age on 31st March, on the preceding day of his/her birthday, or on 1st April itself of that year.

The Supreme Court had an occasion to consider a similar issue in the case of Prabhu Dayal Sesma vs. State of Rajasthan & another 1986, AIR, 1948 wherein it has dealt with on the general rules to be followed for calculating the age of the person. The Apex Court observed that while counting the age of the person, whole of the day should be reckoned and it starts from 12 o'clock in the midnight and he attains the specified age on the day preceding, the anniversary of his birthday. In the absence of any express provision, it is well settled that any specified age in law is to be computed as having been attained on the day preceding the anniversary of the birthday.

The CBDT has, vide this Circular, clarified that a person born on 1st April would be considered to have attained a particular age on 31st March, the day preceding the anniversary of his birthday. In particular, the question of attainment of age of eligibility for being considered a senior/very senior citizen would be decided on the basis of above criteria.

Therefore, a resident individual whose 60th birthday falls on 1st April, 2020, would be treated as having attained the age of 60 years in the P.Y.2019-20, and would be eligible for higher basic exemption limit of ₹ 3 lakh in computing his tax liability for A.Y.2020-21. Likewise, a resident individual whose 80th birthday falls on 1st April, 2020, would be treated as having attained the age of 80 years in the P.Y.2019-20, and would be eligible for higher basic exemption limit of ₹ 5 lakh in computing his tax liability for A.Y.2020-21.

(2) Firm/ LLP

On the whole of the total income 30%

(3) Local authority

On the whole of the total income 30%

(4) Co-operative society

(i)	Where the total income does not exceed ₹ 10,000	10% of the total income
(ii)	Where the total income exceeds ₹ 10,000 but does not exceed ₹ 20,000	₹ 1,000 plus 20% of the amount by which the total income exceeds ₹ 10,000
(iii)	Where the total income exceeds ₹ 20,000	₹ 3,000 plus 30% of the amount by which the total income exceeds ₹ 20,000

(5) Company

(i) In the case of a domestic company

If the total turnover or gross receipt in the P.Y.2017-18 ≤ ₹ 400 crore	25% of the total income
In any other case	30% of the total income
Note<sup>5</sup> – In both cases mentioned above, Minimum Alternate Tax (MAT)@15% of book profit would be attracted, if income-tax payable on total income is less than 15% of book profit.
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>In case of a domestic manufacturing company (set up and registered on or after 1.10.2019 and commences manufacture of article or thing before 31.3.2023)</li> </ul>

<sup>5</sup> MAT rate was 18.5% upto A.Y.2019-20. The Taxation Laws (Amendment) Ordinance, 2019 has reduced the MAT rate to 15% from A.Y.2020-21. It has also inserted two new sections, 115BAA and 115BAB, w.e.f. A.Y.2020-21. Companies opting for the provisions of these sections would not be liable to pay MAT w.e.f. A.Y.2020-21. These amendments would be effective from A.Y.2020-21, after the said Ordinance is passed by the Parliament.

exercising option u/s 115BAB: 15% of total income [MAT not applicable]

- In case of a domestic company exercising option u/s 115BAA: 22% of total income [MAT not applicable]

For details relating to section 115BAA and 115BAB, refer Annexure 1 to Chapter 12 in Module 2 of the Study Material.

(ii) In the case of a company other than a domestic company

Royalties and fees for rendering technical services (FTS) received from Government or an Indian concern in pursuance of an agreement, approved by the Central Government, made by the company with the Government or Indian concern between 1.4.1961 and 31.3.1976 (in case of royalties) and between 1.3.1964 and 31.3.1976 (in case of FTS)	50%
Other income	40%

The above rates are prescribed by the Finance (No.2) Act, 2019. However, in respect of certain types of income, as mentioned below, the Income-tax Act, 1961 has prescribed specific rates –

Special rates of Tax

S. No.	Section	Income	Rate of Tax
(a)	112	Long term capital gains (other than LTCG taxable as per section 112A) (For details refer Chapter 7 on “Capital Gains”)	20%

Notes:*(1) Taxability of dividend under section 115BBDA

Section 115BBDA provides that any income by way of aggregate dividend in excess of ₹ 10 lakh shall be chargeable to tax in the hands of a person other than

- a domestic company or
- a fund or institution or trust or any university or other educational institution or any hospital or other medical institution referred to section 10(23C)(iv)/(v)/(vi)/(via) or
- a trust or institution registered under section 12AA, who is resident in India, at the rate of 10%.

Further, the taxation of dividend income in excess ₹ 10 lakh shall be on gross basis i.e., no deduction in respect of any expenditure or allowance or set-off of loss shall be allowed to the assessee in computing the income by way of dividends.

(2) Unexplained money, investments etc. to attract tax @60% [Section 115BBE]

- (i) In order to control laundering of unaccounted money by availing the benefit of basic exemption limit, the unexplained money, investment, expenditure, etc. deemed as income under section 68 or section 69 or section 69A or section 69B or section 69C or section 69D would be taxed at the rate of 60% plus surcharge @25% of tax. Thus, the effective rate of tax (including surcharge@25% of tax and cess@4% of tax) is 78%.

- (ii) No basic exemption or allowance or expenditure shall be allowed to the assessee under any provision of the Income-tax Act, 1961 in computing such deemed income.
- (iii) Further, no set off of any loss shall be allowable against income brought to tax under sections 68 or section 69 or section 69A or section 69B or section 69C or section 69D.

1.6 SURCHARGE

The rates of surcharge applicable for A.Y.2020-21 are as follows:

(1) Individual/ HUF/ AOP/ BOI/Artificial juridical person<sup>6</sup>

Note - Rates of surcharge applicable on tax on total income of an AOP/Bol (having any income under section 115AD) for payment of advance tax for A.Y.2020-21 is given as Annexure 3 to Chapter 12.

Marginal relief

Marginal relief is available in case of such persons referred to in above i.e., -

- (i) the total amount of income-tax payable (together with surcharge) on such income should not exceed the amount of income-tax payable on total income of ₹ 50 lakh by more than the amount of income that exceeds ₹ 50 lakh.
- (ii) the total amount of income-tax payable (together with surcharge) should not exceed the amount of income-tax and surcharge payable on total income of ₹ 1 crore by more than the amount of income that exceeds ₹ 1 crore.

- (iii) the total amount of income-tax payable (together with surcharge) should not exceed the amount of income-tax and surcharge payable on total income of ₹ 2 crore by more than the amount of income that exceeds ₹ 2 crore.
- (iv) the total amount of income-tax payable (together with surcharge) should not exceed the amount of income-tax and surcharge payable on total income of ₹ 5 crore by more than the amount of income that exceeds ₹ 5 crore

Compute the tax liability of Mr. A (aged 42), having total income of ₹ 1,01,00,000 for the Assessment Year 2020-21. Assume that his total income comprises of salary income, income from house property and interest from fixed deposit account.

SOLUTION

Computation of tax liability of Mr. A for the A.Y. 2020-21

(A)	Tax payable including surcharge on total income of ₹ 1,01,00,000
	₹ 2,50,000 – ₹ 5,00,000 @5%	₹ 12,500

	Total	₹ 28,42,500
	Add: Surcharge @15%	₹ 4,26,375	₹ 32,68,875
(B)	Tax Payable on total income of ₹ 1 crore (₹ 12,500 plus ₹ 1,00,000 plus ₹ 27,00,000) plus surcharge @10%		₹ 30,93,750
(C)	Excess tax payable (A)-(B)		₹ 1,75,125
(D)	Marginal Relief (₹ 1,75,125 – ₹ 1,00,000, being the amount of income in excess of ₹ 1,00,00,000)		₹ 75,125
	Tax payable (A) - (D) [Excluding cess]		₹ 31,93,750
(2)	Firm/ Limited Liability Partnership/ Local Authorities/ Co-operative society

Where the total income exceeds ₹ 1 crore, surcharge is payable at the rate of 12% of income-tax computed in accordance with the provisions of sub-para (2)/(3)/(4) of para 1.5 or section 111A or section 112 or section 112A.

Marginal relief

Marginal relief is available in case of such persons having a total income exceeding ₹ 1 crore i.e., the total amount of income-tax payable (together with surcharge) on such income should not exceed the amount of income-tax payable on total income of ₹ 1 crore by more than the amount of income that exceeds ₹ 1 crore.

(3) Domestic company(a) In case of a domestic company which has exercised option under section 115BAA or section 115BAB<sup>7</sup>

Surcharge is attracted @10% of income-tax on income chargeable to tax under section 115BAA or section 115BAB.

<sup>7</sup> Sections 115BAA and 115BAB have been inserted by the Taxation Laws (Amendment) Ordinance, 2019 and will take effect from A.Y.2020-21, after the same has been passed by the Parliament.

In case such company has earned income in the nature of capital gains u/s 111A or 112 or 112A or any other income chargeable to tax at special rates under any other section in Chapter - XII, surcharge would be leviable on income-tax computed at the special rates given thereunder, in the manner specified in (b)/(c) below.

(b) In case of a domestic company, other than that referred to in (a) above, whose total income > ₹ 1 crore but is ≤ ₹ 10 crore

Where the total income exceeds ₹ 1 crore but does not exceed ₹ 10 crore, surcharge is payable at the rate of 7% of income-tax computed @25% or 30% of total income, as the case may be, or income-tax computed under section 111A or section 112 or section 112A.

Marginal relief

Marginal relief is available in case of such companies i.e., the total amount of income-tax payable (together with surcharge) on such income should not exceed the amount of income-tax payable on total income of ₹ 1 crore by more than the amount of income that exceeds ₹ 1 crore.

ILLUSTRATION 4

Compute the marginal relief available to X Ltd., a domestic company, assuming that the total income of X Ltd. is ₹ 1,01,00,000 for A.Y.2020-21 and the total income does not include any income in the nature of capital gains. Assume that the company has not exercised option under section 115BAA or 115BAB.

[Note - The gross receipts of X Ltd. for the P.Y.2017-18 is ₹ 402 crore]

SOLUTION

The tax payable on total income of ₹ 1,01,00,000 of X Ltd. computed @32.1% (including surcharge @7%) is ₹ 32,42,100. However, the tax cannot exceed ₹ 31,00,000 (i.e., the tax of ₹ 30,00,000 payable on total income of ₹ 1 crore plus ₹ 1,00,000, being the amount of total income exceeding ₹ 1 crore). Therefore, the tax payable on ₹ 1,01,00,000 would be ₹ 31,00,000. The marginal relief is ₹ 1,42,100 (i.e., ₹ 32,42,100 - ₹ 31,00,000).

(c) In case of a domestic company, other than a company referred to in (a) above, whose total income is > ₹ 10 crore

Where the total income exceeds ₹ 10 crore, surcharge is payable at the rate of 12% of income-tax computed @25% or 30% of total income, as the case may be, or income-tax computed under section 111A or section 112 or section 112A.

Marginal relief

Marginal relief is available in case of such companies i.e., the total amount of income-tax payable (together with surcharge) on such income should not exceed the amount of income-tax and surcharge payable on total income of ₹ 10 crore by more than the amount of income that exceeds ₹ 10 crore.

ILLUSTRATION 5

Compute the marginal relief available to Y Ltd., a domestic company, assuming that the total income of Y Ltd. for A.Y.2020-21 is ₹ 10,01,00,000 and the total income does not include any income in the nature of capital gains. Assume that the company has not exercised option under section 115BAA or 115BAB.

[Note - The gross receipts of Y Ltd. for the P.Y.2017-18 is ₹ 410 crore]

SOLUTION

The tax payable on total income of ₹ 10,01,00,000 of Y Ltd. computed@ 33.6% (including surcharge@12%) is ₹ 3,36,33,600. However, the tax cannot exceed ₹ 3,22,00,000 [i.e., the tax of ₹ 3,21,00,000 (32.1% of ₹ 10 crore) payable on total income of ₹ 10 crore plus ₹ 1,00,000, being the amount of total income exceeding ₹ 10 crore]. Therefore, the tax payable on ₹ 10,01,00,000 would be ₹ 3,22,00,000. The marginal relief is ₹ 14,33,600 (i.e., ₹ 3,36,33,600 - ₹ 3,22,00,000).

(4) Foreign company

(a) In case of a foreign company, whose total income > ₹ 1 crore but is ≤ ₹ 10 crore

Where the total income exceeds ₹ 1 crore but does not exceed ₹ 10 crore, surcharge is payable at the rate of 2% of income-tax computed in accordance with the provisions of sub-para (5)(ii) of para 1.5 or section 111A or section 112 or section 112A.

Marginal relief

Marginal relief is available in case of such companies i.e., the total amount of income-tax payable (together with surcharge) on such income should not exceed the amount of income-tax payable on total income of ₹ 1 crore by more than the amount of income that exceeds ₹ 1 crore.

(b) In case of a foreign company, whose total income is > ₹ 10 crore

Where the total income exceeds ₹ 10 crore, surcharge is payable at the rate of 5% of income-tax computed in accordance with the provisions of sub-para (5)(ii) of para 1.5 or section 111A or section 112 or section 112A.

Marginal relief

Marginal relief is available in case of such companies i.e., the total amount of income-tax payable (together with surcharge) on such income should not exceed the amount of income-tax and surcharge payable on total income of ₹ 10 crore by more than the amount of income that exceeds ₹ 10 crore.

1.7 REBATE OF UP TO ₹ 12,500 FOR RESIDENT INDIVIDUALS HAVING TOTAL INCOME OF UP TO ₹ 5 LAKH [SECTION 87A]

In order to provide tax relief to the individual tax payers who are in the 5% tax slab, section 87A provides a rebate from the tax payable by an assessee, being an individual resident in India, whose total income does not exceed ₹ 5,00,000.

- (1) The rebate shall be equal to the amount of income-tax payable on the total income for any assessment year or an amount of ₹ 12,500, whichever is less.
- (2) Consequently, any individual having total income up to ₹ 5,00,000 will not be required to pay any tax. In effect, the rebate would be the tax payable or ₹ 12,500, whichever is less.
- (3) Further, the aggregate amount of rebate under section 87A shall not exceed the amount of income-tax (as computed before allowing such rebate) on the total income of the assessee with which he is chargeable for any assessment year.

Note: Rebate under section 87A is, however, not available in respect of tax payable @10% on long-term capital gains taxable under section 112A.

“Health and Education cess” on Income-tax

The amount of income-tax as increased by the union surcharge, if applicable, should be further increased by an additional surcharge called the “Health and Education cess on income-tax”, calculated at the rate of 4% of such income-tax and surcharge, if applicable. Education cess is leviable in the case of all assessees i.e. individuals, HUF, AOPs/ BOIs, firms, local authorities, co-operative societies and companies.

It is leviable to fulfill the commitment of the Government to provide and finance quality health services and universalised quality basic education and secondary and higher education.

EXERCISE*Question 1

Mr. Bhargava, a leading advocate on corporate law, decided to reduce his practice and to accept briefs only for paying his taxes and making charities with the fees received on such briefs. In a particular case, he agreed to appear to defend one company in the Supreme Court on the condition that he would be provided with ₹ 5 lacs for a public charitable trust that he would create. He defended the company and was paid the sum by the company. He created a trust of that sum by executing a trust deed. Decide whether the amount received by Mr. Bhargava is assessable in his hands as income from profession.

Answer

In the instant case, the trust was created by Mr. Bhargava himself out of his professional income. The client did not create the trust. The client did not impose any obligation in the nature of a trust binding on Mr. Bhargava. Thus, there is no diversion of the money to the trust before it became professional income in the hands of Mr. Bhargava. This case is one of application of professional income and not of diversion of income by overriding title. Therefore, the amount received by Mr. Bhargava is chargeable to tax under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession".

Question 2

XYZ Ltd. took over the running business of a sole-proprietor by a sale deed. As per the sale deed, XYZ Ltd. undertook to pay overriding charges of ₹ 15,000 p.a. to the wife of the sole-proprietor in addition to the sale consideration. The sale deed also specifically mentioned that the amount was charged on the net profits of XYZ Ltd., who had accepted that obligation as a condition of purchase of the going concern. Is the payment of overriding charges by XYZ Ltd. to the wife of the sole-proprietor in the nature of diversion of income or application of income? Discuss.

Answer

This issue came up for consideration before the Allahabad High Court in Jit & Pal X-Rays (P.) Ltd. v. CIT (2004) 267 ITR 370 (All). The Allahabad High Court observed that the overriding charge which had been created in favour of the wife of the sole-proprietor was an integral part of the sale deed by which the going concern was transferred to the assessee. The obligation, therefore, was attached to the very source of income i.e. the going concern transferred to the assessee by the sale deed. The sale deed also specifically mentioned that the amount in question was charged on the net profits of the assessee-company and the assessee-company had accepted that obligation as a condition of purchase of the going concern. Hence, it is clearly a case of diversion of income by an overriding charge and not a mere application of income.

Question 3

MKG Agency is a partnership firm consisting of father and three major sons. The partnership deed provided that after the death of father, the business shall be continued by the sons, subject to the condition that the firm shall pay 20% of the profits to the mother. Father died in March, 2019. In the previous year 2019-20, the reconstituted firm paid ₹ 1 lakh (equivalent to 20% of the profits) to the mother and claimed the amount as deduction from its income. Examine the correctness of the claim of the firm.

Answer

The issue raised in the problem is based on the concept of diversion of income by overriding title, which is well recognised in the income-tax law. In the instant case, the amount of ₹ 1 lakh, being 20% of profits of the firm, paid to the mother gets diverted at source by the charge created in her favour as per the terms of the partnership deed. Such income does not reach the assessee-firm.

Rather, such income stands diverted to the other person as such other person has a better title on such income than the title of the assessee. The firm might have received the said amount but it so received for and on behalf of the mother, who possesses the overriding title. Therefore, the amount paid to the mother should be excluded from the income of the firm. This view has been confirmed in CIT vs. Nariman B. Bharucha & Sons (1981) 130 ITR 863 (Bom).

Question 4

Anand was the Karta of HUF. He died leaving behind his major son Prem, his widow, his grandmother and brother's wife. Can the HUF retain its status as such or the surviving persons would become co-owners?

Answer

In the case of Gowli Buddanna v. CIT (1966) 60 ITR 293, the Supreme Court has made it clear that there need not be more than one male member to form a HUF as a taxable entity under the Income-tax Act, 1961. The expression "Hindu Undivided Family" in the Act is used in the sense in which it is understood under the personal law of the Hindus.

Under the Hindu system of law, a joint family may consist of a single male member and the widows of the deceased male members and the Income-tax Act, 1961 does not mandate that it should consist of at least two male members. Therefore, property of a joint Hindu family does not cease to belong to the family merely because the family is represented by a single co-parcener who possesses the right which an owner of property may possess.

Therefore, the HUF would retain its status as such.

Question 5

Mr. C borrowed on Hundi, a sum of ₹ 25,000 by way of bearer cheque on 11-09-2019 and repaid the same with interest amounting to ₹ 30,000 by account payee cheque on 12-10-2019.

The Assessing Officer (AO) wants to treat the amount borrowed as income during the previous year. Is the action of AO valid?

Answer

Section 69D provides that where any amount is borrowed on a hundi or any amount due thereon is repaid otherwise than by way of an account-payee cheque drawn on a bank, the amount so borrowed or repaid shall be deemed to be the income of the person borrowing or repaying the amount for the previous year in which the amount was so borrowed or repaid, as the case may be.

In this case, Mr. C has borrowed ₹ 25,000 on Hundi by way of bearer cheque. Therefore, it shall be deemed to be income of Mr. C for the previous year 2019-20. Since the repayment of the same along with interest was made by way of account payee cheque, the same would not be hit by the provisions of section 69D. Therefore, the action of the Assessing Officer treating the amount borrowed as income during the previous year is valid in law.

Question 6

The Assessing Officer found, during the course of assessment of a firm, that it had paid rent in respect of its business premises amounting to ₹ 60,000, which was not debited in the books of account for the year ending 31.3.2020. The firm did not explain the source for payment of rent. The Assessing Officer proposes to make an addition of ₹ 60,000 in the hands of the firm for the assessment year 2020-21. The firm claims that even if the addition is made, the sum of ₹ 60,000 should be allowed as deduction while computing its business income since it has been expended for purposes of its business. Examine the claim of the firm.

Answer

The claim of the firm for deduction of the sum of ₹ 60,000 in computing its business income is not tenable. The action of the Assessing Officer in making the addition of ₹ 60,000, being the payment of rent not debited in the books of account (for which the firm failed to explain the source of payment) is correct in law since the same is an unexplained expenditure under section 69C. The proviso to section 69C states that such unexplained expenditure, which is deemed to be the income of the assessee, shall not be allowed as a deduction under any head of income. Therefore, the claim of the firm is not tenable.

SIGNIFICANT SELECT CASES

1. Whether technical fee paid under a technical collaboration agreement for setting up a joint venture company in India is to be treated as revenue or capital expenditure, where, upon termination of the agreement, the joint venture would come to an end?

Honda Siel Cars India Ltd. v. CIT [2017] 395 ITR 713 (SC)

Facts of the case: The assessee, Honda Siel Cars India Ltd., is a joint venture company between Honda Motors, a Japanese company and Siel Ltd., an Indian company. The assessee and Honda Motors entered into a technical collaboration agreement (TCA) on May 21, 1996 under which a technical fee of 30.5 million USD was payable by the assessee in five equal instalments on a yearly basis. Under the agreement, TCA Honda Motors had to provide manufacturing facilities, know-how, technical information, information regarding intellectual property rights to the assessee which the assessee was entitled to exploit only as a licensee, without any proprietary rights. The assessee treated the technical fees as revenue while the Revenue authorities contended that it is capital in nature.

Issue: Whether the technical fee of 30.5 million USD payable by the assessee is in the nature of revenue expenditure or capital expenditure?

Appellate Authorities' views: The Tribunal held that the assessee had acquired only a limited right to use and not a proprietary right, and hence, the expenditure was revenue in nature. It did not matter that the agreement was entered into at the time of setting up the business. The High Court, however, held that though the rights were in the nature of a right to use, the joint venture's business was set up pursuant to the agreement, and hence, the expenditure was capital in nature.

Supreme Court's Observations: From a review of relevant precedents, the Court observed that if a limited right to use technical know-how is obtained for a limited period for improvising existing business, the expenditure is revenue in nature. However, if technical know-how is obtained for setting up a new business, the position may be different. There is no single principle or test for determining the nature of expenditure; it is a question to be answered based on the circumstances in each case.

In the given facts, the very purpose of the TCA was to set up the Joint Venture. The collaboration included not only transfer of technical information, but, complete assistance, actual, factual and on the spot, for establishment of plant, machinery, etc. so as to set up a manufacturing unit. Upon termination of TCA, the joint venture itself would come to an end. Though the TCA is framed in a manner to look like a licence for a limited period having no enduring nature but a close scrutiny into the said agreement shows otherwise.

Supreme Court's Decision: Affirming the decision of the High Court, the Supreme Court held that, in this case, technical fee is capital in nature since upon termination of TCA, the joint venture itself would come to an end.

Note – In this case, since the amount paid for obtaining limited right to use technical know-how for a limited period is held to be capital in nature, it would be an intangible asset eligible for depreciation@25%.

2. What is the nature of liquidated damages received by a company from the supplier of plant for failure to supply machinery to the company within the stipulated time – a capital receipt or a revenue receipt?

CIT v. Saurashtra Cement Ltd. (2010) 325 ITR 422 (SC)

Facts of the case: The assessee, a cement manufacturing company, entered into an agreement with a supplier for purchase of additional cement plant. One of the conditions in the agreement was that if the supplier failed to supply the machinery within the stipulated time, the assessee would be compensated at 5% of the price of the respective portion of the machinery without proof of actual loss. The assessee received ₹ 8.50 lakhs from the supplier by way of liquidated damages on account of his failure to supply the machinery within the stipulated time. The Department assessed the amount of liquidated damages to income-tax. However, the Appellate Tribunal held that the amount was a capital receipt and the High Court concurred with this view.

Supreme Court's Decision: The Apex Court affirmed the decision of the High Court holding that the damages were directly and intimately linked with the procurement of a capital asset i.e., the cement plant, which lead to delay in coming into existence of the profit-making apparatus. It was not a receipt in the course of profit earning process. Therefore, the amount received by the assessee towards compensation for sterilization of the profit earning source, is not in the ordinary course of business, hence it is a capital receipt in the hands of the assessee.

3. Can capital contribution of the individual partners credited to their accounts in the books of the firm be taxed as cash credit in the hands of the firm, where the partners have admitted their capital contribution but failed to explain satisfactorily the source of receipt in their individual hands?

CIT v. M. Venkateswara Rao (2015) 370 ITR 212 (T & AP)

Facts of the case: The assessee-firm was constituted in the year 1982 and its return for the assessment year 1993-94 was selected for scrutiny under section 143(3). The controversy was in relation to the capital contribution of ten partners aggregating to ₹ 76.57 lakhs. The assessee-firm's explanation that the partners have paid various amounts towards contribution of their share in the capital was not accepted since the source of income for the partners was not explained. The Commissioner (Appeals) observed that the amounts credited in the names of four partners were valid and that cash credits in the accounts of six other partners in the books of the firm were to be considered afresh by the Assessing Officer.

Issue under consideration: The issue before the High Court was whether the Assessing Officer was justified in treating the capital contribution of partners as income of the firm by invoking section 68?

High Court's Opinion: Section 68 directs that if an assessee fails to explain the nature and source of credit entered in the books of account of any previous year, the same can be treated as income. In this case, the amount sought to be treated as income of the firm is the contribution made by the partners to the capital. In a way, the amount so contributed constitutes the very substratum for the business of the firm and it is difficult to treat the pooling of such capital as credit. It is only when the entries are made during the course of business, they can be subjected to scrutiny under section 68.

Where the firm explains that the partners have contributed capital, section 68 cannot be pressed into service. At the most, the Assessing Officer can make an enquiry against the individual partners and not the firm when the partners have also admitted their capital contribution in the firm. The High Court made reference to decision in the case of CIT v. Anupam Udyog 142 ITR 130 (Patna) where it was held if there are cash credits in the books of the firm in the accounts of the individual partners and it is found as a fact that cash was received by the firm from its partner, then, in the absence of any material to indicate that they are the profits of the firm, the cash credits cannot be assessed in the hands of the firm, though they may be assessed in the hands of individual partners.

High Court's Decision: The High Court, accordingly, held that the view taken by the Assessing Officer that the partnership firm has to explain the source of income of the partners as regards the amount contributed by them towards capital of the firm, in the absence of which the same would be treated as the income of the firm, was not tenable.

RESIDENCE AND SCOPE OF TOTAL INCOME

LEARNING OUTCOMES

After studying this chapter, you would be able to -

- ❑ determine the residential status of Individuals, HUF, AOPs/ BOIs, Firms & Companies;
- ❑ examine the scope of income chargeable to tax in respect of different persons, after ascertaining their residential status;
- ❑ appreciate how the residential status of a person determines the income includible in his total income and consequently impacts his income-tax liability.

2.1 RESIDENTIAL STATUS [SECTION 6]

The incidence of tax on any assessee depends upon his residential status under the Act. For all purposes of income-tax, taxpayers are classified into three broad categories on the basis of their residential status viz.

- (1) Resident and ordinarily resident
- (2) Resident but not ordinarily resident
- (3) Non-resident

The residential status of an assessee must be ascertained with reference to each previous year. A person who is resident and ordinarily resident in one year may become non-resident or resident but not ordinarily resident in another year or vice versa.

The provisions for determining the residential status of assessee are:

(1) Residential status of Individuals

Under section 6(1), an individual is said to be resident in India in any previous year, if he satisfies any one of the following conditions:

- (i) He has been in India during the previous year for a total period of 182 days or more, or

- (ii) He has been in India during the 4 years immediately preceding the previous year for a total period of 365 days or more and has been in India for at least 60 days in the previous year.

If the individual satisfies any one of the conditions mentioned above, he is a resident. If both the above conditions are not satisfied, the individual is a non-resident.

Notes:

- (a) The term “stay in India” includes stay in the territorial waters of India (i.e., 12 nautical miles into the sea from the Indian coastline). Even the stay in a ship or boat moored in the territorial waters of India would be sufficient to make the individual resident in India.
- (b) It is not necessary that the period of stay must be continuous or active nor is it essential that the stay should be at the usual place of residence, business or employment of the individual.
- (c) For the purpose of counting the number of days stayed in India, both the date of departure as well as the date of arrival are considered to be in India.
- (d) The residence of an individual for income-tax purpose has nothing to do with citizenship, place of birth or domicile. An individual can, therefore, be resident in more countries than one even though he can have only one domicile.

Exceptions:

The following categories of individuals will be treated as resident in India only if the period of their stay during the relevant previous year amounts to 182 days. In other words, even if such persons were in India for 60 days or more (but less than 182 days) in the relevant previous year, they will not be treated as resident due to the reason that their stay in India was for 365 days or more during the 4 immediately preceding years.

- (i) Indian citizens, who leave India during the relevant previous year as a member of the crew of an Indian ship or for purposes of employment outside India, or
- (ii) Indian citizen or person of Indian origin<sup>1</sup> engaged outside India in an employment or a business or profession or in any other vocation, who comes on a visit to India in any previous year

How to determine period of stay in India for an Indian citizen, being a crew member?

In case of foreign bound ships where the destination of the voyage is outside India, there is uncertainty regarding the manner and the basis of determining the period of stay in India for an Indian citizen, being a crew member.

<sup>1</sup>A person is said to be of Indian origin if he or either of his parents or either of his grandparents were born in undivided India.

To remove this uncertainty, Explanation 2 to section 6(1) provides that in the case of an Individual, being a citizen of India and a member of the crew of a foreign bound ship leaving India, the period or periods of stay in India shall, in respect of such voyage, be determined in the prescribed manner and subject to the prescribed conditions.

Accordingly, the CBDT has vide, Notification No. 70/2015 dated 17.8.2015, inserted Rule 126 in the Income-tax Rules, 1962 to compute the period of stay in such cases.

According to Rule 126, for the purposes of section 6(1), in case of an individual, being a citizen of India and a member of the crew of a ship, the period or periods of stay in India shall, in respect of an eligible voyage, not include the following period:

Period to be excluded

Period commencing from	And	Period ending on the date entered into the Continuous Discharge Certificate in respect of joining the ship by the said individual for the eligible voyage	And	the date entered into the Continuous Discharge Certificate in respect of signing off by that individual from the ship in respect of such voyage.

Meaning of certain terms:

Terms	Meaning
(a) Continuous Discharge Certificate	This term has the meaning assigned to it in the Merchant Shipping (Continuous Discharge Certificate-cum Seafarer's Identity Document) Rules, 2001 made under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1958.
(b) Eligible voyage	A voyage undertaken by a ship engaged in the carriage of passengers or freight in international traffic where – (i) for the voyage having originated from any port in India, has as its destination any port outside India; and (ii) for the voyage having originated from any port outside India, has as its destination any port in India.

ILLUSTRATION 1

Mr. Anand is an Indian citizen and a member of the crew of a Singapore bound Indian ship engaged in carriage of passengers in international traffic departing from Chennai port on 6th June, 2019. From the following details for the P.Y.2019-20, determine the residential status of Mr. Anand for A.Y.2020-21, assuming that his stay in India in the last 4 previous years (preceding P.Y.2019-20) is 400 days and last seven previous years (preceding P.Y.2019-20) is 750 days:

Particulars	Date
Date entered into the Continuous Discharge Certificate in respect of joining the ship by Mr. Anand	6th June, 2019
Date entered into the Continuous Discharge Certificate in respect of signing off the ship by Mr. Anand	9th December, 2019

SOLUTION

In this case, the voyage is undertaken by an Indian ship engaged in the carriage of passengers in international traffic, originating from a port in India (i.e., the Chennai port) and having its destination at a port outside India (i.e., the Singapore port). Hence, the voyage is an eligible voyage for the purposes of section 6(1).

Therefore, the period beginning from 6th June, 2019 and ending on 9th December, 2019, being the dates entered into the Continuous Discharge Certificate in respect of joining the ship and signing off from the ship by Mr. Anand, an Indian citizen who is a member of the crew of the ship, has to be excluded for computing the period of his stay in India. Accordingly, 187 days [25+31+31+30+31+30+9] have to be excluded from the period of his stay in India. Consequently, Mr. Anand's period of stay in India during the P.Y.2019-20 would be 179 days [i.e., 366 days – 187 days]. Since his period of stay in India during the P.Y.2019-20 is less than 182 days, he is a non-resident for A.Y.2020-21.

Note - Since the residential status of Mr. Anand is "non-resident" for A.Y.2020-21 consequent to his number of days of stay in P.Y.2019-20 being less than 182 days, his period of stay in the earlier previous years become irrelevant.

Resident and ordinarily resident/ Resident but not ordinarily resident

Only individuals and HUF can be resident but not ordinarily resident in India. All other classes of assesseees can be either a resident or non-resident. A not-ordinarily resident person is one who satisfies any one of the conditions specified under section 6(6).

- (i) If such individual has been non-resident in India in any 9 out of the 10 previous years preceding the relevant previous year, or
- (ii) If such individual has during the 7 previous years preceding the relevant previous year been in India for a period of 729 days or less.

Note: In simpler terms, an individual is said to be a resident and ordinarily resident if he satisfies both the following conditions:

- (i) He is a resident in any 2 out of the last 10 years preceding the relevant previous year, and
- (ii) His total stay in India in the last 7 years preceding the relevant previous year is 730 days or more.

If the individual satisfies both the conditions mentioned above, he is a resident and ordinarily resident but if only one or none of the conditions are satisfied, the individual is a resident but not ordinarily resident.

ILLUSTRATION 2

Brett Lee, an Australian cricket player visits India for 100 days in every financial year. This has been his practice for the past 10 financial years. Find out his residential status for the assessment year 2020-21.

SOLUTION*Determination of Residential Status of Mr. Brett Lee for the A.Y. 2020-21:-

Period of stay during the previous year 2019-20 = 100 days

Calculation of period of stay during 4 preceding previous years (100 x 4=400 days)

P.Y.2018-19	100 days
P.Y.2017-18	100 days
P.Y.2016-17	100 days
Total	400 days

Mr. Brett Lee has been in India for a period of more than 60 days during previous year 2019-20 and for a period of more than 365 days during the 4 immediately preceding previous years. Therefore, since he satisfies one of the basic conditions under section 6(1), he is a resident for the assessment year 2020-21.

Computation of period of stay during 7 preceding previous years = 100 x 7=700 days

2017-18	100 days
2016-17	100 days
2015-16	100 days
2014-15	100 days
2013-14	100 days
2012-13	100 days
Total	700 days

Since his period of stay in India during the past 7 previous years is less than 730 days, he is a not-ordinarily resident during the assessment year 2020-21. (See Note below)

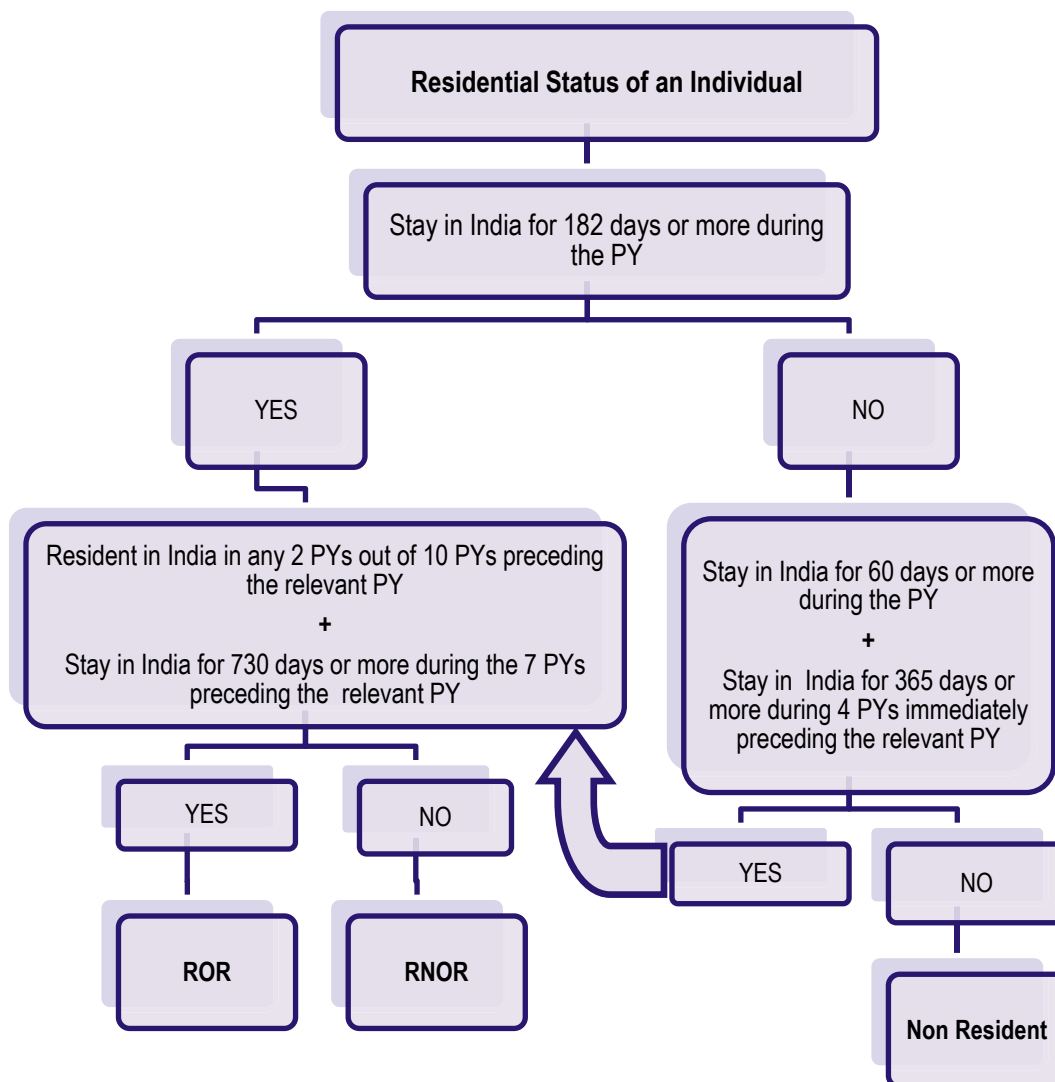

Therefore, Mr. Brett Lee is a resident but not ordinarily resident during the previous year 2019-20 relevant to the assessment year 2020-21.

Note: A not-ordinarily resident person is one who satisfies any one of the conditions specified under section 6(6), i.e.,

- (i) If such individual has been non-resident in India in any 9 out of the 10 previous years preceding the relevant previous year, or
- (ii) If such individual has during the 7 previous years preceding the relevant previous year been in India for a period of 729 days or less.

In this case, since Mr. Brett Lee satisfies condition (ii), he is a not-ordinary resident for the A.Y. 2020-21.

(2) Residential status of HUF

Resident: A HUF would be resident in India if the control and management of its affairs is situated wholly or partly in India.

Non-resident: If the control and management of the affairs is situated wholly outside India it would become a non-resident.

Meaning of the term “control and management”

- The expression ‘control and management’ referred to under section 6 refers to the central control and management and not to the carrying on of day-to-day business by servants, employees or agents.

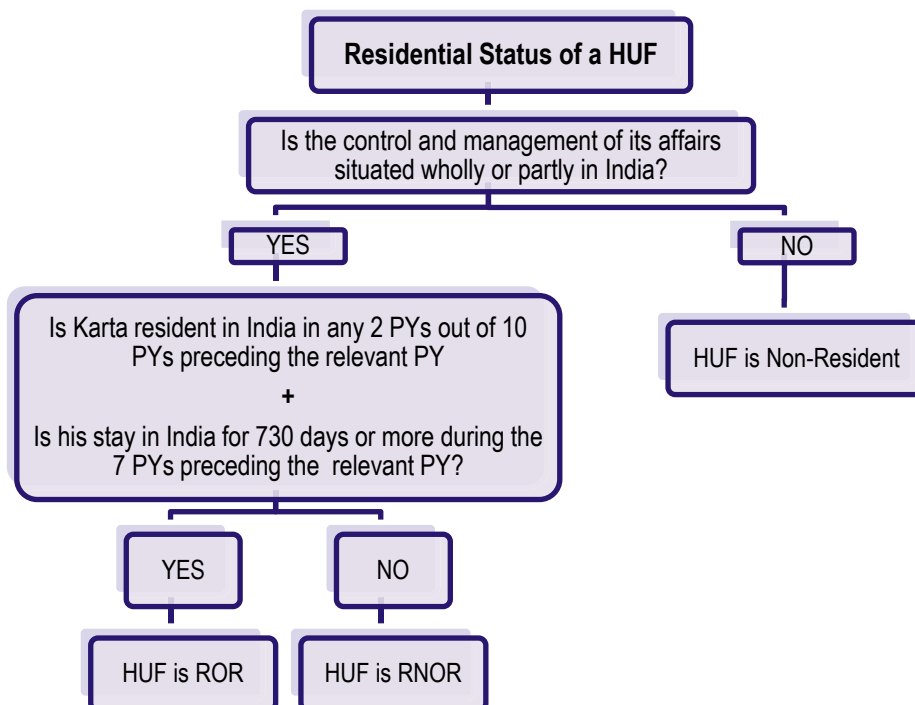

- The business may be done from outside India and yet its control and management may be wholly within India. Therefore, control and management of a business is said to be situated at a place where the head and brain of the adventure is situated.
- The place of control may be different from the usual place of running the business and sometimes even the registered office of the assessee. This is because the control and management of a business need not necessarily be done from the place of business or from the registered office of the assessee.
- But control and management do imply the functioning of the controlling and directing power at a particular place with some degree of permanence.

Resident and ordinarily resident/ Resident but not ordinarily resident

If Karta of resident HUF satisfies both the following additional conditions (as applicable in case of individual) then, resident HUF will be Resident and ordinarily resident, otherwise it will be Resident but not ordinarily resident.

Additional conditions:

1. Karta of resident HUF should be resident in at least 2 previous years out of 10 previous years immediately preceding relevant previous year.
2. Stay of Karta during 7 previous years immediately preceding relevant previous year should be 730 days or more.

(3) Residential status of firms and association of persons

Resident: A firm and an AOP would be resident in India if the control and management of its affairs is situated wholly or partly in India.

Non-resident: Where the control and management of the affairs is situated wholly outside India, the firm and AOP would become a non-resident.

(4) Residential status of companies

A company would be resident in India in any previous year, if-

- (i) it is an Indian company; or
- (ii) its place of effective management, in that year, is in India.

“Place of effective management” to mean a place where key management and commercial decisions that are necessary for the conduct of the business of an entity as a whole are, in substance made [Explanation to section 6(3)]

Determination of residential status of a company

Note: Guidelines for determination of POEM of a company, other than an Indian company would be dealt with in Chapter 2: Non-resident Taxation in Module 4 of the Study Material containing the chapters relating to Part II: International Taxation.

(5) Residential status of local authorities and artificial juridical persons

Resident: Local authorities and artificial juridical persons would be resident in India if the control and management of its affairs is situated wholly or partly in India.

Non-resident: Where the control and management of the affairs is situated wholly outside India, they would become non-residents.

2.2 SCOPE OF TOTAL INCOME

Section 5 provides the scope of total income in terms of the residential status of the assessee because the incidence of tax on any person depends upon his residential status. The scope of total income of an assessee depends upon the following three important considerations:

- (i) the residential status of the assessee;
- (ii) the place of accrual or receipt of income, whether actual or deemed; and
- (iii) the point of time at which the income had accrued to or was received by or on behalf of the assessee.

The ambit of total income of the three classes of assessee would be as follows:

(1) Resident and ordinarily resident

The total income of a resident assessee would, under section 5(1), consist of:

- (i) income received or deemed to be received in India during the previous year;
- (ii) income which accrues or arises or is deemed to accrue or arise in India during the previous year; and
- (iii) income which accrues or arises outside India even if it is not received or brought into India during the previous year.

In simpler terms, a resident and ordinarily resident has to pay tax on the total income accrued or deemed to accrue, received or deemed to be received in or outside India.

(2) Resident but not ordinarily resident

Under section 5(1), the computation of total income of resident but not ordinarily resident is the same as in the case of resident and ordinarily resident stated above except for the fact that the income accruing or arising to him outside India is not to be included in his total income.

However, where such income is derived from a business controlled from or profession set up in India, then it must be included in his total income even though it accrues or arises outside India.

(3) Non-resident

A non-resident's total income under section 5(2) includes:

- (i) income received or deemed to be received in India in the previous year; and
- (ii) income which accrues or arises or is deemed to accrue or arise in India during the previous year.

Note: All assesseees, whether resident or not, are chargeable to tax in respect of their income accrued, arisen, received or deemed to accrue, arise or to be received in India whereas residents alone are chargeable to tax in respect of income which accrues or arises outside India.

Clarification regarding liability to income-tax in India of a non-resident seafarer receiving remuneration in NRE (Non-Resident External) account maintained with an Indian Bank [Circular No.13/2017, dated 11.04.2017 and Circular No.17/2017, dated 26.04.2017]

Income by way of salary, received by non-resident seafarers, for services rendered outside India on-board foreign ships, is being subjected to tax in India for the reason that the salary has been received by the seafarer into the NRE bank account maintained in India by the seafarer. On receiving representations in this regard, the CBDT examined the matter and noted that section 5(2)(a) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 provides that only such income of a non-resident shall be subjected to tax in India that is either received or is deemed to be received in India.

Accordingly, the CBDT has, vide this circular, clarified that that salary accrued to a non-resident seafarer for services rendered outside India on a foreign going ship (with Indian flag or foreign flag) shall not be included in the total income merely because the said salary has been credited in the NRE account maintained with an Indian bank by the seafarer.

Residential Status and Scope of Total Income: Whether the following incomes are to be included in Total Income?

Scope of total Income	Resident and Ordinarily Resident	Resident but not Ordinarily Resident	Non-Resident
Income received or deemed to be received in India during the previous year	Yes	Yes	Yes
Income accruing or arising or deeming to accrue or arise in India during the previous year	Yes	Yes	Yes
Income accruing or arising outside India during the previous year	Yes, even if such income is not received or brought into India during the previous year	Yes, but only if such income is derived from a business controlled in or profession set up in India; Otherwise, No.	No

Meaning of “Income received or deemed to be received”

All assesseees are liable to tax in respect of the income received or deemed to be received by them in India during the previous year irrespective of -

- (i) their residential status, and
- (ii) the place of its accrual.

Income is to be included in the total income of the assessee immediately on its actual or deemed receipt. The receipt of income refers to only the first occasion when the recipient gets the money under his control. Therefore, when once an amount is received as income, remittance or transmission of that amount from one place or person to another does not constitute receipt of income in the hands of the subsequent recipient or at the place of subsequent receipt.

Meaning of income 'accruing' and 'arising'

Accrue refers to the right to receive income, whereas due refers to the right to enforce payment of the same. For e.g. salary for work done in December will accrue throughout the month, day to day, but will become due on the salary bill being passed on 31st December or 1st January.

Similarly, on Government securities, interest payable on specified dates arise during the period of holding, day to day, but will become due for payment on the specified dates.

Example:

Interest on Government securities is usually payable on specified dates, say on 1st January and 1st July. In all such cases, the interest would be said to accrue from 1st July to 31st December and on 1st January, it will fall due for payment.

It must be noted that income which has been taxed on accrual basis cannot be assessed again on receipt basis, as it will amount to double taxation.

With a view to removing difficulties and clarifying doubts in the taxation of income, Explanation 1 to section 5 specifically provides that an item of income accruing or arising outside India shall not be deemed to be received in India merely because it is taken into account in a balance sheet prepared in India.

Further, Explanation 2 to section 5 makes it clear that once an item of income is included in the assessee's total income and subjected to tax on the ground of its accrual/ deemed accrual, it cannot again be included in the person's total income and subjected to tax either in the same or in a subsequent year on the ground of its receipt - whether actual or deemed.

Income deemed to accrue or arise in India [Section 9]

Under section 9, certain types of income are deemed to accrue or arise in India even though they may actually accrue or arise outside India. The categories of income which are deemed to accrue or arise in India are given below in this chart:

Note: Section 9 details the incomes deemed to accrue or arise in India and section 9A details the circumstances when the presence of eligible fund manager in India would not constitute business connection in India for an eligible investment fund. These provisions would be dealt with in detail in Chapter 2: Non-resident Taxation in Module 4 of Study Material containing the chapters relating to Part II: International taxation.

EXERCISE

Question 1

The business of a HUF is transacted from Australia and all the policy decisions are taken there. Mr. E, the karta of the HUF, who was born in Kolkata, visits India during the P.Y.2019-20 after 15 years. He comes to India on 1.4.2019 and leaves for Australia on 1.12.2019. Determine the residential status of Mr. E and the HUF for A.Y.2020-21.

Answer

- (a) During the P.Y.2019-20, Mr. E has stayed in India for 245 days (i.e., 30+31+30+31+31+30+31+30+1 days). Therefore, he is a resident. However, since he has come to India after 15 years, he does not satisfy any of the conditions for being ordinarily resident.

Therefore, the residential status of Mr. E for the P.Y.2019-20 is resident but not ordinarily resident.

- (b) Since the business of the HUF is transacted from Australia and nothing is mentioned regarding its control and management, it is assumed that the control and management is also wholly outside India since policy decisions are taken there. Therefore, the HUF is a non-resident for the P.Y.2019-20.

Question 2

From the following particulars of income furnished by Mr. Anirudh pertaining to the year ended 31.3.2020, compute the total income for the assessment year 2020-21, if he is:

- (i) Resident and ordinary resident;
 (ii) Resident but not ordinarily resident;
 (iii) Non-resident

	Particulars	₹
(a)	Short-term capital gains on sale of shares in an Indian Company received in Germany	15,000
(b)	Dividend from a Japanese Company received in Japan	10,000
(c)	Rent from property in London deposited in a bank in London, later on remitted to India through approved banking channels	75,000
(d)	Dividend from RP Ltd., an Indian Company	6,000
(e)	Agricultural income from lands in Gujarat	25,000

Answer*Computation of total income of Mr. Anirudh for the A.Y. 2020-21

Particulars	Resident & ordinarily resident (₹)	Resident but not ordinarily resident (₹)	Non-Resident (₹)
1) Short term capital gains on sale of shares of an Indian company, received in Germany	15,000	15,000	15,000
2) Dividend from a Japanese company, received in Japan	10,000	-	-
3) Rent from property in London deposited in a bank in London [See Note (i) below]	52,500	-	-
4) Dividend from RP Ltd., an Indian Company [See Note (ii) below]	-	-	-
5) Agricultural income from land in Gujarat [See Note (iii) below]	-	-	-
Total Income	77,500	15,000	15,000

Notes:

- (i) It has been assumed that the rental income is the gross annual value of the property. Therefore, deduction @30% under section 24, has been provided and the net income so computed is taken into account for determining the total income of a resident and ordinarily resident.

Particulars	₹
Rent received (assumed as gross annual value)	75,000
Less: Deduction under section 24 (30% of ₹75,000)	22,500
Income from house property	52,500

- (ii) Dividend received from Indian company upto ₹ 10 lakh is exempt under section 10(34).
 (iii) Agricultural income is exempt under section 10(1).

Question 3

Poulomi, a chartered accountant, is presently working in a firm in India. She has received an offer for the post of Chief Financial Officer from a company at Singapore. As per the offer letter, she should join the company at any time between 1st September, 2019 and 31st October, 2019. She approaches you for your advice on the following issues to mitigate her tax liability in India:

- (i) Date by which she should leave India to join the company;

- (ii) Direct credit of part of her salary to her bank account in Kolkata maintained jointly with her mother to meet requirement of her family
- (iii) Period for which she should stay in India when she comes on leave.

Answer

The following category of individuals will be treated as resident in India only if the period of their stay in India during the relevant previous year is 182 days or more :-

- (a) Indian citizens, who leave India in any previous year, inter alia, for purposes of employment outside India, or
  - (b) Indian citizen or person of Indian origin engaged outside India, inter alia, in an employment, who comes on a visit to India in any previous year.
- (i) Since Poulomi is leaving India for the purpose of employment outside India, she will be treated as resident only if the period of her stay during the previous year amounts to 182 days or more. Therefore, Poulomi should leave India on or before 28th September, 2019, in which case, her stay in India during the previous year would be less than 182 days and she would become non-resident for the purpose of taxability in India. In such a case, only the income which accrues or arises in India or which is deemed to accrue or arise in India or received or deemed to be received in India shall be taxable.

The income earned by her in Singapore would not be chargeable to tax in India for A.Y. 2020-21, if she leaves India on or before 28th September, 2019.

- (ii) If any part of Poulomi's salary will be credited directly to her bank account in Kolkata then, that part of her salary would be considered as income received in India during the previous year under section 5 and would be chargeable to tax under Income-tax Act, 1961, even if she is a non-resident. Therefore, Poulomi should receive her entire salary in Singapore and then remit the required amount to her bank account in Kolkata in which case, the salary earned by her in Singapore would not be subject to tax in India.
- (iii) In case Poulomi visits India after taking up employment outside India, she would be covered in the exception provided in (b) above and she will be treated as resident only if the period of her stay during the relevant previous year amounts to 182 days or more.

Therefore, when Poulomi comes India on leave, she should stay in India for less than 182 days during the relevant previous year so that her status remains as a non-resident for the relevant previous year. Moreover, she should not visit India again during the current previous year i.e. P.Y. 2019-20.

INCOMES WHICH DO NOT FORM PART OF TOTAL INCOME

LEARNING OUTCOMES

After studying this chapter, you would be able to -

- ❑ appreciate whether a particular income would constitute agricultural income or non-agricultural income;
- ❑ compute the tax on non-agricultural income by applying the concept of partial integration of agricultural income with non-agricultural income;
- ❑ examine the provisions of different clauses of section 10;
- ❑ analyse and apply such provisions to determine whether a particular income would form/ would not form part of total income;
- ❑ compute the exemption available to an undertaking established in SEZ considering the conditions specified thereunder;
- ❑ analyse and apply the provisions of section 14A to determine the expenditure incurred in relation to income not includible in total income.

3.1 INTRODUCTION

(1) Exemption under section 10 vis-a-vis Deduction under Chapter VI-A

The various items of income referred to in the different clauses of section 10 are excluded from the total income of an assessee. These incomes are known as exempted incomes. Consequently, such income shall not enter into the computation of taxable income.

Moreover, there are certain other incomes which are included in total income but are wholly or partly allowed as deductions in computation of total income under Chapter VI-A. Students should note a very important difference between exemption under section 10 and the deduction under Chapter VI-A.

(2) Exemptions which are discussed under the relevant chapters:

In this chapter, we are going to study the provisions of section 10 which enumerate the various categories of income that are exempt from tax.

Students may note that, in this chapter, only some of the exemptions are discussed. The remaining exemptions are being discussed in the respective chapters as shown hereunder:

LIST OF EXEMPTIONS BEING DISCUSSED IN RESPECTIVE CHAPTERS*Salaries

- Leave travel concession [Section 10(5)]
- Allowance payable outside India by the Government to a citizen of India [Section 10(7)]
- Gratuity [Section 10(10)]
- Payment in commutation of pension [Section 10(10A)]
- Leave Encashment [Section 10(10AA)]
- Retrenchment Compensation [Section 10(10B)]
- Voluntary Retirement Receipts [Section 10(10C)]
- Income-tax paid by employer [Section 10(10CC)]
- Payment from Provident Fund [Section 10(11)]
- Accumulated balance due or payable from recognised provident fund [Section 10(12)]
- Payment from Superannuation Fund [Section 10(13)]
- House Rent Allowance [Section 10(13A)]
- Special Allowance or benefit to meet expenses relating to duties or personal expenses [Section 10(14)]
- Specified allowances and perquisites paid to chairman or a retired chairman or any other member or retired member of UPSC [Section 10(45)]

Capital Gains

- Capital gain on transfer of a unit of Unit Scheme [Section 10(33)]
- Income received on buy-back of unlisted shares of domestic company [Section 10(34A)]
- Capital gain on compulsory acquisition of agricultural land within specified urban limits [Section 10(37)]
- Transfer of specified capital asset under Land Pooling Scheme [Section 10(37A)]
- Income received in transaction of reverse mortgage [Section 10(43)]

Income from Other Sources

- Interest income arising to certain persons [Section 10(15)]
- Family pension received by widow/ children/ nominated heirs of armed forces members [Section 10(19)]
- Dividends referred to in section 115-O [Section 10(34)]

Income of other Persons Included in Assessee's Total Income

- Exemption in respect of minor's income included in the hands of parent [Section 10(32)]

Deductions from Gross Total Income

- Receipts from LIC [Section 10(10D)]
- Payment from NPS Trust to an assessee on closure of his account or on his opting out of the pension scheme [Section 10(12A)]
- Payment from NPS Trust to an employee on partial withdrawal [Section 10(12B)]

Assessment of Various Entities

- Income of Securitisation trusts [Section 10(23DA)]
- Income of Investment Fund [Section 10(23FBA)]
- Income of Unit holders of Investment Fund [Section 10(23FBB)]
- Income of business trusts [Sections 10(23FC), 10(23FCA) and 10(23FD)]

Assessment of Charitable or Religious Trusts and Institutions, Political Parties and Electoral Trusts"

- Income of certain funds or institutions [Section 10(23C)]

Part II: International Taxation: Non-resident taxation

- Interest on moneys standing to the credit of individual in his NRE account [Section 10(4)(ii)]
- Interest income of a non-corporate non-resident or foreign company on specified off-shore Rupee Denominated Bonds issued by an Indian company or business trust [Section 10(4C)]
- Income of a specified fund on transfer of certain specified asset on recognized stock exchange, to the extent such income accrues or arises to, or is received in respect of units held by a non-resident [Section 10(4D)]
- Remuneration received by individuals, who are not citizens of India [Section 10(6)]
- Tax on royalty or fees for technical services derived by foreign companies [Section 10(6A)]
- Tax paid on behalf of non-resident [Section 10(6B)]

- Royalty income or fees for technical services arising to non-resident from National Technical Research Organisation (NTRO) [Section 10(6D)]
- Co-operative technical assistance programmes [Sections 10(8) and (9)]
- Consultant remuneration and Technical assistance programme [Sections 10(8A) and (8B)]
- Income arising to foreign state or foreign enterprise by way of consideration of acquiring aircraft, etc. on lease [Section 10(15A)]
- Income of European Economic Community (EEC) [Section 10(23BBB)]
- Income derived by the SAARC Fund for Regional Projects [Section 10(23BBC)]
- Income received by certain foreign companies in India in Indian currency from sale of crude oil to any person in India [Section 10(48)]
- Income accruing or arising to a foreign company on account of storage of crude oil in a facility in India and sale of crude oil therefrom to any person resident in India [Section 10(48A)]
- Income accruing or arising to a foreign company on account of sale of leftover stock of crude oil, if any, from the facility in India after the expiry of the agreement or the arrangement [Section 10(48B)]

Part II: International Taxation: Equalisation levy

- Any income arising from providing any specified service and chargeable to equalisation levy [Section 10(50)]

3.2 INCOMES NOT INCLUDED IN TOTAL INCOME [SECTION 10]

Let us now have a look at the various incomes which are exempt from tax and the conditions to be satisfied in order to be eligible for exemption.

(1) Agricultural income [Section 10(1)]

Section 10(1) provides that agricultural income is not to be included in the total income of the assessee. The reason for totally exempting agricultural income from the scope of central income-tax is that under the Constitution, the Central Government has no power to levy a tax on agricultural income.

Definition of agricultural income [Section 2(1A)]

This definition is very wide and covers the income of not only the cultivators but also the land holders who might have rented out the lands. Agricultural income may be received in cash or in kind.

Agricultural income may arise in any one of the following three ways:-

- (i) It may be rent or revenue derived from land situated in India and used for agricultural purposes.
- (ii) It may be income derived from such land by
  - (a) agriculture or
  - (b) the performance of a process ordinarily employed by a cultivator or receiver of rent in kind to render the produce fit to be taken to the market or
  - (c) the sale of such agricultural produce in the market.
- (iii) Lastly, agricultural income may be derived from any farm building required for agricultural operations.

Now let us take a critical look at the following aspects:

- (i) Rent or revenue derived from land situated in India and used for agricultural purposes: The following three conditions have to be satisfied for income to be treated as agricultural income:
  - (a) Rent or revenue should be derived from land;
  - (b) Land has to be situated in India (If agricultural land is situated in a foreign country, the entire income would be taxable); and
  - (c) land should be used for agricultural purposes.

The amount received in money or in kind, by one person from another for right to use land is termed as Rent. The rent can either be received by the owner of the land or by the original tenant from the sub-tenant. It implies that ownership of land is not necessary. Thus, the rent received by the original tenant from sub-tenant would also be agricultural income subject the other conditions mentioned above.

The scope of the term “Revenue” is much broader than rent. It includes income other than rent. For example, fees received for renewal for grant of land on lease would be revenue derived from land.

(ii) Income derived from such land by

- (a) Agriculture: The term “Agriculture” has not been defined in the Act. However, cultivation of a field involving human skill and labour on the land can be broadly termed as agriculture.

“Agriculture” means tilling of the land, sowing of the seeds and similar operations. It involves basic operations and subsequent operations.

“Agriculture” comprises within its scope the basic as well as the subsidiary operations regardless of the nature of the produce raised on the land. These produce may be grain, fruits or vegetables necessary for sustenance of human beings including plantation and groves or grass or pasture for consumption of beasts or articles of luxury such as betel, coffee, tea, spices, tobacco or commercial crops like cotton flax, jute hemp and indigo. The term comprises of products of land having some utility either for consumption or for trade and commerce and would include forest products such as sal, tendu leaves etc.

Note: The term 'agriculture' cannot be extended to all activities which have some distant relation to land like dairy farming, breeding and rearing of live stock, butter and cheese making and poultry farming. This aspect is discussed in detail later on in this chapter

Whether income from nursery constitutes agricultural income?

In the past, there have been court rulings that only if a nursery is maintained by carrying out the basic operations on land and subsequent operations in continuation thereof, income from such nursery would be treated as agricultural income and would qualify for exemption under section 10(1).

The Supreme Court has, in CIT v. Raja Benoy Kumar Sahas Roy (1957) 32 ITR 466, held that the basic operations must be performed before any income can be called agricultural income. The basic operations involve cultivation of the ground, in the sense of tilling of the land, sowing of the seeds, planting and other similar operations on the land. Such basic operations demand the expenditure of human labour and skill upon the land itself and further, they are directed to make the crop sprout from the land. Therefore, income derived from sale of plants grown directly in pots would not be treated as agricultural income.

However, the Madras High Court, in CIT v. Soundarya Nursery (2000) 241 ITR 530, observed that nursing activity involves carrying out of several operations on land before the saplings were transplanted in suitable containers including pots and thereafter kept in shade or green house for further operation and growth. Therefore, income arising from nursery should be considered as agricultural income.

Explanation 3 to section 2(1A) provides that the income derived from saplings or seedlings grown in a nursery would be deemed to be agricultural income, whether or not the basic operations were carried out on land. This Explanation ratifies the view taken by the Madras High Court in favour of the taxpayer.

- (b) Process ordinarily employed to render the produce fit to be taken to the market: Sometimes, to make the agricultural produce a saleable commodity, it becomes necessary to perform some kind of process on the produce. The income from the process employed to render the produce fit to be taken to the market would be agricultural income. However, it must be a process ordinarily employed by the cultivator or receiver of rent in kind and the process must be applied to make the produce fit to be taken to the market.

The ordinary process employed to render the produce fit to be taken to market includes thrashing, winnowing, cleaning, drying, crushing etc. For example, the process ordinarily employed by the cultivator to obtain the rice from paddy is to first remove the hay from the basic grain, and thereafter to remove the chaff from the grain. The grain then has to be properly filtered to remove stones etc. and finally the rice has to be packed in gunny bags for sale in the market.

After such process, the rice can be taken to the market for sale. This process of making the rice ready for the market may involve manual operations or mechanical operations. All these operations constitute the process ordinarily employed to make the product fit for the market. The produce must retain its original character in spite of the processing unless there is no market for selling it in that condition.

However, if marketing process is performed on a produce which can be sold in its raw form, income derived therefrom is partly agricultural income and partly business income.

- (c) Sale of such agricultural produce in the market: Any income from the sale of any produce to the cultivator or receiver of rent-in kind is agricultural income provided it is from the land situated in India and used for agricultural purposes. However, if the produce is subjected to any process other than process ordinarily employed to make the produce fit for market, the income arising on sale of such produce would be partly agricultural income and partly non-agricultural income.

Similarly, if other agricultural produce like tea, cotton, tobacco, sugarcane etc. are subjected to manufacturing process and the manufactured product is sold, the profit on such sale will consist of agricultural income as well as business income. That portion of the profit representing agricultural income will be exempted.

Apportionment of Income between business income and agriculture income: Rules 7, 7A, 7B & 8 of Income-tax Rules, 1962 provides the basis of apportionment of income between agricultural income and business income.

I. Rule 7 - Income from growing and manufacturing of any product

Where income is partially agricultural income and partially income chargeable to income-tax as business income, the market value of any agricultural produce which has been raised by the assessee or received by him as rent in kind and which has been utilised as raw material in such business or the sale receipts of which are included in the accounts of the business shall be deducted. No further deduction shall be made in respect of any expenditure incurred by the assessee as a cultivator or receiver of rent in kind.

Determination of market value - There are two possibilities here:

- (i) The agricultural produce is capable of being sold in the market either in its raw stage or after application of any ordinary process to make it fit to be taken to the market. In such a case, the value calculated at the average price at which it has been so sold during the relevant previous year will be the market value.

(ii) It is possible that the agricultural produce is not capable of being ordinarily sold in the market in its raw form or after application of any ordinary process. In such case the market value will be the total of the following:—

- The expenses of cultivation;
- The land revenue or rent paid for the area in which it was grown; and
- Such amount as the Assessing Officer finds having regard to the circumstances in each case to represent at reasonable profit.

ILLUSTRATION 1

Mr. B grows sugarcane and uses the same for the purpose of manufacturing sugar in his factory. 30% of sugarcane produce is sold for ₹ 10 lacs, and the cost of cultivation of such sugarcane is ₹ 5 lacs. The cost of cultivation of the balance sugarcane (70%) is ₹ 14 lacs and the market value of the same is ₹ 22 lacs. After incurring ₹ 1.5 lacs in the manufacturing process on the balance sugarcane, the sugar was sold for ₹ 25 lacs. Compute B's business income and agricultural income.

SOLUTION

Computation of Business Income and Agriculture Income of Mr. B

Particulars	Business Income	Agricultural Income
	(₹)	(₹)	(₹)
Sale of Sugar
Business income
Sale Proceeds of sugar	25,00,000
Less: Market value of sugar (70%)	22,00,000
Less: Manufacturing exp.	1,50,000
	1,50,000
Agricultural income
Market value of sugar (70%)		22,00,000
Less: Cost of cultivation		14,00,000
			8,00,000
Sale of sugarcane
Agricultural Income
Sale proceeds of sugarcane (30%)		10,00,000

II. Rule 7A – Income from growing and manufacturing of rubber

This rule is applicable when income derived from the sale of latex or cenex or latex based crepes or brown crepes or technically specified block rubbers manufactured from field latex or coagulum obtained from rubber plants grown by the seller in India. In such cases 35% profits on sale is taxable as business income under the head “Profits and gains from business or profession”, and the balance 65% is agricultural income and is exempt.

ILLUSTRATION 2

Mr. C manufactures latex from the rubber plants grown by him in India. These are then sold in the market for ₹ 30 lacs. The cost of growing rubber plants is ₹ 10 lacs and that of manufacturing latex is ₹ 8 lacs. Compute his total income.

SOLUTION

The total income of Mr. C comprises of agricultural income and business income.

Total profits from the sale of latex = ₹ 30 lacs – ₹ 10 lacs – ₹ 8 lacs = ₹ 12 lacs.

Agricultural income = 65% of ₹ 12 lacs = ₹ 7.8 lacs

Business income = 35% of ₹ 12 lacs = ₹ 4.2 lacs

III. Rule 7B – Income from growing and manufacturing of coffee

- (i) In case of income derived from the sale of coffee grown and cured by the seller in India, 25% profits on sale is taxable as business income under the head “Profits and gains from business or profession”, and the balance 75% is agricultural income and is exempt.
- (ii) In case of income derived from the sale of coffee grown, cured, roasted and grounded by the seller in India, with or without mixing chicory or other flavoring ingredients, 40% profits on sale is taxable as business income under the head “Profits and gains from business or profession”, and the balance 60% is agricultural income and is exempt.

IV. Rule 8 - Income from growing and manufacturing of tea

This rule applies only in cases where the assessee himself grows tea leaves and manufactures tea in India. In such cases 40% profits on sale is taxable as business income under the head “Profits and gains from business or profession”, and the balance 60% is agricultural income and is exempt.

Rule	Apportionment of income in certain cases	Agricultural Income	Business Income
7A	Income from growing and manufacturing of rubber	65%	35%

7B	Income from growing and manufacturing of coffee
	- Income derived from the sale of coffee grown and cured	75%	25%
	- Income derived from the sale of coffee grown, cured, roasted and grounded	60%	40%
8	Income from growing and manufacturing of tea	60%	40%

(iii) Income from farm building – Income from the farm building which is owned and occupied by the receiver of the rent or revenue of any such land or occupied by the cultivator or the receiver of rent in kind, of any land with respect to which, or the produce of which, any process discussed above is carried on, would be agricultural income. However, the income from such farm building would be agricultural income only if the following conditions are satisfied:

- (a) The building should be on or in the immediate vicinity of the land; and
- (b) The receiver of the rent or revenue or the cultivator or the receiver of rent in kind should, by reason of his connection with such land require it as a dwelling house or as a store house.

In addition to the above conditions any one of the following two conditions should also be satisfied:

- (i) The land should either be assessed to land revenue in India or be subject to a local rate assessed and collected by the officers of the Government as such or;
- (ii) Where the land is not so assessed to land revenue in India or is not subject to local rate:-
  - a. It should not be situated in any area as comprised within the jurisdiction of a municipality or a cantonment board and which has a population not less than 10,000.
  - b. It should not be situated in any area within such distance, measured aerially, in relation to the range of population as shown hereunder –

	Shortest aerial distance from the local limits of a municipality or cantonment board referred to in item a.	Population according to the last preceding census of which the relevant figures have been published before the first day of the previous year.
(i)	≤ 2 kilometers	> 10,000 ≤ 1,00,000

(ii)	≤ 6 kilometers	> 1,00,000 ≤ 10,00,000
(iii)	≤ 8 kilometers	> 10,00,000

Example

	Area	Shortest aerial distance from the local limits of a municipality or cantonment board referred to in item a.	Population according to the last preceding census of which the relevant figures have been published before the first day of the previous year	Would income derived from farm building situated in this area be treated as agricultural income?
(i)	A	1 km	9,000	Yes
(ii)	B	1.5 kms	12,000	No
(iii)	C	2 kms	11,00,000	No
(iv)	D	3 kms	80,000	Yes
(v)	E	4 kms	3,00,000	No
(v)	F	5 kms	12,00,000	No
(vi)	G	6 kms	8,000	Yes
(vii)	H	7 kms	4,00,000	Yes
(viii)	I	8 kms	10,50,000	No
(ix)	J	9 kms	15,00,000	Yes

Would income arising from transfer of agricultural land situated in urban area be agricultural income?

No, as per Explanation 1 to section 2(1A), the capital gains arising from the transfer of such urban agricultural land would not be treated as agricultural income under section 10 but will be taxable under section 45.

Example:

Suppose A sells agricultural land situated in New Delhi for ₹ 10 lakhs and makes a surplus of ₹ 8 lakhs over its cost of acquisition. This surplus will not constitute agricultural income exempt under section 10(1) and will be taxable under section 45.

Indirect connection with land

We have seen above that agricultural income is exempt, whether it is received by the tiller or the landlord. However, non-agricultural income does not become agricultural merely on account of its indirect connection with the land. The following examples will illustrate the above point.

1. A rural society has as its principal business the selling on behalf of its member societies, butter made by these societies from cream sold to them by farmers. The making of butter was a factory process separated from the farm.

The butter resulting from the factory operations separated from the farm was not an agricultural product and the society was, therefore, not entitled to exemption under section 10(1) in respect of such income.

2. X was the managing agent of a company. He was entitled for a commission at the rate of 10% p.a. on the annual net profits of the company. A part of the company's income was agricultural income. X claimed that since his remuneration was calculated with reference to income of the company, part of which was agricultural income, such part of the commission as was proportionate to the agricultural income was exempt from income tax.

Since, X received remuneration under a contract for personal service calculated on the amount of profits earned by the company, such remuneration does not constitute agricultural income.

3. Y owned 100 acres of agricultural land, a part of which was used as pasture for cows. The lands were purely maintained for manuring and other purposes connected with agriculture and only the surplus milk after satisfying the assessee's needs was sold. The question arose whether income from such sale of milk was agricultural income.

The regularity with which the sales of milk were effected and quantity of milk sold showed that the assessee carried on regular business of producing milk and selling it as a commercial proposition. Hence, it was not agricultural income.

4. B was a shareholder in certain tea companies, 60% of whose income was exempt from tax as agricultural income. She claimed that 60% of the dividend received by her on her shares in those companies was also exempt from tax as agricultural income.

Dividend is derived from the investment made in the shares of the company and is hence, not an agricultural income.

5. In regard to forest trees of spontaneous growth which grow on the soil unaided by any human skill and labour there is no cultivation of the soil at all. Even though operations in the nature of forestry operations performed by the assessee may have the effect of nursing and fostering the growth of such forest trees, it cannot constitute agricultural operations.

Income from the sale of such forest trees of spontaneous growth does not, therefore, constitute agricultural income.

Examples of Agricultural income and non-agricultural income:

For better understanding of the concept, certain examples of agricultural income and non-agricultural income are given in the next page:

Agricultural income

1. Income derived from the sale of seeds.
2. Income from growing of flowers and creepers.

3. Rent received from land used for grazing of cattle required for agricultural activities.
4. Income from growing of bamboo.

Non-agricultural income

1. Income from breeding of livestock.
2. Income from poultry farming.
3. Income from fisheries.
4. Income from dairy farming.

ILLUSTRATION 3

Ankur, the owner of a land situated in Kerala used for growing thereon different types of fruits, paddy, vegetables and flowers, received from Yahoo Movies Ltd., Chennai, ₹ 5 lacs as rent towards the use of this land for shooting of a film. The amount so received was accounted by him in the books as revenue derived from land and claimed to be exempt under section 10(1). He now wants to confirm from you whether the amount has been correctly treated by him as agricultural income.

SOLUTION

The income received by Mr. Ankur from a filmmaker for allowing them to shoot a film in the agricultural land owned by him is not in the nature of agricultural income because it was neither received by him against the sale of agricultural produce obtained nor for carrying out the normal agricultural operations on the land. The amount paid was only for the purpose of shooting of a film on such land.

To claim exemption in respect of agricultural income under section 10(1), the conditions contained in section 2(1A)(a) to (c) have to be first complied with/ fulfilled by the assessee. The Madras High Court in the case of B. Nagi Reddi v. CIT (2002) 258 ITR 719, following the judgment of Apex Court in the case of CIT v Raja Benoy Kumar Sahas Roy (1957) 32 ITR 466, has held, on identical facts, that the income derived for allowing a shooting of film in the agricultural land cannot be treated as agricultural income, as it has no nexus with the land, except that it was carried out on agricultural land.

Partial integration of agricultural income with non-agricultural income

As in the above discussion, we have seen that agricultural income is exempt subject to conditions mentioned in the definition clause of section 2(1A). However, a method has been laid down to levy tax on agricultural income in an indirect way. This concept is known as partial integration of agricultural income with non-agricultural income. It is applicable to individuals, HUF, AOPs, BOIs and artificial juridical persons. Two conditions which need to be satisfied for partial integration are:

1. The net agricultural income should exceed ₹ 5,000 p.a., and
2. Non-agricultural income should exceed the maximum amount not chargeable to tax. (i.e.,

₹ 5,00,000 for resident very senior citizens, ₹ 3,00,000 for resident senior citizens, ₹ 2,50,000 for all others).

It may be noted that aggregation provisions do not apply to company, LLP, firm, co-operative society and local authority. The object of aggregating the net agricultural income with non-agricultural income is to tax the non-agricultural income at higher rates.

Tax calculation in such cases is as follows:

- Step 1: Add non-agricultural income with net agricultural income. Compute tax on the aggregate amount.
- Step 2: Add net agricultural income and the maximum exemption limit available to the assessee (i.e., ₹ 2,50,000 / ₹ 3,00,000/ ₹ 5,00,000). Compute tax on the aggregate amount.
- Step 3: Deduct the amount of income tax calculated in step 2 from the income tax calculated in step 1 i.e., Step 1 – Step 2.
- Step 4: The sum so arrived at shall be increased by surcharge, if applicable. It would be reduced by the rebate, if any, available u/s 87A.
- Step 5: Thereafter, it would be increase by health and education cess @4%.

The above concept can be clearly understood with the help of the following illustration:

ILLUSTRATION 4

Mr. X, a resident, has provided the following particulars of his income for the P.Y.2019-20.

i. Income from salary (computed)	- ₹ 2,80,000
ii. Income from house property (computed)	- ₹ 2,50,000
iii. Agricultural income from a land in Jaipur	- ₹ 4,80,000
iv. Expenses incurred for earning agricultural income	- ₹ 1,70,000

Compute his tax liability assuming his age is -

- (a) 45 years
(b) 70 years

SOLUTION

Computation of total income of Mr. X for the A.Y. 2020-21

(a) Computation of tax liability (age 45 years)

For the purpose of partial integration of taxes, Mr. X has satisfied both the conditions i.e.

1. Net agricultural income exceeds ₹ 5,000 p.a., and
2. Non-agricultural income exceeds the basic exemption limit of ₹ 2,50,000.

His tax liability is computed in the following manner:

Particulars	₹	₹
Income from salary		2,80,000
Income from house property		2,50,000
Net agricultural income [₹ 4,80,000 (-) ₹ 1,70,000]	3,10,000
Less: Exempt under section 10(1)	(3,10,000)	-
Gross Total Income		5,30,000
Less: Deductions under Chapter VI-A		-
Total Income		5,30,000

Step 1 : ₹ 5,30,000 + ₹ 3,10,000 = ₹ 8,40,000

Tax on ₹ 8,40,000 = ₹ 80,500

(i.e., 5% of ₹ 2,50,000 plus 20% of ₹ 3,40,000)

Step 2 : ₹ 3,10,000 + ₹ 2,50,000 = ₹ 5,60,000

Tax on ₹ 5,60,000 = ₹ 24,500

(i.e. 5% of ₹ 2,50,000 plus 20% of ₹ 60,000)

Step 3 : ₹ 80,500 – ₹ 24,500 = ₹ 56,000

Step 4 & 5 : Total tax payable = ₹ 56,000

= ₹ 56,000 + 4% of ₹ 56,000 = ₹ 58,240.

(b) Computation of tax liability (age 70 years)

For the purpose of partial integration of taxes, Mr. X has satisfied both the conditions i.e.

1. Net agricultural income exceeds ₹ 5,000 p.a., and
2. Non-agricultural income exceeds the basic exemption limit of ₹ 3,00,000.

His tax liability is computed in the following manner:

Step 1 : ₹ 5,30,000 + ₹ 3,10,000 = ₹ 8,40,000.

Tax on ₹ 8,40,000 = ₹ 78,000

(i.e. 5% of ₹ 2,00,000 plus 20% of 3,40,000)

Step 2 : ₹ 3,10,000 + ₹ 3,00,000 = ₹ 6,10,000.

Tax on ₹ 6,10,000 = ₹ 32,000

(i.e. 5% of ₹ 2,00,000 plus 20% of ₹ 1,10,000)

Step 3 : ₹ 78,000 – ₹ 32,000 = ₹ 46,000

Step 4 & 5 : Total tax payable = ₹ 46,000 = ₹ 46,000 + 4% of ₹ 46,000 = ₹ 47,840.

(2) Amounts received by a member from the income of the HUF [Section 10(2)]

- (i) As explained in Chapter 1, a HUF is a 'person' and hence, a unit of assessment under the Act. Income earned by the HUF is assessable in its own hands.
- (ii) In order to prevent double taxation of one and the same income, once in the hands of the HUF which earns it and again in the hands of a member when it is paid out to him, section 10(2) provides that members of a HUF do not have to pay tax in respect of any amounts received by them from the family.
- (iii) The exemption applies only in respect of a payment made by the HUF to its member
  - (a) out of the income of the family or
  - (b) out of the income of the impartible estate belonging to the family.

(3) Share income of a partner [Section 10(2A)]

This clause exempts from tax a partner's share in the total income of the firm. In other words, the partner's share in the total income of the firm determined in accordance with the profit-sharing ratio will be exempt from tax.

Taxability of partner's share, where the income of the firm is exempt under Chapter III/ deductible under Chapter VI-A [Circular No. 8/2014 dated 31.03.2014]

Section 10(2A) provides that a partner's share in the total income of a firm which is separately assessed as such shall not be included in computing the total income of the partner. In effect, a partner's share of profits in such firm is exempt from tax in his hands.

Sub-section (2A) was inserted in section 10 by the Finance Act, 1992 with effect from 1.4.1993 consequent to change in the scheme of taxation of partnership firms. Since A.Y.1993-94, a firm is assessed as such and is liable to pay tax on its total income. A partner is, therefore, not liable to tax once again on his share in the said total income.

An issue has arisen as to the amount which would be exempt in the hands of the partners of a partnership firm, in cases where the firm has claimed exemption/deduction under Chapter III or Chapter VI-A.

The CBDT has clarified that the income of a firm is to be taxed in the hands of the firm only and the same can under no circumstances be taxed in the hands of its partners. Therefore, the entire profit credited to the partners' accounts in the firm would be exempt from tax in the hands of such partners, even if the income chargeable to tax becomes Nil in the hands of the firm on account of any exemption or deduction available under the provisions of the Act.

(4) Payments to Bhopal Gas Victims [Section 10(10BB)]

Any payment made to a person under Bhopal Gas Leak Disaster (Processing of Claims) Act, 1985 and any scheme framed thereunder will be fully exempt.

However, payments made to any assessee in connection with Bhopal Gas Leak Disaster to the extent he has been allowed a deduction under the Act on account of any loss or damage caused to him by such disaster will not be exempted.

(5) Compensation received on account of disaster [Section 10(10BC)]

- (i) This clause exempts any amount received or receivable as compensation by an individual or his legal heir on account of any disaster.
- (ii) Such compensation should be granted by the Central Government or a State Government or a local authority.
- (iii) However, exemption would not be available in respect of compensation for alleviating any damage or loss, which has already been allowed as deduction under the Act.
- (iv) "Disaster" means a catastrophe, mishap, calamity or grave occurrence in any area, arising from natural or manmade causes, or by accident or negligence. It should have the effect of causing -
  - (a) substantial loss of life or human suffering; or
  - (b) damage to, and destruction of, property; or
  - (c) damage to, or degradation of, environment.

It should be of such a nature or magnitude as to be beyond the coping capacity of the community of the affected area.

ILLUSTRATION 5

An amount of ₹ 5 lacs was paid on 17.3.2020 to the parents of Amit by the Government of Chattisgarh as compensation to the aggrieved family, whose only son Amit lost his life in Maoist local bus bomb blast in Dantewada.

Examine with reasons, whether the amount of compensation received is chargeable to tax in A.Y. 2020-21?

SOLUTION

As per section 10(10BC), the meaning of "disaster" shall be derived from Disaster Management Act, 2005 which defines disaster to mean a catastrophe, mishap, calamity or grave occurrence in any area, arising from natural or manmade causes, or by accident or negligence. It should have the effect of causing substantial loss of life or human suffering or damage to, and destruction of property, or damage to, or degradation of environment. It should be of such a nature or magnitude to be beyond the coping capacity of the community of the affected area.

If, for this reason, any compensation is paid by the Central Government or by a State Government or by a local authority, then, the same will be exempt from tax. Accordingly, the amount of ₹ 5 lacs received by the parents of deceased Amit from the Government of Chattisgarh for the disaster because of Dantewada bus bomb blast is exempt under section 10(10BC).

(6) Payment from Sukanya Samriddhi Account [Section 10(11A)]

Section 10(11A) provides that any payment from an account opened in accordance with the Sukanya Samriddhi Account Rules, 2014, made under the Government Savings Bank Act, 1873, shall not be included in the total income of the assessee.

Accordingly, the interest accruing on deposits in, and withdrawals from any account under the said scheme would be exempt.

(7) Educational scholarships [Section 10(16)]

The value of scholarship granted to meet the cost of education would be exempt from tax in the hands of the recipient irrespective of the amount or source of scholarship.

(8) Payments to MPs & MLAs [Section 10(17)]

The following incomes of Members of Parliament or State Legislatures will be exempt:

- (i) Daily Allowance - Daily allowance received by any Member of Parliament or of State Legislatures or any Committee thereof.
- (ii) Constituency Allowance of MPs - In the case of a Member of Parliament or of any Committee thereof, any allowance received under Members of Parliament (Constituency Allowance) Rules, 1986; and
- (iii) Constituency allowance of MLAs - Any constituency allowance received by any person by reason of his membership of any State Legislature under any Act or rules made by that State Legislature.

(9) Awards for literary, scientific and artistic works and other awards by the Government [Section 10(17A)]

Any award instituted in the public interest by the Central/ State Government or any body approved by the Central Government and a reward by Central/ State Government for such purposes as may be approved by the Central Government in public interest, will enjoy exemption under this clause.

(10) Pension received by recipient of gallantry awards [Section 10(18)]

- (i) Exemption of Pension - Any income by way of pension received by an individual is exempt from income-tax if -
  - (a) such individual was an employee of Central or State Government and

- (b) has been awarded “Param Vir Chakra” or “Maha Vir Chakra” or “Vir Chakra” or such other gallantry award notified by the Central Government in this behalf.
- (ii) Exemption of Family Pension - In case of the death of such individual, any income by way of family pension received by any member of the family of the individual shall also be exempt under this clause.
- (iii) Meaning of Family - Family, in relation to an individual, means –
- the spouse and children of the individual; and
  - the parents, brothers and sisters of the individuals or any of them wholly or mainly dependent on the individual.

Exemption of disability pension granted to disabled personnel of armed forces who have been invalided on account of disability attributable to or aggravated by such service [Circular No. 13/2019, dated 24.6.2019]

The entire disability pension, i.e. “disability element” and “service element” of pension granted to members of naval, military or air forces who have been invalided out of naval, military or air force service on account of bodily disability attributable to or aggravated by such service would be exempt from tax.

The CBDT has, vide this circular, clarified that exemption in respect of disability pension would be available to all armed forces personnel (irrespective of rank) who have been invalided out of such service on account of bodily disability attributable to or aggravated by such service. However, such tax exemption will be available only to armed forces personnel who have been invalided out of service on account of bodily disability attributable to or aggravated by such service and not to personnel who have been retired on superannuation or otherwise.

(11) Annual value of palaces of former rulers [Section 10(19A)]

The annual value of any one palace in the occupation of former Ruler during the relevant previous year would be excluded from the total income, provided the annual value was exempt before 28.12.1971 by virtue of the provisions of the then prevailing orders, i.e., the Merged States (Tax Concessions) Order, 1949 or the Part B States (Tax Concessions) Order, 1950.

The Supreme Court has, in Maharao Bhim Singh of Kota v. CIT (2017) 390 ITR 532, observed that, in order to claim exemption from payment of income-tax on the residential palace of the Ruler under section 10(19A), it is necessary for the Ruler to satisfy the following conditions:

- (i) He should own the palace as his ancestral property;
- (ii) Such palace should be in his occupation as his residence; and
- (iii) The palace should be declared by the Central Government to be exempt from payment of Income-tax under paragraph 15(iii) of the 1950 Order.

The Supreme Court, accordingly, held that where part of the residential palace is found to be in occupation of the tenant and the remaining is in occupation of the Ruler for his residence, the Ruler is entitled to claim exemption for the whole of his residential palace under section 10(19A). Such exemption cannot be confined to that portion of the palace which is in his actual occupation thereby subjecting the income derived from the portion let out to payment of income-tax in the hands of the Ruler.

(12) Income of local authorities [Section 10(20)]

- (i) Exempt income - Following income arising to a local authority would be exempt
- Income under the head house property; or
  - Income from Capital gains; or
  - Income from Other Sources; or
  - Income from trade or business carried on by it which accrues or arises
    - ✓ from the supply of commodity or service under its jurisdictional area
    - ✓ from the supply of water or electricity within or outside its own jurisdictional area.
- (ii) Meaning of Local Authority - For the purposes of this clause, "local authority" means the following:
- (a) Panchayat
  - (b) Municipality
  - (c) Municipal Committee and District Board legally entitled to, or entrusted by the Government with the control or management of a Municipal or local Fund

(31) Income of trade unions [Section 10(24)]

Any income under the heads "Income from house property" and "Income from other sources" of a registered trade union, within the meaning of the Trade Unions Act, 1926, formed primarily for the purpose of regulating the relations between workmen and the employers or between workmen and workmen will be exempt.

Further, this exemption is also available in respect of an association of such registered unions.

(32) Income of provident funds, superannuation funds, gratuity funds [Section 10(25)]

Any income of a recognized provident fund (RPF) and of an approved superannuation fund or gratuity fund is exempt from tax and the trustees of these funds would not be liable to pay tax thereon.

The exemption also applies to -

- (i) the interest on securities which are held by or are the property of statutory provident fund (SPF) governed by the Provident Funds Act, 1925;
- (ii) the capital gains, if any arising to it from the sale, exchange or transfer of such securities;
- (iii) any income received by the Board of Trustees constituted
  - under Coal Mines Provident Fund and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1948 and
  - under the Employees' Provident Funds and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952, on behalf of the Deposit Linked Insurance Funds established under these respective Acts.

(33) Income of Employees' State Insurance (ESI) Fund [Section 10(25A)]

The contributions paid under ESI Act, 1948 and all other moneys received on behalf of the ESI Corporation are paid into a Fund called the ESI Fund. This Fund is held and administered by the ESI Corporation. The amounts lying in the Fund are to be expended for payment of cash benefits and provision of medical treatment and attendance to insured persons and their families, establishment and maintenance of hospitals and dispensaries, etc. Any income of the ESI Fund is exempted from income-tax.

(34) Income of member of a scheduled tribe [Section 10(26)]

A member of a Scheduled Tribe residing in -

- (i) any area specified in the Constitution i.e., The North Cachar Hills District, The Karbi Anglong District, The Bodoland Territorial Areas District, Khasi Hills District, Jaintia Hills District or The Garo Hills District or
- (ii) in the States of Manipur, Tripura, Arunachal Pradesh, Mizoram and Nagaland, or
- (iii) in the Ladakh region of the state of Jammu and Kashmir is exempt from tax on his income arising or accruing -

- (a) from any source in the areas or States aforesaid.
- (b) by way of dividend or interest on securities.

(35) Specified income of a Sikkimese Individual [Section 10(26AAA)]

- (i) The following income, which accrues or arises to a Sikkimese individual, would be exempt from income-tax –
  - (a) income from any source in the State of Sikkim; or
  - (b) income by way of dividend or interest on securities.
- (ii) However, this exemption will not be available to a Sikkimese woman who, on or after 1st April, 2008, marries a non-Sikkimese individual.

ILLUSTRATION 6

Ms. J, a Sikkimese woman, married Mr. K, a non-Sikkimese, on 1st January, 2008. During the previous year 2019-20, she received rent of ₹ 12 lacs from letting out of house properties situated in the State of Sikkim. Is she liable to income-tax for assessment year 2020-21? Will your answer be different, if she had married Mr. K on 16th April, 2008?

SOLUTION

Section 10(26AAA) provides that the following income, which accrues or arises to a Sikkimese individual, shall be exempt from income-tax:

- (a) Income from any source in the State of Sikkim; and
- (b) Income by way of dividend or interest on securities.

However, the aforesaid exemption will not be available to a Sikkimese woman, who marries a non-Sikkimese individual on or after 1st April, 2008.

Since Ms. J, the assessee, married Mr. K on 1st January, 2008, income derived by her by way of rent from properties situated in the State of Sikkim shall be exempt under section 10(26AAA).

However, if she had married Mr. K on 16th April, 2008, the exemption would not be available.

Note: The restriction in section 10(26AAA) applies only to Sikkimese women and not to men who are eligible for the exemption in respect of the above said incomes regardless of their marrying Sikkimese or non-Sikkimese women.

(36) Income of an Agricultural Produce Market Committee or Board [Section 10(26AAB)]

Any income of an Agricultural Produce Market Committee or Board constituted under any law for the time being in force for the purpose of regulating the marketing of agricultural produce would be exempt.

(42) Tea board subsidy [Section 10(30)]

The amount of any subsidy received by any assessee engaged in the business of growing and manufacturing tea in India through or from the Tea Board will be wholly exempt from tax.

Conditions:

- (i) The subsidy should have been received under any scheme for replantation or replacement of the bushes or for rejuvenation or consolidation of areas used for cultivation of tea, as notified by the Central Government.
- (ii) The assessee should furnish a certificate from the Tea Board, as to the subsidy received by him during the previous year, to the Assessing Officer along with his return of the relevant assessment year or within the time extended by the Assessing Officer for this purpose.

(43) Other subsidies [Section 10(31)]

Amount of any subsidy received by an assessee engaged in the business of growing and manufacturing rubber, coffee, cardamom or other specified commodity in India, as notified by the Central Government, will be wholly exempt from tax.

Conditions:

- (i) The subsidies should have been received from or through the Rubber Board, Coffee Board, Spices Board or any other Board in respect of any other commodity under any scheme for replantation or replacement of rubber, coffee, cardamom or other plants or for rejuvenation or consolidation of areas used for cultivation of all such commodities.

- (ii) The assessee should furnish a certificate from the Board, as to the subsidy received by him during the previous year, to the Assessing Officer along with his return of the relevant assessment year or within the time extended by the Assessing Officer for this purpose.

(44) Income from units from the Administrator of specified undertaking/specified company / mutual fund specified in clause (23D) [Section 10(35)]

This clause provides that any income received in respect of units from the Administrator of the specified undertaking / specified company / Mutual Fund specified under section 10(23D) shall be exempt. Exemption shall not apply to any income arising from transfer of such units.

(45) Specified income arising from any international sporting event in India [Section 10(39)]

- (i) This clause exempts income of the nature and to the extent, arising from any international sporting event in India, to the person or persons notified by the Central Government in the Official Gazette.
- (ii) Such international sporting event should -
- (a) be approved by the international body regulating the international sport relating to such event;
  - (b) have participation by more than two countries;
  - (c) be notified by the Central Government in the Official Gazette for the purposes of this clause.

(46) Certain grants etc. received by a subsidiary from its Indian holding company engaged in the business of generation or transmission or distribution of power [Section 10(40)]

- (i) This clause exempts income of any subsidiary company by way of grant or otherwise received from an Indian company, being its holding company engaged in the business of generation or transmission or distribution of power.
- (ii) The receipt of such income should be for settlement of dues in connection with reconstruction or revival of an existing business of power generation.
- (iii) The exemption under this clause is available if the reconstruction or revival of any existing business of power generation is by way of transfer of such business to the Indian company notified under section 80-IA(4)(v)(a).

(47) Specified income of certain bodies or authorities [Section 10(42)]

- (i) This clause exempts income, of the nature and to the extent, arising to a body or authority, notified by the Central Government.

- (ii) Such body or authority should have been established or constituted or appointed -
  - (a) under a treaty or an agreement entered into by the Central Government with two or more countries or a convention signed by the Central Government;
  - (b) not for the purposes of profit.

(48) Income received by any person on behalf of NPS Trust [Section 10(44)]

The New Pension System (NPS), operational since 1st January, 2004, is compulsory for all new recruits to the Central Government service from 1st January, 2004. Thereafter, it has been opened up for employees of State Government and private sector and other assessees.

NPS Trust has been set-up on 27th February, 2008 as per the provisions of the Indian Trust Act, 1882 to manage the assets and funds under the NPS in the interest of the beneficiaries. The NPS Trust would exempt from the applicability of –

- (i) income-tax on any income received by any person for, or on behalf of, the NPS Trust [Section 10(44)]
- (ii) dividend distribution tax in respect of dividend paid to any person for, or on behalf of, the NPS Trust [Section 115-O(1A)(ii)]; and
- (iii) securities transaction tax on all purchases and sales of equity and derivatives by the NPS Trust.

Further, the NPS Trust shall receive all income without any deduction of tax at source. [Section 197A(1E)].

Thus, the NPS Trust, which was set up to manage the assets and funds under the New Pension System in the interest of the beneficiaries, would enjoy a “pass-through status”.

(49) Specified income of notified entities not engaged in commercial activity [Section 10(46)]

- (i) Section 10(46) provides for exemption of income arising to a body or authority or Board or Trust or Commission or a class thereof, the nature and extent of which is to be specified by the Central Government.
- (ii) For availing the benefit of exemption under this clause, the body or authority or Board or Trust or Commission or a class thereof should be set up or constituted by or under a Central, State or Provincial Act or constituted by the Central or State Government with the object of regulating or administering an activity for the benefit of the general public.
- (iii) Further, the body or authority or Board or Trust or Commission should –
  - (a) not be engaged in any commercial activity; and
  - (b) be notified by the Central Government in this behalf.

(50) Income of notified infrastructure debt funds [Section 10(47)]

In order to give a fillip to infrastructure and encourage inflow of long-term foreign funds to this sector, the Central Government to notify infrastructure debt funds to be set up in accordance with the prescribed guidelines, the income of which would be exempt from tax.

Students should carefully note that all the items under section 10 listed above are either wholly or partially exempt from taxation and the exempt portion is not even includible in the total income of the person concerned.

3.3 TAX HOLIDAY FOR UNITS ESTABLISHED IN SPECIAL ECONOMIC ZONES [SECTION 10AA]

A deduction of profits and gains which are derived by an assessee being an entrepreneur from the export of articles or things or providing any service, shall be allowed from the total income of the assessee.

(1) Assessee who are eligible for exemption

Exemption is available to all categories of assessee who derive any profits or gains from an undertaking, being a unit, engaged in the manufacturing or production of articles or things or things or provision any service. Such assessee should be an entrepreneur referred to in section 2(j) of the SEZ Act, 2005 i.e., a person who has been granted a letter of approval by the Development Commissioner under section 15(9) of the said Act.

(2) Essential conditions to claim exemption

The exemption shall apply to an undertaking which fulfils the following conditions:

- (i) It has begun or begins to manufacture or produce articles or things or provide any service in any SEZ during the previous year relevant to A.Y.2006-07 or any subsequent assessment year but not later than A.Y.2020-21.
- (ii) It should not be formed by splitting up or reconstruction of a business already in existence. However, deduction will be provided if any undertaking, being the Unit, is formed as a result of the re-establishment, reconstruction or revival by the assessee of the business of any undertaking in the circumstances and within the specified period as referred to in section 33B.

Note: Circumstances and specified period referred to in section 33B

The undertaking, being the unit, is formed as re-establishment, reconstruction or revival by the assessee within three years from the end of the previous year in which the business of such undertaking is discontinued by reason of extensive damage to or destruction of, any building, machinery, plant or furniture owned by the assessee and used for the purpose of such business.

Such damage or destruction should be affected as a direct result of flood, typhoon, hurricane, cyclone, earthquake or other convulsion of nature or riot or civil disturbance or accidental fire or explosion or action by an enemy or action taken in combating an enemy.

- (iii) It should not be formed by the transfer of machinery or plant previously used for any purpose to a new business. However, deduction under section 10AA will be available if total value of the machinery or plant transferred does not exceed 20% of the total value of machinery or plant used in the business.

For this purpose, any machinery or plant which was used outside India by any person other than the assessee shall not be regarded as machinery or plant previously used for any purpose if the following conditions are fulfilled:

- (a) such machinery or plant was not at any time used in India;
  - (b) such machinery or plant is imported into India from any country outside India; and
  - (c) no deduction on account of depreciation has been allowed or allowable under this Act in respect of such machinery or plant to any person earlier for any prior period.
- (iv) The assessee should furnish in the prescribed form, alongwith the return of income, the report of a chartered accountant certifying that the deduction has been correctly claimed.

(3) Period for which deduction is available

The unit of an entrepreneur, which begins to manufacture or produce any article or thing or provide any service in a SEZ on or after 1.4.2005, shall be allowed a deduction of:

- (i) 100% of the profits and gains derived from the export, of such articles or things or from services for a period of 5 consecutive assessment years beginning with the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which the Unit begins to manufacture or produce such articles or things or provide services, and
- (ii) 50% of such profits and gains for further 5 assessment years.
- (iii) so much of the amount not exceeding 50% of the profit as is debited to the profit and loss account of the previous year in respect of which the deduction is to be allowed and credited to a reserve account (to be called the "Special Economic Zone Re-investment Reserve Account") to be created and utilised in the manner laid down under section 10AA(2) for next 5 consecutive years.

However, Explanation below section 10AA(1) has been inserted to clarify that amount of deduction under section 10AA shall be allowed from the total income of the assessee computed in accordance with the provisions of the Act before giving effect to the provisions of this section and the deduction under section 10AA shall not exceed such total income of the assessee.

Example: An undertaking is set up in a SEZ and begins manufacturing on 15.10.2005. The deduction under section 10AA shall be allowed as under:

- (a) 100% of profits of such undertaking from exports from A.Y.2006-07 to A.Y.2010-11.
- (b) 50% of profits of such undertaking from exports from A.Y.2011-12 to A.Y. 2015-16
- (c) 50% of profits of such undertaking from exports from A.Y.2016-17 to A.Y.2020-21 provided certain conditions are satisfied.

(4) Conditions to be satisfied for claiming deduction for further 5 years (after 10 years) [Section 10AA(2)]

Sub-section (2) provides that the deduction under (3)(iii) above shall be allowed only if the following conditions are fulfilled, namely:-

- (i) the amount credited to the Special Economic Zone Re-investment Reserve Account is utilised-
  - (1) for the purposes of acquiring machinery or plant which is first put to use before the expiry of a period of three years following the previous year in which the reserve was created; and
  - (2) until the acquisition of the machinery or plant as aforesaid, for the purposes of the business of the undertaking. However, it should not be utilized for
    - (i) distribution by way of dividends or profits; or
    - (ii) for remittance outside India as profits; or
    - (iii) for the creation of any asset outside India;
- (ii) the particulars, as may be specified by the CBDT in this behalf, have been furnished by the assessee in respect of machinery or plant. Such particulars include details of the new plant/ machinery, name and address of the supplier of the new plant/ machinery, date of acquisition and date on which new plant/machinery was first put to use. Such particulars have to be furnished along with the return of income for the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which such plant or machinery was first put to use.

Where any amount credited to the Special Economic Zone Re-investment Reserve Account -

- (i) has been utilised for any purpose other than those referred to in sub-section (2), the amount so utilized shall be deemed to be the profits in the year in which the amount was so utilised and charged to tax accordingly; or

- (ii) has not been utilised before the expiry of the said period of 3 years, the amount not so utilised, shall be deemed to be the profits in the year immediately following the said period of three years and be charged to tax accordingly.

(6) Computation of profit and gains from exports of such undertakings

The profits derived from export of articles or things or services (including computer software) shall be the amount which bears to the profits of the business of the undertaking, being the unit, the same proportion as the export turnover in respect of such articles or things or computer software bears to the total turnover of the business carried on by the undertaking i.e.

$$\text{Profits of Unit in SEZ} \times \frac{\text{Export turnover of Unit SEZ}}{\text{Total turnover of Unit SEZ}}$$

Clarification on issues relating to export of computer software

Section 10AA provides deduction to assesseees who derive any profits and gains from export of articles or things or services (including computer software) from the year in which the Unit begins to manufacture or produced such articles or things or provide services, as the case may be, subject to fulfillment of the prescribed conditions. The profits and gains derived from on site development of computer software (including services for development of software) outside India shall be deemed to be the profits and gains derived from the export of computer software outside India.

Meaning of Export turnover: It means the consideration received in India or brought into India by the assessee in respect of export by the undertaking being the unit of articles or things or services.

However, it does not include

- ✓ freight
- ✓ telecommunication charges
- ✓ insurance

attributable to the delivery of the articles or things outside India or expenses incurred in foreign exchange in rendering of services (including computer software) outside India

Computation of admissible deduction u/s 10AA of the Income-tax Act, 1961 [Circular No. 4/2018, Dated 14-8-2018]

As per the provisions of section 10AA(7), the profits derived from export of articles or things or services (including computer software) shall be the amount which bears to the profits of the business of the undertaking, being the Unit, the same proportion as the export turnover in respect of such articles or things or services bears to the total turnover of the business carried on by the undertaking.

Further as per clause (i) to Explanation 1 to section 10AA, "export turnover" means the consideration in respect of export by the undertaking, being the Unit of articles or things or services received in, or brought into, India by the assessee, but does not include freight, telecommunication charges or insurance attributable to the delivery of the articles or things outside India or expenses, if any, incurred in foreign exchange in rendering of services (including computer software) outside India.

The issue of whether freight, telecommunication charges and insurance expenses are to be excluded from both "export turnover" and "total turnover" while working out deduction admissible under section 10AA on the ground that they are attributable to delivery of articles or things outside India has been highly contentious. Similarly, the issue whether charges for rendering services outside India are to be excluded both from "export turnover" and "total turnover" while computing deduction admissible under section 10AA on the ground that such charges are relatable towards expenses incurred in convertible foreign exchange in rendering services outside India has also been highly contentious.

The controversy has been finally settled by the Hon'ble Supreme Court vide its judgment dated 24.4.2018 in the case of Commissioner of Income Tax, Central-III Vs. M/s HCL Technologies Ltd. (CA No. 8489-8490 of 2013, NJRS Citation 2018-LL-0424-40), in relation to section 10A.

*The issue had been examined by CBDT and it is clarified, in line with the above decision of the Supreme Court, that freight, telecommunication charges and insurance expenses are to be excluded both from "export turnover" and "total turnover", while working out deduction admissible under section 10AA to the extent they are attributable to the delivery of articles or things outside India.

Similarly, expenses incurred in foreign exchange for rendering services outside India are to be excluded from both "export turnover" and "total turnover" while computing deduction admissible under section 10AA.

Note: Though this CBDT Circular is issued in relation to erstwhile section 10A, the same is also relevant in the context of section 10AA. Accordingly, the reference to section 10A in the Circular and the relevant sub-section and Explanation number thereto have been modified and given with reference to section 10AA and the corresponding sub-sections, Explanation number and clause of Explanation.

(7) Conversion of EPZ / FTZ into SEZ

Where a Unit initially located in any FTZ or EPZ is subsequently located in a SEZ by reason of conversion of such FTZ or EPZ into a SEZ, the period of 10 consecutive assessment years referred to above shall be reckoned from the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which the Unit began to manufacture, or produce or process such articles or things or services in such FTZ or EPZ.

However, where a unit initially located in any FTZ or EPZ is subsequently located in a SEZ by reason of conversion of such FTZ or EPZ into a SEZ and has already completed the period of 10 consecutive assessment years, it shall not be eligible for further deduction from income w.e.f. A.Y.2006-07.

Note - The provisions of erstwhile section 10A shall not apply to any undertaking, being a Unit referred to under section 2(zc) of the SEZ Act, 2005, which has begun or begins to manufacture or produce articles or things or computer software during the previous year relevant to the assessment year commencing on or after the 1.4.2006 in any SEZ. "Unit" as per section 2(zc) of the SEZ Act, 2005 means unit set up by an entrepreneur in a Special Economic Zone and includes an existing Unit, an Offshore Banking Unit and a Unit in an International Financial Services Centre, whether established before or after the commencement of this Act.

(8) Restriction on other tax benefits

- (i) The business loss under section 72(1) or loss under the head "Capital Gains" under section 74(1), in so far as such loss relates to the business of the undertaking, being the Unit shall be allowed to be carried forward or set off.
- (ii) In order to claim deduction under this section, the assessee should furnish report from a Chartered Accountant in the prescribed form along with the return of income certifying that the deduction is correct.
- (iii) During the period of deduction, depreciation is deemed to have been allowed on the assets. Written Down Value shall accordingly be reduced.
- (iv) No deduction under section 80-IA and 80-IB shall be allowed in relation to the profits and gains of the undertaking.
- (v) Any unabsorbed depreciation under section 32(2) or business loss under section 72(1) or loss under the head "Capital gains" under section 74 of the undertaking, being the Unit shall be allowed to be carried forward and set off in the subsequent years.
- (vi) The conditions laid down in section 80-IA(8) (relating to inter-unit transfer) and in section 80-IA(10) (relating to showing excess profit from such unit) shall, so far as may be, apply in relation to the undertaking referred to in this section as they apply for the purposes of the undertaking referred to in section 80-IA.

Conditions laid down in section 80-IA(8): Where any goods or services held for the purposes of eligible business are transferred to any other business carried on by the assessee, or where any goods or service held for any other business carried on by the assessee are transferred to the eligible business and, in either case, if the consideration for such transfer as recorded in the accounts of the eligible business does not correspond to the market value thereof, then the profits eligible for deduction shall be computed by adopting market value of such goods or services on the date of transfer.

In case of exceptional difficulty in this regard, the profits shall be computed by the Assessing Officer on a reasonable basis as he may deem fit.

Conditions laid down in section 80-IA(10): Where due to the close connection between the assessee and the other person or for any other reason, it appears to the Assessing Officer that the profits of eligible business is increased to more than the ordinary profits, the Assessing Officer shall compute the amount of profits of such eligible business on a reasonable basis for allowing the deduction.

- (vii) Where a deduction under this section is claimed and allowed in relation to any specified business eligible for investment-linked deduction under section 35AD, no deduction shall be allowed under section 35AD in relation to such specified business for the same or any other assessment year.

(9) Deduction allowable in case of amalgamation and demerger

In the event of any undertaking, being the Unit which is entitled to deduction under this section, being transferred, before the expiry of the period specified in this section, to another undertaking, being the Unit in a scheme of amalgamation or demerger, -

- (i) no deduction shall be admissible under this section to the amalgamating or the demerged Unit for the previous year in which the amalgamation or the demerger takes place; and
- (ii) the provisions of this section would apply to the amalgamated or resulting Unit, as they would have applied to the amalgamating or the demerged Unit had the amalgamation or demerger had not taken place.

Circular No. 1/2013, dated 17.01.2013 provides certain clarifications in respect of following issues arising out of the said provisions:

	Issue	Clarification given by the CBDT
(1)	Would “On-site” development of computer software qualify as an export activity for tax benefit under section 10AA?	The software developed abroad at a client’s place would be eligible for such benefit, because these would amount to ‘deemed export’. However, it is necessary that there must exist a direct and intimate nexus or connection of development of software done abroad with the eligible units set up in India and such development of software should be pursuant to a contract between the client and the eligible unit.

(3)	Is it necessary to have separate master service agreement (MSA) for each work contract?	As per the practice prevalent in the software development industry, generally two types of agreement are entered into between the Indian software developer and the foreign client. Master Services Agreement (MSA) is an initial general agreement between a foreign client and the Indian software developer setting out the broad and general terms and conditions of business under the umbrella of which specific and individual Statement of Works (SOW) are formed. These SOWs, in fact, enumerate the specific scope and nature of the particular task or project that has to be rendered by a particular unit under the overall ambit of the MSA. Clarification has been sought whether more than one SOW can be executed under the ambit of a particular MSA and whether SOW should be given precedence over MSA.  It is clarified that the tax benefits under section 10AA would not be denied merely on the ground that a separate and specific MSA does not exist for each SOW. The SOW would normally prevail over the MSA in determining the eligibility for tax benefits unless the Assessing Officer is able to establish that there has been splitting up or reconstruction of an existing business or non-fulfillment of any other prescribed condition.
(4)	Would tax benefit under section 10AA continue to be available in case of a slump sale of a unit?	The answer to this issue would depend on the facts of each case, such as how a slump-sale is made and what is its nature. It will also be important to ensure that the slump sale would not result into any splitting or reconstruction of existing business.  It is, however, clarified that on the sole ground of change in ownership of an undertaking, the claim of exemption cannot be denied to an otherwise eligible undertaking and the tax holiday can be availed of for the unexpired period at the rates as applicable for the remaining years, subject to fulfillment of prescribed conditions.
(5)	Can tax benefits under section 10AA be enjoyed by an	It is clarified that the tax holiday should not be denied merely on the ground of physical relocation of an eligible SEZ unit from one SEZ to another in accordance with Instruction No. 59 of eligible SEZ unit consequent to its transfer to another SEZ?	Department of Commerce, if all the prescribed conditions are satisfied under the Income-tax Act, 1961. It is further clarified that the unit so relocated will be eligible to avail of the tax benefit for the unexpired period at the rates applicable to such years.

(6)	Whether new units set up in the same location where there is an existing eligible unit would amount to expansion of the existing unit?	This issue is a matter of fact requiring examination and verification. However, it has been clarified that setting up of such a fresh unit in itself would not make the unit ineligible for tax benefits, provided – the unit is set-up after obtaining necessary approvals from the competent authorities; it has not been formed by splitting or reconstruction of an existing business; and it fulfils all other conditions prescribed under section 10AA.

Allowability of deduction under section 10AA on transfer of technical manpower in the case of software industry [Circular No. 14/2014, dated 8-10-2014]

The CBDT had earlier clarified vide Circular No.12/2014 dated 18th July, 2014 that mere transfer or re-deployment of existing technical manpower from an existing unit to a new SEZ unit in the first year of commencement of business will not be construed as splitting up or reconstruction of an existing business, provided the number of technical manpower so transferred does not exceed 20% of the total technical manpower actually engaged in developing software at any point of time in the given year in the new unit.

The limit of 20% was considered inadequate and restrictive and it impacted the competitiveness of Indian Software Industry in global market. Consequently, the matter was re-examined by the CBDT, and in supersession of Circular No.12/2014 dated 18th July, 2014, it has now been decided that the transfer or re-deployment of technical manpower from existing unit to a new unit located in SEZ, in the first year of commencement of business, shall not be construed as splitting up or reconstruction of an existing business, provided the number of technical manpower so transferred as at the end of the financial year should not exceed 50% of the total technical manpower actually engaged in development of software or IT enabled products in the new unit. Alternatively, if the assessee-enterprise is able to demonstrate that the net addition of the new technical manpower in all units of the assessee-enterprise is at least equal to the number that represents 50% of the total technical manpower of the new SEZ unit during such previous year, deduction under section 10AA would not be denied provided the other prescribed conditions are also satisfied. The assessee-enterprise will have the choice of complying with any one of the two alternatives given above to avail the benefit of deduction under section 10AA.

The Circular also clarifies that:

- (a) it shall be applicable only in the case of assessee engaged in the development of software or in providing IT enabled services in SEZ units eligible for deduction under section 10AA.

- (b) it shall not apply to the assessments which have already been completed. Further, no appeal shall be filed by the Department in cases where the issue is decided by an appellate authority in consonance with this circular.

Y Ltd. furnishes you the following information for the year ended 31.3.2020:

Particulars	₹ (in lacs)
Total turnover of Unit A located in Special Economic Zone	100
Profit of the business of Unit A	30
Export turnover of Unit A	50
Total turnover of Unit B located in Domestic Tariff Area (DTA)	200
Profit of the business of Unit B	20

Compute deduction under section 10AA for the A.Y. 2020-21, assuming that Y Ltd. commenced operations in SEZ and DTA in the year 2016-17.

SOLUTION

100% of the profit derived from export of articles or things or services is eligible for deduction under section 10AA, since F.Y.2019-20 falls within the first five year period commencing from the year of manufacture or production of articles or things or provision of services by the Unit in SEZ. As per section 10AA(7), the profit derived from export of articles or things or services shall be the amount which bears to the profits of the business of the undertaking, being the Unit, the same proportion as the export turnover in respect of articles or things or services bears to the total turnover of the business carried on by the undertaking.

Deduction under section 10AA

$$= ₹ 30 \text{ lakhs} \times \frac{50}{100} = ₹ 15 \text{ lakhs}$$

Note – No deduction under section 10AA is allowable in respect of profits of business of Unit B located in DTA.

3.4 RESTRICTIONS ON ALLOWABILITY OF EXPENDITURE [SECTION 14A]

As per section 14A, expenditure incurred in relation to any exempt income is not allowed as a deduction while computing income under any of the five heads of income [Sub-section (1)].

The Assessing Officer is empowered to determine the amount of expenditure incurred in relation to such income which does not form part of total income in accordance with such method as may be prescribed [Sub-section (2)].

The method for determining expenditure in relation to exempt income is to be prescribed by the CBDT for the purpose of disallowance of such expenditure under section 14A. Such method should be adopted by the Assessing Officer in the following cases –

- (i) if he is not satisfied with the correctness of the claim of the assessee, having regard to the accounts of the assessee. [Sub-section (2)]; or
- (ii) where an assessee claims that no expenditure has been incurred by him in relation to income which does not form part of total income [Sub-section (3)].

Rule 8D lays down the method for determining the amount of expenditure in relation to income not includible in total income.

If the Assessing Officer, having regard to the accounts of the assessee of a previous year, is not satisfied with –

- (a) the correctness of the claim of expenditure by the assessee; or
- (b) the claim made by the assessee that no expenditure has been incurred in relation to exempt income for such previous year, he shall determine the amount of expenditure in relation to such income in the manner provided hereunder –

The expenditure in relation to income not forming part of total income shall be the aggregate of the following:

- (i) the amount of expenditure directly relating to income which does not form part of total income;
- (ii) an amount equal to 1% of the annual average of the monthly averages of the opening and closing balances of the value of investment, income from which does not form part of total income.

However, the amount referred to in clause (i) and clause (ii) shall not exceed the total expenditure claimed by the assessee.

Clarification regarding disallowance of expenses under section 14A in cases where corresponding exempt income has not been earned during the financial year [Circular No. 5/2014, dated 11.2.2014]

Section 14A provides that no deduction shall be allowed in respect of expenditure incurred relating to income which does not form part of total income. A controversy has arisen as to whether disallowance can be made by invoking section 14A even in those cases where no income has been earned by an assessee, which has been claimed as exempt during the financial year.

The CBDT has, through this Circular, clarified that the legislative intent is to allow only that expenditure which is relatable to earning of income. Therefore, it follows that the expenses which are relatable to earning of exempt income have to be considered for disallowance, irrespective of the fact whether such income has been earned during the financial year or not.

The above position is clarified by the usage of the term “includible” in the heading to section 14A [Expenditure incurred in relation to income not includible in total income] and Rule 8D [Method for determining amount of expenditure in relation to income not includible in total income], which indicates that it is not necessary that exempt income should necessarily be included in a particular year’s income, for triggering disallowance. Also, the terminology used in section 14A is “income under the Act” and not “income of the year”, which again indicates that it is not material that the assessee should have earned such income during the financial year under consideration.

In effect, section 14A read along with Rule 8D provides for disallowance of expenditure even where the taxpayer has not earned any exempt income in a particular year.

Examine with reasons, based on the provisions of the Act, as to chargeability of the following receipts to tax in the assessment year 2020-21:

- (i) Rent of ₹ 60,000 charged from tenants occupying houses constructed on the land situated in India and used for agricultural purposes. The tenants, working in the nearby industrial area, occupy these houses for their own residential purposes.
- (ii) Income of ₹ 75,000 derived by Anand Nursery from the sale of seedlings grown without carrying out all the basic operations on land.
- (ii) Mr. Gaitonde, born and brought up in the State of Sikkim, had a net profit of ₹ 2,25,000 from the business located in Sikkim and interest of ₹ 55,000 on the securities/bonds issued by the Government of Rajasthan.

Answer

- (i) As per section 10(1), agricultural income is exempt from tax. The meaning and scope of agricultural income is defined in section 2(1A). According to Explanation 2 to section 2(1A), any income derived from any building from the use of such building for any purpose (including letting for residential purposes or for the purpose of any business or profession) other than agriculture shall not be agricultural income. Therefore, the rent of ₹ 60,000 from letting out of houses constructed on agricultural land for residential purposes of industrial workers shall not be treated as agricultural income by virtue of Explanation 2 to section 2(1A). Hence, such income would be chargeable to tax.
- (ii) Explanation 3 to section 2(1A) provides that the income derived from saplings or seedlings grown in a nursery shall be deemed to be agricultural income, whether or not the basic operations were carried out on land. Accordingly, the income of ₹ 75,000 derived by Anand Nursery from the sale of seedlings grown without carrying out all the basic operations on land shall be treated as agricultural income and exempt from tax under section 10(1).
- (iii) Section 10(26AAA) exempts the income which accrues or arises to a Sikkimese individual from any source in the State of Sikkim and the income by way of dividend or interest on securities. Therefore, the income of Mr. Gaitonde from a business located in Sikkim and interest income on the securities/bonds of Government of Rajasthan shall not be subject to tax.

Question 2

Rudra Ltd. has one unit at Special Economic Zone (SEZ) and other unit at Domestic Tariff Area (DTA). The company provides the following details for the previous year 2019-20.

Particulars	Rudra Ltd. (₹)	Unit in DTA (₹)
Total Sales	6,00,00,000	2,00,00,000
Export Sales	4,60,00,000	1,60,00,000
Net Profit	80,00,000	20,00,000

Calculate the eligible deduction under section 10AA of the Income-tax Act, 1961, for the Assessment Year 2020-21, in the following situations:

- (i) If both the units were set up and start manufacturing from 22-05-2012.
(ii) If both the units were set up and start manufacturing from 14-05-2016.

Answer

Computation of deduction under section 10AA of the Income-tax Act, 1961

As per section 10AA, in computing the total income of Rudra Ltd. from its unit located in a Special Economic Zone (SEZ), which begins to manufacture or produce articles or things or provide any services during the previous year relevant to the assessment year commencing on or after 01.04.2006 but before 1.4.2021, there shall be allowed a deduction of 100% of the profit and gains derived from export of such articles or things or from services for a period of five consecutive assessment years beginning with the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which the Unit begins to manufacture or produce such articles or things or provide services, as the case may be, and 50% of such profits for further five assessment years subject to fulfillment of other conditions specified in section 10AA.

Computation of eligible deduction under section 10AA [See Working Note below]:

- (i) If Unit in SEZ was set up and began manufacturing from 22-05-2012:

Since A.Y. 2020-21 is the 8th assessment year from A.Y. 2013-14, relevant to the previous year 2012-13, in which the SEZ unit began manufacturing of articles or things, it shall be eligible for deduction of 50% of the profits derived from export of such articles or things, assuming all the other conditions specified in section 10AA are fulfilled.

- (ii) If Unit in SEZ was set up and began manufacturing from 14-05-2016:

Since A.Y.2020-21 is the 4th assessment year from A.Y. 2017-18, relevant to the previous year 2016-17, in which the SEZ unit began manufacturing of articles or things, it shall be eligible for deduction of 100% of the profits derived from export of such articles or things, assuming all the other conditions specified in section 10AA are fulfilled.

The unit set up in Domestic Tariff Area is not eligible for the benefit of deduction under section 10AA in respect of its export profits, in both the situations.

Working Note:

Computation of total sales, export sales and net profit of unit in SEZ

Particulars	Rudra Ltd. (₹)	Unit in DTA (₹)	Unit in SEZ (₹)
Total Sales	6,00,00,000	2,00,00,000	4,00,00,000
Export Sales	4,60,00,000	1,60,00,000	3,00,00,000
Net Profit	80,00,000	20,00,000	60,00,000

SIGNIFICANT SELECT CASES

1. Can expenditure incurred in foreign exchange for provision of technical services outside India, which is deductible for computing export turnover, be excluded from total turnover also for the purpose of computing deduction under section 10AA?

CIT v. HCL Technologies Limited [2018] 404 ITR 719 (SC)

Facts of the case: The assessee-company was engaged in the business of development and export of computer software and rendering technical services. For the relevant assessment year, the assessee claimed deduction under section 10AA as per certificates filed in the prescribed form.

Issue: The issue under consideration is whether software development charges incurred in foreign exchange attributable to the delivery of technical services outside India, deductible from export turnover, be excluded from total turnover also for computing deduction under section 10AA.

Supreme Court's Observations: The term "total turnover" has not been defined in section 10AA under which the deduction is sought.

Clause (i) of Explanation 1 to section 10AA defines "export turnover" to mean the consideration that has been received for export of articles/things/services received. Normally the consideration will include the freight/telecommunication charges/insurance which had been incurred to deliver the article/things or expenses incurred in rendering of services outside India. However, clause (i) of Explanation 1 specifically seeks to exclude these three categories of expenditure for delivering the export of articles/things or expenses incurred in foreign exchange in rendering of services outside India.

The Court observed that when a particular word such as "total turnover" is not defined by the legislature, ordinary meaning is to be attributed in conformity with the context in which it is used. Section 10AA deduction depends on arriving at the profit from export business, thus, expenses excluded from "export turnover" must also be excluded from "total turnover", since one of the components of "total turnover" is export turnover. Expenses incurred in foreign exchange for providing the technical services outside are thus, to be excluded from total turnover also.

Supreme Court's Decision: If deductions in respect of freight, telecommunication charges and insurance attributable to delivery of articles, things etc. or expenditure incurred in foreign exchange in rendering of services outside India are allowed only against export turnover but not from the total turnover for computing deduction under section 10AA, then, it would give rise to inadvertent, unlawful, meaningless and illogical results causing grave injustice, which could have never have been the intent of the Legislature. Hence, such expenditure incurred in foreign exchange for providing technical services outside India are deductible from total turnover also.

Note - Though the above decision of the Supreme Court is in relation to erstwhile section 10A, the same is also relevant in the context of section 10AA. Accordingly, the reference to section 10A and the relevant sub-section and Explanation number thereto have been modified in the facts of the case and observations and decision of the Supreme Court and given with reference to section 10AA and the corresponding sub-sections, Explanation number and clause of Explanation. It may be noted that the CBDT has issued Circular No.4/2018 dated 14.8.2018 in relation to erstwhile section 10A in line with this decision of the Supreme Court.

2. Whether section 14A is applicable in respect of deductions, which are permissible and allowed under Chapter VI-A?

CIT v. Kribhco (2012) 349 ITR 0618 (Delhi)

Facts of the case: In the present case, the assessee is a co-operative society engaged in marketing of fertilizers and purchase and processing of seeds. The assessee had claimed deduction under section 80P(2)(d) on dividend income received from NAFED and co-operative bank and also on interest on deposits made with co-operative banks.

The Assessing Officer, relying upon section 14A, contended that the aforesaid income were not included in the total income of the assessee and therefore, expenditure with respect to such income should be disallowed.

High Court's Observations: The High Court observed that section 14A is not applicable for deductions, which are permissible and allowed under Chapter VIA. Section 14A is applicable only if an income is not included in the total income as per the provisions of Chapter III of the Income-tax Act, 1961. Deductions under Chapter VIA are different from the exclusions/exemptions provided under Chapter III.

The words "do not form part of the total income under this Act" used in section 14A are significant and important. Income which qualifies for deductions under section 80C to 80U has to be first included in the total income of the assessee and then allowed as a deduction. However, income referred to in Chapter III do not form part of the total income and therefore, as per section 14A, no deduction shall be allowed in respect of expenditure incurred by the assessee in relation to such income which does not form part of the total income.

High Court's Decision: The Delhi High Court, therefore, held that no disallowance can be made under section 14A in respect of income included in total income in respect of which deduction is allowable under section 80C to 80U.

Note – The Department's Special Leave Petition against the above Delhi High Court judgement was dismissed on 15/2/2013.

SALARIES

LEARNING OUTCOMES

After studying this chapter, you would be able to -

- ❑ appreciate the meaning of the terms “Salaries”, “Profits in lieu of salary”, allowances, and “Perquisites”;
- ❑ examine whether a particular receipt/ income would constitute salary taking into consideration the nature of relationship between the payer and payee;
- ❑ compute the value of taxable allowances, perquisites, terminal or retirement benefits;
- ❑ compute the income chargeable under the head “Salaries” after allowing standard deduction and deductions available in respect of entertainment allowance or professional tax, if any, and determine tax liability thereon;
- ❑ formulate the ideal salary structure to minimise the overall tax liability on income under the head “Salaries”.

4.1 INTRODUCTION

The provisions pertaining to Income under the head "Salaries" are contained in sections 15, 16 and 17.

Let us now recap the important concepts relating to Salaries.

- (1) Employer-employee relationship: Every payment made by an employer to his employee for service rendered would be chargeable to tax as salaries. Before an income can become chargeable under the head 'salaries', it is vital that there should exist between the payer and the payee, the relationship of an employer and an employee.

Examples:

- (a) Sujatha, an actress, is employed in Chopra Films, where she is paid a monthly remuneration of ₹ 2 lakh. She acts in various films produced by various producers. The remuneration for acting in such films is directly paid to Chopra Films by the different producers.
- In this case, ₹ 2 lakh will constitute salary in the hands of Sujatha, since the relationship of employer and employee exists between Chopra Films and Sujatha.*
- (b) In the above example, if Sujatha acts in various films and gets fees from different producers, the same income will be chargeable as income from profession since the relationship of employer and employee does not exist between Sujatha and the film producers.
- (c) Commission received by a Director from a company is salary if the Director is an employee of the company. If, however, the Director is not an employee of the company, the said commission cannot be charged as salary but has to be charged either as income from business or as income from other sources depending upon the facts.

(d) Salary paid to a partner by a firm is nothing but an appropriation of profits. Any salary, bonus, commission or remuneration by whatever name called due to or received by partner of a firm shall not be regarded as salary. The same is to be charged as income from profits and gains of business or profession. This is primarily because the relationship between the firm and its partners is not that of an employer and employee.

- (2) Full-time or part-time employment: Once the relationship of employer and employee exists, the income is to be charged under the head “salaries”. It does not matter whether the employee is a full-time employee or a part-time one.

If, for example, an employee works with more than one employer, salaries received from all the employers should be clubbed and brought to charge for the relevant previous years.

- (3) Foregoing of salary: Once salary accrues, the subsequent waiver by the employee does not absolve him from liability to income-tax. Such waiver is only an application and hence, chargeable to tax.

Example:

Mr. A, an employee instructs his employer that he is not interested in receiving the salary for April 2019 and the same might be donated to a charitable institution.

In this case, Mr. A cannot claim that he cannot be charged in respect of the salary for April 2019. It is only due to his instruction that the donation was made to a charitable institution by his employer. It is only an application of income.

Hence, the salary for the month of April 2019 will be taxable in the hands of Mr. A. He is however, entitled to claim a deduction under section 80G for the amount donated to the institution. [The concept of deductions is explained in detail in Chapter 11: Deductions from Gross Total Income].

- (4) Surrender of salary: However, if an employee surrenders his salary to the Central Government under section 2 of the Voluntary Surrender of Salaries (Exemption from Taxation) Act, 1961, the salary so surrendered would be exempt while computing his taxable income.
- (5) Salary paid tax-free: This, in other words, means that the employer bears the burden of the tax on the salary of the employee. In such a case, the income from salaries in the hands of the employee will consist of his salary income and also the tax on this salary paid by the employer.

However, as per section 10(10CC), the income-tax paid by the employer on non-monetary perquisites on behalf of the employee would be exempt in the hands of the employee.

- (6) Place of accrual of salary: Under section 9(1)(ii), salary earned in India is deemed to accrue or arise in India even if it is paid outside India or it is paid or payable after the contract of employment in India comes to an end.

If an employee gets pension paid abroad in respect of services rendered in India, the same will be deemed to accrue in India. Similarly, leave salary paid abroad in respect of leave earned in India is deemed to accrue or arise in India.

Example:

Mr. A, a citizen of India is posted in the United States as our Ambassador. Obviously, he renders his services outside India. He also receives his salary outside India. He is also a non-resident. The question, therefore, arises whether he can claim exemption in respect of his salary paid by the Government of India to him outside India.

Section 9(1)(iii) provides that salaries payable by the Government to a citizen of India for services outside India shall be deemed to accrue or arise in India. However, by virtue of section 10(7), any allowance or perquisites paid or allowed outside India by the Government to a citizen of India for rendering services outside India will be fully exempt.

Now, let us discuss the chargeability under section 15, the provisions explaining the meaning of Salary, Perquisites and Profits in lieu of salary contained in section 17 and the deductions under section 16.

4.2 BASIS OF CHARGE (SECTION 15)

- Section 15 deals with the basis of charge. Salary is chargeable to tax either on 'due' basis or on 'receipt' basis, whichever is earlier.
- However, where any salary, paid in advance, is assessed in the year of payment, it cannot be subsequently brought to tax in the year in which it becomes due.
- If the salary paid in arrears has already been assessed on due basis, the same cannot be taxed again when it is paid.

Examples:

- If A draws his salary in advance for the month of April 2020 in the month of March 2020 itself, the same becomes chargeable on receipt basis and is to be assessed as income of the P.Y. 2019-20 i.e., A.Y. 2020-21. However, the salary for the A.Y. 2021-22 will not include that of April 2020.*
- If the salary due for March 2020 is received by A later in the month of April 2020, it is still chargeable as income of the P.Y. 2019-20 i.e., A.Y. 2020-21 on due basis. Obviously, salary for the A.Y. 2021-22 will not include that of March 2020.*

(1) Advance Salary

Advance salary is taxable when it is received by the employee irrespective of the fact whether it is due or not. It may so happen that when advance salary is included and charged in a particular previous year, the rate of tax at which the employee is assessed may be higher than the normal rate of tax to which he would have been assessed. Section 89(1) provides for relief in these types of cases. The concept of relief under section 89(1) is explained in this Chapter later on.

Difference between advance salary and advance against salary

Loan is different from salary. When an employee takes a loan from his employer, which is repayable in certain specified installments, the loan amount cannot be brought to tax as salary of the employee.

Similarly, advance against salary is different from advance salary. It is an advance taken by the employee from his employer. This advance is generally adjusted with his salary over a specified time period. It cannot be taxed as salary.

(2) Arrears of salary

Normally speaking, salary arrears must be charged on due basis. However, there are circumstances when it may not be possible to bring the same to charge on due basis.

Example:

If the Pay Commission is appointed by the Central Government and it recommends revision of salaries of employees, the arrears received in that connection will be charged on receipt basis. Here also, relief under section 89(1) is available.

4.3 SALARY, PERQUISITE AND PROFITS IN LIEU OF SALARY (SECTION 17)

(1) Meaning of Salary

The meaning of the term 'salary' for purposes of income-tax is much wider than what is normally understood. The term 'salary' for the purposes of Income-tax Act, 1961 will include both monetary payments (e.g. basic salary, bonus, commission, allowances etc.) as well as non-monetary facilities (e.g. housing accommodation, medical facility, interest free loans etc.).

Section 17(1) defined the term “Salary”. It is an inclusive definition and includes monetary as well as non-monetary items.

‘Salary’ under section 17(1), includes the following:

- (i) wages,
- (ii) any annuity or pension,
- (iii) any gratuity,
- (iv) any fees, commission, perquisite or profits in lieu of or in addition to any salary or wages,
- (v) any advance of salary,
- (vi) any payment received in respect of any period of leave not availed by him i.e. leave salary or leave encashment,
- (vii) Provident Fund:
  - the portion of the annual accretion in any previous year to the balance at the credit of an employee participating in a recognised provident fund to the extent it is taxable and
  - transferred balance in recognized provident fund to the extent it is taxable,
- (viii) the contribution made by the Central Government or any other employer in the previous year to the account of an employee under a pension scheme referred to in section 80CCD.

(i) Wages

In common parlance, the term “wages” means fixed regular payment earned for work or services. The words “wages”, “salary”, “basic salary” are used interchangeably. Moreover, the payments in the form of Bonus, Allowances etc. made to the employee are also included within the meaning of salary.

Under the Income-tax Act, 1961, there are certain payments made which are fully taxable, partly taxable and fully exempt. For Example, wages, salary, bonus, dearness allowance etc. are fully taxable payments. Whereas monetary benefits in the form of allowances such as House Rent Allowance, conveyance allowance etc. are partially taxable.

Allowances

Different types of allowances are given to employees by their employers. Generally, allowances are given to employees to meet some particular requirements like house rent, expenses on uniform, conveyance etc. Under the Income-tax Act, 1961, allowance is taxable on due or receipt basis, whichever is earlier. Various types of allowances normally in vogue are discussed below:

Allowances
Fully Taxable	Partly Taxable	Fully Exempt
(i) Entertainment Allowance	(i) House Rent Allowance [u/s 10(13A)]	(i) Allowances to High Court Judges
(ii) Dearness Allowance	(ii) Special Allowances [u/s 10(14)]	(ii) Allowance paid by the United Nations Organization
(iii) Overtime Allowance		(iii) Compensatory Allowance received by a judge
(iv) Fixed Medical Allowance		(iv) Sumptuary allowance granted to High Court or Supreme Court Judges
(v) City Compensatory Allowance (to meet increased cost of living in cities)		(v) Allowance granted to Government employees outside India.
(vi) Interim Allowance
(vii) Servant Allowance
(viii) Project Allowance
(ix) Tiffin/Lunch/Dinner Allowance
(x) Any other cash allowance
(xi) Warden Allowance
(xii) Non-practicing Allowance
(xiii) Transport allowance to employee other than blind/deaf and dumb/ orthopedically handicapped employee

(A) Allowances which are fully taxable

- (1) City compensatory allowance: City Compensatory Allowance is normally intended to compensate the employees for the higher cost of living in cities. It is taxable irrespective of the fact whether it is given as compensation for performing his duties in a particular place or under special circumstances.
- (2) Entertainment allowance: This allowance is given to employees to meet the expenses towards hospitality in receiving customers etc. The Act gives a deduction towards entertainment allowance only to a Government employee. The details of deduction permissible are discussed later on in this Chapter.
- (3) Transport allowance: Transport allowance granted to an employee to meet his expenditure for the purpose of commuting between the place of his residence and the place of his duty is fully taxable. However, in case of blind / deaf and dumb / orthopedically handicapped employees, exemption upto ₹ 3,200 p.m. is provided under section 10(14)(ii) read with Rule 2BB.

(B) Allowances which are partially taxable

- (1) House rent allowance [Section 10(13A)]: HRA is a special allowance specifically granted to an employee by his employer towards payment of rent for residence of the employee. HRA granted to an employee is exempt to the extent of least of the following:

Metro Cities (i.e. Delhi, Kolkata, Mumbai, Chennai)		Other Cities
1)	HRA actually received.	1)	HRA actually received
2)	Rent paid (-) 10% of salary for the relevant period	2)	Rent paid (-) 10% of salary for the relevant period
3)	50% of salary for the relevant period	3)	40% of salary for the relevant period

Notes:

- Exemption is not available to an assessee who lives in his own house, or in a house for which he has not incurred the expenditure of rent.
- “Salary” for this purpose means basic salary, dearness allowance, if provided in terms of employment, and commission as a fixed percentage of turnover.
- “Relevant period” means the period during which the said accommodation was occupied by the assessee during the previous year.

Mr. Raj Kumar has the following receipts from his employer:

(1) Basic pay	₹ 3,000 p.m.
(2) Dearness allowance (D.A.)	₹ 600 p.m.
(3) Commission	₹ 6,000 p.a.
(4) Motor car for personal use (expenditure met by the employer)	₹ 500 p.m.
(5) House rent allowance	₹ 900 p.m.

Find out the amount of HRA eligible for exemption to Mr. Raj Kumar assuming that he paid a rent of ₹ 1,000 p.m. for his accommodation at Kanpur. DA forms part of salary for retirement benefits.

SOLUTION

HRA received	₹ 10,800
Less: Exempt under section 10(13A) [Working Note]	₹ 7,680
Taxable HRA	₹ 3,120

Note: Exemption shall be least of the following three limits:

- (a) the actual amount received ( $\text{₹ } 900 \times 12$ ) = ₹ 10,800
- (b) excess of the actual rent paid by the assessee over 10% of his salary
 = Rent Paid - 10% of salary for the relevant period
 = ( $\text{₹ } 1,000 \times 12$ ) - 10% of [ $(\text{₹ } 3,000 + \text{₹ } 600) \times 12$ ]
 = ₹ 12,000 - ₹ 4,320 = ₹ 7,680
- (c) 40% salary as his accommodation is situated at Kanpur
 = 40% of [ $(\text{₹ } 3,000 + \text{₹ } 600) \times 12$ ] = ₹ 17,280

Note: For the purpose of exemption under section 10(13A), salary includes dearness allowance only when the terms of employment so provide, but excludes all other allowances and perquisites.

ILLUSTRATION 2

Mr. Mohit is employed with XY Ltd. on a basic salary of ₹ 10,000 p.m. He is also entitled to dearness allowance @100% of basic salary, 50% of which is included in salary as per terms of employment. The company gives him house rent allowance of ₹ 6,000 p.m. which was increased to ₹ 7,000 p.m. with effect from 1.01.2020. He also got an increment of ₹ 1,000 p.m. in his basic salary with effect from 1.02.2020. Rent paid by him during the previous year 2019-20 is as under:

- April and May, 2019 - Nil, as he stayed with his parents
- June to October, 2019 - ₹ 6,000 p.m. for an accommodation in Ghaziabad
- November, 2019 to March, 2020 - ₹ 8,000 p.m. for an accommodation in Delhi

(2) Special allowances to meet expenses relating to duties or personal expenses

[Section 10(14)]: This clause provides for exemption (as per Rule 2BB) in respect of the following:

- (i) Special allowances or benefit not being in the nature of a perquisite, specifically granted to meet expenses incurred wholly, necessarily and exclusively in the performance of the duties of an office or employment of profit [Section 10(14)(i)]

For the allowances under this category, there is no limit on the amount which the employee can receive from the employer, but whatever amount is received should be fully utilized for the purpose for which it was given to him.

- (ii) Special allowances granted to the assessee either to meet his personal expenses at the place where the duties of his office or employment of profit are ordinarily performed by him or at the place where he ordinarily resides or to compensate him for the increased cost of living. [Section 10(14)(ii)]

For the allowances under this category, there is a limit on the amount which the employee can receive from the employer. Any amount received by the employee in excess of these specified limits will be taxable in his hands as income from salary for the year. It does not matter whether the amount which is received is actually spent or not by the employee for the purpose for which it was given to him.

Rule 2BB

The following allowances have been prescribed in Rule 2BB:

Allowances prescribed for the purposes of section 10(14)(i) [Rule 2BB(1)]

- (a) any allowance granted to meet the cost of travel on tour or on transfer (Travelling Allowance);

Explanation – “allowance granted to meet the cost of travel on transfer” includes any sum paid in connection with the transfer, packing and transportation of personal effects on such transfer.

- (b) any allowance, whether granted on tour or for the period of journey in connection with transfer, to meet the ordinary daily charges incurred by an employee on account of absence from his normal place of duty (Daily allowance/Per-diem allowance);

- (c) any allowance granted to meet the expenditure incurred on conveyance in performance of duties of an office or employment of profit (Conveyance Allowance);

Such allowance would be exempt only if free conveyance is not provided by the employer.

- (d) any allowance granted to meet the expenditure incurred on a helper where such helper is engaged in the performance of the duties of an office or employment of profit (Helper Allowance);
- (e) any allowance granted for encouraging the academic research and training pursuits in educational and research institutions (Research allowance);
- (f) any allowance granted to meet the expenditure on the purchase or maintenance of uniform for wear during the performance of the duties of an office or employment of profit (Uniform Allowance).

Allowances prescribed for the purposes of section 10(14)(ii) [Rule 2BB(2)]

ILLUSTRATION 4

Ayush, an employee of a management consultancy firm, was sent to UK in connection with a project of the firm's client for two months in the previous year. In addition to his salary, the firm paid per diem allowance for the period when he worked in UK to meet expenses on boarding and lodging. Tax was not deducted at source from such allowance by the employer. Ayush did not include such allowance in computation of his taxable salary for the relevant assessment year. In course of assessment of Ayush under section 143(3), the Assessing Officer sent a notice to him asking him to explain why the per diem allowance received by him should not be charged to tax? Ayush has sought your advice.

SOLUTION

Per-diem allowance is exempt from tax under section 10(14)(i) read with Rule 2BB, as it is an allowance granted and spent to meet the ordinary daily charges incurred by an employee on account of absence from his normal place of duty. Rule 2BB exempts the allowance granted to meet the ordinary daily charges incurred by an employee on account of his absence from his normal place of duty.

In the given case, Mr. Ayush was posted for a period of 2 months outside his normal place of duty and the allowance was paid to meet the boarding and lodging.

Therefore, the allowance would fall under section 10(14)(i) read with Rule 2BB and would hence be exempt, assuming that expenditure to that extent was actually incurred for his boarding and lodging.

(C) Allowances which are fully exempt

- (1) Allowance to High Court Judges: Any allowance paid to a Judge of a High Court under section 22A(2) of the High Court Judges (Conditions of Service) Act, 1954 is not taxable.

- (2) Allowance paid by the United Nations Organisation (UNO): Allowance paid by the UNO to its employees is not taxable by virtue of section 2 of the United Nations (Privileges and Immunities) Act, 1947.
- (3) Compensatory allowance under section 222(2) of the Constitution: Compensatory allowance received by judge under Article 222(2) of the Constitution is not taxable since it is neither salary nor perquisite — Bishamber Dayalv. CIT [1976] 103 ITR 813 (MP).
- (4) Sumptuary allowance: Sumptuary allowance given to High Court Judges under section 22C of the High Court Judges (Conditions of Service) Act, 1954 and Supreme Court Judges under section 23B of the Supreme Court Judges (Conditions of Service) Act, 1958 is not chargeable to tax.
- (5) Allowances payable outside India [Section 10(7)]: Allowances or perquisites paid or allowed as such outside India by the Government to a citizen of India for services rendered outside India are exempt from tax.

Students may remember that in such cases under section 9(1)(iii), the income chargeable under the head 'Salaries' is deemed to accrue in India. The residential status of the recipient will, however, not affect this exemption.

Exemption of specified allowances and perquisites paid to Chairman or a retired Chairman or any other member or retired member of the UPSC [Section 10(45)]

- (i) Under the Income-tax Act, 1961, perquisites and allowances received by an employee are taxable under the head "Salaries" unless they are specifically exempted.
- (ii) Section 10(45) exempts specified allowances and perquisites received by Chairman or any other member, including retired Chairman/ member, of the Union Public Service Commission (UPSC).
- (iii) The exemption would be available in respect of such allowances and perquisites as may be notified by the Central Government in this behalf.
- (iv) Accordingly, the Central Government has notified the following allowances and perquisites for serving Chairman and members of UPSC, for the purpose of exemption under section 10(45) -
  - (a) the value of rent free official residence,
  - (b) the value of conveyance facilities including transport allowance,
  - (c) the sumptuary allowance and
  - (d) the value of leave travel concession.

In case of retired Chairman and retired members of UPSC, the following have been notified for exemption under section 10(45):

- (i) a sum of maximum ₹ 14,000 per month for defraying the service of an orderly and for meeting expenses incurred towards secretarial assistance on contract basis.
- (ii) the value of a residential telephone free of cost and the number of free calls to the extent of ₹ 1,500 pm (over and above free calls per month allowed by the telephone authorities)

Note – Tax exemption is also available in respect of certain specified perquisites enjoyed by Chief Election Commissioner/ Election Commissioner and judges of Supreme Court on account of the enabling provisions in the respective Acts which govern their service conditions.

(ii) Annuity or Pension

Meaning of Annuity

- As per the definition, 'annuity' is treated as salary. Annuity is a sum payable in respect of a particular year. It is a yearly grant. If a person invests some money entitling him to series of equal annual sums, such annual sums are annuities in the hands of the investor.
- Annuity received from a present employer is to be taxed as salary. It does not matter whether it is paid in pursuance of a contractual obligation or voluntarily.
- Annuity received from a past employer is taxable as profit in lieu of salary.
- Annuity received from person other than an employer is taxable as "Income from other sources".

Pension

Concise Oxford Dictionary defines 'pension' as a periodic payment made especially by Government or a company or other employers to the employee in consideration of past service payable after his retirement.

Pension is of two types: commuted and uncommuted.

- Uncommuted Pension: Uncommuted pension refers to pension received periodically. It is fully taxable in the hands of both government and non-government employees.
- Commuted Pension: Commutation means inter-change. Commuted pension means lump sum amount taken by commuting the whole or part of the pension. Many persons convert their future right to receive pension into a lumpsum amount receivable immediately.

Example:

Suppose a person is entitled to receive a pension of say ₹ 2000 p.m. for the rest of his life. He may commute  $\frac{1}{4}$ th i.e., 25% of this amount and get a lumpsum of say ₹ 30,000. After commutation, his pension will now be the balance 75% of ₹ 2,000 p.m. = ₹ 1,500 p.m.

Exemption in respect of Commuted Pension [Section 10(10A)]

As per section 10(10A), the payment in respect of commuted pension is exempt, subject to the conditions specified therein. Its treatment is discussed below:

- (a) Employees of the Central Government/ local authorities/ Statutory Corporation/ members of the Defence Services: Any commuted pension received is fully exempt from tax.
- (b) Other Employees: Any commuted pension received is exempt from tax in the following manner:

If the employee is in receipt of gratuity,

Exemption =  $\frac{1}{3}$ rd of the amount of pension which he would have received had he commuted the whole of the pension.

If the employee does not receive any gratuity

Exemption =  $\frac{1}{2}$  of the amount of pension which he would have received had he commuted the whole of the pension.

$$= \left[ \frac{1}{2} \times \frac{\text{commuted pension received}}{\text{commutation \%}} \times 100\% \right]$$

Notes:

- Judges of the Supreme Court and High Court will be entitled to exemption of the commuted portion.
- Any commuted pension received by an individual out of annuity plan of the Life Insurance Corporation of India (LIC) from a fund set up by that Corporation will be exempted.

ILLUSTRATION 5

Mr. Sagar retired on 1.10.2019 receiving ₹ 5,000 p.m. as pension. On 1.2.2020, he commuted 60% of his pension and received ₹ 3,00,000 as commuted pension. You are required to compute his taxable pension assuming:

- He is a government employee.
- He is a private sector employee, receiving gratuity of ₹ 5,00,000 at the time of retirement.
- He is a private sector employee and is not in receipt of gratuity at the time of retirement.

(iii) Gratuity

Gratuity is a voluntary payment made by an employer in appreciation of services rendered by the employee. Now-a-days, gratuity has become a normal payment applicable to all employees. In fact, the Payment of Gratuity Act, 1972 is a statutory recognition of the concept of gratuity. Almost all employers enter into an agreement with employees to pay gratuity.

Exemption in respect of Gratuity [Section 10(10)]

Its treatment is discussed below:

1. Retirement gratuity received under the Pension Code Regulations applicable to members of the Defence Service is fully exempt from tax.
2. Employees of Central Government/ Members of Civil Services/ local authority employees: Any death cum retirement gratuity is fully exempt from tax under section 10(10)(i).
3. Other employees:

(i) Covered by the Payment of Gratuity Act, 1972

Any death-cum-retirement gratuity is exempt from tax to the extent of least of the following:

- (a) ₹ 20,00,000
- (b) Gratuity actually received
- (c) 15 days' salary based on last drawn salary for each completed year of service or part thereof in excess of 6 months

Note: Salary for this purpose means basic salary and dearness allowance. No. of days in a month for this purpose, shall be taken as 26.

(ii) Not covered by the Payment of Gratuity Act, 1972

Any death cum retirement gratuity received by an employee on his retirement or his becoming incapacitated prior to such retirement or on his termination is exempt from tax to the extent of least of the following:

- (a) ₹ 20,00,000
- (b) Gratuity actually received
- (c) Half month's salary (based on last 10 months' average salary immediately preceding the month of retirement or death) for each completed year of service (fraction to be ignored)

Note: Salary for this purpose means basic salary and dearness allowance, if provided in the terms of employment for retirement benefits, forming part of salary and commission which is expressed as a fixed percentage of turnover.

Students must also note the following points:

- (1) Gratuity received during the period of service is fully taxable.
- (2) Where gratuity is received from 2 or more employers in the same year then aggregate amount of gratuity exempt from tax cannot exceed ₹ 20,00,000.
- (3) Where gratuity is received in any earlier year from former employer and again received from another employer in a later year, the limit of ₹ 20,00,000 will be reduced by the amount of gratuity exempt earlier.
- (4) The exemption in respect of gratuities would be available even if the gratuity is received by the widow, children or dependents of a deceased employee.

ILLUSTRATION 6

Mr. Ravi retired on 15.6.2019 after completion of 26 years 8 months of service and received gratuity of ₹6,00,000. At the time of retirement, his salary was:

Basic Salary	:	₹ 5,000 p.m.
Dearness Allowance	:	₹ 3,000 p.m. (60% of which is for retirement benefits)
Commission	:	1% of turnover (turnover in the last 12 months was ₹ 12,00,000)
Bonus	:	₹ 12,000 p.a.

Compute his taxable gratuity assuming:

- He is private sector employee and covered by the Payment of Gratuity Act 1972.
- He is private sector employee and not covered by the Payment of Gratuity Act 1972.
- He is a Government employee.

| (iii) | Half month's salary based on average salary of last 10 months preceding the month of retirement for each completed year of service. |             |

i.e.  $\frac{1}{2} \times \text{Average salary} \times \text{years of service}$

$$= \frac{1}{2} \times \frac{\left[ (5,000 \times 10) + (3,000 \times 60\% \times 10) + \left( 1\% \times 12,00,000 \times \frac{10}{12} \right) \right]}{10} \times 26$$

$$= ₹ 1,01,400$$

(c) He is a government employee

Gratuity received at the time of retirement	₹ 6,00,000
Less : Exemption under section 10(10)	₹ 6,00,000
Taxable gratuity	Nil

(iv) Fees, commission, perquisite or profits in lieu of or in addition to any salary or wages

Payment in the form of fees or commission by the employer to the employee are fully taxable. Commission may be paid as fixed percentage of turnover or net profits etc.

Section 17(2) and 17(3) contains the provisions relating to perquisites and profits in lieu of salary, respectively. The provisions of these sections would be discussed in detail separately in this Chapter.

(v) Any Advance of Salary

The concept of "Advance Salary" already discussed in this chapter.

(vi) Leave Salary or Leave Encashment

Generally, employees are allowed leaves during the period of service. Employee may avail such leave or in case the leave is not availed, then the leaves may either lapse or be accumulated for future or allowed to be encashed every year or at the time termination/ retirement. The payment received on account of encashment of unavailed leave would be form part of salary. However, section 10(10AA) provides exemption in respect of amount received by way of encashment of unutilised earned leave by an employee at the time of his retirement whether on superannuation or otherwise.

Exemption of amount received by way of encashment of unutilised earned leave on retirement [Section 10(10AA)]

The provisions of this clause are mentioned below:

- (a) Government employees: Leave salary received at the time of retirement is fully exempt from tax.
- (b) Non-government employees: Leave salary received at the time of retirement is exempt from tax to the extent of least of the following:
- (i) ₹ 3,00,000
  - (ii) Leave salary actually received
  - (iii) 10 months' salary (on the basis of average salary of last 10 months )
  - (iv) Cash equivalent of leave (based on last 10 months' average salary immediately preceding the date of retirement) to the credit of the employee at the time of retirement or death. Earned leave entitlement cannot exceed 30 days for every year of actual service rendered for the employer from whose service he has retired.

Notes:

1. Leave salary received during the period of service is fully taxable.
2. Where leave salary is received from two or more employers in the same year, then, the aggregate amount of leave salary exempt from tax cannot exceed ₹ 3,00,000.
3. Where leave salary is received in any earlier year from a former employer and again received from another employer in a later year, the limit of ₹ 3,00,000 will be reduced by the amount of leave salary exempt earlier.
4. Salary for this purpose means basic salary and dearness allowance, if provided in the terms of employment for retirement benefits, and commission which is expressed as a fixed percentage of turnover.
5. 'Average salary' will be determined on the basis of the salary drawn during the period of ten months immediately preceding the date of his retirement whether on superannuation or otherwise.

ILLUSTRATION 7

Mr. Gupta retired on 1.12.2019 after 20 years 10 months of service, receiving leave salary of ₹ 5,00,000. Other details of his salary income are:

Basic Salary : ₹ 5,000 p.m. (₹ 1,000 was increased w.e.f. 1.4.2019)

Dearness Allowance : ₹ 3,000 p.m. (60% of which is for retirement benefits)

Commission : ₹ 500 p.m.

Bonus : ₹ 1,000 p.m.

Leave availed during service : 480 days

He was entitled to 30 days leave every year.

You are required to compute his taxable leave salary assuming:

- He is a government employee.
- He is a non-government employee.

Provident fund scheme is a scheme intended to give substantial benefits to an employee at the time of his retirement. Under this scheme, a specified sum is deducted from the salary of the employee as his contribution towards the fund. The employer also generally contributes the same amount out of his pocket, to the fund. The contributions of the employer and the employee are invested in approved securities. Interest earned thereon is also credited to the account of the employee. Thus, the credit balance in a provident fund account of an employee consists of the following:

- (i) employee's contribution
- (ii) interest on employee's contribution
- (iii) employer's contribution
- (iv) interest on employer's contribution.

The accumulated balance is paid to the employee at the time of his retirement or resignation. In the case of death of the employee, the same is paid to his legal heirs.

The provident fund represents an important source of small savings available to the Government. Hence, the Income-tax Act, 1961 gives certain deductions on savings in a provident fund account.

(1) Recognised Provident Fund (RPF)

Recognised provident fund means a provident fund recognised by the Commissioner of Income-tax for the purposes of income-tax. It is governed by Part A of Schedule IV to the Income-tax Act, 1961. This schedule contains various rules regarding the following:

- (a) Recognition of the fund
- (b) Employee's and employer's contribution to the fund
- (c) Treatment of accumulated balance etc.

A fund constituted under the Employees' Provident Fund and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952 will also be a Recognised Provident Fund.

(2) Unrecognised Provident Fund (URPF)

A fund not recognised by the Commissioner of Income-tax is Unrecognised Provident Fund.

(3) Statutory Provident Fund (SPF)

The SPF is governed by Provident Funds Act, 1925. It applies to employees of government, railways, semi-government institutions, local bodies, universities and all recognised educational institutions.

(4) Public Provident Fund (PPF)

Public provident fund is operated under the Public Provident Fund Act, 1968. A membership of the fund is open to every individual though it is ideally suited to self-employed people. A salaried employee may also contribute to PPF in addition to the fund operated by his employer. An individual may contribute to the fund on his own behalf as also on behalf of a minor of whom he is the guardian.

For getting a deduction under section 80C, a member is required to contribute to the PPF a minimum of ₹ 500 in a year. The maximum amount that may qualify for deduction on this account is ₹ 1,50,000 as per PPF rules.

A member of PPF may deposit his contribution in as many installments in multiples of ₹ 500 as is convenient to him. The sums contributed to PPF earn interest at 8% p.a. (April, 2019 to June, 2019) and 7.9% p.a. (from 1st July, 2019) compounded annually. The amount of contribution may be paid at any of the offices or branch offices of the State Bank of India or its subsidiaries and specified branches of banks or any Post Office.

The tax treatment is given below:

I. During the Employment period

Particulars	Recognized PF	Unrecognized PF	Statutory PF	Public PF
Employer's Contribution	Amount in excess of 12% of salary is taxable	Not taxable yearly	Fully exempt	N.A. (as there is only assessee's own contribution)
Employee's Contribution	Eligible for deduction u/s 80C	Not eligible for deduction	Eligible for deduction u/s 80C	Eligible for deduction u/s 80C
Interest Credited	Amount in excess of 9.5% p.a. is taxable	Not taxable yearly	Fully exempt	Fully exempt

Note: Salary for this purpose means basic salary and dearness allowance - if provided in the terms of employment for retirement benefits and commission as a percentage of turnover.

II. At the time of Retirement etc.

A. Recognised Provident Fund/ Public Provident Fund/ Statutory Provident Fund

The payments received by an assessee from the following funds at the time of retirement or otherwise, would be fully exempt from tax under sections 10(11) and (12):

Section 10(11)		Section 10(12)
Provident Fund (PF) to which Provident Fund Act, 1925, applies	Public Provident Fund	Accumulated balance payable to an employee participating in a Recognized Provident Fund (RPF)

Exemption of Accumulated balance of RPF, payable to an employee

* Where the accumulated balance in RPF becomes taxable, the tax payable in each of the years would be computed as if the fund had been an Unrecognised Provident Fund and the difference in tax would be payable by the employee.

Note: If, after termination of his employment with one employer, the employee obtains employment under another employer, then, only so much of the accumulated balance in his provident fund account will be exempt which is transferred to his individual account in a recognised provident fund maintained by the new employer. In such a case, for exemption of payment of accumulated balance by the new employer, the period of service with the former employer shall also be taken into account for computing the period of five years' continuous service.

B. Unrecognised Provident Fund:

Amount received on the maturity of URPF

- Employee's contribution is not taxable
- Interest on Employee's contribution is taxable under 'Income from Other Sources'.
- Employer's contribution and interest thereon is taxed as salary.

ILLUSTRATION 8

Mr. A retires from service on December 31, 2019, after 25 years of service. Following are the particulars of his income/investments for the previous year 2019-20:

Particulars	₹
Basic pay @ ₹ 16,000 per month for 9 months	1,44,000
Dearness pay (50% forms part of the retirement benefits) ₹ 8,000 per month for 9 months	72,000
Lumpsum payment received from the Unrecognised Provident Fund	6,00,000
Deposits in the PPF account	40,000

Out of the amount received from the unrecognized provident fund, the employer's contribution was ₹ 2,20,000 and the interest thereon ₹ 50,000. The employee's contribution was ₹ 2,70,000 and the interest thereon ₹ 60,000. What is the taxable portion of the amount received from the unrecognized provident fund in the hands of Mr. A for the assessment year 2020-21?

SOLUTION

Taxable portion of the amount received from the URPF in the hands of Mr. A for the A.Y. 2020-21 is computed hereunder:

Particulars	₹
Amount taxable under the head "Salaries":
Employer's share in the payment received from the URPF	2,20,000

Interest on the employer's share	50,000
Total	2,70,000
Amount taxable under the head "Income from Other Sources":
Interest on the employee's share	60,000
Total amount taxable from the amount received from the fund	3,30,000

Note: Since the employee is not eligible for deduction under section 80C for contribution to URPF at the time of such contribution, the employee's share received from the URPF is not taxable at the time of withdrawal as this amount has already been taxed as his salary income.

ILLUSTRATION 9

Will your answer be any different if the fund mentioned above was a recognised provident fund?

SOLUTION

Since the fund is a recognised one, and the maturity is taking place after a service of 25 years, the entire amount received on the maturity of the RPF will be fully exempt from tax.

ILLUSTRATION 10

Mr. B is working in XYZ Ltd. and has given the details of his income for the P.Y.2019-20. You are required to compute his gross salary from the details given below:

Basic Salary	₹ 10,000 p.m.
D.A. (50% is for retirement benefits)	₹ 8,000 p.m.
Commission as a percentage of turnover	0.1%
Turnover during the year	₹ 50,00,000
Bonus	₹ 40,000
Gratuity	₹ 25,000
His own contribution in the RPF	₹ 20,000
Employer's contribution to RPF	20% of his basic salary
Interest accrued in the RPF@13% p.a.	₹ 13,000

SOLUTION

Computation of Gross Salary of Mr. B for the A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	₹	₹
Basic Salary [₹ 10,000 × 12]		1,20,000
Dearness Allowance [₹ 8,000 × 12]		96,000

Commission on turnover [0.1% × ₹ 50,00,000]		5,000
Bonus		40,000
Gratuity [Note 1]		25,000
Employee's contribution to RPF [Note 2]		-
Employers contribution to RPF [20% of ₹1,20,000]	24,000
Less: Exempt [Note 3]	20,760	3,240
Interest accrued in the RPF@13% p.a.	13,000
Less: Exempt@9.5% p.a.	9,500	3,500
Gross Salary		2,92,740

Note 1: Gratuity received during service is fully taxable.

Note 2: Employee's contribution to RPF is not taxable. It is eligible for deduction under section 80C.

Note 3: Employers contribution to RPF is exempt up to 12% of salary.

i.e., 12% of [Basic Salary + Dearness Allowance forming part of retirement benefits + Commission based on turnover] = 12% of [₹ 1,20,000 + (50% × ₹ 96,000) + ₹ 5,000] = 12% of ₹ 1,73,000 = ₹ 20,760

(viii) The contribution made by the Central Government or any other employer in the previous year to the account of an employee under a pension scheme referred to in section 80CCD

National Pension scheme is a scheme approved by the Government for Indian citizen aged between 18-60 years. Subscriber of the NPS account contributes some amount in their account. In case of any employee, being a subscriber of the NPS account, employer may also contribute into the employee's account.

Employer's contribution to NPS account would form part of salary of employees

However, while computing total income of the employee-assessee, a deduction under section 80CCD is allowed to the assessee in respect of the employer as well as employee contribution under a pension scheme referred therein. (Deduction under section 80CCD will be discussed in detail in Chapter 11 – "Deductions from Gross Total Income")

(2) Profits in lieu of salary [Section 17(3)]

It includes the following:

(i) Compensation on account of termination of his employment

The amount of any compensation due to or received by an assessee from his employer or former employer at or in connection with the termination of his employment.

(ii) Compensation on account of modification of the terms and conditions of employment

The amount of any compensation due to or received by an assessee from his employer or former employer at or in connection with the modification of the terms and conditions of employment.

Usually, such compensation is treated as a capital receipt. However, by virtue of this provision, the same is treated as a revenue receipt and is chargeable as salary.

Note: It is to be noted that merely because a payment is made by an employer to a person who is his employee does not automatically fall within the scope of the above provisions. The payment must be arising due to master-servant relationship between the payer and the payee. If it is not on that account, but due to considerations totally unconnected with employment, such payment is not profit in lieu of salary.

(iii) Payment from provident fund or other fund

Any payment due to or received by an assessee from his employer or former employer from a provident or other fund other than

- Gratuity [Section 10(10)]
- Pension [Section 10(10A)]
- Compensation received by a workman under Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 [Section 10(10B)]
- from statutory provident fund or public provident fund [Section 10(11)]
- from recognized provident fund [Section 10(12)]
- from approved superannuation fund [Section 10(13)]
- any House Rent Allowance [Section 10(13A)], to the extent to which it does not consist of employee's contributions or interest on such contributions.

Note: If any sum is paid to an employee at the time of maturity from an unrecognised provident fund it is to be dealt with as follows:

- (a) that part of the sum which represents the employer's contribution to the fund and interest thereon is taxable under salaries.
- (b) that part of the sum which represents employee's contribution and interest thereon is not chargeable to tax since the same have already been taxed under the head 'salaries' and 'other sources' respectively.

(iv) Keyman Insurance policy
Any sum received by an assessee under a Keyman Insurance policy including the sum allocated by way of bonus on such policy.
(v) Lumpsum Payment or otherwise
Any amount, whether in lumpsum or otherwise, due to the assessee or received by him, from any person -
(a) before joining employment with that person, or
(b) after cessation of his employment with that person.

(i) Retrenchment compensation

The retrenchment compensation means the compensation paid under Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 or under any Act, Rule, Order or Notification issued under any law. It also includes compensation paid on transfer of employment under section 25F or closing down of an undertaking under section 25FF of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947.

It may be noted that compensation on account of termination and due to modification in terms and conditions of employment would be taxable as “profits in lieu of salary”. However, the retrenchment compensation would be exempt under section 10(10B), subject to following limits.

- (a) Amount calculated in accordance with the provisions of section 25F of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947

i.e., 15 days average pay x completed years of service and part thereof in excess of 6 months or

- (b) An amount, not less than ₹ 5,00,000 as may be notified by the Central Government in this behalf, whichever is lower.

Notes:

1. The above limits will not be applicable to cases where the compensation is paid under any scheme approved by the Central Government for giving special protection to workmen under certain circumstances.
2. Average pay means average of the wages payable to a workman
  - in the case of monthly paid workman, in the three complete calendar months,
  - in the case of weekly paid workman, in the four calendar weeks,
  - in the case of daily paid workman, in the twelve full working days, preceding the date on which the average pay becomes payable if the workman had worked for three complete calendar months or four complete weeks or twelve full working days, as the case may be, and where such calculation cannot be made, the average pay shall be calculated as the average of the wages payable to a workman during the period he actually worked.

3. Wages for this purpose means all remuneration capable of being expressed in terms of money, which would, if the terms of employment, expressed or implied, were fulfilled, be payable to a workman in respect of his employment or of work done in such employment, and includes

- such allowances including DA as the workman is for the time being entitled to;
- the value of any house accommodation, or of supply of light, water, medical attendance or other amenity or of any other service or of any concessional supply of foodgrains or other articles;
- any travel concession; and
- any commission payable on the promotion of sales or business or both

However, it does not include

- any bonus;
- contribution to a retirement benefit scheme;
- any gratuity payable on the termination of his service.

(ii) Voluntary Retirement Receipts [Section 10(10C)]

Lumpsum payment or otherwise received by an employee at the time of voluntary retirement would be taxable as “profits in lieu of salary”. However, it would be exempt under section 10(10C), subject to the following conditions:

Eligible Undertakings - The employee of the following undertakings are eligible for exemption under this clause:

- (i) Public sector company
- (ii) Any other company
- (iii) An authority established under a Central/State or Provincial Act
- (iv) A local authority
- (v) A co-operative society
- (vi) An University established or incorporated under a Central/ State or Provincial Act and an Institution declared to be an University by the University Grants Commission.
- (vii) An Indian Institute of Technology
- (viii) Such Institute of Management as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, specify in this behalf

- (ix) Any State Government
- (x) The Central Government
- (xi) An institution, having importance throughout India or in any state or states, as the Central Government may specify by notification in the Official Gazette.

Limit: The maximum limit of exemption should not exceed ₹ 5 lakh.

Such compensation should be at the time of his voluntary retirement or termination of his service, in accordance with any scheme or schemes of voluntary retirement or, in the case of public sector company, a scheme of voluntary separation. The exemption will be available even if such compensation is received in installments.

Guidelines:

The schemes should be framed in accordance with such guidelines, as may be prescribed and should include the criteria of economic viability.

Rule 2BA prescribes the following guidelines for the purposes of the above clause:

1. It applies to an employee who has completed 10 years of service or completed 40 years of age.
However, this requirement is not applicable in case of an employee of a public sector company under the scheme of voluntary separation framed by the company.
2. It applies to all employees by whatever name called, including workers and executives of the company or the authority or a co-operative society except directors of a company or a cooperative society.
3. The scheme of voluntary retirement or separation must have been drawn to result in overall reduction in the existing strength of the employees.
4. The vacancy caused by the voluntary retirement or separation must not be filled up.
5. The retiring employee of a company shall not be employed in another company or concern belonging to the same management.
6. The amount receivable on account of voluntary retirement or separation of the employee must not exceed
  - the amount equivalent to three months' salary for each completed year of service or
  - salary at the time of retirement multiplied by the balance months of service left before the date of his retirement or superannuation.

Notes –

1. Where any relief has been allowed to any assessee under section 89 for any assessment year in respect of any amount received or receivable on his voluntary retirement or termination of service or voluntary separation, no exemption under section 10(10C) shall be allowed to him in relation to that assessment year or any other assessment year.

2. Where exemption for voluntary retirement compensation under section 10(10C) has been allowed in any assessment year, then no exemption thereunder shall be allowed to him in any other assessment year.
3. Salary for this purpose means basic salary and dearness allowance, if provided in the terms of employment for retirement benefits, forming part of salary and commission which is expressed as a fixed percentage of turnover.

ILLUSTRATION 11

Mr. Dutta received voluntary retirement compensation of ₹ 7,00,000 after 30 years 4 months of service. He still has 6 years of service left. At the time of voluntary retirement, he was drawing basic salary ₹ 20,000 p.m.; Dearness allowance (which forms part of pay) ₹ 5,000 p.m. Compute his taxable voluntary retirement compensation, assuming that he does not claim any relief under section 89.

SOLUTION

Voluntary retirement compensation received	₹ 7,00,000
Less: Exemption under section 10(10C) [ See Note below ]	₹ 5,00,000
Taxable voluntary retirement compensation	₹ 2,00,000

Note: Exemption is to the extent of least of the following:

(i) Compensation actually received	= ₹ 7,00,000
(ii) Statutory limit	= ₹ 5,00,000
(iii) Last drawn salary × 3 × completed years of service = (₹ 20,000 + ₹ 5,000) × 3 × 30 years	= ₹ 22,50,000
(iv) Last drawn salary × remaining months of service = (₹ 20,000 + ₹ 5,000) × 6 × 12 months	= ₹ 18,00,000

(3) Perquisites

The term 'perquisite' indicates some extra benefit in addition to the amount that may be legally due by way of contract for services rendered. In modern times, the salary package of an employee normally includes monetary salary and perquisites like housing, car etc.

- Perquisite may be provided in cash or in kind.
- Reimbursement of expenses incurred in the official discharge of duties is not a perquisite.

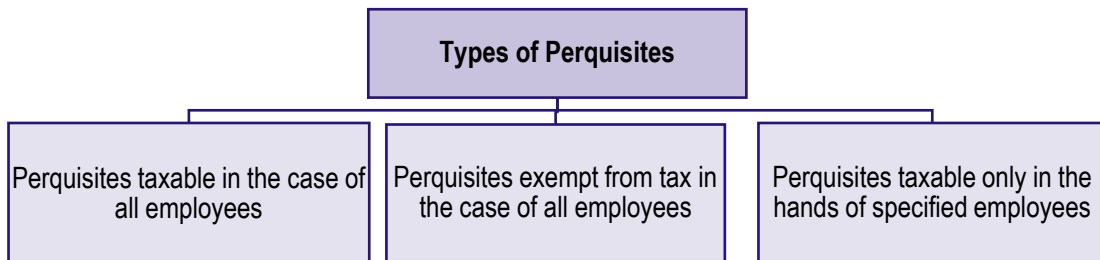

- Perquisite may arise in the course of employment or in the course of profession. If it arises from a relationship of employer-employee, then the value of the perquisite is taxable as salary. However, if it arises during the course of profession, the value of such perquisite is chargeable as profits and gains of business or profession.
- Perquisite will become taxable only if it has a legal origin. An unauthorised advantage taken by an employee without his employer's sanction cannot be considered as a perquisite under the Act.

Example:

Mr. A, an employee, is given a house by his employer. On 31.3.2020, he is terminated from service. But he continues to occupy the house without the permission of the employer for six more months after which he is evicted by the employer. The question arises whether the value of the benefit enjoyed by him during the six months period can be considered as a perquisite and be charged to salary. It cannot be done since the relationship of employer-employee ceased to exist after 31.3.2020. However, the definition of income is wide enough to bring the value of the benefit enjoyed by Mr. A to tax as "Income from other sources".

(i) Definition of "Perquisite"

The term "perquisite" is defined under section 17(2). The definition of perquisite is an inclusive one. Based on the definition, perquisites can be classified in following three ways:

(A) Perquisites taxable in the case of all employees

The following perquisites are chargeable to tax in case of all employees:

Rent Free Accommodation	Value of rent-free accommodation provided to the assessee by his employer [Section 17(2)(i)]. [Refer discussion on valuation of perquisite]
Exception: Rent-free official residence provided to a Judge of a High Court or to a Judge of the Supreme Court is not taxable. Similarly, rent-free furnished house provided to an Officer of Parliament, is not taxable.
Concession in rent	Value of concession in rent in respect of accommodation provided to the assessee by his employer [Section 17(2)(ii)].

Payment by the employer in respect of an obligation of employee	Amount paid by an employer in respect of any obligation which otherwise would have been payable by the employee [Section 17(2)(iv)].
For example, if a domestic servant is engaged by an employee and the employer reimburses the salary paid to the servant, it becomes an obligation which the employee would have discharged even if the employer did not reimburse the same. This perquisite will be covered by section 17(2)(iv) and will be taxable in the hands of all employees.
Amount payable by an employer directly or indirectly to effect an assurance on the life of the assessee	Amount payable by an employer directly or indirectly to effect an assurance on the life of the assessee or to effect a contract for an annuity, other than payment made to RPF or approved superannuation fund or deposit-linked insurance fund established under the Coal Mines Provident Fund or Employees' Provident Fund and Miscellaneous Provisions Act. [Section 17(2)(v)]  However, there are schemes like group annuity scheme, employees state insurance scheme and fidelity insurance scheme, under which insurance premium is paid by employer on behalf of the employees. Such payments are not regarded as perquisite in view of the fact that the employees have only an expectancy of the benefit in such schemes.
Specified security or sweat equity shares allotted or transferred, by the employer	The value of any specified security or sweat equity shares allotted or transferred, directly or indirectly, by the employer or former employer, free of cost or at concessional rate to the assessee. [Section 17(2)(vi)] [Refer discussion on valuation of perquisite]
Amount of any contribution to an approved superannuation fund	The amount of any contribution to an approved superannuation fund by the employer in respect of the assessee, to the extent it exceeds ₹ 1,50,000. [Section 17(2)(vii)]

Approved superannuation fund

It is a superannuation fund which has been and continues to be approved by the Commissioner in accordance with the rules contained in Part B of the IVth Schedule to the Income-tax Act, 1961.

The tax treatment of contribution and exemption of payment from tax are as follows:

- (i) Employer's contribution is exempt from tax in the hands of employee (upto ₹ 1,50,000 per employee per annum). Only such contribution exceeding ₹ 1,50,000 is taxable in the hands of the respective employee;
- (ii) Employee's contribution qualifies for deduction under section 80C;
- (iii) Interest on accumulated balance is exempt from tax.

Exemption in respect of Payment from superannuation funds [Section 10(13)]

Any payment received by any employee from an approved superannuation fund shall be entirely excluded from his total income if the payment is made

- (a) to the legal heirs on the death of beneficiary (e.g. payment to widow of the beneficiary); or
- (b) to an employee in lieu of or in commutation of an annuity on his retirement at or after the specified age or on his becoming incapacitated prior to such retirement; or
- (c) by way of refund of contribution on the death of the beneficiary; or,
- (d) by way of refund of contribution to an employee on his leaving the service in connection with which the fund is established otherwise than by retirement at or after a specified age or his becoming incapacitated prior to such retirement, to the extent the payment made does not exceed the contribution made prior to 1-4-1962 and the interest thereon.

For example, where the amount received by an employee does not include any contribution made prior to 1.4.1962, the whole amount is taxable.

- (e) by way of transfer to the account of the employee under a pension scheme referred to in section 80CCD, which is notified by the Central Government.

(B) Perquisites exempt from tax in all cases

The following perquisites are exempt from tax in the hands of all employees.

Telephone	Telephone provided by an employer to an employee at his residence
Transport Facility	Transport facility provided by an employer engaged in the business of carrying of passengers or goods to his employees either free of charge or at concessional rate;

Perquisites allowed outside India by the Government	Perquisites allowed outside India by the Government to a citizen of India for rendering services outside India;
Employer's contribution to staff group insurance scheme;	Employer's contribution to staff group insurance scheme;
Annual premium by employer on personal accident policy	Payment of annual premium by employer on personal accident policy effected by him on the life of the employee;
Refreshment	Refreshment provided to all employees during working hours in office premises;
Subsidized lunch	Subsidized lunch or dinner provided to an employee;
Recreational facilities	Recreational facilities, including club facilities, extended to employees in general i.e. , not restricted to a few select employees;
Amount spent on training of employees	Amount spent by the employer on training of employees or amount paid for refresher management course including expenses on boarding and lodging;
Sum payable by employer to a RPF or an approved superannuation fund	Sum payable by an employer to a RPF or an approved superannuation fund or deposit-linked insurance fund established under the Coal Mines Provident Fund or the Employees' Provident Fund and Miscellaneous Provisions Act;
Leave travel concession	Leave travel concession, subject to the conditions specified under section 10 (discussed below)
Note: Value of Leave travel concession provided to the High Court judge or the Supreme Court Judge and members of his family are completely exempt without any conditions.
Medical facilities	Medical facilities subject to certain prescribed limits;
Rent-free official residence	Rent-free official residence provided to a Judge of a High Court or the Supreme Court;
Rent-free furnished residence	Rent-free furnished residence including maintenance provided to an Officer of Parliament, Union Minister and a Leader of Opposition in Parliament;
Conveyance facility	Conveyance facility provided to High Court Judges under section 22B of the High Court Judges

(Conditions of Service) Act, 1954 and Supreme Court Judges under section 23A of the Supreme Court Judges (Conditions of Service) Act, 1958.
---

Exemption in respect of Leave travel concession [Section 10(5)]

- (i) This clause exempts the leave travel concession (LTC) received by employees from their employers for proceeding to any place in India,
- either on leave or
  - after retirement from service or
  - after termination of his service.
- (ii) The benefit is available to individuals - citizens as well as non-citizens - in respect of travel concession or assistance for himself or herself and for his/her family- i.e., spouse and children of the individual and parents, brothers and sisters of the individual or any of them wholly or mainly dependent on the individual.
- (iii) Limit of exemption - The exemption in all cases will be limited to the amount actually spent subject to such conditions as specified in Rule 2B regarding the ceiling on the number of journeys for the place of destination.

Under Rule 2B, exemption will be available in respect of 2 journeys performed in a block of 4 calendar years commencing from the calendar year 1986. Where such travel concession or assistance is not availed by the individual during any block of 4 calendar years, one such unavailed LTC will be carried forward to the immediately succeeding block of 4 calendar years and will be eligible for exemption.

Example:

An employee does not avail any LTC for the block 2014-17. He avails it during 2019. He is allowed to carry forward maximum one such holiday to be used in the succeeding block. Therefore, he will be eligible for exemption and two more journeys can be further availed.

- (iv) Monetary limits - Where the journey is performed on or after the 1.10.1997, the amount exempted under section 10(5) in respect of the value of LTC shall be the amount actually incurred on such travel subject to the following conditions:

S.No.	Journey performed by	Limit
1	Air	Amount not exceeding the air economy fare of the National Carrier by the shortest route to the place of destination
2	Any other mode: (i) Where rail service is available	Amount not exceeding the air-conditioned first class rail fare by the shortest route to the place of destination

(ii) Where rail service is not available
(a) a recognised public transport system exists		amount not exceeding the 1st class or deluxe class fare, as the case may be, on such transport by the shortest route to the place of destination
(b) no recognised public transport system exists		amount equivalent to the air-conditioned first class rail fare, for the distance of the journey by the shortest route, as if the journey had been performed by rail

Note: The exemption referred to shall not be available to more than two surviving children of an individual after 1.10.1998. This restrictive sub-rule shall not apply in respect of children born before 1.10.1998 and also in case of multiple births after one child.

ILLUSTRATION 12

Mr. D went on a holiday on 25.12.2019 to Delhi with his wife and three children (one son – age 5 years; twin daughters – age 2 years). They went by flight (economy class) and the total cost of tickets reimbursed by his employer was ₹60,000 (₹ 45,000 for adults and ₹15,000 for the three minor children). Compute the amount of LTC exempt.

SOLUTION

Since the son's age is more than the twin daughters, Mr. D can avail exemption for all his three children. The restriction of two children is not applicable to multiple births after one child. The holiday being in India and the journey being performed by air (economy class), the entire reimbursement met by the employer is fully exempt.

ILLUSTRATION 13

In the above illustration 12, will there be any difference if among his three children the twins were 5 years old and the son 3 years old? Examine.

SOLUTION

Since the twins' age is more than the son, Mr. D cannot avail for exemption for all his three children. LTC exemption can be availed in respect of only two children. Taxable LTC

$$= 15,000 \times \frac{1}{3} = ₹ 5,000 .$$

LTC exempt is only ₹ 55,000 (i.e. ₹ 60,000 – ₹ 5,000)

Medical facilities (Proviso to section 17(2))

The following medical facilities will not amount to a perquisite:

- (i) Value of medical treatment in any hospital maintained by the employer: The value of any medical treatment provided to an employee or any member of his family in any hospital maintained by the employer;
- (ii) Reimbursement of expenditure actually incurred on medical treatment: Any sum paid by the employer in respect of any expenditure actually incurred by the employee on his medical treatment or treatment of any member of his family
  - in any hospital maintained by the Government/local authority/any other hospital approved by the Government for the purpose of medical treatment of its employees;
  - in respect of the prescribed disease or ailments in any hospital approved by the Principal Chief Commissioner or Chief Commissioner having regard to the prescribed guidelines.

However, in order to claim this benefit, the employee shall attach with his return of income a certificate from the hospital specifying the disease or ailment for which medical treatment was required and the receipt for the amount paid to the hospital.

Thus, the two types of facilities are covered:

- (a) payment by the employer for treatment in a Government hospital and
  - (b) payment by an employer for treatment of prescribed diseases in any hospital approved by the principal Chief Commissioner or Chief Commissioner.
- (iii) Premium paid to effect an insurance on the health of employee: Any premium paid by an employer in relation to an employee to effect an insurance on the health of such employee. However, any such scheme should be approved by the Central Government or the Insurance Regulatory Development Authority (IRDA) for the purposes of section 36(1)(ib).
  - (iv) Reimbursement of premium paid to effect an insurance on the health of employee or for the family of an employee: Any sum paid by the employer in respect of any premium paid by the employee to effect an insurance on his health or the health of any member of his family under any scheme approved by the Central Government or the Insurance Regulatory Development Authority (IRDA) for the purposes of section 80D.
  - (v) Amount paid towards expenditure incurred outside India on medical treatment: Any expenditure incurred by the employer or any sum paid by the employer on any expenditure actually incurred by the employee on the following:
    - (a) medical treatment of the employee or any member of the family of such employee outside India;

- (b) travel and stay abroad of the employee or any member of the family of such employee for medical treatment;
- (c) travel and stay abroad of one attendant who accompanies the patient in connection with such treatment.

Conditions:

1. The perquisite element in respect of expenditure on medical treatment and stay abroad will be exempt only to the extent permitted by the RBI.
2. The expenses in respect of traveling of the patient and the attendant will be exempt if the employee's gross total income as computed before including the said expenditure does not exceed ₹ 2 lakh.

Note: For this purpose, family means spouse and children of the individual. Children may be dependent or independent, married or unmarried. It also includes parents, brothers and sisters of the individual if they are wholly or mainly dependent upon him.

ILLUSTRATION 14

Compute the taxable value of the perquisite in respect of medical facilities received by Mr. G from his employer during the P.Y.2019-20:

Medical premium paid for insuring health of Mr. G	₹ 7,000
Treatment of Mr. G by his family doctor	₹ 5,000
Treatment of Mrs. G in a Government hospital	₹ 25,000
Treatment of Mr. G's grandfather in a private clinic	₹ 12,000
Treatment of Mr. G's mother (68 years and dependant) by family doctor	₹ 8,000
Treatment of Mr. G's sister (dependant) in a nursing home	₹ 3,000
Treatment of Mr. G's brother (independent)	₹ 6,000
Treatment of Mr. G's father (75 years and dependant) abroad	₹ 50,000
Expenses of staying abroad of the patient and	₹ 30,000
Limit specified by RBI	₹ 75,000

SOLUTION

Computation of taxable value of perquisite in the hands of Mr. G

Treatment of Mr. G's grandfather in a private clinic		12,000
Treatment of Mr. G's brother (independent)		6,000
Taxable value of perquisite		39,000

Note: Grandfather and independent brother are not included within the meaning of family of Mr. G.

Payment of premium on personal accident insurance policies

If an employer takes personal accident insurance policies on the life of employees and pays the insurance premium, no immediate benefit would become payable and benefit will accrue at a future date only if certain events take place.

Moreover, the employers would be taking such policy in their business interest only, so as to indemnify themselves from payment of any compensation. Therefore, the premium so paid will not constitute a taxable perquisite in the employees' hands [CIT vs. Lala Shri Dhar [1972] 84 ITR 192 (Del.)].

(C) Perquisites taxable only in the hands of specified employees [Section 17(2)(iii)]

Any monetary obligation of the employee which is discharged by the employer is perquisite in the hands of all employees as per section 17(2)(iv). However, sometimes instead of discharging employee's obligation, employer provides perquisites in the form of facility to the employee. Such perquisites are taxable in the hands of specified employees only.

The value of any benefit or amenity granted or provided free of cost or at concessional rate which have not been included in (A) & (B) above will be taxable in the hands of specified employees. Followings are the example of such services:

- (i) Provision of sweeper, gardener, watchman or personal attendant
- (ii) Facility of use of gas, electricity or water supplied by employer
- (iii) Free or concessional tickets
- (iv) Use of motor car
- (v) Free or concessional educational facilities

For valuation of such perquisites, refer discussion on valuation of perquisite

Meaning of Specified employees:

- (i) Director employee: An employee of a company who is also a director is a specified employee. It is immaterial whether he is a full-time director or part-time director. It also does not matter whether he is a nominee of the management, workers, financial institutions or the Government. It is also not material whether or not he is a director throughout the previous year.
- (ii) An employee who has substantial interest in the company: An employee of a company who has substantial interest in that company is a specified employee. A person has a substantial interest in a company if he is a beneficial owner of equity shares carrying 20% or more of the voting power in the company.

Beneficial and legal ownership: In order to determine whether a person has a substantial interest in a company, it is the beneficial ownership of equity shares carrying 20% or more of the voting power that is relevant rather than the legal ownership.

Example:

A, Karta of a HUF, is a registered shareholder of Bright Ltd. The amount for purchasing the shares is financed by the HUF. The dividend is also received by the HUF. Supposing further that A is an employee in Bright Ltd., the question arises whether he is a specified employee.

In this case, he cannot be called a specified person since he has no beneficial interest in the shares registered in his name. It is only for the purpose of satisfying the statutory requirements that the shares are registered in the name of A. All the benefits arising from the shareholding goes to the HUF. Conversely, it may be noted that an employee who is not a registered shareholder will be considered as a specified employee if he has beneficial interest in 20% or more of the equity shares in the company.

- (iii) Employee drawing in excess of ₹ 50,000: An employee other than an employee described in (i) & (ii) above, whose income chargeable under the head 'salaries' exceeds ₹ 50,000 is a specified employee. The above salary is to be considered exclusive of the value of all benefits or amenities not provided by way of monetary payments.

In other words, for computing the limit of ₹ 50,000, the following items have to be excluded or deducted:

(a)	all non-monetary benefits;
(b)	monetary benefits which are exempt under section 10. This is because the exemptions provided under section 10 are excluded completely from salaries. For example, HRA or education allowance or hostel allowance are not to be included in salary to the extent to which they are exempt under section 10.
(c)	Standard deduction upto ₹ 50,000 [under section 16(ia)], Deduction for entertainment allowance [under section 16(ii)] and deduction toward professional tax [under section 16(iii)] are also to be excluded.

If an employee is employed with more than one employer, the aggregate of the salary received from all employers is to be taken into account in determining the above ceiling limit of ₹ 50,000, i.e., Salary for this purpose = Basic Salary + Dearness Allowance + Commission, whether payable monthly or turnover based + Bonus + Fees + Any other taxable payment + Any taxable allowances + Any other monetary benefits – Deductions under section 16]

(ii) Valuation of Perquisites

The Income-tax Rules, 1962 contain the provisions for valuation of perquisites. It is important to note that only those perquisites which the employee actually enjoys have to be valued and taxed in his hand.

Example:

Suppose a company offers a housing accommodation rent-free to an employee but the latter declines to accept it, then the value of such accommodation obviously cannot be evaluated and taxed in the hands of the employees.

For the purpose of computing the income chargeable under the head “Salaries”, the value of perquisites provided by the employer directly or indirectly to the employee or to any member of his household by reason of his employment shall be determined in accordance with Rule 3.

(A) Valuation of residential accommodation [Sub-rule (1) of Rule 3]

The value of residential accommodation provided by the employer during the previous year shall be determined in the following manner –

Sl. No.	Circumstances	In case of unfurnished accommodation	In case of furnished accommodation
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)
1. 3.	Where the accommodation is provided by any employer, whether Government or any other employer, in a hotel.	Not applicable	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>24% of salary paid or payable for the previous year or</li> <li>the actual charges paid or payable to such hotel,</li> </ul> whichever is lower, for the period during which such accommodation is provided as reduced by <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>the rent, if any, actually paid or payable by the employee.</li> </ul> However, where the employee is provided such accommodation for a period not exceeding in aggregate fifteen days on his transfer from one place to another, there would be no perquisite.

Notes:

- (1) If an employee is provided with accommodation, on account of his transfer from one place to another, at the new place of posting while retaining the accommodation at the other place, the value of perquisite shall be determined with reference to only one such accommodation which has the lower perquisite value, as calculated above, for a period not exceeding 90 days and thereafter, the value of perquisite shall be charged for both such accommodations.

- (2) Any accommodation provided to an employee working at a mining site or an on-shore oil exploration site or a project execution site, or a dam site or a power generation site or an off-shore site would not be treated as a perquisite, provided it satisfies either of the following conditions -
- (i) the accommodation is of temporary nature, has plinth area not exceeding 800 square feet and is located not less than eight kilometers away from the local limits of any municipality or a cantonment board; or
  - (ii) the accommodation is located in a remote area i.e., an area that is located at least 40 kms away from a town having a population not exceeding 20,000 based on latest published all-India census.
- (3) Where the accommodation is provided by the Central Government or any State Government to an employee who is serving on deputation with any body or undertaking under the control of such Government,-
- (i) the employer of such an employee shall be deemed to be that body or undertaking where the employee is serving on deputation; and
  - (ii) the value of perquisite of such an accommodation shall be the amount calculated in accordance with Sl. No.2.(a) of the above table, as if the accommodation is owned by the employer.
- (4) "Accommodation" includes a house, flat, farm house or part thereof, or accommodation in a hotel, motel, service apartment, guest house, caravan, mobile home, ship or other floating structure.
- (5) "Hotel" includes licensed accommodation in the nature of motel, service apartment or guest house.

(B) Value of any concession in the matter of rent respecting any accommodation provided to the assessee by the employer [Section 17(2)(ii)]

- (i) In case of unfurnished accommodation provided to employees other than Government employees –
- If accommodation owned by the employer: The difference between the specified rate in respect of the period during which said accommodation was occupied by the assessee and the amount of rent recoverable/recovered from the employee would be deemed to be the concession in the matter of rent.
  - If accommodation taken on lease or rent by the employer: The difference between the actual lease rent or 15% of salary, whichever is lower, in respect of the period during which said accommodation was occupied by the assessee and rent recovered/recoverable from the employee would be deemed to be the concession in the matter of rent.

Type of accommodation	Deemed concession in the matter of rent
Accommodation owned by the employer	Specified rate minus rent recoverable from the employee
In cities having a population > 25 lakh	15% of salary minus rent recoverable from the employee.
In cities having a population > 10 lakh ≤ 25 lakh	10% of salary minus rent recoverable from the employee.
In other cities	7½% of salary minus rent recoverable from employee.
Accommodation taken on lease by the employer	Rent paid by the employer or 15% of salary, whichever is lower, minus rent recoverable from the employee.

(ii) In case of furnished accommodation provided to employees other than Government employees

The difference between hire charges paid or 10% p.a. of cost of furniture, as the case may be, in respect of the period during which said accommodation was occupied by the assessee and the charges paid or payable by the employee would be added to the value determined in column (2) above for determining whether there is a concession in the matter of rent.

(iii) In case of furnished accommodation provided to Government employees

The excess of licence fees determined by the employer as increased by hire charges paid or 10% p.a. of cost of furniture, as the case may be, in respect of the period during which said accommodation was occupied by the assessee over and above the rent recovered/recoverable from the employee and the charges paid or payable for furniture by the employee would be deemed to be the concession in the matter of rent.

(iv) In case the accommodation is provided by any employer, whether Government or any other employer, in a hotel

The difference between the actual charges paid to hotel or 24% of salary, whichever is lower, for the period during which such accommodation is provided and rent recovered/recoverable from the employee would be deemed to be the concession in the matter of rent.

However, where the employee is provided such accommodation for a period not exceeding in aggregate fifteen days on his transfer from one place to another, there would be no perquisite

Note – Once there is a deemed concession, the provisions of Rule 3(1) discussed above would be applicable in computing the taxable perquisite.

Meaning of Salary

“Salary” includes pay, allowances, bonus or commission payable monthly or otherwise or any monetary payment, by whatever name called, from one or more employers, as the case may be. However, it does not include the following, namely–

- (1) dearness allowance or dearness pay unless it enters into the computation of superannuation or retirement benefits of the employee concerned;
- (2) employer's contribution to the provident fund account of the employee;
- (3) allowances which are exempted from the payment of tax;
- (4) value of the perquisites specified in section 17(2);
- (5) any payment or expenditure specifically excluded under the proviso to section 17(2) i.e., payment of medical insurance premium specified therein.

ILLUSTRATION 15

Mr. C is a Finance Manager in ABC Ltd. The company has provided him with rent-free unfurnished accommodation in Mumbai. He gives you the following particulars:

Basic salary	₹ 6,000 p.m.
Dearness Allowance	₹ 2,000 p.m. (30% is for retirement benefits)
Bonus	₹ 1,500 p.m.

Even though the company allotted the house to him on 1.4.2019, he occupied the same only from 1.11.2019. Calculate the taxable value of the perquisite for A.Y.2020-21.

SOLUTION

Value of the rent free unfurnished accommodation

= 15% of salary for the relevant period

= 15% of [(₹ 6000 × 5) + (₹ 2,000 × 30% × 5) + (₹ 1,500 × 5)] [See Note below]

= 15% of ₹ 40,500 = ₹ 6,075.

Note: Since, Mr. C occupies the house only from 1.11.2019, we have to include the salary due to him only in respect of months during which he has occupied the accommodation. Hence salary for 5 months (i.e. from 1.11.2019 to 31.03.2020) will be considered.

ILLUSTRATION 16

Using the data given in the previous illustration 15, compute the value of the perquisite if Mr. C is required to pay a rent of ₹ 1,000 p.m. to the company, for the use of this accommodation.

SOLUTION

First of all, we have to see whether there is a concession in the matter of rent. In the case of accommodation owned by the employer in cities having a population exceeding ₹ 25 lakh, there would be deemed to be a concession in the matter of rent if 15% of salary exceeds rent recoverable from the employee.

In this case, 15% of salary would be ₹ 6,075 (i.e. 15% of ₹ 40,500). The rent paid by the employee is ₹ 5,000 (i.e., ₹ 1,000 x 5). Since 15% of salary exceeds the rent recovered from the employee, there is a deemed concession in the matter of rent. Once there is a deemed concession, the provisions of Rule 3(1) would be applicable in computing the taxable perquisite.

Value of the rent free unfurnished accommodation	= ₹ 6,075
Less: Rent paid by the employee (₹ 1,000 × 5)	= ₹ 5,000
Perquisite value of unfurnished accommodation given at concessional rent	= ₹ 1,075

ILLUSTRATION 17

Using the data given in illustration 15, compute the value of the perquisite if ABC Ltd. has taken this accommodation on a lease rent of ₹ 1,200 p.m. and Mr. C is required to pay a rent of ₹ 1,000 p.m. to the company, for the use of this accommodation.

SOLUTION

Here again, we have to see whether there is a concession in the matter of rent. In the case of accommodation taken on lease by the employer, there would be deemed to be a concession in the matter of rent if the rent paid by the employer or 15% of salary, whichever is lower, exceeds rent recoverable from the employee.

In this case, 15% of salary is ₹ 6,075 (i.e. 15% of ₹ 40,500). Rent paid by the employer is ₹ 6,000 (i.e. ₹ 1,200 x 5). The lower of the two is ₹ 6,000, which exceeds the rent paid by the employee i.e. ₹ 5,000 (₹ 1,000 x 5). Therefore, there is a deemed concession in the matter of rent. Once there is a deemed concession, the provisions of Rule 3(1) would be applicable in computing the taxable perquisite.

Value of the rent free unfurnished accommodation [Note]	= ₹ 6,000
Less: Rent paid by the employee (₹ 1,000 × 5)	= ₹ 5,000
Value of unfurnished accommodation given at concessional rent	= ₹ 1,000

Note: Value of the rent free unfurnished accommodation is lower of

- (i) Lease rent paid by the company for relevant period = ₹ 1,200 × 5 = ₹ 6,000
 (ii) 15% of salary for the relevant period (computed earlier) = ₹ 6,075

ILLUSTRATION 18

Using the data given in illustration 15, compute the value of the perquisite if ABC Ltd. has provided a television (WDV ₹ 10,000; Cost ₹ 25,000) and two air conditioners. The rent paid by the company for the air conditioners is ₹ 400 p.m. each. The television was provided on 1.1.2020. However, Mr. C is required to pay a rent of ₹ 1,000 p.m. to the company, for the use of this furnished accommodation.

SOLUTION

Here again, we have to see whether there is a concession in the matter of rent. In the case of accommodation owned by the employer in a city having a population exceeding ₹ 25 lakh, there would be deemed to be a concession in the matter of rent if 15% of salary exceeds rent recoverable from the employee. In case of furnished accommodation, the excess of hire charges paid or 10% p.a. of the cost of furniture, as the case may be, over and above the charges paid or payable by the employee has to be added to the value arrived at above to determine whether there is a concession in the matter of rent.

In this case, 15% of salary is ₹ 6,075 (i.e. 15% of ₹ 40,500). The rent paid by the employee is ₹ 5,000 (i.e. ₹ 1,000 × 5). The value of furniture of ₹ 4,625 (see Note below) is to be added to 15% of salary. The deemed concession in the matter of rent is ₹ 6,075 + ₹ 4,625 - ₹ 5,000 = ₹ 5,700. Once there is a deemed concession, the provisions of Rule 3(1) would be applicable in computing the taxable perquisite.

Value of the rent free unfurnished accommodation (computed earlier)	= ₹ 6,075
Add: Value of furniture provided by the employer [ Note ]	= ₹ 4,625
Value of rent free furnished accommodation	= ₹ 10,700
Less: Rent paid by the employee (₹ 1,000 × 5)	= ₹ 5,000
Value of furnished accommodation given at concessional rent	= ₹ 5,700

Note: Value of the furniture provided = (₹ 400 p.m. × 2 × 5 months) + (₹ 25,000 × 10% p.a. for 3 months) = ₹ 4,000 + ₹ 625 = ₹ 4,625

ILLUSTRATION 19

Using the data given in illustration 18 above, compute the value of the perquisite if Mr. C is a government employee. The licence fees determined by the Government for this accommodation was ₹ 700 p.m.

SOLUTION

In the case of Government employees, the excess of licence fees determined by the employer as increased by the value of furniture and fixture over and above the rent recovered/ recoverable from the employee and the charges paid or payable for furniture by the employee would be deemed to be the concession in the matter of rent. Therefore, the deemed concession in the matter of rent is ₹ 3,125 [i.e. ₹ 3,500 (licence fees: ₹ 700 x 5) + ₹ 4,625 (Value of furniture) – ₹ 5,000 (₹ 1,000 x 5)]. Once there is a deemed concession, the provisions of Rule 3(1) would be applicable in computing the taxable perquisite.

Value of the rent free unfurnished accommodation (₹ 700 × 5)	= ₹ 3,500
Add: Value of furniture provided by the employer (computed earlier)	= ₹ 4,625
Value of rent free furnished accommodation	= ₹ 8,125
Less: Rent paid by the employee (₹1,000 × 5)	= ₹ 5,000
Perquisite value of furnished accommodation given at concessional rent	= ₹ 3,125

(C) Motor Car [Sub-rule (2) of Rule 3]

If motor car is provided by the employer to the employee, it will be perquisite in the hands of specified employees only. However, the use of any vehicle provided by a company or an employer for journey by the assessee from his residence to his office or other place of work, or from such office or place to his residence shall not be regarded as a benefit given or provided to him free of cost or at concessional rate. [Explanation below section 17(2)(iii)]

But if the motor car is owned by the employee and used by him or members of his family wholly for personal purpose and for which employer reimburses the running and maintenance expenses of the car, it will be perquisite in the hands of all employees.

The value of perquisite by way of use of motor car to an employee by an employer shall be determined in the following manner –

VALUE OF PERQUISITE PER CALENDAR MONTH

Sl. No.	Circumstances	Where cubic capacity of engine does not exceed 1.6 litres	Where cubic capacity of engine exceeds 1.6 litres

Notes:

- (1) Where more than one motor car is provided - Where one or more motor-cars are owned or hired by the employer and the employee or any member of his household are allowed the use of such motor-car or all of any of such motor-cars (otherwise than wholly and exclusively in the performance of his duties), the value of perquisite shall be the amount calculated in respect of one car as if the employee had been provided one motor-car for use partly in the performance of his duties and partly for his private or personal purposes and the amount calculated in respect of the other car or cars as if he had been provided with such car or cars exclusively for his private or personal purposes.

- (2) Documents to be maintained in certain cases - Where the employer or the employee claims that the motor-car is used wholly and exclusively in the performance of official duty or that the actual expenses on the running and maintenance of the motor-car owned by the employee for official purposes is more than the amounts deductible in Sl. No. 2(b) or 3(b) of the above table, he may claim a higher amount attributable to such official use and the value of perquisite in such a case shall be the actual amount of charges met or reimbursed by the employer as reduced by such higher amount attributable to official use of the vehicle provided that the following conditions are fulfilled :-
- (a) the employer has maintained complete details of journey undertaken for official purpose which may include date of journey, destination, mileage, and the amount of expenditure incurred thereon;
  - (b) the employer gives a certificate to the effect that the expenditure was incurred wholly and exclusively for the performance of official duties.
- (3) Meaning of Normal wear and tear of a motor-car - For computing the perquisite value of motor car, the normal wear and tear of a motor-car shall be taken at 10% per annum of the actual cost of the motor-car or cars.

(D) Valuation of benefit of provision of domestic servants [Sub-rule (3) of Rule 3]

If servants are engaged by the employee and employer paid or reimbursed the employee for the wages of such servants, it will be perquisite in the hands of all employees. But if the domestic servants are engaged by the employer and facility of such servants is provided to the employee, it will be perquisite in the hands of specified employees only.

- (i) The value of benefit to the employee or any member of his household resulting from the provision by the employer of the services of a sweeper, a gardener, a watchman or a personal attendant, shall be the actual cost to the employer.
- (ii) The actual cost in such a case shall be the total amount of salary paid or payable by the employer or any other person on his behalf for such services as reduced by any amount paid by the employee for such services.

ILLUSTRATION 20

Mr. X and Mr. Y are working for M/s. Gama Ltd. As per salary fixation norms, the following perquisites were offered:

- (i) For Mr. X, who engaged a domestic servant for ₹ 500 per month, his employer reimbursed the entire salary paid to the domestic servant i.e. ₹ 500 per month.
- (ii) For Mr. Y, he was provided with a domestic servant @ ₹ 500 per month as part of remuneration package.

You are required to comment on the taxability of the above in the hands of Mr. X and Mr. Y, who are not specified employees.

SOLUTION

In the case of Mr. X, it becomes an obligation which the employee would have discharged even if the employer did not reimburse the same. Hence, the perquisite will be covered under section 17(2)(iv) and will be taxable in the hands of Mr. X. This is taxable in the case of all employees.

In the case of Mr. Y, it cannot be considered as an obligation which the employee would meet. The employee might choose not to have a domestic servant. This is taxable only in the case of specified employees covered by section 17(2)(iii). Hence, there is no perquisite element in the hands of Mr. Y.

(E) Valuation of gas, electricity or water supplied by employer [Sub-rule (4) of Rule 3]

If gas, electricity or water connections are taken by the employee and employer paid or reimbursed the employee for such expenses, it will be perquisite in the hands of all employees. But if the gas, electricity or water connections are taken in the name of employer and facility of such supplies are provided to the employee, it will be perquisite in the hands of specified employees only. The value of benefit to the employee resulting from the provision of gas, electricity or water supplied by the employer shall be determined as follow:

Circumstances	Value of benefit
If payment is made to agency supplying of gas, electricity etc.	sum equal to the amount paid on that account by the employer to the agency supplying the gas, electric energy or water
If supply is made from resources owned by the employer	manufacturing cost per unit incurred by the employer

Where the employee is paying any amount in respect of such services, the amount so paid shall be deducted from the value so arrived at.

(F) Valuation of free or concessional educational facilities [Sub-rule (5) of Rule 3]

If school fees of children of employee or any member of employee's household is paid or reimbursed by the employer on employee's behalf, it will be perquisite in the hands of all employees. But if the education facility is provided in the school maintained by the employer or in any school by reason of his being employment at free of cost or at concessional rate, it would be perquisite in the hands of specified employees only. The value of benefit to the employee resulting from the provision of free or concessional educational facility shall be determined as follow:

- (i) The value of benefit to the employee resulting from the provision of free or concessional educational facilities for any member of his household shall be determined as the sum equal to the amount of expenditure incurred by the employer in that behalf or
- (a) If the educational institution is maintained and owned by the employer or
  - (b) If free educational facilities are allowed in any other educational institution by reason of his being in employment of that employer - the value of the perquisite to the employee shall be determined with reference to the cost of such education in a similar institution in or near the locality.

Where any amount is paid or recovered from the employee on that account, the value of benefit shall be reduced by the amount so paid or recovered.

- (ii) However, where the educational institution itself is maintained and owned by the employer and free educational facilities are provided to the children of the employee or where such free educational facilities are provided in any institution by reason of his being in employment of that employer, there would be no perquisite if the cost of such education or the value of such benefit per child does not exceed ₹ 1,000 p.m.

Note: The exemption of ₹ 1,000 p.m. is allowed only in case of education facility provided to the children of the employee not in case of education facility provided to other household members.

(G) Free or concessional tickets [Sub-rule (6) of Rule 3]

The value of any benefit or amenity resulting from the provision by an employer

- who is engaged in the carriage of passengers or goods,
- to any employee or to any member of his household for personal or private journey free of cost or at concessional fare,
- in any conveyance owned, leased or made available by any other arrangement by such employer for the purpose of transport of passengers or goods shall be taken to be the value at which such benefit or amenity is offered by such employer to the public as reduced by the amount, if any, paid by or recovered from the employee for such benefit or amenity.

However, there would be no such perquisite to the employees of an airline or the railways.

(H) Valuation of other fringe benefits and amenities [Sub-rule (7) of Rule 3]

Section 17(2)(viii) provides that the value of any other fringe benefit or amenity as may be prescribed would be included in the definition of perquisite. Accordingly, the following other fringe benefits or amenities are prescribed and the value thereof shall be determined in the manner provided hereunder:-

(i) Interest-free or concessional loan [Sub-rule 7(i) of Rule 3]

- (a) The value of the benefit to the assessee resulting from the provision of interest-free or concessional loan for any purpose made available to

- the employee or
- any member of his household

during the relevant previous year by the employer or any person on his behalf shall be determined as the sum equal to the interest computed at the rate charged per annum by the State Bank of India, as on the 1st day of the relevant previous year in respect of loans for the same purpose advanced by it on the maximum outstanding monthly balance as reduced by the interest, if any, actually paid by him or any such member of his household.

“Maximum outstanding monthly balance” means the aggregate outstanding balance for each loan as on the last day of each month.

- (b) However, no value would be charged if such loans are made available for medical treatment in respect of prescribed diseases (like cancer, tuberculosis, etc.) or where the amount of loans are not exceeding in the aggregate ₹ 20,000.
- (c) Further, where the benefit relates to the loans made available for medical treatment referred to above, the exemption so provided shall not apply to so much of the loan as has been reimbursed to the employee under any medical insurance scheme.

ILLUSTRATION 21

Ranjit has taken an interest-free loan of ₹ 10 lacs from his company. The amount is utilized by him for purchasing a house on 30-06-2018. The house is self-occupied. As per the scheme of the company, loan would be recovered in 40 equal monthly instalments recoverable immediately after the completion of 18th month from the date of purchase. Assuming the SBI lending rate of similar loan on 1.4.2019 was 9.75%. Calculate the perquisite value of such loan in the hands of Ranjit for the assessment year 2020-21. Is it possible to get deduction of perquisite value of interest under section 24(b)? Does it make any difference, if the house is given on rent?

SOLUTION

First instalment will be due on 1st January, 2020. Amount of instalment will be:

$$₹ 10,00,000 \div 40 = ₹ 25,000.$$

Therefore, value for perquisite for interest-free loan will be calculated by applying the interest rate charged by the State Bank of India on the first day of the relevant previous year, on the outstanding amount of loan as reduced by the interest, if any, actually paid by the employee. Therefore, the value of perquisite will be as follows:

From April 19 to Dec. 19	(₹ 10,00,000 x 9.75% x 9/12)	73,125
For the month of Jan. 20	(₹ 9,75,000 x 9.75% x 1/12)	7,922
For the month of Feb. 20	(₹ 9,50,000 x 9.75% x 1/12)	7,719
For the month of Mar. 20	(₹ 9,25,000 x 9.75% x 1/12)	7,516

Therefore, the perquisite value of interest-free loan will be ₹ 96,282.

Interest on capital borrowed for the purchase, construction, re-construction, repair or renewals of house property is deductible under section 24(b). In this case, capital is borrowed from the employer without interest. There is no interest paid or payable in respect of the amount of loan of ₹ 10 lacs. Consequently, no deduction under section 24(b) would be available, whether the house is self-occupied or let out.

(ii) Travelling, touring and accommodation [Sub-rule 7(ii) of Rule 3]

- (a) If Travelling, touring, accommodation etc. expenses are paid or reimbursed by employer -The value of travelling, touring, accommodation and any other expenses paid for or borne or reimbursed by the employer for any holiday availed of by the employee or any member of his household, other than leave travel concession or assistance, shall be determined as the sum equal to the amount of the expenditure incurred by such employer in that behalf.
- (b) If Travelling, touring, accommodation etc. facilities are maintained by employer to particular employees only-Where such facility is maintained by the employer, and is not available uniformly to all employees, the value of benefit shall be taken to be the value at which such facilities are offered by other agencies to the public.
- (c) Expenses on any member of household accompanying such employee on office tour -Where the employee is on official tour and the expenses are incurred in respect of any member of his household accompanying him, the amount of expenditure so incurred shall also be a fringe benefit or amenity.
- (d) If official tour is extended as vacation -However, where any official tour is extended as a vacation, the value of such fringe benefit shall be limited to the expenses incurred in relation to such extended period of stay or vacation. The amount so determined shall be reduced by the amount, if any, paid or recovered from the employee for such benefit or amenity.

(iii) Free or concessional food and non-alcoholic beverages [Sub-rule 7(iii) of Rule 3]

- (a) The value of free food and non-alcoholic beverages provided by the employer to an employee shall be the amount of expenditure incurred by such employer. The amount so determined shall be reduced by the amount, if any, paid or recovered from the employee for such benefit or amenity:

- (b) However, the following would not be treated as a perquisite -
- (1) free food and non-alcoholic beverages provided by such employer during
    - working hours at office or business premises or
    - through paid vouchers which are not transferable and usable only at eating joints,to the extent the value thereof either case does not exceed fifty rupees per meal or
  - (2) tea or snacks provided during working hours or
  - (3) free food and non-alcoholic beverages during working hours provided in a remote area or an off-shore installation.

(iv) Value of gift, voucher or token in lieu of such gift [Sub-rule 7(iv) of Rule 3]

- (a) The value of any gift, or voucher, or token in lieu of which such gift may be received by the employee or by member of his household on ceremonial occasions or otherwise from the employer shall be determined as the sum equal to the amount of such gift:
- (b) However, if the value of such gift, voucher or token, as the case may be, is below ₹ 5,000 in the aggregate during the previous year, the value of perquisite shall be taken as 'Nil'.

(v) Credit card expenses [Sub-rule 7(v) of Rule 3]

- (a) The amount of expenses including membership fees and annual fees incurred by the employee or any member of his household, which is charged to a credit card (including any add-on-card) provided by the employer, or otherwise, paid for or reimbursed by such employer shall be taken to be the value of perquisite chargeable to tax as reduced by the amount, if any paid or recovered from the employee for such benefit or amenity.
- (b) However, such expenses incurred wholly and exclusively for official purposes would not be treated as a perquisite if the following conditions are fulfilled.
  - (1) complete details in respect of such expenditure are maintained by the employer which may, inter alia, include the date of expenditure and the nature of expenditure;
  - (2) the employer gives a certificate for such expenditure to the effect that the same was incurred wholly and exclusively for the performance of official duties.

(vi) Club expenditure [Sub-rule 7(vi) of Rule 3]

- (a) The value of benefit to the employee resulting from the payment or reimbursement by the employer of any expenditure incurred (including the amount of annual or periodical fee) in a club by him or by a member of his household shall be determined to be the actual amount of expenditure incurred or reimbursed by such employer on that account. The amount so determined shall be reduced by the amount, if any, paid or recovered from the employee for such benefit or amenity.

However, where the employer has obtained corporate membership of the club and the facility is enjoyed by the employee or any member of his household, the value of perquisite shall not include the initial fee paid for acquiring such corporate membership.

- (b) Further, if such expenditure is incurred wholly and exclusively for business purposes, it would not be treated as a perquisite provided the following conditions are fulfilled:-
- (1) complete details in respect of such expenditure are maintained by the employer which may, inter alia, include the date of expenditure, the nature of expenditure and its business expediency;
  - (2) the employer gives a certificate for such expenditure to the effect that the same was incurred wholly and exclusively for the performance of official duties.
- (c) There would be no perquisite for use of health club, sports and similar facilities provided uniformly to all employees by the employer.

(vii) Use of moveable assets [Sub-rule 7(vii) of Rule 3]

Value of perquisite is determined as under:

Asset given	Value of benefit
(a) Use of laptops and computers	Nil
(b) Movable assets, other than - (i) laptops and computers; and (ii) assets already specified	10% p.a. of the actual cost of such asset, or the amount of rent or charge paid, or payable by the employer, as the case may be

Note: Where the employee is paying any amount in respect of such asset, the amount so paid shall be deducted from the value of perquisite determined above.

(viii) Transfer of moveable assets [Sub-rule 7(viii) of Rule 3]

Value of perquisite is determined as under:

Assets transferred	Value of perquisite
Computers and electronic items	Depreciated value of asset [depreciation is computed @ 50% on WDV for each completed year of usage]
Motor cars	Depreciated value of asset [depreciation is computed @ 20% on WDV for each completed year of usage]
Any other asset	Depreciated value of asset [depreciation is computed @ 10% on SLM for each completed year of usage]

Note: Where the employee is paying any amount in respect of such asset, the amount so paid shall be deducted from the value of perquisite determined above.

ILLUSTRATION 22

Find out the taxable value of perquisite from the following particulars in case of an employee to whom the following assets held by the company were sold on 13.6.2019:

	Car	Laptop	Furniture
Cost of Purchase (May 2017) (₹)	8,72,000	1,22,500	35,000
Sale Price (₹)	5,15,000	25,000	10,000

The assets were put to use by the company from the day these were purchased.

SOLUTION

The assets transferred by the company shall be considered for the purpose of valuation of perquisites under section 17(2) of the Act read with Rules. The value of perquisite in respect of assets transferred is determined after allowing normal wear & tear for the period of use of such assets by employer.

	Car	Laptop	Furniture
Rate of Depreciation	20%	50%	10%
Basis of Depreciation	WDV	WDV	SLM
Cost of asset to company – May 2017	8,72,000	1,22,500	35,000
Less: Normal wear & tear upto May, 2018	1,74,400	61,250	3,500
	6,97,600	61,250	31,500
Less: Normal wear and tear upto May, 2019	1,39,520	30,625	3,500
Balance, in May, 2019	5,58,080	30,625	28,000
Less: Sale value on 13.06.2019	5,15,000	25,000	10,000
Value of Perquisite	43,080	5,625	18,000

Note: As per Rule 3(7) of Income-tax Rules, 1962 normal wear and tear has to be calculated at the aforementioned prescribed rates applying Straight Line Method (SLM) to Furniture and Written Down Value (WDV) method to Laptop and Car.

(ix) Other benefit or amenity [Sub-rule 7(ix) of Rule 3]

The value of any other benefit or amenity, service, right or privilege provided by the employer shall be determined on the basis of cost to the employer under an arms' length transaction as reduced by the employee's contribution, if any.

However, there will be no taxable perquisite in respect of expenses on telephones including mobile phone actually incurred on behalf of the employee by the employer i.e., if an employer pays or reimburses telephone bills or mobile phone charges of employee, there will be no taxable perquisite.

(I) Valuation of specified security or sweat equity share for the purpose of section 17(2)(vi) [Sub-rule (8) of Rule 3]

The fair market value of any specified security or sweat equity share, being an equity share in a company, on the date on which the option is exercised by the employee, shall be determined in the following manner -

- (i) If shares are listed on recognized stock exchange - In a case where, on the date of the exercising of the option, the share in the company is listed on a recognized stock exchange, the fair market value shall be the average of the opening price and closing price of the share on that date on the said stock exchange.

If shares are listed on more than one recognized stock exchange - However, where, on the date of exercising of the option, the share is listed on more than one recognized stock exchanges, the fair market value shall be the average of opening price and closing price of the share on the recognised stock exchange which records the highest volume of trading in the share.

If no trading in share on recognized stock exchange -Further, where on the date of exercising of the option, there is no trading in the share on any recognized stock exchange, the fair market value shall be—

- (a) the closing price of the share on any recognised stock exchange on a date closest to the date of exercising of the option and immediately preceding such date; or
- (b) the closing price of the share on a recognised stock exchange, which records the highest volume of trading in such share, if the closing price, as on the date closest to the date of exercising of the option and immediately preceding such date, is recorded on more than one recognized stock exchange.

“Closing price” of a share on a recognised stock exchange on a date shall be the price of the last settlement on such date on such stock exchange.

However, where the stock exchange quotes both “buy” and “sell” prices, the closing price shall be the “sell” price of the last settlement.

“Opening price” of a share on a recognised stock exchange on a date shall be the price of the first settlement on such date on such stock exchange.

However, where the stock exchange quotes both “buy” and “sell” prices, the opening price shall be the “sell” price of the first settlement.

- (ii) If shares are not listed on recognized stock exchange - In a case where, on the date of exercising of the option, the share in the company is not listed on a recognised stock exchange, the fair market value shall be such value of the share in the company as determined by a merchant banker on the specified date.

For this purpose, “specified date” means, —

- (a) the date of exercising of the option; or
- (b) any date earlier than the date of the exercising of the option, not being a date which is more than 180 days earlier than the date of the exercising.

Note: Where any amount has been recovered from the employee, the same shall be deducted to arrive at the value of perquisites.

(J) Valuation of specified security not being an equity share in a company for the purpose of section 17(2)(vi) [Sub-rule (9) of Rule 3]

The fair market value of any specified security, not being an equity share in a company, on the date on which the option is exercised by the employee, shall be such value as determined by a merchant banker on the specified date.

For this purpose, “specified date” means,—

- (i) the date of exercising of the option; or
- (ii) any date earlier than the date of the exercising of the option, not being a date which is more than 180 days earlier than the date of the exercising.

X Ltd. provided the following perquisites to its employee Mr. Y for the P.Y.2019-20 –

- (1) Accommodation taken on lease by X Ltd. for ₹ 15,000 p.m. ₹ 5,000 p.m. is recovered from the salary of Mr. Y.
- (2) Furniture, for which the hire charges paid by X Ltd. is ₹ 3,000 p.m. No amount is recovered from the employee in respect of the same.
- (3) A Santro Car which is owned by X Ltd. and given to Mr. Y to be used both for official and personal purposes. All running and maintenance expenses are fully met by the employer. He is also provided with a chauffeur.
- (4) A gift voucher of ₹ 10,000 on his birthday.

Compute the value of perquisites chargeable to tax for the A.Y.2020-21, assuming his salary for perquisite valuation to be ₹ 10 lakh.

SOLUTION

Computation of the value of perquisites chargeable to tax in the hands of Mr. Y for the A.Y.2020-21

Particulars		Amount in ₹
(1)	Value of concessional accommodation
	Actual amount of lease rental paid by X Ltd.	1,80,000
	15% of salary i.e., 15% of ₹ 10,00,000	1,50,000
	Lower of the above		1,50,000

	Less: Rent paid by Mr. Y ( $\text{₹ } 5,000 \times 12$ )	60,000
		90,000
	Add: Hire charges paid by X Ltd. for furniture provided for the use of Mr. Y ( $\text{₹ } 3,000 \times 12$ )	36,000	1,26,000
(2)	Perquisite value of santro car owned by X Ltd. and provided to Mr. Y for his personal and official use [ $(\text{₹ } 1,800 + \text{₹ } 900) \times 12$ ]		32,400
(3)	Value of gift voucher*		10,000
	Value of perquisites chargeable to tax		1,68,400
* An alternate view possible is that only the sum in excess of ₹ 5,000 is taxable. In such a case, the value of perquisite would be ₹ 5,000

4.4 DEDUCTIONS FROM SALARY

The income chargeable under the head 'Salaries' is computed after making the following deductions:

- (1) Standard deduction [Section 16(i)]
- (2) Entertainment allowance [Section 16(ii)]
- (3) Professional tax [Section 16(iii)]

(1) Standard deduction

A standard deduction of  $\text{₹ } 50,000$  or the amount of salary, whichever is lower, is to be provided to the employees

(2) Entertainment allowance

Entertainment allowance received is fully taxable and is first to be included in the salary and thereafter the following deduction is to be made:

However, deduction in respect of entertainment allowance is available in case of Government employees. The amount of deduction will be lower of:

- (i) One-fifth of his basic salary or
- (ii) ₹ 5,000 or
- (iii) Entertainment allowance received.

Amount actually spent by the employee towards entertainment out of the entertainment allowance received by him is not a relevant consideration at all.

(3) Professional tax on employment

Professional tax or taxes on employment levied by a State under Article 276 of the Constitution is allowed as deduction only when it is actually paid by the employee during the previous year. The total amount by way of professional tax payable in respect of any one person shall not exceed ₹ 2,500 per annum.

If professional tax is reimbursed or directly paid by the employer on behalf of the employee, the amount so paid is first included as salary income and then allowed as a deduction u/s 16.

4.5 RELIEF UNDER SECTION 89

- (1) On account of arrears of salary or advance salary: Where by reason of any portion of an assessee's salary being paid in arrears or in advance or by reason of his having received in any one financial year, salary for more than twelve months or a payment of profit in lieu of salary under section 17(3), his income is assessed at a rate higher than that at which it would otherwise have been assessed, the Assessing Officer shall, on an application made to him in this behalf, grant such relief as prescribed. The procedure for computing the relief is given in Rule 21A.
- (2) On account of family pension: Similar tax relief is extended to assesseees who receive arrears of family pension as defined in the Explanation to clause (iia) of section 57.

“Family pension” means a regular monthly amount payable by the employer to a person belonging to the family of an employee in the event of his death.
- (3) No relief at the time of Voluntary retirement or termination of service: No relief shall be granted in respect of any amount received or receivable by an assessee on his voluntary retirement or termination of his service, in accordance with any scheme or schemes of voluntary retirement or a scheme of voluntary separation (in the case of a public sector company), if exemption under section 10(10C) in respect of such compensation received on voluntary retirement or termination of his service or voluntary separation has been claimed by the assessee in respect of the same assessment year or any other assessment year.

4.6 SALARY FROM UNITED NATIONS ORGANISATION

Section 2 of the United Nations (Privileges and Immunities) Act, 1947 grants exemption from income-tax to salaries and emoluments paid by the United Nations to its officials. Besides salary, any pension covered under the United Nations (Privileges and Immunities) Act and received from UNO is also exempt from tax.

Examine the correctness or otherwise of the following case in the context of provisions contained in the Income-tax Act, 1961 relevant/applicable for the assessment year 2020-21:

- (i) Nargis, working as Regional Area Sales Manager of Pincer Marketing Ltd., was paid salary and a commission based as a percentage on the volume of sales effected by her. Nargis claimed the expenses incurred by her for earning the commission in the return of income, which were disallowed by the Assessing Officer.
- (ii) An amount of ₹ 12,50,000 paid by XYZ Ltd., after approval by the board, to a hospital in UK for the heart surgery of its managing director was charged under medical expenses. The Assessing Officer, while completing the assessment of the company, taxed the amount so paid by the company as a perquisite in the hands of its Managing Director.

Answer

- (i) The facts of this case are similar to the case decided by the Madras High Court in CIT v. R. Rajendran (2003) 260 ITR 0476, where it was held that since the assessee was employed as a regional sales manager and the commission paid to him is based on the volume of sales effected, such commission was obviously paid to the employee as an encouragement to effect a higher level of sales. The commission paid in addition to what the employee was getting as a fixed salary would also constitute/ form part of salary. When the commission is chargeable as salary, then, no deduction is allowable in respect of any expenditure incurred to earn the commission.

Therefore, in this case, the claim made by Nargis is not valid and the expenses incurred for earning commission are not allowable as deduction while computing her salary income.

- (ii) A Managing Director generally occupies the dual capacity of being a director as well as an employee of the company. In this case, assuming that the Managing Director is also an employee of XYZ Ltd., clause (vi) of the proviso to section 17(2) would get attracted. Clause (vi) of the proviso to section 17(2) provides that any expenditure incurred by the employer on medical treatment of the employee outside India shall be excluded from perquisite only to the extent permitted by RBI. Therefore, the expenditure on medical treatment of the Managing Director outside India shall be excluded from perquisite to the extent permitted by RBI as per clause (vi) of the proviso to section 17(2). If it is assumed that the entire amount is permitted by RBI, there would be no perquisite chargeable in the hands of the Managing Director. Therefore, in such a case, the action of the Assessing Officer in taxing the entire amount paid by the company as a perquisite in the hands of the Managing Director is incorrect.

This question can also be answered by applying the rationale of the Allahabad High Court ruling in CIT v. D.P. Kanodia (2008) 296 ITR 0616. In that case, the High Court observed that the reimbursement by the company of medical expenditure incurred outside India by the director cannot be considered as an amenity or benefit provided by the company to its director, and therefore the provisions of section 17(2)(iii)(a) would not be attracted. Therefore, such reimbursement was not a perquisite within the meaning of section 17(2)(iii)(a).

Hence, applying the rationale of the above case to the facts of this case, the action of the Assessing Officer in taxing the amount paid by the company as a perquisite in the hands of the Managing Director is incorrect.

Question 2

Mr. X is a Member of Legislative Assembly. He underwent an open heart surgery abroad in respect of which he received ₹ 5 Lacs from the State Government towards reimbursement of his medical expenses. The Assessing Officer contended that such amount is taxable as a perquisite under section 17. Examine the correctness of the contention of the Assessing Officer.

Answer

The facts of this case are similar to the facts in CIT v. Shiv Charan Mathur (2008) 306 ITR 126 (Raj.). In the instant case, the High Court observed that MPs and MLAs do not fall within the meaning of “employees”. They are elected by the public, their election constituencies and it is consequent upon such election that they acquire constitutional position and are in charge of constitutional functions and obligations. The remuneration received by them, after swearing in, cannot be said to be salary within the meaning of section 15, since the basic ingredient of employer-employee relationship is missing in such cases.

Therefore, the remuneration received by MPs and MLAs is taxable under the head “Income from Other Sources” and not under the head “Salaries”. When the provisions of section 15 are not attracted to the remuneration received by MPs and MLAs, the provisions of section 17 also would not apply as section 17 only extends the definition of salary by providing that certain items mentioned therein would be included in salary as “perquisites”. Thus, reimbursement of medical expenditure (incurred for open heart surgery abroad) to an MLA cannot be taxed as a perquisite under section 17.

Applying the above ruling to the case on hand, the contention of the Assessing Officer is not correct.

Question 3

Mr. Kadam is entitled to a salary of ₹ 40,000 per month. He is given an option by his employer either to take house rent allowance or a rent free accommodation which is owned by the company. The HRA amount payable was ₹ 7,000 per month. The rent for the hired accommodation was ₹ 6,000 per month at New Delhi. Advice Mr. Kadam whether it would be beneficial for him to avail

HRA or Rent Free Accommodation. Give your advice on the basis of "Net Take Home Cash benefits".

Answer

Computation of tax liability of Kadam under both the options

Particulars	Option I – HRA (₹)	Option II – RFA (₹)
Basic Salary (₹ 40,000 x 12 Months)	4,80,000	4,80,000
Perquisite value of rent-free accommodation (15% of ₹ 4,80,000)	N.A.	72,000
House rent Allowance (₹ 7,000 x 12 Months) ₹ 84,000
Less: Exempt u/s 10(13A) – least of the following -
- 50% of Basic Salary ₹ 2,40,000
- Actual HRA received ₹ 84,000
- Rent less 10% of salary ₹ 24,000
	60,000
Gross Salary	5,40,000	5,52,000
Less: Standard deduction u/s 16(ia)	50,000	50,000
Net Salary	4,90,000	5,02,000
Less: Deduction under Chapter VI-A	-	-
Total Income	4,90,000	5,02,000
Tax on total income	12,000	12,900
Less: Rebate under section 87A - Lower of ₹ 12,500 or income-tax of ₹ 12,000, since total income does not exceed ₹ 5,00,000	12,000	Nil
	Nil	12,900
Add: Health and Education cess@4%	Nil	516
Total tax payable	Nil	13,416
Tax Payable (Rounded off)	Nil	13,420

Cash Flow Statement

Particulars	Option I – HRA	Option II – RFA
Inflow: Salary	5,64,000	4,80,000
Less: Outflow: Rent paid	(72,000)	-
Tax on total income	Nil	(13,420)
Net Inflow	4,92,000	4,66,580

Since the net cash inflow under option I (HRA) is higher than in Option II (RFA), it is beneficial for Mr. Kadam to avail Option I, i.e., House Rent Allowance.

Question 4

Mr. M is working with MNO Limited for the last 10 years. He was granted an option on 1.7.2017 by the company to purchase 800 equity shares at a price of ₹ 250 per share. The period during which the option can be exercised to purchase 800 shares at a pre-determined price of ₹ 250 per share commencing on 1.7.2017 and ending on 31.3.2019. Mr. M exercised the option on 15.3.2019 to purchase 500 shares. Fair market value on the said date was ₹ 6490 on the Bombay Stock Exchange and ₹ 6500 on the National Stock Exchange. The NSE has recorded the higher volume of trading in that share.

The company has allotted him 500 shares on 24th April, 2019. The fair market value on the date of allotment was ₹ 7100 per share on NSE and ₹ 7110 on the BSE that has recorded the higher volume of trading in that share. The option was granted for making available rights in the nature of intellectual property rights.

Determine the taxability of perquisite. Does it make any difference if the option was granted for providing technical know-how?

Answer

The perquisite of sweat equity shares shall be taxable in the previous year 2019-20 (assessment year 2020-21), being the previous year of allotment of such shares. The value of sweat equity shares shall be the fair market value of such shares on the date on which the option is exercised by the assessee, as reduced by any amount actually paid by, or recovered from, the assessee in respect of such shares.

As per Rule 3(8) of the Income-tax Rules, 1962, the fair market value of a share on the date of exercising the option shall be the price of the share on the recognized stock exchange which records the highest volume of trading in such shares, in case the shares are listed on more than one recognised stock exchange.

Hence, the value of taxable perquisite for sweat equity shares

$$\begin{aligned}
 &= \text{FMV on the date of exercising the option on the NSE (-) Amount recovered from the} \\ &\quad \text{(since it recorded higher volume than BSE) employee} \\
 &= (500 \times ₹ 6500) - (500 \times ₹ 250) \\
 &= ₹ 32,50,000 - ₹ 1,25,000 = ₹ 31,25,000
 \end{aligned}$$

As per section 17(2)(vi), "sweat equity shares" means equity shares issued by a company to its employees or directors at a discount or for consideration other than cash for providing technical knowhow or making available rights in the nature of intellectual property rights or value additions, by whatever name called.

Therefore, this provision is equally applicable whether the sweat equity shares option was granted for making available rights in the nature of intellectual property rights or for providing technical know-how.

Question 5

Ajay is employed as senior executive of Manu Ltd. Manu Ltd offers rights to its existing shareholders in the ratio 1:1 on 15th February 2020 at ₹ 150 per share. Ajay was offered 500 shares at ₹ 150, which he exercised. On these facts, you are consulted by Ajay as to:

- The tax consequences for the assessment year 2020-21 assuming that fair market value on the date of exercise of option is ₹ 300.
- If Ajay is already a shareholder of 250 shares, allotted in public issue will it make any difference?

Answer

- As per section 17(2)(vi), the value of any specified security or sweat equity shares allotted or transferred, directly or indirectly, by the employer, or former employer, free of cost or at concessional rate to the assessee employee is taxable as perquisite. The meaning of the terms 'specified security', 'sweat equity shares', 'fair market value' are dealt with in the Explanation given therein.

The fair market value of the shares so determined in accordance with the method as may be prescribed less the amount actually recovered from the employee, shall be the value of perquisite chargeable to tax.

The value of perquisite would be:

Fair market value of shares determined as per the prescribed method in Income-tax Rules, 1962 = 500 shares @ ₹ 300 each	1,50,000
Less: Amount recovered from the employee @ ₹ 150 per share	75,000
Value of perquisite chargeable to tax	75,000

As per section 49(2AA), the cost of acquisition of specified security or sweat equity shares referred to in section 17(2)(vi) shall be the fair market value which has been taken into account for the purpose of perquisite valuation.

- In case the employee is a shareholder and was allotted shares in the same manner as was allotted to other shareholders by the company without any concession/ reduction in value then the question of valuation of perquisite would not arise.

1. Can notional interest on security deposit given to the landlord in respect of residential premises taken on rent by the employer and provided to the employee, be included in the perquisite value of rent-free accommodation given to the employee?

CIT v. Shankar Krishnan (2012) 349 ITR 0685 (Bom.)

Facts of the case: The assessee, a salaried employee, was provided with rent-free accommodation, being a flat in Mumbai, by his employer company. The monthly rent paid by the employer in respect of the said flat was ₹ 10,000 per month. The employer had given an interest-free refundable security deposit of ₹ 30 lacs to the landlord for renting out the said premises. The assessee-employee computed the perquisite value on the basis of rent of ₹ 10,000 paid by his employer to the landlord, since the same was lower than 10% (now, 15%) of salary.

Assessing Officer's contention: The Assessing Officer, however, contended that since the employer had given interest-free deposit of ₹ 30,00,000 to the landlord, interest @12% on the said deposit is required to be taken into consideration for estimating the fair rental value of the flat given to the assessee and accordingly, he enhanced the perquisite value of the residential accommodation provided to the employee by such notional interest. The Commissioner (Appeals) upheld the decision of the Assessing Officer.

Tribunal's Observations: The Tribunal observed that, as per Rule 3 of the Income-tax Rules, 1962, the perquisite value of the residential accommodation provided by the employer shall be the actual amount of lease rent paid or payable by the employer or 10% (now, 15%) of salary, whichever is lower, as reduced by the rent, if any, actually paid by the employee. The Tribunal, therefore, held that there is no concept of determination of the fair rental value for the purpose of ascertaining the perquisite value of the rent-free accommodation provided to the employees.

High Court's Decision: On appeal by the Revenue, the Bombay High Court held that the Assessing Officer is not right in adding the notional interest on the security deposit given by the employer to the landlord in valuing the perquisite of rent-free accommodation, since the perquisite value has to be computed as per Rule 3 and Rule 3 does not require addition of such notional interest. Thus, the perquisite value of the residential accommodation provided by the employer would be the actual amount of lease rental paid or payable by the employer, since the same was lower than 10% (now 15%) of salary.

2. Can the limit of ₹ 1,000 per month per child be allowed as standard deduction, while computing the perquisite value of free or concessional education facility provided to the employee by the employer?

CIT (TDS) v. Director, Delhi Public School (2011) 202 Taxman 318 (Punj. & Har.)

As per the provisions of Rule 3(5) of the Income-tax Rules, 1962, in case an educational institution is maintained and owned by the employer and free or concessional education facility is provided to the employees' household in such institution, then, the cost of education in a similar institution in or near the locality shall be taken to be the value of perquisite in the hands of the employee. In case the cost of such education or the value of benefit does not exceed ₹ 1,000 per month per child, the perquisite value shall be taken to be Nil.

Assessee's contention: In the present case, the cost of education was more than ₹ 1,000 per month per child, therefore, while determining the perquisite value on the above basis, the assessee claimed a deduction of ₹ 1,000 per month per child.

High Court's Decision: The Punjab and Haryana High Court, in the above case, held that on a plain reading of Rule 3(5), it flows that, in case the value of perquisite for free/concessional educational facility arising to an employee exceeds ₹ 1,000 per month per child, the whole perquisite shall be taxable in the hands of the employee and no standard deduction of ₹ 1,000 per month per child can be provided from the same. It is only in case the perquisite value is less than ₹ 1,000 per month per child, the perquisite value shall be nil. Therefore, ₹ 1,000 per month per child is not a standard deduction to be provided while calculating such a perquisite.

INCOME FROM HOUSE PROPERTY

LEARNING OUTCOMES

After studying this chapter, you would be able to -

- ❑ examine the circumstances for ascertaining whether income derived from a property would be chargeable to tax under the head “Income from house property” or “Profits and gains from business or profession”;
- ❑ compute the income chargeable to tax under the head “Income from house property” in respect of self-occupied property/properties, let-out property, partly let-out and partly self-occupied property, property let out for part of the year and self-occupied for part of the year, deemed to be let-out property after allowing permissible deductions under section 24;
- ❑ identify the cases where a person, though not the legal owner, would be deemed as owner of house property;
- ❑ examine the tax treatment of income from co-owned property;
- ❑ examine the tax treatment for arrears of rent and unrealized rent received subsequently.

5.1 CHARGEABILITY [SECTION 22]

- (1) The process of computation of income under the head “Income from house property” starts with the determination of annual value of the property. The concept of annual value and the method of determination is laid down in section 23.
- (2) The annual value of any property comprising of buildings or lands appurtenant thereto of which the assessee is the owner is chargeable to tax under the head “Income from house property”.

Exceptions: Annual value of the following properties are chargeable under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” -

- (i) Portions of property occupied by the assessee for the purpose of any business or profession carried on by him.
- (ii) Properties of an assessee engaged in the business of letting out of properties.

5.2 CONDITIONS FOR CHARGEABILITY

- (1) Property should consist of any building or land appurtenant thereto.
  - (i) Buildings include not only residential buildings, but also factory buildings, offices, shops, godowns and other commercial premises.
  - (ii) Land appurtenant means land connected with the building like garden, garage etc.

It may be noted that Income from letting out of vacant land is, however, taxable under the head “Income from other sources” or “Profits and gains from business or profession”, as the case may be.

- (2) Assessee must be the owner of the property
  - (i) Owner is the person who is entitled to receive income from the property in his own right.
  - (ii) The requirement of registration of the sale deed is not warranted.
  - (iii) Ownership includes both free-hold and lease-hold rights.
  - (iv) Ownership includes deemed ownership (discussed later in para 5.11)
  - (v) The person who owns the building need not also be the owner of the land upon which it stands.
  - (vi) The assessee must be the owner of the house property during the previous year. It is not material whether he is the owner in the assessment year.

- (vii) If the title of the ownership of the property is under dispute in a court of law, the decision as to who will be the owner chargeable to income-tax under section 22 will be of the Income-tax Department till the court gives its decision to the suit filed in respect of such property.

However, in case of recovery of unrealized rent and arrears of rent, ownership of that property is not relevant. (discussed later in para 5.9)

(3) Use of property

The property may be used for any purpose, but it should not be used by the owner for the purpose of any business or profession carried on by him, the profit of which is chargeable to tax.

The income earned by an assessee engaged in the business of letting out of properties on rent would also be taxable as business income and not as income from house property [Rayala Corporation (P) Ltd. v. Asstt. CIT (SC) (2016) 386 ITR 500].

(4) Property held as stock-in-trade etc.

Annual value of house property will be charged under the head “Income from house property”, where it is held by the assessee as stock-in-trade of a business also.

However, the annual value of property being held as stock in trade would be treated as NIL for a period of two years from the end of the financial year in which certificate of completion of construction of the property is obtained from the competent authority, if such property is not let-out during such period [Section 23(5)].

5.3 COMPOSITE RENT

- (1) Meaning of composite rent: The owner of a property may sometimes receive rent in respect of building as well as –

- (i) other assets like say, furniture, plant and machinery.
- (ii) for different services provided in the building, for e.g. –
  - (a) Lifts;
  - (b) Security;
  - (c) Power backup;

The amount so received is known as “composite rent”.

(2) Tax treatment of composite rent

Where composite rent includes rent of building and charges for different services (lifts, security etc.), the composite rent is has to be split up in the following manner -

- (i) the sum attributable to use of property is to be assessed under section 22 as income from house property;
- (ii) the sum attributable to use of services is to be charged to tax under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” or under the head “Income from other sources”, as the case may be.

(3) Manner of splitting up*If let out building and other assets are inseparable

Where composite rent is received from letting out of building and other assets (like furniture) and the two lettings are not separable i.e. the other party does not accept letting out of buildings without other assets, then the rent is taxable either as business income or income from other sources, the case may be.

This is applicable even if sum receivable for the two lettings is fixed separately.

If let out building and other assets are separable

Where composite rent is received from letting out of buildings and other assets and the two lettings are separable i.e. letting out of one is acceptable to the other party without letting out of the other, then

- (a) income from letting out of building is taxable under “Income from house property”;
- (b) Income from letting out of other assets is taxable under the head “Profits and gains from business or profession” or “Income from other sources”, as the case may be.

This is applicable even if a composite rent is received by the assessee from his tenant for the two lettings.

5.4 INCOME FROM HOUSE PROPERTY SITUATED OUTSIDE INDIA

- (1) In case of a resident in India (resident and ordinarily resident in case of individuals and HUF), income from property situated outside India is taxable, whether such income is brought into India or not.
- (2) In case of a non-resident or resident but not ordinarily resident in India, income from a property situated outside India is taxable only if it is received in India.

5.5 DETERMINATION OF ANNUAL VALUE [SECTION 23]

(1) Determination of annual value for different types of house properties

(i) Where the property is let out throughout the previous year [Section 23(1)(a)/(b)]

Where the property is let out for the whole year, then the GAV would be the higher of –

- (a) Expected Rent (ER) and
- (b) Actual rent received or receivable during the year

- ◆ The Expected Rent (ER) is the higher of fair rent (FR) and municipal value (MV), but restricted to standard rent (SR).
For example, let us say the higher of FR and MV is X. Then ER = SR, if X > SR. However, if X < SR, ER = X.
- ◆ Expected Rent (ER) as per section 23(1)(a) cannot exceed standard rent (SR) but it can be lower than standard rent, in a case where standard rent is more than the higher of MV and FR.
- ◆ Municipal value is the value determined by the municipal authorities for levying municipal taxes on house property.
- ◆ Fair rent means rent which similar property in the same locality would fetch.
- ◆ The standard rent (SR) is fixed by the Rent Control Act.

From the GAV computed above, municipal taxes paid by the owner during the previous year is to be deducted to arrive at the NAV.

ILLUSTRATION 1

Jayashree owns five houses in Chennai, all of which are let-out. Compute the GAV of each house from the information given below –

Particulars	House I (₹)	House II (₹)	House III (₹)	House IV (₹)	House V (₹)
Municipal Value	80,000	55,000	65,000	24,000	80,000
Fair Rent	90,000	60,000	65,000	25,000	75,000

Standard Rent	N.A.	75,000	58,000	N.A.	78,000
Actual rent received/ receivable	72,000	72,000	60,000	30,000	72,000

SOLUTION

As per section 23(1), Gross Annual Value (GAV) is the higher of Expected rent and actual rent received. Expected rent is higher of municipal value and fair rent but restricted to standard rent.

Computation of GAV of each house owned by Jayashree

	Particulars	House I (₹)	House II (₹)	House III (₹)	House IV (₹)	House V (₹)
(i)	Municipal value	80,000	55,000	65,000	24,000	80,000
(ii)	Fair rent	90,000	60,000	65,000	25,000	75,000
(iii)	Higher of (i) &amp; (ii)	90,000	60,000	65,000	25,000	80,000
(iv)	Standard rent	N.A.	75,000	58,000	N.A.	78,000
(v)	Expected rent [Lower of (iii) &amp; (iv)]	90,000	60,000	58,000	25,000	78,000
(vi)	Actual rent received/ receivable	72,000	72,000	60,000	30,000	72,000
	GAV [Higher of (v) &amp; (vi)]	90,000	72,000	60,000	30,000	78,000

(ii) Where let out property is vacant for part of the year [Section 23(1)(c)]

Where let out property is vacant for part of the year and owing to vacancy, the actual rent is lower than the ER, then the actual rent received or receivable will be the GAV of the property.

(iii) In case of self-occupied property or unoccupied property [Section 23(2)]

- (a) Where the property is self-occupied for own residence or unoccupied throughout the previous year, its Annual Value will be Nil, provided no other benefit is derived by the owner from such property.

The expression “Unoccupied property” refers to a property which cannot be occupied by the owner by reason of his employment, business or profession at a different place and he resides at such other place in a building not belonging to him.

- (b) The benefit of “Nil” Annual Value is available only for upto two self-occupied or unoccupied house properties i.e. for either one house property or two house properties owned by the assessee.

- (c) The benefit of “Nil” Annual Value in respect of upto two self-occupied house properties is available only to an individual/ HUF.
  - (d) No deduction for municipal taxes is allowed in respect of such property.
- (iv) Where a house property is let-out for part of the year and self-occupied for part of the year [Section 23(3)]
- (a) If a single unit of a property is self-occupied for part of the year and let-out for the remaining part of the year, then the ER for the whole year shall be taken into account for determining the GAV.
  - (b) The ER for the whole year shall be compared with the actual rent for the let out period and whichever is higher shall be adopted as the GAV.
  - (c) However, municipal tax for the whole year is allowed as deduction provided it is paid by the owner during the previous year.
- (v) In case of deemed to be let out property [Section 23(4)]
- (a) Where the assessee owns more than two properties for self-occupation, then, the income from any two such properties, at the option of the assessee, shall be computed under the self-occupied property category and their annual value will be nil.
  - (b) The other self-occupied/ unoccupied property/properties shall be treated as “deemed let out property/properties”.
  - (c) This option can be changed year after year in a manner beneficial to the assessee.
  - (d) In case of deemed let-out property, the ER shall be taken as the GAV.
  - (e) The question of considering actual rent received/ receivable does not arise. Consequently, no adjustment is necessary on account of property remaining vacant or unrealized rent.
  - (f) Municipal taxes actually paid by the owner during the previous year, in respect of the deemed let out properties, can be claimed as deduction.
- (vi) In case of a house property held as stock-in-trade [Section 23(5)]
- (a) In some cases, property consisting of any building or land appurtenant thereto may be held as stock-in-trade, and the whole or any part of the property may not be let out during the whole or any part of the previous year.
  - (b) In such cases, the annual value of such property or part of the property shall be NIL.
  - (c) This benefit would be available for the period upto two years from the end of the financial year in which certificate of completion of construction of the property is obtained from the competent authority.

(vii) In case of a house property, a portion let out and a portion self-occupied

- (a) Income from any portion or part of a property which is let out shall be computed separately under the “let out property” category and the other portion or part which is self-occupied shall be computed under the “self-occupied property” category.
- (b) There is no need to treat the whole property as a single unit for computation of income from house property.
- (c) Municipal valuation/ fair rent/ standard rent, if not given separately, shall be apportioned between the let-out portion and self-occupied portion either on plinth area or built-up floor space or on such other reasonable basis.
- (d) Property taxes, if given on a consolidated basis can be bifurcated as attributable to each portion or floor or on a reasonable basis.

Notional income instead of real income

Thus, under this head of income, there are circumstances where notional income is charged to tax instead of real income. For example –

- ◆ Where the assessee owns more than two house properties for the purpose of self-occupation, the annual value of any two of those properties, at the option of the assessee, will be nil and the other property(s) would be deemed to be let-out and income therefrom has to be computed on a notional basis by taking the Expected Rent (ER) as the GAV.
- ◆ In the case of let-out property throughout the previous year, if the Expected Rent (ER) exceeds the actual rent received or receivable, then ER is taken as the GAV.
- ◆ In the case of let-out property which is vacant for part of the year, if the actual rent received or receivable for let out period is less than the Expected Rent (ER) for whole year not owing to vacancy, then ER for whole year is taken as the GAV.
- ◆ In case of a house property held as stock-in-trade by assessee (which is not let out), income has to be computed on a notional basis by taking the Expected Rent (ER) as the GAV after 2 years from the end of the financial year in which certificate of completion of construction of the property is obtained from the competent authority.

- (i) The Actual rent received/receivable should not include any amount of rent which is not capable of being realised.
- (ii) However the conditions prescribed in Rule 4 should be satisfied. They are –
  - (a) the tenancy is bona fide;
  - (b) the defaulting tenant has vacated, or steps have been taken to compel him to vacate the property;
  - (c) the defaulting tenant is not in occupation of any other property of the assessee;

- (d) the assessee has taken all reasonable steps to institute legal proceedings for the recovery of the unpaid rent or satisfies the Assessing Officer that legal proceedings would be useless.

(3) Property taxes (Municipal taxes)

- (i) Property taxes are allowable as deduction from the GAV subject to the following two conditions:
- It should be borne by the assessee (owner); and
  - It should be actually paid during the previous year.
- (ii) If property taxes levied by a local authority for a particular previous year is not paid during that year, no deduction shall be allowed in the computation of income from house property for that year.
- (iii) However, if in any subsequent year, the arrears are paid, then, the amount so paid is allowed as deduction in computation of income from house property for that year.
- (iv) Thus, we find that irrespective of the previous year in which the liability to pay such taxes arise according to the method of accounting regularly employed by the owner, the deduction in respect of such taxes will be allowed only in the year of actual payment.
- (v) In case of property situated outside India, taxes levied by local authority of the country in which the property is situated is deductible [CIT v. R. Venugopala Reddiar (1965) 58 ITR 439 (Mad)].
- (vi) In respect of self-occupied/unoccupied house property/properties for which “Nil” Annual Value is claimed, deduction of municipal taxes paid is not allowable.

ILLUSTRATION 2

Rajesh, a British national, is a resident and ordinarily resident in India during the P.Y. 2019-20. He owns a house in London, which he has let out at £ 10,000 p.m. The municipal taxes paid to the Municipal Corporation of London is £ 8,000 during the P.Y. 2019-20. The value of one £ in Indian rupee to be taken at ₹ 92.50. Compute Rajesh's Net Annual Value of the property for the A.Y. 2020-21.

SOLUTION

For the P.Y.2019-20, Mr. Rajesh, a British national, is resident and ordinarily resident in India. Therefore, income received by him by way of rent of the house property located in London is to be included in the total income in India. Municipal taxes paid in London is to be allowed as deduction from the gross annual value.

Computation of Net Annual Value of the property of Mr. Rajesh for A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	₹
Gross Annual Value (₹ 10,000 × 12 × ₹ 92.50)	1,11,00,000

Less: Municipal taxes paid ( $₹ 8,000 \times ₹ 92.50$ )	7,40,000

5.6 DEDUCTIONS FROM ANNUAL VALUE [SECTION 24]

(1) There are two deductions from annual value. They are –

- (i) 30% of NAV; and
- (ii) Interest on borrowed capital
- (i) 30% of NAV is allowed as deduction under section 24(a)
  - (a) This is a flat deduction and is allowed irrespective of the actual expenditure incurred.
  - (b) The assessee will not be entitled to deduction of 30%, in the following cases, as the annual value itself is Nil.
    - (i) In case of self-occupied property; or
    - (ii) In case of property held as stock-in-trade and the whole or any part of the property is not let out during the whole or any part of the previous year, upto 2 years from the end of the financial year in which certificate of completion of construction of the property is obtained from the competent authority.
- (ii) Interest on borrowed capital is allowed as deduction under section 24(b)

Interest payable on loans borrowed for the purpose of acquisition, construction, repairs, renewal or reconstruction can be claimed as deduction.

Interest payable on a fresh loan taken to repay the original loan raised earlier for the aforesaid purposes is also admissible as a deduction.

Interest for pre-construction period:

Pre-construction period is the period prior to the previous year in which property is acquired or construction is completed.

Interest payable on borrowed capital for the period prior to the previous year in which the property has been acquired or constructed (Pre-construction interest), can be claimed as deduction over a period of 5 years in equal annual installments commencing from the year of acquisition or completion of construction.

Interest for the year in which construction is completed/ property is acquired:

Interest relating to the year of completion of construction/ acquisition of property can be fully claimed in that year irrespective of the date of completion/ acquisition.

ILLUSTRATION 3

Arvind had taken a loan of ₹5,00,000 for construction of property on 1.10.2018. Interest was payable @10% p.a. The construction was completed on 30.6.2019. No principal repayment has been made up to 31.3.2020. Compute the interest allowable as deduction under section 24 for the A.Y.2020-21.

SOLUTION

Interest for the year (1.4.2019 to 31.3.2020) = 10% of ₹ 5,00,000 = ₹ 50,000

Pre-construction interest = 10% of ₹ 5,00,000 for 6 months (from 1.10.2018 to 31.3.2019) = ₹ 25,000

Pre-construction interest to be allowed in 5 equal annual installments of ₹ 5,000 from the year of completion of construction i.e. in this case, P.Y. 2019-20.

Therefore, total interest deduction under section 24 = ₹ 50,000 + ₹ 5000 = ₹ 55,000.

(2) Deduction in respect of self-occupied property where annual value is nil

- (i) In this case, the assessee will be allowed a deduction on account of interest (including 1/5th of the accumulated interest of pre-construction period) as under –

S.No.	Conditions	Amount of Deduction
(a)	Loan borrowed before 1.4.99: Where the property has been acquired, constructed, repaired, renewed or reconstructed with borrowed capital before 1.4.99.	Actual interest payable in aggregate for one or two self-occupied properties , subject to maximum of ₹ 30,000.
(b)	Loan borrowed on or after 1.4.99: (i) Where the property is acquired or constructed with capital borrowed on or after 1.4.99 and such acquisition or construction is completed within 5 years from the end of the financial year in which the capital was borrowed	Actual interest payable in aggregate for one or two self-occupied properties , subject to maximum of ₹ 2,00,000, if certificate mentioned in (2) below is obtained.
	(ii) Where the property is repaired, renewed or reconstructed with capital borrowed on or after 1.4.99.	Actual interest payable in aggregate for one or two self-occupied properties , subject to a maximum of ₹ 30,000.
However, the total interest deduction under (a) and (b) cannot exceed ₹ 2,00,000.

ILLUSTRATION 4

Mr. Manas owns two house properties one at Bombay, wherein his family resides and the other at Delhi, which is unoccupied. He lives in Chandigarh for his employment purposes in a rented house. For acquisition of house property at Bombay, he has taken a loan of ₹ 30 lakh@10% p.a. on 1.4.2018. He has not repaid any amount so far. In respect of house property at Delhi, he has taken a loan of ₹ 5 lakh@11% p.a. on 1.10.2018 towards repairs. Compute the deduction which would be available to him under section 24(b) for A.Y.2020-21 in respect of interest payable on such loan.

SOLUTION

Mr. Manas can claim benefit of Nil Annual Value in respect of his house property at Bombay and Delhi, since no benefit is derived by him from such properties, and he cannot occupy such properties due to reason of his employment at Chandigarh, where he lives in a rented house.

Computation of deduction u/s 24(b) for A.Y.2020-21

	Particulars	₹
I	Interest on loan taken for acquisition of residential house property at Bombay $30,00,000 \times 10\% = ₹ 3,00,000$ Restricted to ₹ 2,00,000	2,00,000
II	Interest on loan taken for repair of residential house property at Delhi $₹ 5,00,000 \times 11\% = ₹ 55,000$ Restricted to ₹ 30,000	30,000
	Total interest	2,30,000
	Deduction under section 24(b) in respect of (I) and (II) above to be restricted to	2,00,000

- (ii) Certificate to be furnished: For the purpose of claiming deduction of ₹ 2,00,000 as per (b)(i) in the table given above, the assessee should furnish a certificate from the person to whom any interest is payable on the capital borrowed, specifying the amount of interest payable by the assessee for the purpose of such acquisition or construction of the property or conversion of the whole or any part of the capital borrowed which remains to be repaid as a new loan.

Important points:

- (a) The ceiling limit would not apply to let-out/ deemed let-out property: The ceiling prescribed for self-occupied property as above in respect of interest on loan borrowed does not apply to a let out/deemed let-out property.

- (b) Interest allowable on accrual basis: Deduction under section 24(b) for interest is available on accrual basis. Therefore, interest accrued but not paid during the year can also be claimed as deduction.
- (c) Unpaid purchase price would be considered as capital borrowed: Where a buyer enters into an arrangement with a seller to pay the sale price in installments along with interest due thereon, the seller becomes the lender in relation to the unpaid purchase price and the buyer becomes the borrower. In such a case, unpaid purchase price can be treated as capital borrowed for acquiring property and interest paid thereon can be allowed as deduction under section 24.
- (d) Interest on unpaid interest is not deductible.

Deductions from Net Annual Value: At a Glance

ILLUSTRATION 5

P, an individual, borrowed ₹ 20,00,000 for repair of his self-occupied house property and paid interest of ₹ 1,60,000 thereon during the financial year 2019-20. What is the amount of interest allowable as deduction under section 24 for the assessment year 2020-21?

SOLUTION

Section 24(b) provides that where the self-occupied house property has been acquired, constructed, repaired, renewed or reconstructed with borrowed capital, deduction towards interest payable thereon shall not exceed ₹ 30,000. Therefore, only ₹ 30,000 would be allowed as deduction on account of interest on loan borrowed for repair and reconstruction of self-occupied house property.

The higher limit of ₹ 2,00,000 in respect of interest on loan borrowed on or after 1.4.1999 would be available only where such loan is borrowed for acquisition or construction of self-occupied property and not for repair of such property.

5.7 COMPUTATION OF “INCOME FROM HOUSE PROPERTY” FOR DIFFERENT CATEGORIES OF PROPERTY

(1) PROPERTY LET OUT THROUGHOUT THE PREVIOUS YEAR

Particulars		Amount
Computation of GAV
Step 1	Compute ER ER = Higher of MV and FR, but restricted to SR
Step 2	Compute Actual rent received/ receivable Actual rent received/ receivable less unrealized rent as per Rule 4
Step 3	Compare ER and Actual rent received/ receivable
Step 4	GAV is the higher of ER and Actual rent received/ receivable

Step 2	Compute Actual rent received/ receivable Actual rent received/ receivable for let out period less unrealized rent as per Rule 4 = ₹ 2,00,000 - ₹ 20,000	1,80,000
Step 3	Compare ER and Actual rent received/ receivable

Step 4	In this case the actual rent of ₹ 1,80,000 is lower than ER of ₹ 2,10,000 owing to vacancy, since, had the property not been vacant the actual rent would have been ₹ 2,20,000 (₹ 1,80,000 + ₹ 40,000, being notional rent for February and March,2020). Therefore, actual rent is the GAV.	1,80,000

Interest on money borrowed for repair of property during the current year	-	55,000
Interest for current year on money borrowed in July 2013 for purchase of property			1,75,000

Compute Ganesh's income from house property for A.Y.2020-21 and suggest which house should be opted by Ganesh to be assessed as self-occupied so that his tax liability is minimum.

SOLUTION

Let us first calculate the income from each house property assuming that they are deemed to be let out.

Computation of income from house property of Ganesh for the A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	Amount in ₹
	House I	House II	House III
Gross Annual Value (GAV)
ER is the GAV of house property
ER = Higher of MV and FR, but restricted to SR	3,50,000	3,60,000	3,75,000
Less: Municipal taxes (paid by the owner during the previous year)	36,000	28,800	19,800
Net Annual Value (NAV)	3,14,000	3,31,200	3,55,200
Less: Deductions under section 24
(a) 30% of NAV	94,200	99,360	1,06,560
(b) Interest on borrowed capital	-	55,000	1,75,000
Income from house property	2,19,800	1,76,840	73,640

Ganesh can opt to treat any two of the above house properties as self-occupied .

OPTION 1 (House I and II – self-occupied and House III – deemed to be let out)

If House I and II are opted to be self-occupied, the income from house property shall be –

Particulars	Amount in ₹
House I (Self-occupied)	Nil
House II (Self-occupied) (interest deduction restricted to ₹ 30,000)	(30,000)
House III (Deemed to be let-out)	73,640
Income from house property	43,640

OPTION 2 (House I and III – self-occupied and House II – deemed to be let out)

If House I and III are opted to be self-occupied, the income from house property shall be –

Particulars	Amount in ₹
House I (Self-occupied)	Nil
House II (Deemed to be let-out)	1,76,840
House III (Self-occupied)	(1,75,000)
Income from house property	1,840

OPTION 3 (House II and III – self-occupied and House I – deemed to be let out)

If House II and III are opted to be self-occupied, the income from house property shall be –

Particulars	Amount in ₹
House I (Deemed to be let-out)	2,19,800
House II (Self-occupied) (interest deduction restricted to ₹ 30,000)	(30,000)

House III (Self-occupied)	(1,75,000)
(Total interest deduction restricted to ₹ 2,00,000)		(2,00,000)
Income from house property		19,800

Since Option 2 is most beneficial, Ganesh should opt to treat House I and III as self-occupied and House II as deemed to be let out. His income from house property would be ₹ 1,840 for the A.Y. 2020-21.

(6) HOUSE PROPERTY, A PORTION LET OUT AND A PORTION SELF-OCCUPIED

ILLUSTRATION 11

Prem owns a house in Madras. During the previous year 2019-20, 2/3rd portion of the house was self-occupied and 1/3rd portion was let out for residential purposes at a rent of ₹8,000 p.m. Municipal value of the property is ₹ 3,00,000 p.a., fair rent is ₹ 2,70,000 p.a. and standard rent is ₹ 3,30,000 p.a. He paid municipal taxes @10% of municipal value during the year. A loan of ₹ 25,00,000 was taken by him during the year 2015 for acquiring the property. Interest on loan paid during the previous year 2019-20 was ₹ 1,20,000. Compute Prem's income from house property for the A.Y. 2020-21

SOLUTION

There are two units of the house. Unit I with 2/3rd area is used by Prem for self-occupation throughout the year and no benefit is derived from that unit, hence it will be treated as self-occupied and its annual value will be Nil. Unit 2 with 1/3rd area is let-out throughout the previous year and its annual value has to be determined as per section 23(1).

Computation of income from house property of Mr. Prem for A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	Amount in ₹
Unit I (2/3rd area – self-occupied)
Annual Value		Nil
Less: Deduction under section 24(b)
2/3 rd of ₹ 1,20,000		80,000
Income from Unit I (self-occupied)		(80,000)
Unit II (1/3rd area – let out)
Computation of GAV
Step I    Compute ER
ER = Higher of MV and FR, restricted to SR
However, in this case, SR of ₹ 1,10,000 (1/3 rd of ₹ 3,30,000) is more than the higher of MV of ₹ 1,00,000 (1/3 rd of ₹ 3,00,000) and FR of ₹ 90,000 (1/3 rd of ₹ 2,70,000). Hence the higher of MV and FR is the ER. In this case, it is the MV.	1,00,000

Step 2	Compute actual rent received/ receivable ₹ 8,000×12 = ₹ 96,000	96,000
Step 3	Compare ER and Actual rent received/ receivable
Step 4	GAV is the higher of ER and actual rent received/ receivable i.e. higher of ₹ 1,00,000 and ₹ 96,000	1,00,000
Gross Annual Value(GAV)			1,00,000
Less:	Municipal taxes paid by the owner during the previous year relating to let-out portion 1/3 rd of (10% of ₹ 3,00,000) = ₹ 30,000/3 = ₹ 10,000		10,000
Net Annual Value(NAV)			90,000
Less:	Deductions under section 24
	(a) 30% of NAV = 30% of ₹ 90,000	27,000
	(b) Interest paid on borrowed capital (relating to let out portion)1/3 rd of ₹ 1,20,000	40,000	67,000
Income from Unit II (let-out)			23,000
Loss under the head "Income from house property" = ₹ (80,000) + ₹ 23,000 = ₹ (57,000)

5.8 INADMISSIBLE DEDUCTIONS [SECTION 25]

Interest chargeable under this Act which is payable outside India shall not be deducted if –

- tax has not been paid or deducted from such interest and
- there is no person in India who may be treated as an agent under section 163.

5.9 PROVISION FOR ARREARS OF RENT AND UNREALIZED RENT RECEIVED SUBSEQUENTLY [SECTION 25A]

- As per section 25A(1), the amount of rent received in arrears from a tenant or the amount of unrealised rent realised subsequently from a tenant by an assessee shall be deemed to be income from house property in the financial year in which such rent is received or realised, and shall be included in the total income of the assessee under the head "Income from house property", whether the assessee is the owner of the property or not in that financial year.
- Section 25A(2) provides a deduction of 30% of arrears of rent or unrealised rent realised subsequently by the assessee.

(3) Summary:

Section 25A
Arrears of Rent / Unrealised Rent
(i)	Taxable in the year of receipt/realisation
(ii)	Deduction@30% of rent received/realised
(iii)	Taxable even if assessee is not the owner of the property in the financial year of receipt/realisation.

ILLUSTRATION 12

Mr. Anand sold his residential house property in March, 2019.

In June, 2019, he recovered rent of ₹ 10,000 from Mr. Gaurav, to whom he had let out his house for two years from April 2013 to March 2015. He could not realise two months rent of ₹ 20,000 from him and to that extent his actual rent was reduced while computing income from house property for A.Y.2015-16.

Further, he had let out his property from April, 2015 to February, 2019 to Mr. Satish. In April, 2017, he had increased the rent from ₹ 12,000 to ₹ 15,000 per month and the same was a subject matter of dispute. In September, 2019, the matter was finally settled and Mr. Anand received ₹ 69,000 as arrears of rent for the period April 2017 to February, 2019.

Would the recovery of unrealised rent and arrears of rent be taxable in the hands of Mr. Anand, and if so in which year?

SOLUTION

Since the unrealised rent was recovered in the P.Y.2019-20, the same would be taxable in the A.Y.2020-21 under section 25A, irrespective of the fact that Mr. Anand was not the owner of the house in that year. Further, the arrears of rent was also received in the P.Y.2019-20, and hence the same would be taxable in the A.Y.2020-21 under section 25A, even though Mr. Anand was not the owner of the house in that year. A deduction of 30% of unrealised rent recovered and arrears of rent would be allowed while computing income from house property of Mr. Anand for A.Y.2020-21.

5.10 TREATMENT OF INCOME FROM CO-OWNED PROPERTY [SECTION 26]

- (1) Where property is owned by two or more persons, whose shares are definite and ascertainable, then the income from such property cannot be taxed as income of an AOP.
- (2) The share income of each such co-owner should be determined in accordance with sections 22 to 25 and included in his individual assessment.
- (3) Where the house property owned by co-owners is self-occupied by each of the co-owners, the annual value of the property of each co-owner will be Nil and each co-owner shall be entitled to a deduction of ₹ 30,000 / ₹ 2,00,000, as the case may be, under section 24(b) on account of interest on borrowed capital.

However, the aggregate deduction of interest to each co-owner in respect of interest payable on loan taken for co-owned house property and interest, if any, payable on loan taken for another self-occupied property owned by him cannot exceed ₹ 30,000/ ₹ 2,00,000, as the case may be.

- (4) Where the house property owned by co-owners is let out, the income from such property shall be computed as if the property is owned by one owner and thereafter the income so computed shall be apportioned amongst each co-owner as per their specific share.
- (5) Summary:

Co-owned property [Section 26]

5.11 DEEMED OWNERSHIP [SECTION 27]

As per section 27, the following persons, though not legal owners of a property, are deemed to be the owners for the purposes of section 22 to 26.

- (1) Transfer to a spouse [Section 27(i)] – In case of transfer of house property by an individual to his or her spouse otherwise than for adequate consideration, the transferor is deemed to be the owner of the transferred property.

Exception– In case of transfer to spouse in connection with an agreement to live apart, the transferor will not be deemed to be the owner. The transferee will be the owner of the house property.

- (2) Transfer to a minor child [Section 27(i)] – In case of transfer of house property by an individual to his or her minor child otherwise than for adequate consideration, the transferor would be deemed to be owner of the house property transferred.

Exception– In case of transfer to a minor married daughter, the transferor is not deemed to be the owner.

Note - Where cash is transferred to spouse/minor child and the transferee acquires property out of such cash, then the transferor shall not be treated as deemed owner of the house property. However, clubbing provisions will be attracted.

- (3) Holder of an impartible estate [Section 27(ii)] – The impartible estate is a property which is not legally divisible. The holder of an impartible estate shall be deemed to be the individual owner of all properties comprised in the estate.

After enactment of the Hindu Succession Act, 1956, all the properties comprised in an impartible estate by custom is to be assessed in the status of a HUF. However, section 27(ii) will continue to be applicable in relation to impartible estates by grant or covenant.

- (4) Member of a co-operative society etc. [Section 27(iii)] – A member of a co-operative society, company or other association of persons to whom a building or part thereof is allotted or leased under a House Building Scheme of a society/ company/ association, shall be deemed to be owner of that building or part thereof allotted to him although the co-operative society/company/ association is the legal owner of that building.

- (5) Person in possession of a property [Section 27(iiiia)] – A person who is allowed to take or retain the possession of any building or part thereof in part performance of a contract of the nature referred to in section 53A of the Transfer of Property Act shall be the deemed owner of that house property. This would include cases where the –

- (i) possession of property has been handed over to the buyer
- (ii) sale consideration has been paid or promised to be paid to the seller by the buyer
- (iii) sale deed has not been executed in favour of the buyer, although certain other documents like power of attorney/ agreement to sell/ will etc. have been executed.

In all the above cases, the buyer would be deemed to be the owner of the property although it is not registered in his name.

- (6) Person having right in a property for a period not less than 12 years [Section 27(iiiib)] – A person who acquires any rights in or with respect to any building or part thereof, by virtue of any transaction as is referred to in section 269UA(f) i.e. transfer by way of lease for not less than 12 years, shall be deemed to be the owner of that building or part thereof.

Exception – In case the person acquiring any rights by way of lease from month to month or for a period not exceeding one year, such person will not be deemed to be the owner.

EXERCISE

Question 1

People Housing Ltd. is engaged in the business of constructing residential and commercial properties. One of the building properties was included in the closing stock in the Balance Sheet. The said building was let out for a monthly rent as suitable buyers could not be found. All other buildings had been sold by the company. Examine with reasons whether the income by way of rent from the unsold property is assessable as income from business or income from house property.

How would the monthly rent be taxed, if the main objective of the company was to hold properties and earn income by letting out of these properties?

Answer

- (a) Under section 22, the charging section for “Income from house property”, the only exception provided is the income derived from property used/occupied by the assessee for his own business. Therefore, income derived from letting out of house property will be taxable under the head “Income from house property”, even if property is held by the assessee as stock-in-trade of his business.

As per section 23(5), income from house property held as stock-in-trade would be exempt for a period of two years from the end of the financial year in which certificate of completion was obtained from the competent authority. However, for availing such exemption, the property should not be let out during the said period. Section 23(5) provides for exemption in respect of house property held as stock-in-trade for a certain period subject to fulfilment of the condition stated therein. It implies that income from house property held as stock-in-trade –

- (i) beyond the said period; or
- (ii) not eligible for such exemption even during the said period due to non-fulfilment of the stated condition, would be taxable under the same head of income i.e., “Income from house property”.

In effect, where exemption provisions are provided under a particular head of income, it can be inferred that the income, but for such exemption, would be taxable only under that head of income.

Note – In the case of New Delhi Hotels Ltd. v. ACIT (2014) 360 ITR 187, the Delhi High Court followed its own decision in the case of CIT vs. Discovery Estates Pvt. Ltd./CIT vs. Discovery Holding Pvt. Ltd., wherein it was held in the case of rental income derived from unsold flats which were shown as stock-in trade in the books of the assessee should be assessed under the head “Income from house property” and not under the head “Profits and gains from business and profession”.

This decision is in sync with the intent of the provisions of section 22 and 23(5) discussed above.

- (b) The Supreme Court, in Chennai Properties and Investments Ltd. v. CIT (2015) 373 ITR 673, held that where holding of properties and earning income by letting out of these properties is the main objective of the company as laid out in its Memorandum of Association and the entire income of the company as per its return of income accepted by the Assessing Officer comprises of income from letting out of such properties, such income would be assessable as "Profits and gains of business or profession."

Further, in case of Rayala Corporation (P) Ltd. v. Asstt. CIT (2016) 386 ITR 500, the Supreme Court held that since the business of the company is to lease out its property and earn rent therefrom, the rental income earned by the company is chargeable to tax as its business income and not income from house property.

Applying the rationale of above rulings if the main objective of the company is to hold the properties and earn income by letting out of the properties, the income from letting out of properties would be chargeable to tax as "Profits and gains of business or profession".

Question 2

A Hindu undivided family owns a property which has been let out to a firm carrying on business. The family is a partner of the firm through its Karta. No rent has been charged by the HUF from the firm for use of the premises by the firm. The Assessing Officer, however, has taxed the family on the notional income from property based on municipal valuation. Is this decision justified?

Answer

Under section 22, the annual value of a property is chargeable to tax under the head "Income from house property" in the hands of the owner. However, this section specifically excludes property occupied for the purposes of own business or profession of the assessee, the profits of which are chargeable to income-tax. In CIT v. Shri. Champalal Jeevraj (1995) 215 ITR 289 (Mad), it was observed that where the Karta of the HUF is a partner in the firm in his representative capacity and the firm occupied a portion of the house belonging to the HUF, the benefit of exclusion under section 22 was available to the HUF. Hence, the income from the said property shall not be chargeable to tax under the head "Income from house property". Therefore, in this case, the action of the Assessing Officer is not correct.

Question 3

In the following cases, examine under which head of income the receipt would be assessed-

- (a) Anirudh let out his property to Abhinav. Abhinav sublets it. How is sub-letting receipt to be assessed in the hands of Abhinav?
- (b) Anish has built a house on a leasehold land. He has let-out the above property and has considered the rent from such property under the head "Income from other sources" and deducted expenses on repairs, security charges, insurance and collection charges in all amounting to 50% of receipts.

Answer

- (a) Sub-letting receipt is to be assessed as "Income from Other Sources" or as "Profits and gains of business or profession" in hands of Mr. Abhinav, depending upon the facts and circumstances of each case. It is not assessable as income from house property, since one of the conditions for assessing an income under this head is that the assessee should be the owner of the property i.e. owner of the building and the land appurtenant thereto. In this case, since Abhinav is not the owner of the house property, sub-letting receipt cannot be assessed under the head "Income from house property".

- (b) Since Anish is the owner of the property (building), in this case, the receipt would be assessable as "Income from house property". The ownership of land is not a pre-requisite for assessment of income under this head. 30% of Net Annual Value would be allowed as a deduction under section 24.

Question 4

Rajesh owns a house in Hyderabad. During the previous year 2019-20, 3/4th portion of the house was self-occupied and 1/4th portion was let out for residential purposes at a rent of ₹ 12,000 p.m. The tenant vacated the property on February 29th 2020. The property was vacant during March, 2020. Rent for the months of January 2020 and February 2020 could not be realised in spite of the owner's efforts. All the conditions prescribed under Rule 4 are satisfied.

Municipal value of the property is ₹ 4,00,000 p.a., fair rent is ₹ 4,40,000 p.a. and standard rent is ₹ 4,80,000. He paid municipal taxes @10% of municipal value during the year. A loan of ₹ 30,00,000 was taken by him during the year 2010 for acquiring the property. Interest on loan paid during the previous year 2019-20 was ₹ 1,48,000. Compute Rajesh's income from house property for the A.Y. 2020-21.

Answer

There are two units of the house. Unit I with 3/4th area is used by Rajesh for self-occupation throughout the year and no benefit is derived from that unit, hence, it will be treated as self-occupied and its annual value will be nil. Unit 2 with 1/4th area is let-out during the previous year and its annual value has to be determined as per section 23(1).

Computation of Income from house property of Mr. Rajesh for the A.Y. 2020-21

Particulars	₹
Unit I (3/4th area – self-occupied)
Annual Value	Nil
Less: Deduction under section 24(b)
3/4th of ₹ 1,48,000	1,11,000
Income from Unit I (self-occupied)	(1,11,000)
Unit II (1/4th area – let out)
Computation of GAV
Step 1 – Computation of Expected Rent (ER)
ER = Higher of municipal valuation (MV) and fair rent (FR), but restricted to standard rent (SR). However, in this case, standard rent of ₹ 1,20,000 (1/4th of ₹ 4,80,000) is more than the higher of MV of ₹ 1,00,000 (1/4th of ₹ 4,00,000) and FR of ₹ 1,10,000 (1/4th of ₹ 4,40,000). Hence the higher of MV and FR is the ER. In this case, it is the fair rent.	1,10,000

Step 2 – Computation of actual rent received/ receivable ₹ 12,000×9 = 1,08,000	1,08,000
[The property was let-out for 11 months. However, rent for 2 months i.e., January and February, 2020 could not be realized. As per Explanation to section 23(1), actual rent should not include any amount of rent which is not capable of being realized. Therefore, actual rent has been computed for 9 months]
Step 3 – GAV is the higher of ER and actual rent received/ receivable. However, as per section 23(1)(c), where the let-out property is vacant for part of the year and owing to vacancy, the actual rent is lower than the ER, then the actual rent received would be the GAV of the property. In this case, the actual rent is lower than the ER owing to vacancy, since had the property not been vacant in March 2020, the actual rent would have been ₹ 1,20,000 (i.e. ₹ 1,08,000 + ₹ 12,000), which is higher than the ER of ₹ 1,10,000. Therefore, in this case, section 23(1)(c) would apply and the actual rent of ₹ 1,08,000 would be the GAV, since it is lower than the ER owing to vacancy.	1,08,000
Gross Annual Value (GAV)		1,08,000
Less: Municipal taxes paid by the owner during the previous year relating to let-out portion 1/4th of (10% of ₹ 4,00,000) = ₹ 40000/4 = ₹10,000		10,000
Net Annual Value(NAV)		98,000
Less: Deductions under section 24
(a) 30% of NAV = 30% of ₹ 98,000	29,400
(b) Interest paid on borrowed capital (relating to let out portion) [1/4th of ₹ 1,48,000]	37,000	66,400
Income from Unit II (let-out)		31,600
Loss under the head “Income from house property” (-1,11,000 + 31,600)		-79,400

Question 5

During the financial year 2019-20, Mr. A received a sum of ₹ 1,80,000 (₹ 60,000 p.a.) by way of arrears for the last three years as the Government department (tenant) enhanced the rate of rent with retrospective effect. Will the sum of ₹ 1,80,000 be taxable in the assessment year 2020-21? Can it be spread over the last three years?

Answer

As per section 25A, the arrears of rent shall be taxable in the previous year in which such arrears are received. The assessee shall be allowed deduction @ 30% of such amount received. Further, it is not necessary that the assessee should be owner of such house property in the previous year in which such arrears are received.

As the arrear rent of ₹ 1,80,000 is received in the previous year 2019-20, the same is taxable in the A.Y.2020-21. Thus, the net sum of ₹ 1,26,000 (i.e. ₹ 1,80,000 – ₹ 54,000) shall be chargeable to tax under the head “Income from house property”.

There is no provision in the Income-tax Act, 1961, enabling the assessee to spread over the arrears of rent over the last three years.

SIGNIFICANT SELECT CASES

1. Whether rental income earned from letting out of premises is to be treated as business income or as income from house property?

Raj Dadarkar and Associates v. Assistant Commissioner of Income Tax [2017] 394 ITR 592 (SC)

Facts of the case: The assessee had acquired the right to conduct a market on certain land from Municipal Corporation, Greater Bombay under an auction on May 28, 1993. The premises allotted to the appellant was a bare structure and it was for the appellant to make the premises fit to be used as a market. The appellant spent substantial sums to construct 95 shops and 30 stalls. From the years 1999 to 2004, the assessee treated income from sub-letting of such shops and stalls as business income. The return of the assessee for assessment year 2000-2001 was reopened by Assessing Officer by issuing notice under section 148.

Issue: Whether the income earned by the appellant is to be taxed under the head 'Income from house property' or 'Profits and gains from the business or profession'?

Supreme Court's Observations: The Supreme Court held that wherever there is an income from leasing out of premises, it is to be treated as income from house property. However, it can be treated as business income if letting out of the premises itself is the business of the assessee. The question has to be decided based on the facts of each case as was held in Sultan Brothers Pvt Ltd. v. CIT [1964] 51 ITR 353 (SC).

In the given facts, it was an undisputed fact that the assessee would be considered to be a deemed owner under section 27(iib) read with section 269UA(f) as it had a leasehold right for more than 12 years. The only evidence adduced for proving that letting out and earning rents is the main business activity of the appellant was the object clause of the partnership deed. The clause provided that "The Partnership shall take the premises on rent to sub-let or do any other business as may be mutually agreed by the parties from time to time." The Supreme Court held the clause to be inconclusive and observed that the assessee had failed to produce sufficient material to show that its entire or substantial income was from letting out of the property.

Supreme Court's Decision: The Supreme Court, accordingly, held that, in this case, the income is to be assessed as "Income from house property" and not as business income, on account of lack of sufficient material to prove that the substantial income of the assessee was from letting out of the property.

Note - In Chennai Properties and Investments Ltd. v. CIT (2015) 373 ITR 673, the Supreme Court observed that holding of the properties and earning income by letting out of these properties is the main objective of the company. Further, in the return of income filed by the company and accepted by the Assessing Officer, the entire income of the company comprised of income from letting out of such properties. The Supreme Court, accordingly, held that such income was taxable as business income. Likewise, in Rayala Corporation (P) Ltd. v. Asst. CIT (2016) 386 ITR 500, the Supreme Court noted that the assessee was engaged only in the business of renting its properties and earning rental income therefrom and accordingly, held that such income was taxable as business income. In this case, however, on account of lack of sufficient material to prove that substantial income of the assessee was from letting out of property, the Supreme Court held that the rental income has to be assessed as "Income from house property".

2. Would income from letting out of properties by a company, whose main object as per its memorandum of association is to acquire and let out properties, be taxable as its business income or income from house property, considering the fact that the entire income of the company as per its return of income was only from letting out of properties?

Chennai Properties and Investments Ltd. v. CIT (2015) 373 ITR 673 (SC)

Facts of the Case: The assessee-company was incorporated under the Companies Act, 1956. Its main objective, as stated in the memorandum of association, is to acquire properties in the city of Madras and let out those properties. The company had rented out such properties and the rental income was shown as its business income in the return filed by the assessee.

The Assessing Officer, however, assessed the rental income under the head "Income from house property". On appeal, the Commissioner (Appeals) concurred with the assessee's view that the rental income, in this case, was the company's business income. The Appellate Tribunal also supported the view of the Commissioner (Appeals).

High Court's Opinion: The High Court allowed the Department's appeal holding that income derived from letting out of properties has to be assessed as income from house property. It held so on the basis of the Supreme Court ruling in East India Housing and Land Development Trust Ltd. v. CIT (1961) 42 ITR 9, wherein it was decided that income from letting out of shops and stalls was to be assessed as income from house property, in the case of a company whose main object of was buying and developing landed properties and promoting and developing markets.

Supreme Court's Observations: The Supreme Court observed that the High Court had pronounced its ruling on the basis of the decision of the Apex Court in East India Housing and Land Development Trust Ltd.'s case, wherein the letting out of property was not the object of the company at all. Therefore, in that case, the Apex Court was of the opinion that the character of the income which was from house property had not changed merely because it was received by the company formed with the object of developing and setting up properties.

The Supreme Court further observed the law laid down authoritatively and succinctly by it in Karanpura Development Co. Ltd. v. CIT [1962] 44 ITR 362. In that case, the assessee-company was formed with the object of, inter alia, acquiring and disposing of the underground coal mining rights in certain coal fields and it had restricted its activities to acquiring coal mining leases over large areas, developing them as coal fields and then sub-leasing them to collieries and other companies. Thus, in that case, the leasing out of the coal fields to the collieries and other companies was the business of the assessee. The income which was received from letting out of those mining leases was shown as business income. Department took the position that the same was to be treated as income from the house property. Thus, in similar circumstances, an identical issue arose before the Apex Court. The Apex Court pointed out that the deciding factor as to the head under which the income was to be assessed is not the ownership of land or leases but the nature of the activity of the assessee and the nature of the operations in relation to them. It was highlighted and stressed that the objects of the company must also be kept in view to interpret the activities. In support of the aforesaid proposition, a number of judgments of other jurisdictions, i.e., Privy Council, House of Lords in England and the US Courts were taken note of.

After applying the aforesaid principle to the facts, the Apex Court had arrived at the conclusion that such income had to be treated as income from business and not as income from house property.

Supreme Court's Decision: The Supreme Court opined that the aforesaid judgment in Karanpura Development Co. Ltd.'s case squarely applied to the facts of the present case, where letting of the properties is in fact the business of the assessee. The main objective of the company as per its memorandum of association is to acquire and hold properties in Chennai and let out these properties. Therefore, holding of the properties and earning income by letting out these properties is the main objective of the company. Further, in the return of income filed by the company and accepted by the Assessing Officer, the entire income of the company comprised of income from letting out of such properties. The Supreme Court, accordingly, held that the assessee had rightly disclosed the income derived from letting out of such properties under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession".

3. Would rental income from the business of leasing out properties be taxable under the head "Income from house property" or "Profits and gains from business or profession"?

Rayala Corporation (P) Ltd. v. Asstt. CIT (2016) 386 ITR 500 (SC)

Facts of the case: The assessee company was in the business of renting its properties and received rent which it claims as its business income chargeable under the head "Profits and Gains from business or profession". The Assessing Officer, however, brought to tax the rental income under the head "Income from house property".

Appellate Authorities' views: The Appellate Tribunal and the High Court affirmed the view of the Assessing Officer holding that the rental income from letting out of properties is to be taxed under the head "Income from house property".

Supreme Court's Observations: The Apex Court took note of the specific finding by the authorities that the assessee had stopped its other business activities and continued only the business of leasing out its properties and earning rent therefrom. Thus, it noted that the assessee was engaged only in the business of renting its properties and earning rental income. It made reference to law laid down by it in Chennai Properties & Investments Ltd v. CIT (2015) 373 ITR 673 (SC) that if an assessee is engaged in the business of letting out house property on rent, then, the income from such property, even though in the nature of rent, should be treated as business income. The Court held that the judgment in Chennai Properties & Investment Ltd.'s case would squarely apply in this case also, since the company is engaged in the business of letting out properties and earning rental income therefrom. It did not concur with the contention of the Revenue that rent should be the main source of income or that the purpose for which the company was formed/incorporated should be to earn rental income, so as to make the income taxable under the head 'Profits and gains of business or profession'.

Supreme Court's decision: The Apex Court, thus, held that since the business of the company is to lease out its property and earn rent therefrom, the rental income earned by the company is chargeable to tax as its business income and not income from house property.

4. Whether the rental income derived from the unsold flats which are shown as stock-in-trade in the books of the assessee would be taxable under the head 'Profits and gains from business or profession' or under the head 'Income from house property', in a case where the actual rent receipts formed the basis of computation of income?

New Delhi Hotels Ltd. v. ACIT (2014) 360 ITR 0187 (Delhi)

High Court's Observations: On this issue, in CIT v. Ansal Housing Finance and Leasing Co. Ltd. (2013) 354 ITR 180, where the deemed rent (i.e., Expected Rent) formed the basis of computation of income from unsold flats held as stock-in-trade, the Delhi High Court held that such rent was taxable under the head "Income from house property". Further, in CIT v. Discovery Estates Pvt. Ltd. and CIT v. Discovery Holding Pvt. Ltd. (2013) 356 ITR 159, the same issue emerged when the actual rent formed the basis of computation of income from unsold flats held as stock-in-trade. In that case also, the Delhi High Court held that the income was taxable under the head "Income from house property".

High Court's Decision: In this case, the Delhi High Court followed its own decision in the case of CIT vs. Discovery Estates Pvt. Ltd / CIT vs. Discovery Holding Pvt. Ltd., wherein it was held that rental income derived from unsold flats which were shown as stock-in-trade in the books of the assessee should be assessed under the head "Income from house property" and not under the head "Profits and gains from business or profession".

Note – This has been further substantiated by section 23(5), according to which income from house property held as stock-in-trade would be exempt for a period of one year from the end of the financial year in which certificate of completion was obtained from the competent authority. However, for availing such exemption, the property should not be let out during the said period. Insertion of sub-section (5) in section 23 providing for exemption in respect of house property held as stock-in-trade for a certain period subject to fulfilment of the condition stated therein implies that income from house property held as stock-in-trade –

- (i) beyond the said period; or
- (ii) not eligible for such exemption even during the said period due to non-fulfilment of the stated condition, would be taxable under the same head of income i.e., “Income from house property”.

In effect, where exemption provisions are provided under a particular head of income, it can be inferred that the income, but for such exemption, would be taxable only under that head of income.

5. Under what head of income should income from letting out of godowns and provision of warehousing services be subject to tax - “Income from house property” or “profits and gains of business or profession”?

CIT v. NDR Warehousing P Ltd (2015) 372 ITR 690 (Mad)

Facts of the case: The assessee engaged in the business of warehousing, handling and transport business claimed income from letting out of buildings and godowns as business income. The Assessing Officer assessed such income as “Income from house property”.

Appellate Authorities’ Observations: The Commissioner (Appeals) observed that the assessee’s activity was not merely letting out of warehouses but storage of goods with provision of several auxiliary services such as pest control, rodent control and fumigation service to prevent the goods stored from being affected by vagaries of moisture and temperature. Further, service of security and protection was also provided to the goods stored. There is, therefore, no dispute that the assessee carries on the activity in an organised manner. These activities are more than mere letting out of the godown for tenancy.

The Tribunal noted that the objects clause of the memorandum of association of the company clearly shows that the assessee-company was incorporated with the object of carrying on the business of warehousing and letting/renting of godowns and providing facilities for storage of articles or things and descriptions whatsoever. The profit and loss account of the assessee-company shows that its main source of income is storage charges and maintenance or user charges. Even substantial part of the expenses also relate to the salaries of employees engaged in the maintenance and upkeep of the godowns and warehouses. Based on these facts, Tribunal concurred with the findings of the Commissioner (Appeals) and held that the income of the assessee from letting out of warehouses and godowns is chargeable under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" and not "Income from house property".

High Court's Decision: The High Court observed that the Commissioner (Appeals) as well as the Tribunal had not only gone into the objects clause of the memorandum of the assessee but also individual aspects of the business to come to the conclusion that it was a case of warehousing business, and, therefore, the income would fall under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession".

Accordingly, the High Court held that the income earned by the assessee from letting out of godowns and provision of warehousing services is chargeable to tax under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" and not under the head "Income from house property".

6. Can benefit of self-occupation of house property under section 23(2) be denied to a HUF on the ground that it, being a fictional entity, cannot occupy a house property?

CIT v. Hariprasad Bhojnagarwala (2012) 342 ITR 69 (Guj.) (Full Bench)

Facts of the case: The assessee, being a Hindu Undivided Family (HUF), claimed the benefit of self-occupation of a house property under section 23(2). However, the Assessing Officer did not accept the said claim and denied the benefit of self-occupation of house property to the HUF contending that such benefit is available only to the owner who can reside in his own residence i.e., only an individual assessee, who is a natural person, and not to an imaginary assessable entity being HUF or a firm, etc.

High Court's Observations & Decision: On the abovementioned issue, the Gujarat High Court observed that a firm, which is a fictional entity, cannot physically reside in a house property and therefore a firm cannot claim the benefit of this provision, which is available to an individual owner who can actually occupy the house. However, the HUF is a group of individuals related to each other i.e., a family comprising of a group of natural persons. The said family can reside in the house, which belongs to the HUF. Since a HUF cannot consist of artificial persons, it cannot be said to be a fictional entity. Also, it was observed that since singular includes plural, the word "owner" would include "owners" and the words "his own" used in section 23(2) would include "their own".

Therefore, the Court held that the HUF is entitled to claim benefit of self-occupation of house property under section 23(2).

7. Can notional interest on interest-free deposit received by an assessee in respect of a shop let out on rent be brought to tax as business income or income from house property?

CIT v. Asian Hotels Ltd. (2010) 323 ITR 490 (Del.)

Facts of the case: The assessee had received interest-free deposit in respect of shops given on rent. The Assessing Officer added to the assessee's income notional interest on the interest free deposit at the rate of 18 per cent simple interest per annum on the ground that by accepting the interest free deposit, a benefit had accrued to the assessee which was chargeable to tax under section 28(iv).

High Court's Observations & Decision: The High Court observed that section 28(iv) is concerned with business income and brings to tax the value of any benefit or perquisite, whether convertible into money or not, arising from business or the exercise of a profession. Section 28(iv) can be invoked only where the benefit or amenity or perquisite is otherwise than by way of cash. In the instant case, the Assessing Officer has determined the monetary value of the benefit stated to have accrued to the assessee by adding a sum that constituted 18% simple interest on the deposit. Hence, section 28(iv) is not applicable.

Section 23(1) deals with the determination of the expected rent of a let out property for computing the income from house property. It provides that the expected rent is deemed to be the sum for which the property might reasonably be expected to be let out from year to year. This contemplates the possible rent that the property might fetch and certainly not the interest on fixed deposit that may be placed by the tenant with the landlord in connection with the letting out of such property. Thus, the notional interest is neither assessable as business income nor as income from house property.

PROFITS AND GAINS OF BUSINESS OR PROFESSION

LEARNING OUTCOMES

After studying this chapter, you would be able to -

- examine whether a particular income would be chargeable to tax under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” by analysing the provisions of section 28;
- comprehend the “Income Computation and Disclosure Standards” (ICDSs) and analyse and apply these standards to determine the income chargeable to tax under this head;
- analyse and apply the provisions of sections 30 to 37 to determine whether any particular expenditure / payment would be admissible as deduction while computing income under this head;
- analyse and apply the conditions contained under sections 40 & 40A to determine whether a particular expenditure/ payment would be admissible/ inadmissible as deduction while computing income under this head;
- analyse and apply the provisions of section 43B to allow/ disallow expenditures specified therein, in respect of which deduction is admissible only on actual payment;
- examine when certain receipts are deemed as income chargeable to tax under this head;
- appreciate the provisions of section 44AA relating to maintenance of books of account and identify the assessees, who are compulsorily required to maintain books of account;
- appreciate the provisions of section 44AB, listing the circumstances when an assessee is compulsorily required to get the books of account audited under Income-tax Act, 1961;
- examine the presumptive tax provisions contained in sections 44AD, 44ADA & 44AE to determine whether an assessee engaged in a business, profession or plying, hiring or leasing goods carriages can opt for such presumptive taxation schemes;
- compute income under this head applying the charging and deeming provisions, allowing the permissible deductions and disallowing the impermissible deductions.

6.1 MEANING OF 'BUSINESS' AND 'PROFESSION'

The tax payable by an assessee on his income under this head is in respect of the profits and gains of any business or profession, carried on by him or on his behalf during the previous year.

Business	Profession
The term " business " has been defined in section 2(13) to "include any trade, commerce or manufacture or any adventure or concern in the nature of trade, commerce or manufacture".	The term " profession " has not been defined in the Act. It means an occupation requiring some degree of learning. The term 'profession' includes vocation as well [Section 2(36)]
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Thus, a painter, a sculptor, an author, an auditor, a lawyer, a doctor, an architect and even an astrologer are persons who can be said to be carrying on a profession but not business.</li> <li>• However, it is not material whether a person is carrying on a 'business' or 'profession' or 'vocation' since for purposes of assessment, profits from all these sources are treated and taxed alike.</li> <li>• Business necessarily means a continuous exercise of an activity; nevertheless, profit from a single venture in the nature of trade may also be treated as business.</li> </ul>

Meaning of 'Profits'

- (1) Profits in cash or in kind: Profits may be realised in money or in money's worth, i.e., in cash or in kind. Where profit is realised in any form other than cash, the cash equivalent of the receipt on the date of receipt must be taken as the value of the income received in kind.
- (2) Capital receipts: Capital receipts are not generally to be taken into account while computing profits under this head.
- (3) Voluntary Receipts: Payment voluntarily made by persons who were under no obligation to pay anything at all would be income in the hands of the recipient, if they were received in the course of a business or by the exercise of a profession or vocation. Thus, any amount paid to a lawyer by a person who was not a client, but who has been benefited by the lawyer's professional service to another would be assessable as the lawyer's income.
- (4) Application of the gains of trade is immaterial: Gains made even for the benefit of the community by a public body would be liable to tax. To attract the provisions of section 28, it is necessary that the business, profession or vocation should be carried on at least for some time during the accounting year but not necessarily throughout that year and not necessarily by the assessee-owner personally, but it should be under his direction and control.

- (5) Legality of income: The illegality of a business, profession or vocation does not exempt its profits from tax: the revenue is not concerned with the taint of illegality in the income or its source.
- (6) Income from distinct businesses: The profits of each distinct business must be computed separately but the tax chargeable under this section is not on the separate income of every distinct business but on the aggregate profits of all the business carried on by the assessee.
- (7) Computation of profits: Profits should be computed after deducting the losses and expenses incurred for earning the income in the regular course of the business, profession, or vocation unless the loss or expenses is expressly or by necessary implication, disallowed by the Act. The charge is not on the gross receipts but on the profits and gains.

6.2 METHOD OF ACCOUNTING

(i) Method of Accounting (Section 145)

Section 145 of the Income-tax Act, 1961 provides for the method of accounting. Section 145(1) requires income chargeable under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” or “Income from other sources” to be computed in accordance with either the cash or mercantile system of accounting regularly employed by the assessee, subject to the provisions of section 145(2).

However, as per section 145B, certain income would be taxable in the following manner:

- (i) interest received by an assessee on compensation or on enhanced compensation, shall be deemed to be the income of the year in which it is received. [Such income is taxable under the head “Income from other sources”]
- (ii) the claim for escalation of price in a contract or export incentives shall be deemed to be the income of the previous year in which reasonable certainty of its realisation is achieved.
- (iii) income referred to in section 2(24)(xviii) i.e., assistance in the form of a subsidy or grant or cash incentive or duty drawback or waiver or concession or reimbursement, by whatever name called, by the Central Government or a State Government or any authority or body or agency in cash or kind to the assessee shall be deemed to be the income of the previous year in which it is received, if not charged to income tax for any earlier previous year.

Under section 145(2), the Central Government is empowered to notify in the Official Gazette from time to time, income computation and disclosure standards (ICDSs) to be followed by any class of assesseees or in respect of any class of income.

Accordingly, the Central Government has, vide Notification No. S.O.3079(E) dated 29.9.2016, notified ten ICDSs to be applicable from A.Y.2017-18.

The notified ICDSs have to be followed by all assesseees (other than an individual or a Hindu undivided family who is not required to get his accounts of the previous year audited in accordance with the provisions of section 44AB) following the mercantile system of accounting, for the purposes of computation of income chargeable to income-tax under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” or “Income from other sources”, from A.Y.2017-18.

The ten notified ICDSs are:

ICDS I	:	Accounting Policies
ICDS II	:	Valuation of Inventories
ICDS III	:	Construction Contracts
ICDS IV	:	Revenue Recognition
ICDS V	:	Tangible Fixed Assets
ICDS VI	:	The Effects of Changes in Foreign Exchange Rates
ICDS VII	:	Government Grants
ICDS VIII	:	Securities
ICDS IX	:	Borrowing Costs
ICDS X	:	Provisions, Contingent Liabilities and Contingent Assets

Cardinal features of Notified ICDSs

- (1) Applicability: All the notified ICDSs are applicable for computation of income chargeable under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” or “Income from other sources” and not for the purpose of maintenance of books of accounts. This is stated in the Preamble at the beginning of each ICDS.
- (2) Position in case of conflict with the Income-tax Act, 1961: In the case of conflict between the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 and the notified ICDSs, the provisions of the Act shall prevail to that extent. This is also stated in the Preamble at the beginning of each ICDS.
- (3) Scope Paragraph: Each of the ten notified ICDSs has a scope paragraph explaining what exactly the ICDS deals with. In some standards, the scope paragraph also specifies what the ICDS does not deal with.
- (4) Transitional Provisions: All ICDSs (except ICDS VIII on Securities) contain transitional provisions to facilitate first time adoption and prevent any tax leakage or any double taxation.

- (5) Disclosure Requirements: All ICDSs (except ICDS VI on Effects of changes in foreign exchange rates and ICDS VIII on Securities) contain specific disclosure requirements. The last paragraph(s) of these ICDSs is on disclosure.

Salient Features of the notified ICDSs

ICDS I: Accounting Policies

- ▶ This ICDS deals with significant accounting policies.
- ▶ While it recognizes the fundamental accounting assumptions of going concern, consistency and accrual, it does not recognize the concepts of “materiality” and “prudence” in selection of accounting policies.
- ▶ Treatment and presentation of transactions have to be governed by their substance and not merely by the legal form.
- ▶ Marked to market loss or an expected loss is not to be recognized unless recognition of such loss is in accordance with the provisions of any other ICDS.

ICDS II: Valuation of Inventories

- ▶ “Inventories” has been defined to mean assets held for –
  - sale in the ordinary course of business;
  - in the process of production for such sale;
  - in the form of materials or supplies to be consumed in the production process or in the rendering of services.
- ▶ This ICDS requires inventory to be valued at cost or net realizable value, whichever is lower.
- ▶ This ICDS requires disclosure of the accounting policies adopted in measuring inventories including the cost formulae used and the total carrying amount of inventories and its classification appropriate to a person.

ICDS III: Construction Contracts

- ▶ This ICDS is required to be applied in determination of income for a construction contract of a contractor.
- ▶ It recognizes percentage of completion method (POCM) for recognizing contract revenue and contract costs associated with a construction contract.
- ▶ However, contract revenue and contract costs associated with the construction contract, which commenced on or before 31.3.2016 but not completed by the said date, can be recognised based on the method regularly followed by the person prior to the previous year 2016-17.

- ▶ This ICDS also contains certain disclosure requirements, like the amount of contract revenue recognized as revenue in the period, the methods used to determine the stage of completion of contracts in progress etc.

ICDS IV: Revenue Recognition

- ▶ This ICDS deals with the bases for recognition of revenue arising in the course of the ordinary activities of a person from –
  - the sale of goods;
  - the rendering of services;
  - the use by others of the person's resources yielding interest, royalties or dividends.
- ▶ It does not, however, deal with the aspects of revenue recognition which are dealt with by other ICDSs.
- ▶ "Revenue" is the gross inflow of cash, receivables or other consideration arising in the course of the ordinary activities of a person from the sale of goods, from the rendering of services, or from the use by others of the person's resources yielding interest, royalties or dividends. In an agency relationship, the revenue is the amount of commission and not the gross inflow of cash, receivables or other consideration.
- ▶ This ICDS also contains a provision wherein the revenue from sale of goods could be recognized when there is reasonable certainty of its ultimate collection.
- ▶ Revenue from service transactions is required to be recognized on the basis of percentage completion method. However, revenue can be recognised on a straight line basis over a specific period of time, when services are provided by an indeterminate number of acts over such period.
- ▶ Revenue from service contracts with duration of not more than 90 days to be recognised when the rendering of services under that contract is completed or substantially completed.
- ▶ This ICDS contains certain disclosure requirements, like the amount of revenue from service transactions recognized as revenue during the previous year, the method used to determine the stage of completion of service transactions in progress, information relating to service transactions in progress at the end of the previous year etc.

ICDS V: Tangible Fixed Assets

- ▶ This ICDS deals with the treatment of tangible fixed assets.
- ▶ "Tangible fixed asset" is an asset being land, building, machinery, plant or furniture held with the intention of being used for the purpose of producing or providing goods or services and is not held for sale in the normal course of business.

- ▶ This ICDS provides the components of actual cost of such assets and valuation of such assets in special cases.
- ▶ The fair value of a tangible fixed asset acquired in exchange for shares or other securities or another asset shall be its actual cost.
- ▶ The ICDS also provides that depreciation on such assets and income arising on transfer of such assets shall be computed in accordance with the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961.
- ▶ The ICDS also contains disclosure requirements in respect of such assets, like the description of asset or block of assets, rate of depreciation, actual cost or written down value, as the case may be, additions or deductions during the year with dates, depreciation allowable and written down value at the end of the year.

ICDS VI: The Effects of changes in foreign exchange rates

- ▶ This ICDS deals with treatment of transactions in foreign currencies, translating the financial statements of foreign operations and treatment of foreign currency transactions in the nature of forward exchange contracts.
- ▶ This ICDS requires exchange differences arising on settlement of monetary items or conversion thereof at last day of the previous year to be recognized as income or as expense in that previous year.
- ▶ In respect of non-monetary items, exchange differences arising on conversion thereof as at the last day of the previous year shall not be recognized as income or as expense in that previous year.
- ▶ At the last day of each previous year, foreign currency monetary items shall be converted into reporting currency by applying the closing rate.
- ▶ Non-monetary items in a foreign currency shall be converted into reporting currency by using the exchange rate at the date of the transaction.
- ▶ Non-monetary item being inventory which is carried at net realisable value denominated in a foreign currency shall be reported using the exchange rate that existed when such value was determined.
- ▶ The ICDS contains provisions for initial recognition, conversion at the last date of the previous year and recognition of exchange differences. These provisions shall be subject to the provisions of section 43A of the Income-tax Act, 1961 and Rule 115 of the Income-tax Rules, 1962.

ICDS VII: Government Grants

- ▶ This ICDS deals with the treatment of government grants. It recognizes that government grants are sometimes called by other names such as subsidies, cash incentives, duty drawbacks etc.

- ▶ This ICDS does not deal with Government assistance other than in the form of Government grants and Government participation in the ownership of the enterprise.
- ▶ It requires recognition of Government Grants when there is a reasonable assurance that the person shall comply with the conditions attached to them and the grants shall be received. However, it also states that recognition of Government grant shall not be postponed beyond the date of actual receipt.
- ▶ This ICDS requires Government grants relating to depreciable fixed assets to be reduced from actual cost/WDV. It further provides that where the Government grant is not directly relatable to the asset acquired, then a pro-rata reduction of the amount of grant should be made in the same proportion as such asset bears to all assets with reference to which the Government grant is so received.
- ▶ The standard requires grants relating to non-depreciable fixed assets to be recognized as income over the same period over which the cost of meeting such obligations is charged to income.
- ▶ The standard also requires Government grants receivable as compensation for expenses or losses incurred in a previous financial year or for the purpose of giving immediate financial support to the person with no further related costs to be recognized as income of the period in which it is receivable.
- ▶ All other Government Grants have to be recognized as income over the periods necessary to match them with the related costs which they are intended to compensate.
- ▶ The standard contains certain disclosure requirements, like nature and extent of Government grants recognized during the previous year as income, nature and extent of Government grants not recognized during the previous year as income and reasons thereof etc.

ICDS VIII: Securities

- ▶ This ICDS deals with securities.
- ▶ There are two parts. Part A deals with securities held as stock-in-trade. Part B deals with securities held by a scheduled bank or public financial institutions formed under a Central or a State Act or so declared under the Companies Act, 1956 or the Companies Act, 2013.
- ▶ It requires securities (referred to in Part A) to be recognized at actual cost on acquisition, which shall comprise of its purchase price and include acquisition charges like brokerage, fees, tax, duty or cess.

- ▶ The actual cost of a security (referred to in Part A) acquired in exchange for other securities or another asset shall be the fair value of the security so acquired.
- ▶ Subsequently, at the end of any previous year, securities held as stock-in-trade have to be valued at actual cost initially recognized or net realizable value at the end of that previous year, whichever is lower.
- ▶ It goes on to provide that such comparison of actual cost initially recognized and net realizable value has to be done category-wise and not for each individual security.
- ▶ Where actual cost initially recognized cannot be ascertained by reference to specific identification, use of “First in First Out” method or “Weighted Average Cost” formula is permitted for subsequent measurement of securities held as stock-in-trade (other than unlisted or unquoted securities) referred to in Part A.
- ▶ Securities referred to in Part B to be classified, recognised and measured in accordance with the extant guidelines issued by the RBI in this regard. Any claim for deduction in excess of the said guidelines will not be taken into account. To this extent, the provisions of ICDS VI on the effect of changes in foreign exchange rates relating to forward exchange contracts would not apply.

ICDS IX: Borrowing Costs

- ▶ This ICDS deals with the treatment of borrowing costs. It does not deal with the actual or imputed cost of owners' equity and preference share capital.
- ▶ It requires borrowing costs which are directly attributable to the acquisition, construction or production of a qualifying asset to be capitalized as part of the cost of that asset. Other borrowing costs have to be recognized in accordance with the provisions of the Act.
- ▶ Qualifying asset has been defined to mean –
  - land, building, machinery, plant or furniture, being tangible assets;
  - know-how, patents, copyrights, trade marks, licences, franchises or any other business or commercial rights of similar nature, being intangible assets;
  - inventories that require a period of twelve months or more to bring them to a saleable condition.
- ▶ This ICDS requires capitalization of specific borrowing costs and general borrowing costs.
- ▶ This ICDS provides the formula for capitalization of borrowing costs when funds are borrowed generally and used for the purpose of acquisition, construction or production of a qualifying asset.

- ▶ For the purpose of computing the amount of borrowing costs to be capitalized, in a case where the funds are not borrowed specifically for the purposes of acquisition, construction or production of a qualifying asset, a qualifying asset would be such asset that necessarily require a period of 12 months or more for its acquisition, construction or production.
- ▶ It also provides as to when capitalization of borrowing costs would commence and cease.
- ▶ It requires disclosure of the accounting policy adopted for borrowing costs and the amount of borrowing costs capitalized during the year.

ICDS X: Provisions, Contingent Liabilities and Contingent Assets

- ▶ This ICDS deals with Provisions, Contingent Liabilities and Contingent Assets. However, it does not deal with provisions, contingent liabilities and contingent assets –
  - resulting from financial instruments,
  - resulting from executory contracts,
  - arising in insurance business from contracts with policyholders and
  - covered by another ICDS.

It also does not deal with recognition of revenue dealt with by ICDS on Revenue Recognition.

- ▶ The ICDS specifies the conditions for recognition of a provision, namely, existence of a present obligation as a result of a past event, reasonable certainty that outflow of resources embodying economic benefits will be required to settle the obligation and making a reliable estimate of the amount of the obligation.
- ▶ It provides that a person shall not recognize a contingent liability or a contingent asset. However, it requires contingent assets to be assessed continually. When it becomes reasonably certain that inflow of economic benefit will arise, the asset and related income have to be recognized in the previous year in which the change occurs.
- ▶ It contains provisions for measurement and review of a provision and asset and related income.
- ▶ It also provides that a provision shall be used only for expenditures for which the provision was originally recognized.
- ▶ The ICDS also contains specific disclosure requirements in respect of each class of provision, asset and related income recognized.

Clarification on Income Computation and Disclosure Standards (ICDS) notified under section 145(2) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 – [Circular No. 10/2017, dated 23-03-2017]

After notification of ICDS, it was brought to the notice of the CBDT by the stakeholders that certain provisions of ICDS may require amendment/ clarification for proper implementation. The matter was referred to an expert committee. The Committee after duly consulting the stakeholders in this regard has recommended a two-fold approach for the smooth implementation of ICDS i.e., amendment to the provisions of ICDS in respect of certain issues and issuance of clarifications by way of FAQs for the rest of issues.

The CBDT has, vide this circular, issued the following clarification on other issues:

Question 1: Preamble of ICDS I states that this ICDS is applicable for computation of income chargeable under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" or "Income from other sources" and not for the purposes of maintenance of books of account. However, Para 1 of ICDS I states that it deals with significant accounting policies. Accounting policies are applied for maintenance of books of accounts and preparing financial statements. What is the interplay between ICDS I and maintenance of books of accounts?

Answer: As stated in the Preamble, ICDS is not meant for maintenance of books of accounts or preparing financial statements. Persons are required to maintain books of accounts and prepare financial statements as per accounting policies applicable to them. For example, companies are required to maintain books of account and prepare financial statements as per requirements of Companies Act, 2013. The accounting policies mentioned in ICDS-I being fundamental in nature shall be applicable for computing income under the heads "Profits and gains of business or profession" or "Income from other sources".

Question 3: Does ICDS apply to non-corporate taxpayers who are not required to maintain books of account and/or those who are covered by presumptive scheme of taxation like sections 44AD, 44AE, 44ADA, 44B, 44BB, 44BBA, etc. of the Act?

Answer: ICDS is applicable to specified persons having income chargeable under the head 'Profits and gains of business or profession' or 'Income from other sources'. Therefore, the relevant provisions of ICDS shall also apply to the persons computing income under the relevant presumptive taxation scheme. For example, for computing presumptive income of a partnership firm under section 44AD of the Act, the provisions of ICDS on Construction Contract or Revenue recognition shall apply for determining the receipts or turnover, as the case may be.

Question 4: If there is conflict between ICDS and other specific provisions of the Income-tax Rules, 1962 governing taxation of income like rules 9A, 9B etc. of the Rules, which provisions shall prevail?

Answer: ICDS provides general principles for computation of income. In case of conflict, if any, between the provisions of Rules and ICDS, the provisions of Rules, which deal with specific circumstances, shall prevail.

Question 5: ICDS is framed on the basis of accounting standards notified by Ministry of Corporate Affairs (MCA) vide Notification No. GSR 739(E) dated 7th December, 2006 under section 211(3C) of erstwhile Companies Act 1956. However, MCA has notified in February, 2015 a new set of standards called 'Indian Accounting Standards' (Ind-AS). How will ICDS apply to companies which adopted Ind-AS?

Answer: ICDS shall apply for computation of taxable income under the head "Profit and gains of business or profession" or "Income from other sources" under the Income-tax Act. This is irrespective of the accounting standards adopted by companies i.e. either Accounting Standards or Ind-AS.

Question 6: Whether ICDS shall apply to computation of Minimum Alternate Tax (MAT) under section 115JB of the Act or Alternate Minimum Tax (AMT) under section 115JC of the Act?

Answer: MAT under section 115JB of the Act is computed on 'book profit' that is net profit as shown in the Profit and Loss Account prepared under the Companies Act subject to certain specified adjustments. Since, the provisions of ICDS are applicable for computation of income under the regular provisions of the Act, the provisions of ICDS shall not apply for computation of MAT.

AMT under section 115JC of the Act is computed on adjusted total income which is derived by making specified adjustments to total income computed as per the regular provisions of the Act. Hence, the provisions of ICDS shall apply for computation of AMT.

Question 7: Whether the provisions of ICDS shall apply to Banks, Non-banking financial institutions, Insurance companies, Power sector etc.?

Answer: The general provisions of ICDS shall apply to all persons unless there are sector specific provisions contained in the ICDS or the Act. For example, ICDS VIII contains specific provisions for banks and certain financial institutions and Schedule I of the Act contains specific provisions for Insurance business.

Question 8: Para 4(ii) of ICDS-1 provides that Mark to Market (MTM) loss or an expected loss shall not be recognized unless the recognition is in accordance with the provisions of any other ICDS. Whether similar consideration applies to recognition of MTM gain or expected incomes?

Answer: Same principle as contained in ICDS-I relating to MTM losses or an expected loss shall apply mutatis mutandis to MTM gains or an expected profit.

Question 9: ICDS-1 provides that an accounting policy shall not be changed without 'reasonable cause'. The term 'reasonable cause' is not defined. What shall constitute 'reasonable cause'?

Answer: Under the Act, 'reasonable cause' is an existing concept and has evolved well over a period of time conferring desired flexibility to the tax payer in deserving cases.

Question 10: Which ICDS would govern derivative instruments?

Answer: ICDS -VI (subject to para 3 of ICDS-III) provides guidance on accounting for derivative contracts such as forward contracts and other similar contracts. For derivatives, not within the scope of ICDS-VI, provisions of ICDS-1 would apply.

Question 12: Since there is no specific scope exclusion for real estate developers and Build - Operate-Transfer (BOT) projects from ICDS IV on Revenue Recognition, please clarify whether ICDS-III and ICDS-IV should be applied by real estate developers and BOT operators. Also, whether ICDS is applicable for leases.

Answer: At present, there is no specific ICDS notified for real estate developers, BOT projects and leases. Therefore, relevant provisions of the Act and ICDS shall apply to these transactions as may be applicable.

Question 13: The condition of reasonable certainty of ultimate collection is not laid down for taxation of interest, royalty and dividend. Whether the taxpayer is obliged to account for such income even when the collection thereof is uncertain?

Answer: As a principle, interest accrues on time basis and royalty accrues on the basis of contractual terms. Subsequent non-recovery in either cases can be claimed as deduction in view of amendment to section 36(1)(vii). Further, the provision of the Act (e.g. Section 43D) shall prevail over the provisions of ICDS.

Question 14: Whether ICDS is applicable to revenues which are liable to tax on gross basis like interest, royalty and fees for technical services for non-residents u/s. 115A of the Act.

Answer: Yes, the provisions of ICDS, also apply for computation of these incomes on gross basis for arriving at the amount chargeable to tax.

Question 15: Para 8 of ICDS-V states expenditure incurred on commissioning of project, including expenditure incurred on test runs and experimental production shall be capitalized. It also states that expenditure incurred after the plant has begun commercial production i.e., production intended for sale or captive consumption shall be treated as revenue expenditure. What shall be the treatment of expense incurred after the conduct of test runs and experimental production but before commencement of commercial production?

Answer: As clarified in Para 8 of ICDS-V, the expenditure incurred till the plant has begun commercial production, that is, production intended for sale or captive consumption, shall be treated as capital expenditure.

Question 18: If the taxpayer sells a security on 30th April 2019. The interest payment dates are December and June. The actual date of receipt of interest is on 30th June 2019 but the interest on accrual basis has been accounted as income on 31st March 2019. Whether the taxpayer shall be permitted to claim deduction of such interest i.e. offered to tax but not received while computing the capital gain?

Answer: Yes, the amount already taxed as interest income on accrual basis shall be taken into account for computation of income arising from such sale.

Question 19: Para 9 of ICDS-VIII on securities requires securities held as stock-in-trade shall be valued at actual cost initially recognised or net realisable value (NRV) at the end of that previous year, whichever is lower. Para 10 of Part-A of ICDS-VIII requires the said exercise to be carried out category wise. How the same shall be computed?

Answer: For subsequent measurement of securities held as stock-in-trade, the securities are first aggregated category wise. The aggregate cost and NRV of each category of security are compared and the lower of the two is to be taken as carrying value as per ICDS-VIII. This is illustrated below –

Security	Category	Cost	NRV	Lower of cost or NRV	ICDS Value
A	Share	100	75	75	535
B	Share	120	150	120
C	Share	140	120	120
D	Share	200	190	190
	Total	560	535	505
E	Debt Security	150	160	150
F	Debt Security	105	90	90
G	Debt Security	125	135	125
H	Debt Security	220	230	220
	Total	600	615	585
Securities Total		1160	1150	1090	1135

Question 20: There are specific provisions in the Act read with Rules under which a portion of borrowing cost may get disallowed under sections like 14A, 43B, 40(a)(i), 40(a)(ia), 40A(2)(b), etc. of the Act. Whether borrowing costs to be capitalized under ICDS-IX should exclude portion of borrowing costs which gets disallowed under such specific provisions?

Answer: Since specific provisions of the Act override the provisions of ICDS, it is clarified that borrowing costs to be considered for capitalization under ICDS IX shall exclude those borrowing costs which are disallowed under specific provisions of the Act. Capitalization of borrowing cost shall apply for that portion of the borrowing cost which is otherwise allowable as deduction under the Act.

Question 21: Whether bill discounting charges and other similar charges would fall under the definition of borrowing cost?

Answer: The definition of borrowing cost is an inclusive definition. Bill discounting charges and other similar charges are covered as borrowing cost.

Question 22: How to allocate borrowing costs relating to general borrowing as computed in accordance with formula provided under Para 6 of ICDS-IX to different qualifying assets?

Answer: The capitalization of general borrowing cost under ICDS-IX shall be done on asset by-asset basis.

Question 24: Expenditure on most post-retirement benefits like provident fund, gratuity, etc. are covered by specific provisions. There are other post-retirement benefits offered by companies like medical benefits. Such benefits are covered by AS-15 for which no parallel ICDS has been notified. Whether provision for these liabilities are excluded from scope of ICDS X?

Answer: It is clarified that provisioning for employee benefit which are otherwise covered by AS 15 shall continue to be governed by specific provisions of the Act and are not dealt with by ICDS-X.

Question 25: ICDS-1 requires disclosure of significant accounting policies and other ICDS requires specific disclosures. Where is the taxpayer required to make such disclosures specified in ICDS?

Answer: Net effect on the income due to application of ICDS is to be disclosed in the Return of income. The disclosures required under ICDS shall be made in the tax audit report in Form 3CD. However, there shall not be any separate disclosure requirements for persons who are not liable to tax audit.

Student may note that the text of the notified ICDSs has been given as Annexure at the end of this Module.

(ii) Method of Accounting in certain cases (Section 145A)

The Delhi High Court has, in the case of Chamber of Tax Consultants & Anr vs. Union of India & Ors, held that certain provisions of ICDSs are ultra vires the Act, since they seek to overcome binding judicial precedents and are, thus, contrary to the law settled by the Supreme Court and various High Courts.

In order to bring certainty in the wake of such judicial pronouncements section 36(1)(xviii), section 40A(13), section 43AA, section 43CB, section 145A and section 145B have been inserted in the Income-tax Act with effect from A.Y.2017-18.

Section 145A provides that for the purpose of determining the income chargeable under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession:

- (a) the valuation of inventory shall be made at lower of actual cost or net realizable value computed in accordance with notified ICDS i.e., ICDS II "Valuation of inventories".
- (b) the valuation of purchase and sale of goods or services and of inventory shall be adjusted to include the amount of any tax, duty, cess or fee actually paid or incurred by the assessee to bring the goods or services to the place of its location and condition as on the date of valuation.

- (c) inventory being securities not listed or listed but not quoted on a recognised stock exchange with regularity from time to time shall be valued at actual cost initially recognised in accordance with the notified ICDS i.e., ICDS VIII: Securities.
- (d) inventory being listed and quoted securities, shall be valued at lower of actual cost or net realisable value in accordance with notified ICDS i.e., ICDS VIII: Securities. Such comparison of actual cost and net realisable value shall be done category-wise.

However, inventories being securities held by a scheduled bank or public financial institution shall be valued in accordance with notified ICDS after taking into account the extant guidelines issued by the RBI.

Note: Student may note that section 36(1)(xviii), section 40A(13), section 43AA, section 43CB, and section 145B are discussed at respective places in this chapter.

6.3 INCOME CHARGEABLE UNDER THIS HEAD [SECTION 28]

The various items of income chargeable to tax as income under the head 'profits and gains of business or profession' are as under:

- (1) Income from business, profession or vocation: Income arising to any person by way of profits and gains from the business, profession or vocation carried on by him at any time during the previous year.
- (2) Any compensation or other payment due to or received by:
  - (i) Any person, by whatever name called, managing the whole or substantially the whole of -
    - (a) the affairs of an Indian company or
    - (b) the affairs in India of any other companyat or in connection with the termination of his management or office or the modification of any of the terms and conditions relating thereto;
  - (ii) any person, by whatever name called, holding an agency in India for any part of the activities relating to the business of any other person, at or in connection with the termination of the agency or the modification of any of the terms and conditions relating thereto;

- (iii) any person, for or in connection with the vesting in the Government or any corporation owned or controlled by the Government under any law for the time being in force, of the management of any property or business;
- (iv) any person, by whatever name called, at or in connection with the termination or modification of the terms and conditions, of any contract relating to his business.

- (3) Income from specific services performed for its members by a trade, professional or business: Income derived by any trade, professional or similar associations from specific services rendered by them to their members. It may be noted that this forms an exception to the general principle governing the assessment of income of mutual associations such as chambers of commerce, stock brokers' associations etc.

As a result, a trade, professional or similar association performing specific services for its members is to be deemed as carrying on business in respect of these services and on that assumption the income arising therefrom is to be subjected to tax. For this purpose, it is not necessary that the income received by the association should be definitely or directly related to these services.

- (4) Incentives received or receivable by assessee carrying on export business:

- (i) Profit on sale of import entitlements: Profits on sale of a licence granted under the Imports (Control) Order, 1955<sup>1</sup> made under the Imports and Exports (Control) Act, 1947<sup>2</sup>.
- (ii) Cash assistance against exports under any scheme of Govt: Cash assistance (by whatever name called) received or receivable by any person against exports under any scheme of the Government of India.
- (iii) Customs duty or excise duty re-paid or repayable as drawback: Any Customs duty or Excise duty drawback repaid or repayable to any person against export under the Customs and Central Excise Duties Drawback Rules, 1971<sup>3</sup>.
- (iv) Profit on transfer of Duty Entitlement Pass Book Scheme or Duty Free Replenishment Certificate: Any profit on the transfer of the Duty Entitlement Pass Book Scheme<sup>4</sup> or Duty Free Replenishment Certificate, being Duty Remission Scheme, under the export and import policy formulated and announced under section 5 of the Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992.

<sup>4</sup> The pre-export DEPB scheme was abolished with effect from 1 April 2000. After several extensions through the years, the post-export scheme was phased out on 30 September 2011 and thereafter DEPB items were incorporated into the Duty Drawback Schedule with effect from 1 October 2011

- (5) Value of any benefit or perquisite: The value of any benefit or perquisite whether convertible into money or not, arising from business or the exercise of any profession.
- (6) Sum due to, or received by, a partner of a firm: Any interest, salary, bonus, commission or remuneration, by whatever name called, due to or received by a partner of a firm from such firm will be deemed to be income from business. However, where any interest, salary, bonus, commission or remuneration by whatever name called, or any part thereof has not been allowed to be deducted under section 40(b), in the computation of the income of the firm the income to be taxed shall be adjusted to the extent of the amount disallowed.

Example:

Suppose a firm pays interest to a partner at 20% simple interest p.a. The allowable rate of interest is 12% p.a. Hence the excess 8% paid will be disallowed in the hands of the firm. Since the excess interest has suffered tax in the hands of the firm, the same will not be taxed in the hands of the partner.

- (7) Any sum received or receivable, in cash or kind, under an agreement
- (i) for not carrying out any activity in relation to any business or profession; or

However, the following sums received or receivable would not be chargeable to tax under the head “profits and gains from business or profession”:

- (a) any sum, whether received or receivable, in cash or kind, on account of transfer of the right to manufacture, produce or process any article or thing or right to carry on any business or profession, which is chargeable under the head “Capital gains”.
- (b) any sum received as compensation, from the multilateral fund of the Montreal Protocol on Substances that Deplete the Ozone layer under the United Nations Environment Programme, in accordance with the terms of agreement entered into with the Government of India.

- (ii) for not sharing any know-how, patent, copyright, trade mark, licence, franchise or any other business or commercial right of similar nature or information or technique likely to assist in the manufacture or processing of goods or provision for services.

Meaning of certain terms

Term	Meaning
Agreement	Includes any arrangement or understanding or action in concert, - (A) whether or not such arrangement, understanding or action is formal or in writing; or (B) whether or not such arrangement, understanding or action is intended to be enforceable by legal proceedings;

Service	Service of any description which is made available to potential users and includes the provision of services in connection with business of any industrial or commercial nature such as accounting, banking, communication, conveying of news or information, advertising, entertainment, amusement, education, financing, insurance, chit funds, real estate, construction, transport, storage, processing, supply of electrical or other energy, boarding and lodging.

- (8) Any sum received under a Keyman insurance policy: Any sum received under a Keyman insurance policy including the sum allocated by way of bonus on such policy will be taxable as income from business.
- (9) Fair market value of inventory on its conversion as capital asset: Fair market value of inventory on the date of its conversion or treatment as capital asset, determined in the prescribed manner, would be chargeable to tax as business income<sup>5</sup>.
- (10) Sum received on account of capital asset referred under section 35AD: Any sum received or receivable, in cash or kind, on account of any capital asset (in respect of which whole of the expenditure on such capital asset has been allowed as a deduction under section 35AD) being demolished, destroyed, discarded or transferred.

6.4 SPECULATION BUSINESS

Explanation 2 to section 28 specifically provides that where an assessee carries on speculative business, that business of the assessee must be deemed as distinct and separate from any other business.

This becomes necessary because section 73 provides that losses in speculation business unlike other business, cannot be set-off against the profits of any business other than a speculation business.

Likewise, a loss in speculation business carried forward to a subsequent year can be set-off only against the profit and gains of any speculative business in the subsequent year.

Profits and losses resulting from speculative transaction must, therefore, be treated as separate and distinct from profits and gains of business and profession from any other business.

(1) Meaning of Speculative Transaction

“Speculative transaction” means a transaction in which a contract for the purchase or sales of any commodity including stocks and shares, is periodically or ultimately settled otherwise than by the actual delivery or transfer of the commodity or scrips [section 43(5)].

<sup>5</sup> Rule 11UAB inserted to prescribe the manner of determination of fair market value (FMV) of the inventory on the date of conversion. For detailed reading of 11UAB of the Income-tax Rules, 1962, students may visit <https://www.incometaxindia.gov.in/Pages/default.aspx>

Where any part of the business of a company consists in the purchase and sale of the shares of other companies, such a company shall be deemed to be carrying on speculation business to the extent to which the business consists of the purchase and sale of such shares.

However, this deeming provision does not apply to the following companies –

- (i) A company whose gross total income consists of mainly income chargeable under the heads “Interest on securities”, “Income from house property”, “Capital gains” and “Income from other sources”;
- (ii) A company, the principal business of which is –
  - (a) the business of trading in shares; or
  - (b) the business of banking; or
  - (c) the granting of loans and advances.

Accordingly, if these companies carry on the business of purchase and sale of shares of other companies, they would not be deemed to be carrying on speculation business. [Explanation to section 73]

(2) Transaction not deemed to be speculative transaction

The following forms of transactions shall not be deemed to be speculative transaction:

- (i) Hedging contract in respect of raw materials or merchandise: A contract in respect of raw materials or merchandise entered into by a person in the course of his manufacturing or merchandising business to guard against loss through future price fluctuations in respect of his contracts for the actual delivery of goods manufactured by him or merchandise sold by him; or
- (ii) Hedging contract in respect of stocks and shares: A contract in respect of stocks and shares entered into by a dealer or investor therein to guard against loss in his holdings of stocks and shares through price fluctuation; or
- (iii) Forward contract: A contract entered into by a member of a forward market or stock exchange in the course of any transaction in the nature of jobbing or arbitrage to guard against any loss which may arise in the ordinary course of his business as a member; or
- (iv) Trading in derivatives: An eligible transaction carried out in respect of trading in derivatives in a recognized stock exchange.

Meaning of certain terms

Term	Meaning
Eligible transaction	Any transaction,— (A) carried out electronically on screen-based systems through a stock broker or sub-broker or such other

	intermediary registered under section 12 of the Securities and Exchange Board of India Act, 1992 in accordance with the provisions of the Securities Contracts (Regulation) Act, 1956 or the Securities and Exchange Board of India Act, 1992 or the Depositories Act, 1996 and the rules, regulations or bye-laws made or directions issued under those Acts or by banks or mutual funds on a recognised stock exchange; and (B) which is supported by a time stamped contract note issued by such stock broker or sub-broker or such other intermediary to every client indicating in the contract note, the unique client identity number allotted under any Act referred to in (A) above and permanent account number;

- (v) Trading in commodity derivatives: An eligible transaction in respect of trading in commodity derivatives carried out in a recognized association, which is chargeable to commodities transaction tax under Chapter VII of the Finance Act, 2013.

However, the requirement of chargeability of commodities transaction tax is not applicable in respect of trading in agricultural commodity derivatives from A.Y. 2019-20.

Meaning of certain terms

Term	Meaning
Eligible transaction	Any transaction,— (A) carried out electronically on screen-based systems through a member or an intermediary registered under the bye-laws, rules and regulations of the recognized association for trading in commodity derivative in accordance with the provisions of the Forward Contracts (Regulation) Act, 1952 and the rules, regulations or bye-laws made or directions issued under that Act on a recognized association; and (B) which is supported by a time stamped contract note issued by such member or an intermediary to every client indicating in the contract note, the unique client identity number allotted under the Act, rules, regulations or bye-laws referred to in (A) above, unique trade number and permanent account number

6.5 COMPUTATION OF PROFITS AND GAINS FROM BUSINESS OR PROFESSION [SECTION 29]

According to section 29, the profits and gains of any business or profession are to be computed in accordance with the provisions contained in sections 30 to 43D. It must, however, be remembered that in addition to the specific allowances and deductions stated in sections 30 to 36, the Act further permits allowance of items of expenses under the residuary section 37(1), which extends the allowance to items of business expenditure not covered by sections 30 to 36, where these are allowable according to accepted commercial practices.

6.6 ADMISSIBLE DEDUCTIONS

(1) Rent, rates, repairs and insurance for buildings [Section 30]

Section 30 allows deduction in respect of the rent, rates, taxes, repairs and insurance of buildings used by the assessee for the purpose of his business or profession.

- Where the premises are occupied by the assessee as a tenant, the rent paid for such premises and the amount paid on account of cost of repairs, if the assessee has undertaken to bear such repairs to the premises.
- Premises sub-let: Where the assessee has sublet a part of the premises, the allowance under the section would be confined to the difference between the rent paid by the assessee and the rent recovered from the sub-tenant.

The rent payable would be an allowable deduction under this section even though the income from the property in respect of which it is paid may be exempt from taxation in the hands of the owner.

- Occupation of premises by the assessee being the owner: Where the assessee himself is owner of the premises and occupies them for his business purposes, no notional rent would be allowed under this section. However, where a firm runs its business in the premises owned by one of its partners, the rent payable to the partner will be an allowable deduction to the extent it is reasonable and is not excessive.

- Repairs of the premises: Apart from rent, this section allows deductions in respect of expenses incurred on account of repairs to building in case where
  - ◆ the assessee is the owner of the building or
  - ◆ the assessee is a tenant who has undertaken to bear the cost of repairs to the premises.
  - ◆ Even if the assessee occupies the premises otherwise than as a tenant or owner, i.e., as a lessee, licensee or mortgagee with possession, he is entitled to a deduction under the section in respect of current repairs to the premises.
- Cost of repairs and current repairs of capital nature not to be allowed as deduction [Explanation to section 30]: Amount paid on account of the cost of repairs to the premises occupied by the assessee as a tenant and the amount paid on account of current repairs to the premises occupied by the assessee, otherwise than as a tenant, shall not include any capital nature expenditure. In other words, cost of repairs and current repairs other than of capital nature is allowed as deduction while computing business income.
- Other expenses: In addition, deductions are allowed in respect of expenses by way of land revenue, local rates, municipal taxes and insurance in respect of the premises used for the purposes of the business or profession. Cesses, rates and taxes levied by a foreign Government are also allowed.
- Premises used partly for business and partly for other purposes: Where the premises are used partly for business and partly for other purposes, only a proportionate part of the expenses attributable to that part of the premises used for purposes of business will be allowed as a deduction [Section 38(1)].

(2) Repairs and insurance of machinery, plant and furniture [Section 31]

Section 31 allows deduction in respect of the expenses on current repairs and insurance of machinery, plant and furniture in computing the income from business or profession.

- Usage of the asset: In order to claim this deduction the assets must have been used for purposes of the assessee's own business the profits of which are being taxed.

The word 'used' has to be read in a wide sense so as to include a passive as well as an active user. Thus, insurance and repair charges of assets which have been discarded (though owned by the assessee) or have not been used for the business during the previous year would not be allowed as a deduction.

Even if an asset is used for a part of the previous year, the assessee is entitled to the deduction of the full amount of expenses on repair and insurance charges and not merely an amount proportionate to the period of use.

- Repairs exclude replacement or reconstruction: The term 'repairs' will include renewal or renovation of an asset but not its replacement or reconstruction.

Also, the deduction allowable under this section is only of current repairs but not arrears of repairs for earlier years even though they may still rank for a deduction under section 37(1).

- Insurance premium: The deduction allowable in respect of premia paid for insuring the machinery, plant or furniture is subject to the following conditions:
  - ◆ The insurance must be against the risk of damage or destruction of the machinery, plant or furniture.
  - ◆ The assets must be used by the assessee for the purposes of his business or profession during the accounting year.
  - ◆ The premium should have been actually paid (or payable under the mercantile system of accounting).

The premium may even take the form of contribution to a trade association which undertakes to indemnify and insure its members against loss; such premium or contribution would be deductible as an allowance under this section even if a part of it is returnable to the insured in certain circumstances.

It does not matter if the payment of the claim will enure to the benefit of someone other than the owner.

- Current repairs of capital nature not to be allowed [Explanation to section 31]: Amount paid on account of current repairs of machinery, plant or furniture shall not include any capital nature expenditure. In other words, current repairs other than of capital nature expenditure is allowed as deduction in the computation of income under the head "profits and gains of business or profession".
- Machinery, plant and furniture used partly for business and partly for other purposes: Where the machinery, plant and furniture are used partly for business and partly for other purposes, only a proportionate part of the expenses attributable to that part of the machinery, plant and furniture used for purposes of business will be allowed as a deduction [Section 38(2)].

(3) Depreciation [Section 32]

- (1) Charge of depreciation mandatory: Section 32 allows a deduction in respect of depreciation resulting from the diminution or exhaustion in the value of certain capital assets.

The Explanation 5 to this section provides that deduction on account of depreciation shall be made compulsorily, whether or not the assessee has claimed the deduction in computing his total income.

(2) Conditions to be satisfied for allowance of depreciation: The allowance of depreciation which is regulated by Rule 5 of the Income-tax Rules, 1962, is subject to the following conditions which are cumulative in their application.

(a) The assets in respect of which depreciation is claimed must belong to either of the following categories, namely:

- (1) buildings, machinery, plant or furniture, being tangible assets;
- (2) know-how, patents, copyrights, trademarks, licences, franchises or any other business or commercial rights of similar nature, being intangible assets acquired on or after 1st April, 1998.
  - ❖ The depreciation in the value of any other capital assets cannot be claimed as a deduction from the business income.
  - ❖ No depreciation is allowable on the cost of the land on which the building is erected because the term 'building' refers only to superstructure but not the land on which it has been erected.
  - ❖ The term 'plant' as defined in section 43(3) includes ships, vehicle, books, scientific apparatus and surgical equipments used for the purpose of the business or profession but does not include tea bushes or livestock or buildings or furniture and fittings.
  - ❖ However, the word 'plant' does not include an animal, human body or stock-in-trade. Thus plant includes all goods and chattels, fixed or movable, which a businessman keeps for employment in his business with some degree of durability.
  - ❖ The expression 'plant' includes part of a plant (e.g., the engine of a vehicle); machinery includes part of a machinery and building includes a part of the building.
  - ❖ Similarly, the term 'buildings' includes within its scope roads, bridges, culverts, wells and tubewells.

(b) The assets should be actually used by the assessee for purposes of his business or profession during the previous year - The asset must be put to use at any time during the previous year. The amount of depreciation allowance is not proportionate to the period of use during the previous year.

Asset used for less than 180 days - However, it has been provided that where any asset is acquired by the assessee during the previous year and is put to use for the purposes of business or profession for a period of less than 180 days, depreciation shall be allowed at 50 per cent of the allowable depreciation according to the percentage prescribed in respect of the block of assets comprising such asset. It is significant to note that this restriction applies only to the year of acquisition and not for subsequent years.

➔ If the assets are not used exclusively for the business of the assessee but for other purposes as well, the depreciation allowable would be a proportionate part of the depreciation allowance to which the assessee would be otherwise entitled. This is provided in section 38.

Depreciation would be allowable to the owner even in respect of assets which are actually worked or utilized by another person e.g., a lessee or licensee. The deduction on account of depreciation would be allowed under this section to the owner who has let on hire his building, machinery, plant or furniture provided that letting out of such assets is the business of the assessee. In other cases where the letting out of such assets does not constitute the business of the assessee, the deduction on account of depreciation would still be allowable under section 57(ii).

Use includes passive use in certain circumstances: One of the conditions for claim of depreciation is that the asset must be “used for the purpose of business or profession”. Courts have held that, in certain circumstances, an asset can be said to be in use even when it is “kept ready for use”.

For example, stand by equipment and fire extinguishers can be capitalized if they are ‘ready for use’.

Likewise, machinery spares which can be used only in connection with an item of tangible fixed asset and their use is expected to be irregular, has to be capitalised. Hence, in such cases, the term “use” embraces both active use and passive use. However, such passive use should also be for business purposes.

- (c) The assessee must own the assets, wholly or partly - In the case of buildings, the assessee must own the superstructure and not necessarily the land on which the building is constructed. In such cases, the assessee should be a lessee of the land on which the building stands and the lease deed must provide that the building will belong to the lessor of the land upon the expiry of the period of lease. Thus, no depreciation will be allowed to an assessee in respect of an asset which he does not own but only uses or hires for purposes of his business.

➔ However, in this connection, students may note that the Explanation 1 to section 32 provides that where the business or profession of the assessee is carried on in a building not owned by him but in respect of which the assessee holds a lease or other right of occupancy, and any capital expenditure is incurred by the assessee for the purposes of the business or profession or the construction of any structure or doing of any work by way of renovation, extension or improvement to the building, then depreciation will be allowed as if the said structure or work is a building owned by the assessee.

Depreciation is allowable not only in respect of assets “wholly” owned by the assessee but also in respect of assets “partly” owned by him and used for the purposes of his business or profession.

(3) Computation of Depreciation Allowance: Depreciation allowance will be calculated on the following basis:

(i) Power generation undertakings: In the case of assets of an undertaking engaged in generation or generation and distribution of power, such percentage on the actual cost to the assessee as prescribed by Rule 5(1A).

Rule 5(1A) - As per this rule, the depreciation on the abovementioned assets shall be calculated at the percentage of the actual cost at rates specified in Appendix IA of these rules. However, the aggregate depreciation allowed in respect of any asset for different assessment years shall not exceed the actual cost of the asset. It is further provided that such an undertaking as mentioned above has the option of being allowed depreciation on the written down value of such block of assets as are used for its business at rates specified in Appendix I to these rules.

However, such option must be exercised before the due date for furnishing return under section 139(1) for the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which it begins to generate power.

It is further provided that any such option once exercised shall be final and shall apply to all subsequent assessment years.

(ii) Block of assets: In the case of any block of assets, at such percentage of the written down value of the block, as may be prescribed by Rule 5(1).

Block of Assets: A “block of assets” is defined in section 2(11), as a group of assets falling within a class of assets comprising—

- (a) tangible assets, being buildings, machinery, plant or furniture;
  - (b) intangible assets, being know-how, patents, copyrights, trademarks, licenses, franchises or any other business or commercial rights of similar nature,
- in respect of which the same percentage of depreciation is prescribed.

Know-how - In this context, ‘know-how’ means any industrial information or technique likely to assist in the manufacture or processing of goods or in the working of a mine, oil-well or other sources of mineral deposits (including searching for discovery or testing of deposits for the winning of access thereto).

- (iii) Additional depreciation on Plant & Machinery [Section 32(iia)]: Additional depreciation is allowed on any new machinery or plant (other than ships and aircraft) acquired and installed after 31.3.2005 by an assessee engaged in the business of manufacture or production of any article or thing or in the business of generation or transmission or distribution of power at the rate of 20% of the actual cost of such machinery or plant.

Such additional depreciation will not be available in respect of:

- (i) any machinery or plant which, before its installation by the assessee, was used within or outside India by any other person; or
- (ii) any machinery or plant installed in office premises, residential accommodation, or in any guest house; or
- (iii) office appliances or road transport vehicles; or
- (iv) any machinery or plant, the whole or part of the actual cost of which is allowed as a deduction (whether by way of depreciation or otherwise) in computing the income chargeable under the head "Profits and Gains of Business or Profession" of any one previous year.

Asset put to use for less than 180 days: As per second proviso to section 32(1)(ii), 50% of additional depreciation to be allowed, where the plant and machinery is put to use for less than 180 days during the previous year in which such asset is acquired.

Further, third proviso to section 32(1)(ii) also provides that the balance 50% of the additional depreciation on new plant or machinery acquired and used for less than 180 days which has not been allowed in the year of acquisition and installation of such plant or machinery, shall be allowed in the immediately succeeding previous year.

Eligibility for grant of additional depreciation under section 32(1)(ia) in the case of an assessee engaged in printing or printing and publishing [Circular No. 15/2016, dated 19-5-2016]

An assessee, engaged in the business of manufacture or production of an article or thing, is eligible to claim additional depreciation under section 32(1)(ia) in addition to the normal depreciation under section 32(1).

The CBDT has, vide this Circular, clarified that the business of printing or printing and publishing amounts to manufacture or production of an article or thing and is, therefore, eligible for additional depreciation under section 32(1)(ia).

- (iv) Terminal depreciation: In case of a power concern as covered under clause (i) above, if any asset is sold, discarded, demolished or otherwise destroyed in the previous year (other than the previous year in which it is first brought into use), the depreciation amount will be the amount by which the moneys payable in respect of such building, machinery, plant or furniture, together with the amount of scrap value, if any, falls short of the written down value thereof. The depreciation will be available only if the deficiency is actually written off in the books of the assessee.

Term	Meaning
Moneys payable	In respect of any building, machinery, plant or furniture includes— (a) any insurance, salvage or compensation moneys payable in respect thereof; (b) where the building, machinery, plant or furniture is sold, the price for which it is sold, so,
Sold	Includes a transfer by way of exchange or a compulsory acquisition under any law for the time being in force but does not include a transfer, in a scheme of amalgamation, of any asset by the amalgamating company to the amalgamated company where the amalgamated company is an Indian company or a transfer of any asset by a banking company to a banking institution in a scheme of amalgamation of such banking company with the banking institution, sanctioned and brought into force by the Central Government.

Clarification regarding treatment of expenditure incurred on purchase of participating interest by the Oil Exploration and Production (E&P) Companies [Circular No. 20/2019, dated 19.08.2019]

Over the life cycle of an Oil & Gas block, Oil Exploration and Production (E&P) companies generally buy ('Farm in') and sell ('Farm out') their participating interests (PI) in the 'Production Sharing Agreement' (PSC). 'Farm-in' expenditure is incurred when an entity in this line of business acquires a PI from another entity(s) in oil/gas block(s) and becomes part of the PSC entered into with the Central Government.

The Government of India (GoI) offers exploration and development rights through global bidding for specified blocks in various rounds under the New Exploration and Licensing Policy (NELP), Hydrocarbon Exploration & Licensing Policy (HELP), Open Acreage Licensing Policy (OALP) etc. by signing the Production Sharing Contracts (PSC's) with the Oil & Gas companies. The successful Oil & Gas Companies are granted license to explore, develop and carry out production operations in Oil & Gas blocks and in India under a PSC with the GoI. Typically, owing to the large investments required and the risks involved, multiple E&P companies execute the PSC with the GoI in which each member has its agreed and defined PI.

It is common international practice for the upstream companies to buy (farm-in) and sale (farm-out) their PI in the PSC or similar contracts with the Government and thereby to share risk, bring new and niche expertise and technologies. In such transactions, PI are treated as interests in rights, licences and obligation under the PSC. Such farm-in purchase price is accounted as an asset as per guidance note issued by the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India. International accounting rules for Oil & Gas followed in Australia, Indonesia, UK etc. also require that such acquisition cost to be capitalized and depreciated. A perusal of the Model PSC's {as per the website of the Director General of Hydrocarbon (DGH)} indicates that participating interests are share in rights and obligation to explore, exploit and sell petroleum under the PSC along with related licences, permits etc. A few of the case-laws on this issue also support treatment of acquisition rights in a PSC as Intangible asset.

In this regard, it is relevant to mention that earlier vide Notification No. G.S.R. 117(E) dated 08.03.1996, in exercise of its powers under section 293A of the Act, Central Government had laid down that the persons with whom it enters into agreement for the association or participation in any business consisting of the prospecting for or extraction or production of mineral oils on or after the 1st day of April, 1992 -

- a) shall not be assessed on the income as association of persons or body of individuals consisting of such persons; but
- b) each of the persons referred to above be assessed in respect of his or its share of income, as the case may be, in the same status in which the person enters into the agreement with the Central Government.

Thus, as persons participating in an E&P contract are assessed individually in respect of their share of income, the sum expended on acquisition of whole or part of such 'Participating Interest' in an E&P contract where such acquisition is approved by the Government of India, represents the amount paid to acquire the underlying share (expressed as a percentage) being interests in rights, licences and obligations under the E&P contract.

In view of the above legal position, it is hereby clarified as under:-

- i. amount paid for acquiring the 'Participating Interest' shall not be treated either as cost for acquiring the share in partnership or investment for acquisition of a member's interest in an association of persons or body of individuals, rather it would be treated as an amount paid to acquire the underlying assets; and\

ii. the amount paid for acquiring the 'Participating Interest', after reducing component of cost attributable to tangible assets for purposes of section 32(1)(i), would be treated as an 'intangible asset' (being a business or commercial right akin to a licence), eligible for claim of depreciation for purposes of section 32(1)(ii).

- (4) Rates of depreciation: All assets have been divided into four main categories and rates of depreciation as prescribed by Rule 5(1) are given below:

PART A TANGIBLE ASSETS
I	Buildings
Block 1.	Buildings which are used mainly for residential purposes except hotels and boarding houses	5%
Block 2.	Buildings which are not used mainly for residential purposes and not covered by Block (1) above and (3) below	10%
Block 3.	Buildings acquired on or after 1st September, 2002 for installing machinery and plant forming part of water supply project or water treatment system and which is put to use for the purpose of business of providing infrastructure facilities	40%
Block 4.	Purely temporary erections such as wooden structures	40%
II	Furniture and Fittings
Block 1.	Furniture and fittings including electrical fittings ["Electrical fittings" include electrical wiring, switches, sockets, other fittings and fans, etc.]	10%
III	Plant &amp; Machinery
Block 1.	(i) Motor cars other than those used in a business of running them on hire, [acquired during the period from 23.8.2019 to 31.3.2020 and put to use on or before 31.3.2020]	30%
	(ii) Motor cars other than those used in a business of running them on hire, acquired or put to use on or after 1-4-1990 [Other than mentioned in (i) above]	15%
Block 2.	(i) Motor buses, motor lorries and motor taxis used in a business of running them on hire, acquired during the period from 23.8.2019 to 31.3.2020 and put to use on or before 31.3.2020	45%
	(ii) Motors buses, motor lorries, motor taxis used in the business of running them on hire [Other than mentioned in (i) above]	30%
Block 3.	Moulds used in rubber and plastic goods factories	30%

Block 4.	Aeroplanes, Aeroengines	40%
Block 5.	Specified air pollution control equipments, water pollution control equipments, solid waste control equipment and solidwaste recycling	40%
Block 6.	Plant & Machinery used in semi-conductor industry covering all Integrated Circuits (ICs)	30%
Block 7.	Life saving medical equipments	40%
Block 8.	Machinery and plant, acquired and installed on or after the 1st day of September, 2002 in a water supply project or a water treatment system and which is put to use for the purpose of business of providing infrastructure facility	40%
Block 9.	Oil wells	15%
Block 10.	Renewable Energy Saving Devices (as specified)	40%
	(i) Windmills and any specially designed devices which run on windmills installed on or after 1.4.2014	40%
	(ii) Any special devices including electric generators and pumps running on wind energy installed on or after 1.4.2014 would be eligible for depreciation	40%
	(iii) Windmills and any specially designed devices running on windmills installed on or before 31.3.2014 and any special devices including electric generators and pumps running on wind energy installed on or before 31.3.2014	15%
Block 11.	Computers including computer software	40%
Block 12.	Books (annual publications or other than annual publications) owned by assessee carrying on a profession	40%
Block 13.	Books owned by assessee carrying on business in running lending libraries	40%
Block 14.	Plant & machinery (General rate)	15%
IV	Ships
Block 1.	Ocean-going ships	20%
Block 2.	Vessels ordinarily operating on inland waters not covered by Block 3 below	20%
Block 3.	Speed boats operating on inland water	20%

PART B INTANGIBLE ASSETS
Know-how, patents, copyrights, trademarks, licences, franchises or any other business or commercial rights of similar nature	25%

Note: Students should refer to Income-tax Rules, 1962 for the detailed classification of assets under Rule 5(1) and the rate of depreciation applicable thereto.

(5) Increased rate of depreciation for certain assets [Rule 5(2)]

Any new machinery or plant installed to manufacture or produce any article or thing by using any technology or other know-how developed in or is an article or thing invented in a laboratory owned or financed by the Government or a laboratory owned by a public sector company or a University or an institution recognized by the Secretary, Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, Government of India shall be treated as a part of the block of assets qualifying for depreciation @40% of Written down value.

Conditions to be fulfilled:

1. The right to use such technology or other know-how or to manufacture or produce such article or thing has been acquired from the owner of such laboratory or any person deriving title from such owner.
2. The return filed by the assessee for any previous year in which the said machinery is acquired, should be accompanied by a certificate from the Secretary, Department of Scientific and Industrial Research, Government of India to the effect that such article or thing is manufactured or produced by using such technology or other know-how developed in such laboratory or such article or thing has been invented in that laboratory.
3. The machinery or plant is not used for the purpose of business of manufacture or production of any article or thing specified in the Eleventh schedule.

The depreciation ordinarily allowable to an assessee in respect of any block of assets shall be calculated at the above specified rates on the WDV of such block of assets as are used for the purposes of the business or profession of the assessee at any time during the previous year.

Total depreciation	12,90,000	60,000

Working Notes:

(1) Computation of written down value of Plant & Machinery as on 31.03.2020

Particulars	Plant & Machinery (₹)	Computer (₹)
Written down value as on 1.4.2019	30,00,000	-
Add: Plant & Machinery purchased on 08.6.2019	20,00,000	-
Add: Plant & Machinery acquired on 15.12.2019	8,00,000	-
Computer acquired and installed in the office premises	-	3,00,000
Written down value as on 31.03.2020	58,00,000	3,00,000

(2) Composition of plant and machinery included in the WDV as on 31.3.2020

Particulars	Plant & Machinery (₹)	Computer (₹)
Plant and machinery put to use for 180 days or more [₹ 30,00,000 (Opening WDV) + ₹ 20,00,000 (purchased on 8.6.2019)]	50,00,000
Plant and machinery put to use for less than 180 days	8,00,000
Computers put to use for less than 180 days		3,00,000
	58,00,000	3,00,000

Notes:

- As per the second proviso to section 32(1)(ii), where an asset acquired during the previous year is put to use for less than 180 days in that previous year, the amount of deduction allowable as normal depreciation and additional depreciation would be restricted to 50% of amount computed in accordance with the prescribed percentage.

Therefore, normal depreciation on plant and machinery acquired and put to use on 15.12.2019 and computer acquired and installed on 02.01.2020, is restricted to 50% of 15% and 40%, respectively. The additional depreciation on the said plant and machinery is restricted to ₹ 80,000, being 10% (i.e., 50% of 20%) of ₹ 8 lakh.

- As per third proviso to section 32(1)(ii), the balance additional depreciation of ₹ 80,000 being 50% of ₹ 1,60,000 (20% of ₹ 8,00,000) would be allowed as deduction in the A.Y.2021-22

- As per section 32(1)(iia), additional depreciation is allowable in the case of any new machinery or plant acquired and installed after 31.3.2005 by an assessee engaged, inter alia, in the business of manufacture or production of any article or thing, @20% of the actual cost of such machinery or plant.

However, additional depreciation shall not be allowed in respect of, inter alia, any machinery or plant installed in office premises, residential accommodation or in any guest house.

Accordingly, additional depreciation is not allowable on computer installed in the office premises.

ILLUSTRATION 2

A newly qualified Chartered Accountant Mr. Dhaval, commenced practice and has acquired the following assets in his office during F.Y. 2019-20 at the cost shown against each item. Calculate the amount of depreciation that can be claimed from his professional income for A.Y.2020-21. Assume that all the assets were purchased by way of account payee cheque.

Sl. No.	Description	Date of acquisition	Date when put to use	Amount ₹
1.	Computer including computer software	27 Sept., 19	1 Oct., 19	35,000
2.	Computer UPS	2 Oct., 19	8 Oct., 19	8,500
3.	Computer printer	1 Oct., 19	1 Oct., 19	12,500
4.	Books (of which books being annual publications are of ₹ 12,000)	1 Apr., 19	1 Apr., 19	13,000
5.	Office furniture (Acquired from a practising C.A.)	1 Apr., 19	1 Apr., 19	3,00,000
6.	Laptop	26 Sep., 19	8 Oct., 19	43,000

SOLUTION

Computation of depreciation allowable for A.Y.2020-21

Asset	Rate	Depreciation
Block 1 Furniture [See working note below]	10%	30,000
Block 2 Plant (Computer including computer software, computer UPS, laptop, computer printer & books)	40%	34,500
Total depreciation allowable		64,500

Working Notes:

Computation of depreciation

Block of Assets	₹
Block 1: Furniture – [Rate of depreciation - 10%]
Put to use for more than 180 days [₹ 3,00,000@10%]	30,000
Block 2: Plant [Rate of depreciation - 40%]
(a) Computer including computer software (put to use for more than 180 days) [₹ 35,000 @ 40%]	14,000
(b) Computer UPS (put to use for less than 180 days) [₹ 8,500@ 20%] [See note below]	1,700

(c) Computer Printer (put to use for more than 180 days) [₹ 12,500 @ 40%]	5,000
(d) Laptop (put to use for less than 180 days) [₹ 43,000 @ 20%] [See note below]	8,600
(e) Books (being annual publications or other than annual publications) (Put to use for more than 180 days) [₹ 13,000 @ 40%]	5,200
	34,500

Note - Where an asset is acquired by the assessee during the previous year and is put to use for the purposes of business or profession for a period of less than 180 days, the deduction on account of depreciation would be restricted to 50% of the prescribed rate. In this case, since Mr. Dhaval commenced his practice in the P.Y.2019-20 and acquired the assets during the same year, the restriction of depreciation to 50% of the prescribed rate would apply to those assets which have been put to use for less than 180 days in that year, namely, laptop and computer UPS.

(6) Depreciation in case of succession of firm/sole proprietary concern by a company or business reorganization, amalgamation or demerger of companies or succession of business otherwise than on death

As per the sixth proviso to section 32(1)(ii), depreciation allowable in the hands of

- predecessor and the successor in case of succession of firm/ sole proprietary concern by a company fulfilling the conditions mentioned in section 47(xiii)/(xiv) or
- predecessor company and successor LLP in case of conversion of a private company or an unlisted public company into an LLP fulfilling the conditions mentioned in section 47(xiii) or
- predecessor and the successor in case of succession of business otherwise than on death
- amalgamating/ amalgamated company or demerged or resulting company in case of amalgamation or demerger of companies shall not exceed the amount of depreciation calculated at the prescribed rates as if the succession, business reorganization, amalgamation or demerger had not taken place.

It is also provided that such amount of depreciation shall be apportioned between the two entities in the ratio of the number of days for which the assets were used by them.

Sai Ltd. has a block of assets carrying 15% rate of depreciation, whose written down value on 01.04.2019 was ₹ 40 lacs. It purchased another asset (second-hand plant and machinery) of the same block on 01.11.2019 for ₹ 14.40 lacs and put to use on the same day. Sai Ltd. was amalgamated with Shirdi Ltd. with effect from 01.01.2020.

You are required to compute the depreciation allowable to Sai Ltd. & Shirdi Ltd. for the previous year ended on 31.03.2020 assuming that the assets were transferred to Shirdi Ltd. at ₹ 60 lacs. Also assume that the plant and machinery were purchased by way of account payee cheque.

Statement showing computation of depreciation allowable to Sai Ltd. & Shirdi Ltd. for A.Y. 2020-21

Particulars	₹
Written down value (WDV) as on 1.4.2019	40,00,000
Addition during the year (used for less than 180 days)	14,40,000
Total	54,40,000
Depreciation on ₹ 40,00,000 @ 15%	6,00,000
Depreciation on ₹ 14,40,000 @ 7.5%	1,08,000
Total depreciation for the year	7,08,000
Apportionment between two companies:
(a) Amalgamating company, Sai Ltd.
₹ 6,00,000 × 275/366	4,50,820
₹ 1,08,000 × 61/152	43,342
	4,94,162
(b) Amalgamated company, Shirdi Ltd.
₹ 6,00,000 × 91/366	1,49,180
₹ 1,08,000 × 91/152	64,658
	2,13,838

Notes:

- (i) The aggregate deduction, in respect of depreciation allowable to the amalgamating company and amalgamated company in the case of amalgamation shall not exceed in any case, the deduction calculated at the prescribed rates as if the amalgamation had not taken place. Such deduction shall be apportioned between the amalgamating company and the amalgamated company in the ratio of the number of days for which the assets were used by them.
- (ii) The price at which the assets were transferred, i.e., ₹ 60 lacs, has no implication in computing eligible depreciation.

(7) Hire purchase: In the case of assets under the hire purchase system the allowance for depreciation would under Circular No. 9 of 1943 R. Dis. No. 27(4) I.T. 43 dated 23-3-1943, be granted as follows:

- In every case of payment purporting to be for hire purchase, production of the agreement under which the payment is made would be insisted upon by the department.
- Where the effect of an agreement is that the ownership of the asset is at once transferred on the lessee the transaction should be regarded as one of purchase by instalments and consequently no deduction in respect of the hire amount should be made. This principle will be applicable in a case where the lessor obtains a right to sue for arrears of installments but has no right to recover the asset back from the lessee. Depreciation in such cases should be allowed to the lessee on the hire purchase price determined in accordance with the terms of hire purchase agreement.
- Where the terms of an agreement provide that the asset shall eventually become the property of the hirer or confer on the hirer an option to purchase an asset, the transaction should be regarded as one of hire purchase. In such case, periodical payments made by the hirer should for all tax purposes be regarded as made up of
  - (i) the consideration for hirer which will be allowed as a deduction in assessment, and
  - (ii) payment on account of the purchase price, to be treated as capital outlay and depreciation being allowed to the lessee on the initial value namely, the amount for which the hired assets would have been sold for cash at the date of the agreement.

The allowance to be made in respect of the hire should be the amount of the difference between the aggregate amount of the periodical payments under the agreement and the initial value as stated above. The amount of this allowance should be spread over the duration of the agreement evenly. If, however, agreement is terminated either by outright purchase of the asset or by its return to the seller, the deduction should cease as from the date of termination of agreement.

For the purpose of allowing depreciation an assessee claiming deduction in respect of the assets acquired on hire purchase would be required to furnish a certificate from the seller or any other suitable documentary evidence in respect of the initial value or the cash price of the asset.

In cases where no such certificate or other evidence is furnished the initial value of the assets should be arrived at by computing the present value of the amount payable under the agreement at an appropriate per centum.

For the purpose of allowing depreciation the question whether in a particular case the assessee is the owner of the hired asset or not is to be decided on a consideration of all the facts and circumstances of each case and the terms of the hire purchase agreement. Where the hired asset is originally purchased by the assessee and is registered in his name, the mere fact that the payment of the price is spread over the specified period and is made in installments to suit the needs of the purchaser does not disentitle the assessee from claiming depreciation in respect of the asset, since the assessee would be the real owner although the payment of purchase price is made subsequent to the date of acquisition of the asset itself.

The expression “actual cost” means the actual cost of the asset to the assessee as reduced by that portion of the cost thereof, if any, as has been met directly or indirectly by any other person or authority.

However, where an assessee incurs any expenditure for acquisition of any asset or part thereof in respect of which a payment or aggregate of payments made to a person in a day, otherwise than by an account payee cheque drawn on a bank or account payee bank draft or use of electronic clearing system through a bank account or through such other prescribed electronic mode, exceeds ₹ 10,000, such expenditure shall not form part of actual cost of such asset [Proviso to section 43(1)]

Actual cost in certain special situations [Explanations to section 43(1)]

- (i) Asset used for business after it ceases to be used for scientific research: Where an asset is used for the purposes of business after it ceases to be used for scientific research related to that business, the actual cost to the assessee for depreciation purposes shall be the actual cost to the assessee as reduced by any deduction allowed under section 35(1)(iv) [Explanation 1].
- (ii) Inventory converted into capital asset and used for business or profession: Where inventory is converted or treated as a capital asset and is used for the purpose of business or profession, the fair market value of such inventory as on the date of its conversion into capital asset determined in the prescribed manner, shall be the actual cost of such capital asset to the assessee [Explanation 1A].
- (iii) Asset is acquired by way of gift or inheritance: Where an asset is acquired by way of gift or inheritance, its actual cost shall be the written down value to the previous owner [Explanation 2].
- (iv) Second hand asset: Where, before the date of its acquisition by the assessee, the asset was at any time used by any other person for the purposes of his business or profession, and the Assessing Officer is satisfied that the main purpose of the transfer of the asset directly or indirectly to the assessee was the reduction of liability of income-tax directly or indirectly to the assessee (by claiming depreciation with reference to an enhanced cost) the actual cost to the assessee shall be taken to be such an amount which the Assessing Officer may, with the previous approval of the Joint Commissioner, determine, having regard to all the circumstances of the case [Explanation 3].

- (v) Re-acquisition of asset: Where any asset which had once belonged to the assessee and had been used by him for the purposes of his business or profession and thereafter ceased to be his property by reason of transfer or otherwise, is re-acquired by him, the actual cost to the assessee shall be —
- (a) the actual cost when he first acquired the asset minus depreciation allowable to the assessee as if asset was the only asset in the relevant block of assets; or
- (b) the actual price for which the asset is re-acquired by him whichever is less [Explanation 4].

- (vi) Acquisition of asset previously owned by any person to whom such asset is given on lease, hire or otherwise: Where before the date of acquisition by the assessee say, Mr. A, the assets were at any time used by any other person, say Mr. B, for the purposes of his business or profession and depreciation allowance has been claimed in respect of such assets in the case of Mr. B and such person acquires on lease, hire or otherwise, assets from Mr. A, then, the actual cost of the transferred assets, in the case of Mr. A, shall be the same as the written down value of the said assets at the time of transfer thereof by Mr. B [Explanation 4A].

Example:

A person (say "A") owns an asset and uses it for the purposes of his business or profession. A has claimed depreciation in respect of such asset. The said asset is transferred by A to another person (say "B"). A then acquires the same asset back from B on lease, hire or otherwise. B being the new owner will be entitled to depreciation. In the above situation, the cost of acquisition of the transferred assets in the hands of B shall be the same as the written down value of the said assets at the time of transfer.

Explanation 4A overrides Explanation 3

Explanation 3 to section 43(1) deals with a situation where a transfer of any asset is made with the main purpose of reduction of tax liability (by claiming depreciation on enhanced cost), and the Assessing Officer, having satisfied himself about such purpose of transfer with the prior approval of the joint commissioner, may determine the actual cost having regard to all the circumstances of the case.

In the Explanation 4A, a non-obstante clause has been included to the effect that Explanation 4A will have an overriding effect over Explanation 3. The result of this is that there is no necessity of finding out whether the main purpose of the transaction is reduction of tax liability. Explanation 4A is activated in every situation described above without inquiring about the main purpose.

- (vii) Building previously the property of the assessee: Where a building which was previously the property of the assessee is brought into use for the purposes of the business or profession, its actual cost to the assessee shall be the actual cost of the building to the assessee, as reduced by an amount equal to the depreciation calculated at the rates in force on that date that would have been allowable had the building been used for the purposes of the business or profession since the date of its acquisition by the assessee [Explanation 5].
- (viii) Transfer of capital asset by a holding company to subsidiary company or vice-versa: When any capital asset is transferred by a holding company to its wholly owned Indian subsidiary company or by a subsidiary company to its 100% holding company, being an Indian company then, the transaction not being regarded as a transfer of a capital asset, the actual cost of the transferred capital asset to the transferee company shall be taken to be the same as it would have been if the transferor company had continued to hold the capital asset for the purposes of its own business [Explanation 6].
- (ix) Capital asset is transferred by the amalgamating company to the amalgamated company: In a scheme of amalgamation, if any capital asset is transferred by the amalgamating company to the amalgamated Indian company, the actual cost of the transferred capital assets to the amalgamated company will be taken at the same amount as it would have been taken in the case of the amalgamating company had it continued to hold it for the purposes of its own business [Explanation 7].
- (x) Capital asset is transferred by the demerged company to the resulting company: In the case of a demerger, where any capital asset is transferred by the demerged company to the resulting Indian company, the actual cost of the transferred asset to the resulting company shall be taken to be the same as it would have been if the demerged company had continued to hold the asset. However, the actual cost shall not exceed the WDV of the asset in the hands of the demerged company [Explanation 7A].
- (xi) Capitalization of interest paid or payable in connection with acquisition of an asset: Certain taxpayers have, with a view to obtain more tax benefits and reduce the tax outflow, resorted to the method of capitalising interest paid or payable in connection with acquisition of an asset relating to the period after such asset is first put to use.

This capitalisation implies inclusion of such interest in the 'Actual Cost' of the asset for the purposes of claiming depreciation under the Income-tax Act, 1961. This was never the legislative intent nor was it in accordance with recognised accounting practices. Therefore, with a view to counter-acting tax avoidance through this method and placing the matter beyond doubt, Explanation 8 to section 43(1) provides that any amount paid or payable as interest in connection with the acquisition of an asset and relating to period after asset is first put to use shall not be included and shall be deemed to have never been included in the actual cost of the asset [Explanation 8].

- (xii) Amount of duty of excise or additional duty leviable shall be reduced if credit is claimed: Where an asset is or has been acquired by an assessee, the actual cost of asset shall be reduced by the amount of duty of excise or the additional duty leviable under section 3 of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 in respect of which a claim of credit has been made and allowed under the Central Excise Rules, 1944<sup>6</sup> [Explanation 9].
- (xiii) Subsidy or grant or reimbursement: Where a portion of the cost of an asset acquired by the assessee has been met directly or indirectly by the Central Government or a State Government or any authority established under any law or by any other person, in the form of a subsidy or grant or reimbursement (by whatever name called), then, so much of the cost as is relating to such subsidy or grant or reimbursement shall not be included in the actual cost of the asset to the assessee.

However, where such subsidy or grant or reimbursement is of such nature that it cannot be directly relating to the asset acquired, so much of the amount which bears to the total subsidy or reimbursement or grant the same proportion as such asset bears to all the assets in respect of or with reference to which the subsidy or grant or reimbursement is so received, shall not be included in the actual cost of the asset to the assessee [Explanation 10].

- (xiv) Asset is acquired outside India by an assessee, being a non-resident and such asset is brought by him to India: Where an asset is acquired outside India by an assessee, being a non-resident and such asset is brought by him to India and used for the purposes of his business or profession, the actual cost of asset to the assessee shall be the actual cost the asset to the assessee, as reduced by an amount equal to the amount of depreciation calculated at the rate in force that would have been allowable had the asset been used in India for the said purposes since the date of its acquisition by the assessee [Explanation 11].

- (xv) Capital asset is acquired under a scheme for corporatization: Where any capital asset is acquired under a scheme for corporatization of a recognised stock exchange in India approved by the SEBI, the actual cost shall be deemed to be the amount which would have been regarded as actual cost had there been no such corporatization [Explanation 12].
- (xvi) Capital asset on which deduction is allowable under section 35AD: Explanation 13 to section 43(1) provides that the actual cost of any capital asset, on which deduction has been allowed or is allowable to the assessee under section 35AD, shall be nil.

This would be applicable in the case of transfer of asset by the assessee where –

- (1) the assessee himself has claimed deduction under section 35AD; or
- (2) the previous owner has claimed deduction under section 35AD. This would be applicable where the capital asset is acquired by the assessee by way of –
  - (a) gift, will or an irrevocable trust;
  - (b) any distribution on liquidation of the company;
  - (c) any distribution of capital assets on total or partial partition of a HUF;
  - (d) any transfer of a capital asset by a holding company to its 100% subsidiary company, being an Indian company;
  - (e) any transfer of a capital asset by a subsidiary company to its 100% holding company, being an Indian company;
  - (f) any transfer of a capital asset by the amalgamating company to an amalgamated company in a scheme of amalgamation, if the amalgamated company is an Indian company;
  - (g) any transfer of a capital asset by the demerged company to the resulting company in a scheme of demerger, if the resulting company is an Indian company;
  - (h) any transfer of a capital asset or intangible asset by a firm to a company as a result of succession of the firm by a company in the business carried on by the firm, or any transfer of a capital asset to a company in the course of demutualization or corporatisation of a recognized stock exchange in India as a result of which an association of persons or body of individuals is succeeded by such company (fulfilling the conditions specified);

- (i) any transfer of a capital asset or intangible asset by a sole proprietary concern to a company, where the sole proprietary concern is succeeded by a company (fulfilling the conditions specified).
- (j) any transfer of a capital asset or intangible asset by a private company or unlisted public company to an LLP as a result of conversion of the company into LLP (fulfilling the conditions prescribed).

However, where an asset, in respect of which deduction is claimed and allowed under section 35AD is deemed to be the income of the assessee in accordance with the provisions of section 35AD(7B) (on account of being used for a purpose other than specified business under section 35AD), the actual cost of the asset to the assessee shall be actual cost to assessee as reduced by the amount of depreciation allowable had the asset been used for the purpose of business, calculated at the rate in force, since the date of its acquisition [Proviso to Explanation 13 to section 43(1)]

(9) Written down value [Section 43(6)]

- (i) Assets acquired by the assessee during the previous year: In the case of assets acquired by the assessee during the previous year, the written down value means the actual cost to the assessee.
- (ii) Assets acquired before the previous year: In the case of assets acquired before the previous year, the written down value would be the actual cost to the assessee less the aggregate of all deductions actually allowed in respect of depreciation. For this purpose, any depreciation carried forward is deemed to be depreciation actually allowed [Section 43(6)(c)(i) read with Explanation 3].

The written down value of any asset shall be worked out as under in accordance with section 43(6)(c):

(1)	W.D.V. of the block of assets on 1 st April of the previous year	xxx
(2)	Add: Actual cost of assets acquired during the previous year	xxx
(3)	Total (1) + (2)	xxx
(4)	Less: Money receivable in respect of any asset falling within the block which is sold, discarded, demolished or destroyed during that previous year. However, such amount cannot exceed the amount in (3).	xxx
(5)	W.D.V at the end of the year (on which depreciation is allowable) [(3) – (4)]	xxx
(6)	Depreciation at the prescribed rate (Rate of Depreciation × WDV arrived at in (5) above)	xxx
(7)	WDV of the block of assets as on 1 st April of the next year [(5) – (6)]	xxx

- (iii) Succession to business or profession otherwise than on death: When in the case of a succession to business or profession otherwise than on death, an assessment is made on the successor under section 170(2), the written down value of an asset or block of assets shall be the amount which would have been taken as the written down value if the assessment had been made directly on the person succeeded to [Explanation 1 to section 43(6)].
- (iv) Transfer of block of assets by a holding company to a subsidiary company or vice versa or by amalgamating company to amalgamated company: Where in any previous year any block of assets is transferred by a holding company to its wholly owned Indian subsidiary company or by a subsidiary company to its 100% holding company, being an Indian company or by an amalgamating company to an amalgamated company, the latter being an Indian company, then the actual cost of the block of assets in the case of transferee-company or amalgamated company as the case may be, shall be the written down value of the block of assets as in the case of the transferor company or amalgamating company, as the case may be, for the immediately preceding year as reduced by depreciation actually allowed in relation to the said previous year [Explanation 2 to section 43(6)].
- (v) Block of assets is transferred by demerged company to the resulting company: Where in any previous year any asset forming part of a block of assets is transferred by demerged company to the resulting company, the written down value of the block of assets of the demerged company for the immediately preceding year shall be reduced by the written down value of the assets transferred to the resulting company [Explanation 2A to section 43(6)].
- (vi) Block of assets is transferred by a demerged company to the resulting company: Where any asset forming part of a block of assets is transferred by a demerged company to the resulting company, the written down value of the block of assets in the case of resulting company shall be the written down value of the transferred assets of the demerged company immediately before the demerger [Explanation 2B to section 43(6)].
- (vii) Block of assets in the case of the successor LLP: The actual cost of the block of assets in the case of the successor LLP on conversion of private or unlisted company to a LLP and the conditions of clause 47(xiiib) are satisfied, shall be the written down value of the block of assets as in the case of the predecessor company on the date of conversion [Explanation 2C to section 43(6)].
- (viii) Block of assets transferred by a recognised stock exchange in India to a company under a scheme for corporatization: Where any asset forming part of a block of assets is transferred in any previous year by a recognised stock exchange in India to a company under a scheme for corporatisation approved by SEBI, the written down value of the block shall be the written down value of the transferred assets immediately before the transfer [Explanation 5 to section 43(6)].

- (ix) Depreciation provided in the books of account deemed to be depreciation actually allowed: Section 32(1)(ii) provides that depreciation shall be allowed at the prescribed percentage on the written down value (WDV) of any block of assets. Section 43(6)(b) provides that written down value in the case of assets acquired before the previous year means the actual cost to the assessee less all depreciation actually allowed to him under the Income-tax Act, 1961.

Persons who were exempt from tax were not required to compute their income under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession". However, when the exemption is withdrawn subsequently, such persons became liable to income-tax and hence, were required to compute their income for income-tax purposes. In this regard, a question arises as to the basis on which depreciation is to be allowed under the Income-tax Act, 1961 in respect of assets acquired during the years when the person was exempt from tax.

Explanation 6 to section 43(6) provides that -

- (a) the actual cost of an asset has to be adjusted by the amount attributable to the revaluation of such asset, if any, in the books of account;
  - (b) the total amount of depreciation on such asset provided in the books of account of the assessee in respect of such previous year or years preceding the previous year relevant to the assessment year under consideration shall be deemed to be the depreciation actually allowed under the Income-tax Act, 1961 for the purposes of section 43(6);
  - (c) the depreciation actually allowed as above has to be adjusted by the amount of depreciation attributable to such revaluation.
- (x) Composite Income: Explanation 7 provides that in cases of 'composite income', for the purpose of computing written down value of assets acquired before the previous year, the total amount of depreciation shall be computed as if the entire composite income of the assessee is chargeable under the head "Profits and Gains of business or profession". The depreciation so computed shall be deemed to have been "actually allowed" to the assessee.

For instance, Rule 8 prescribes the taxability of income from the manufacture of tea. Under the said rule, income derived from the sale of tea grown and manufactured by seller shall be computed as if it were income derived from business, and 40% of such income shall be deemed to be income liable to tax. If the turnover is, say, ₹ 20 lakh, the depreciation ₹ 1 lakh and other expenses ₹ 4 lakh, then the income would be ₹ 15 lakh. Business income would be ₹ 6 lakh (being 40% of ₹ 15 lakh). As per earlier Court decisions, only the depreciation “actually allowed” i.e., ₹ 40,000, being 40% of ₹ 1 lakh, has to be deducted to arrive at the written down value.

The ambiguity in this case has arisen on account of the interpretation of the meaning of the phrase “actually allowed” used in section 43(6)(b). However, the correct legislative intent is that the WDV is required to be computed by deducting the full depreciation attributable to composite income i.e. ₹1 lakh in this case. Explanation 7 clarifies this legislative intent.

- (xi) Cases where the Written Down Value reduced to nil: The written down value of any block of assets, may be reduced to nil for any of the following reasons:
- (a) The moneys receivable by the assessee in regard to the assets sold or otherwise transferred during the previous year together with the amount of scrap value may exceed the written down value at the beginning of the year as increased by the actual cost of any new asset acquired, or
  - (b) All the assets in the relevant block may be transferred during the year.

(10) Carry forward and set off of depreciation [Section 32(2)]

Section 32(2) provides for carry forward of unabsorbed depreciation. Where, in any previous year the profits or gains chargeable are not sufficient to give full effect to the depreciation allowance, the unabsorbed depreciation shall be added to the depreciation allowance for the following previous year and shall be deemed to be part of that allowance. If no depreciation allowance is available for that previous year, the unabsorbed depreciation of the earlier previous year shall become the depreciation allowance of that year. The effect of this provision is that the unabsorbed depreciation shall be carried forward indefinitely till it is fully set off.

Order of set-off

However, in the order of set-off of losses under different heads of income, effect shall first be given to business losses and then to unabsorbed depreciation.

The provisions in effect are as follows:

- Since the unabsorbed depreciation forms part of the current year's depreciation, it can be set off against any other head of income except “Salaries”.
- The unabsorbed depreciation can be carried forward for indefinite number of previous years.
- Set off will be allowed even if the same business to which it relates is no longer in existence in the year in which the set off takes place.

Current depreciation to be deducted first - The Supreme Court, in CIT v. Mother India Refrigeration (P.) Ltd. [1985] 23 Taxman 8, has categorically held that current depreciation must be deducted first before deducting the unabsorbed carried forward business losses of the earlier years in giving set off while computing the total income of any particular year.

- Air pollution control equipment (₹2,50,000× 20%)		-	50,000
Total depreciation		4,37,075	1,50,000

Notes:

- (i) Power generation equipments qualify for claiming additional depreciation in respect of new plant and machinery.
- (ii) Additional depreciation is not allowed in respect of second hand machinery.
- (iii) No additional depreciation is allowed in respect of office appliances. Hence, no depreciation is allowed in respect of air conditioner installed in office premises.
- (iv) The balance 50% additional depreciation in respect of Machinery Z of ₹ 32,500 (10% x ₹ 3,25,000) can be claimed as deduction in subsequent financial year i.e., F.Y. 2020-21.

(11) Building, machinery, plant and furniture not exclusively used for business purpose

Where any building, plant and machinery, furniture is not exclusively used for the purposes of business or profession, the deduction on account of expenses on account of current repairs to the premises, insurance premium of the premises, current repairs and insurance premium of machinery, plant and furniture and depreciation in respect of these assets shall be restricted to a fair proportionate part thereof, which the Assessing Officer may determine having regard to the user of such asset for the purposes of the business or profession.

(12) Balancing Charge

Section 41(2) provides for the manner of calculation of the amount which shall be chargeable to income-tax as income of the business of the previous year in which the moneys payable for the building, machinery, plant or furniture on which depreciation has been claimed under section 32(1)(i), i.e. in the case of power undertakings, is sold, discarded, demolished or destroyed. The balancing charge will be the amount by which the moneys payable in respect of such building, machinery, plant or furniture, together with the amount of scrap value, if any, exceeds the written down value. However, the amount of balancing charge should not exceed the difference between the actual cost and the WDV. The tax shall be levied in the year in which the moneys payable become due.

The Explanation below section 41(2) makes it clear that where the moneys payable in respect of the building, machinery, plant or furniture referred to in section 41(2) become due in a previous year in which the business, for the purpose of which the building, machinery, plant or furniture was being used, is no longer in existence, these provisions will apply as if the business is in existence in that previous year.

(4) Manufacturing industries set up in the notified backward areas of specified States to be eligible for a deduction @15% of the actual cost of new plant & machinery acquired and installed during the previous year [Section 32AD]

- (i) In order to encourage the setting up of industrial undertakings in the backward areas of the States of Andhra Pradesh, Bihar, Telangana and West Bengal, section 32AD provides for a deduction of an amount equal to 15% of the actual cost of new plant and machinery acquired and installed in the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which such plant and machinery is installed, if the following conditions are satisfied by the assessee -

- (a) The assessee sets up an undertaking or enterprise for manufacture or production of any article or thing on or after 1st April, 2015 in any backward area notified by the Central Government in the State of Andhra Pradesh or Bihar or Telangana or West Bengal; and
  - (b) the assessee acquires and installs new plant and machinery for the purposes of the said undertaking or enterprise during the period between 1st April, 2015 and 31st March, 2020 in the said backward areas.
- (ii) For the purposes of this section, “New plant and machinery” does not include—
- (a) any ship or aircraft;
  - (b) any plant or machinery, which before its installation by the assessee, was used either within or outside India by any other person;
  - (c) any plant or machinery installed in any office premises or any residential accommodation, including accommodation in the nature of a guest house;
  - (d) any office appliances including computers or computer software;
  - (e) any vehicle;
  - (f) any plant or machinery, the whole of the actual cost of which is allowed as deduction (whether by way of depreciation or otherwise) in computing the income chargeable under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” of any previous year.

- (iii) In order to ensure that the manufacturing units which are set up by availing this incentive actually contribute to economic growth of these backward areas by carrying out the activity of manufacturing for a substantial period of time, a suitable safeguard restricting the transfer of new plant and machinery for a period of 5 years has been provided.

Accordingly, section 32AD(2) provides that if any new plant and machinery acquired and installed by the assessee is sold or otherwise transferred except in connection with the amalgamation or demerger or re-organisation of business, within a period of 5 years from the date of its installation, the amount allowed as deduction in respect of such new plant and machinery shall be deemed to be the income chargeable under the head "Profits and gains from business or profession" of the previous year in which such new plant and machinery is sold or transferred, in addition to taxability of gains, arising on account of transfer of such new plant and machinery.

- (iv) However, this restriction shall not apply to the amalgamating or demerged company or the predecessor in a case of amalgamation or demerger or business reorganization, within a period of five years from the date of its installation, but shall continue to apply to the amalgamated company or resulting company or successor, as the case may be.

Additional depreciation @35% to be allowed to assessees setting up manufacturing units in notified backward areas of specified States and acquiring and installing of new plant & machinery [Proviso to section 32(1)(ia)]

- (i) Under section 32(1)(ia), to encourage investment in new plant or machinery, additional depreciation of 20% of the actual cost of plant or machinery acquired and installed is allowed. Such additional depreciation under section 32(1)(ia) is allowed over and above the normal depreciation under section 32(1)(ii).
- (ii) In order to encourage acquisition and installation of plant and machinery for setting up of manufacturing units in the notified backward areas of the States of Andhra Pradesh, Bihar, Telangana and West Bengal, proviso to section 32(1)(ia) allows higher additional depreciation at the rate of 35% (instead of 20%) in respect of the actual cost of new machinery or plant (other than a ship and aircraft) acquired and installed during the period between 1st April, 2015 and 31st March, 2020 by a manufacturing undertaking or enterprise which is set up in the notified backward areas of these specified States on or after 1st April, 2015.
- (iii) Such additional depreciation shall be restricted to 17.5% (i.e., 50% of 35%), if the new plant and machinery acquired is put to use for the purpose of business for less than 180 days in the year of acquisition and installation.
- (iv) The balance 50% of additional depreciation (i.e., 50% of 35%) would, however, be allowed in the immediately succeeding financial year.

Particulars	₹ (in crores)
Deduction under section 32AD @ 15% on ₹ 50 crore	7.50
Total benefit	7.50

Notes:

- (1) As per the second proviso to section 32(1)(ii), where an asset acquired during the previous year is put to use for less than 180 days in that previous year, the amount deduction allowable as normal depreciation and additional depreciation would be restricted to 50% of amount computed in accordance with the prescribed percentage.

Therefore, normal depreciation on plant and machinery acquired and put to use on 1.11.2019 is restricted to 7.5% (being 50% of 15%) and additional depreciation is restricted to 17.5% (being 50% of 35%).

- (2) The balance additional depreciation of ₹ 3.5 crore, being 50% of ₹ 7 crore (35% of ₹ 20 crore) would be allowed as deduction in the A.Y.2021-22.
- (3) As per section 32(1)(ia), additional depreciation is allowable in the case of any new machinery or plant acquired and installed after 31.3.2005 by an assessee engaged, inter alia, in the business of manufacture or production of any article or thing. In this case, since new plant and machinery acquired was installed by a manufacturing unit set up in a notified backward area in the State of Telengana, the rate of additional depreciation is 35% of actual cost of new plant and machinery. Since plant and machinery of ₹ 20 crore was put to use for less than 180 days, additional depreciation@17.5% (50% of 35%) is allowable as deduction. However, additional depreciation shall not be allowed in respect of second hand plant and machinery of ₹ 5 crore.

Likewise, the benefit available under sections 32AD would not be allowed in respect of second hand plant and machinery.

Accordingly, additional depreciation and investment allowance under section 32AD have not been provided on ₹ 5 crore, being the actual cost of second hand plant and machinery acquired and installed in the previous year.

(5) Tea Development Account/ Coffee Development Account/ Rubber Development Account [Section 33AB]

- (i) Eligibility for deduction: This section provides for a deduction in the computation of the taxable profits in the case of an assessee carrying on business of growing and manufacturing tea or coffee or rubber in India.
- (ii) Quantum of deduction: It provides that where the assessee has before the expiry of six months from the end of the previous year or before the due date of furnishing the return of income, whichever is earlier,
- (a) deposited with a National Bank any amount in a special account maintained by the assessee with that Bank in accordance with a scheme approved by Tea Board or Coffee Board or Rubber Board, or
  - (b) deposited any amount in an account to be known as Deposit Account opened by the assessee in accordance with the scheme framed by the Tea Board or Coffee Board or Rubber Board, as the case may be, (hereinafter referred to as the deposit scheme) with the previous approval of the Central Government, the assessee shall be allowed a deduction of:

- (a) A sum equal to the aggregate of the deposits made or
- (b) 40% of the profits of such business (as computed under the head 'Profits and gains of business or profession before making any deduction under this section), whichever is less.

The above deduction will be allowed before the setting off of brought-forward loss under section 72.

- (iii) No deduction to partner of assessee-firm or member of assessee-AOP/ BOI: Where the assessee is a firm or any association of persons or any body of individuals the deduction under this section shall not be allowed in the computation of the income of any partner or member of such firm, AOP or BOI.
- (iv) Non-eligibility of deduction in any other previous year: Where any deduction in respect of any amount deposited in the special account or Deposit Account has been allowed in any previous year, no deduction shall be allowed in respect of such amount in any other previous year.
- (v) Audit of books of accounts: This deduction shall not be allowed unless the accounts of such business of the assessee for the previous year have been audited by a chartered accountant and the assessee furnishes along with his return of income the report of such audit in the prescribed form duly signed and verified by such accountant.

However, where the assessee is required by any other law to get his accounts audited it shall be sufficient compliance with the provision of this section if such assessee gets the accounts of such business audited under any such law and furnishes the report of the audit and a further report in the prescribed form under this section.

- (vi) Condition to withdraw the amount from special account or deposit account: Any amount standing to the credit of the assessee in the special account or deposit account cannot be withdrawn except for the purposes specified in the scheme, or, as the case may be, in the deposit scheme.

The above amount can also be withdrawn in the following circumstances:

- (a) Closure of business
  - (b) Death of an assessee
  - (c) Partition of HUF
  - (d) Dissolution of a firm
  - (e) Liquidation of a company.
- (vii) Amount withdrawn and utilised for purchase of specified assets would be chargeable to tax as business income: Where the sum standing to the credit of the assessee in the Special account or in the Deposit account is released by the National Bank or is withdrawn by the assessee from the Deposit account and is utilised for the purchase of:
- (a) Any machinery or plant installed in any office premises or residential accommodation including a guest house.
  - (b) Any office appliances (other than computers)
  - (c) Any machinery or plant, the whole of the actual cost of which is allowed as a deduction (whether by way of depreciation or otherwise) in computing the income chargeable under the head 'Profits and gains of business or profession' of any one previous year;
  - (d) Any new machinery or plant to be installed in an industrial undertaking for the purpose of the business of construction, manufacture or production of any article or thing specified in the list in the Eleventh Schedule.

the whole of such amount so utilised will be treated as taxable profits of that year and taxed accordingly.

- (viii) Amount withdrawn on the closure of business or dissolution of a firm: Where any amount is withdrawn by the assessee from the special account or deposit account during any previous year on the closure of his business or dissolution of a firm, the whole of such withdrawal shall be deemed to be the profits and gains of business of that previous year and shall be chargeable to tax as the income of that previous year, as if the business had not closed or the firm had not been dissolved.

- (ix) Utilisation from scheme for business purpose not available as a deduction: Where any amount standing to the credit of the assessee in the special account or in the deposit account is utilised by the assessee for the purpose of any expenditure in connection with such business in accordance with the scheme or deposit scheme, such expenditure shall not be allowed in computing the business income.
- (x) Consequences of non-utilisation of withdrawn amount: Where any amount in the special account which is released during any previous year by the National Bank or is withdrawn by the assessee from the Deposit Account, for being utilised by the assessee for the purposes of such business and is not utilized in accordance with the scheme or deposit scheme in that year, the unutilised amount shall be deemed to be profits and gains and chargeable to income-tax as the income of that previous year.

However, where such amount is released during the previous year at the closing of the account on the death of the assessee, partition of a HUF or liquidation of a company, the above restriction will not apply.

- (xi) Consequences of sale or transfer: Where an asset acquired in accordance with the scheme or deposit scheme is sold or otherwise transferred in any previous year by the assessee to any person at any time before the expiry of 8 years from the end of the previous year in which it was acquired, such portion of the cost relating to the deduction allowed under section 33AB(1) shall be deemed to be profits and gains of business or profession of the previous year in which the asset is sold or transferred and shall be chargeable to income-tax as the income of that previous year.

Exceptions: Such restriction will not apply in the following cases:

- (a) Where the asset is sold or otherwise transferred to Government, local authority, statutory corporation or a Government company.
- (b) Where the sale or transfer is made in connection with the succession of a firm by a company in the business or profession carried on by the firm as a result of which the firm sells or otherwise transfers any asset to the company and the scheme or deposit scheme continues to apply to the company in the same manner as applicable to the firm.

Further, all the properties and liabilities of the firm relating to the business or profession immediately before the succession should become the properties and liabilities of the company and all the shareholders of the company should have been partners of the firm immediately before the succession.

- (xii) Power to Central Government for specified period: The Central Government has the power to direct that the deduction allowable under this section shall not be allowed after a specified date.
- (xiii) Meaning of National Bank: “National Bank” means the National Bank for Agricultural and Rural Development (NABARD).

(6) Site Restoration Fund [Section 33ABA]

- (i) Eligibility for deduction: This section provides for a deduction in the computation of the taxable profits in the case of an assessee carrying on business of prospecting for, or extraction or production, of petroleum or natural gas or both in India and in relation to which the Central Government has entered into an agreement with such assessee for such business.
- (ii) Quantum of deduction: It provides that where the assessee has during the previous year -
- deposited any sum with the State Bank of India in a special account maintained by the assessee with that bank in accordance with the scheme approved in this behalf by the Government of India in the Ministry of Petroleum and Natural Gas, or
  - deposited any amount in an Site Restoration Account opened by the assessee for the purposes specified in a scheme framed by the said Ministry (hereinafter referred to as the deposit scheme), the assessee shall be entitled to a deduction of —

- a sum equal to the sum deposited; or
- a sum equal to 20% of its profits (as computed under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” before making any deduction under this section), whichever is less.

For this purpose, it is provided that any amount credited in the special account or Site Restoration Account by way of interest shall also be deemed to be a deposit.

The above deduction will be allowed before the setting off of brought-forward loss under section 72.

- (iii) No deduction to partner of assessee-firm or member of assessee-AOP/ BOI: Where the assessee is a firm or any association of persons or anybody of individuals the deduction under this section shall not be allowed in the computation of the income of any partner or member of such firm, AOP or BOI.
- (iv) Non-eligibility of deduction in any other previous year: Where any deduction in respect of any amount deposited in the special account or Site Restoration Account has been allowed in any previous year, no deduction shall be allowed in respect of such amount in any other previous year.

- (v) Audit of books of accounts- This deduction shall not be allowed unless the accounts of such business of the assessee for the previous year have been audited by a chartered accountant and the assessee furnishes along with his return of income, the report of such audit in the prescribed form duly signed and verified by such accountant.

However, where the assessee is required by any other law to get his accounts audited it shall be sufficient compliance with the provision of this section if such assessee gets the accounts of such business audited under any such law and furnishes the report of the audit and a further report in the prescribed form under this section.

- (vi) Condition to withdraw the amount - Any amount standing to the credit in the special account or the Site Restoration Account will not be allowed to be withdrawn except for the purposes specified in the scheme or in the deposit scheme.
- (vii) No deduction: No deduction shall be allowed in respect of any amount utilised for the purchase of the following items:

- (a) any machinery or plant to be installed in any office premises or residential accommodation, including any accommodation in the nature of a guest house;
- (b) any office appliances (not being computers);
- (c) any machinery or plant, the whole of the actual cost of which is allowed as a deduction (whether by way of depreciation or otherwise) in computing the income chargeable under the head 'Profits and gains of business or profession' of any one previous year;
- (d) any new machinery or plant to be installed in an industrial undertaking for the purpose of the business of construction, manufacture or production of any article or thing specified in the list in the Eleventh Schedule.

- (viii) Withdrawal on closure of account: Where any amount standing to the credit of the assessee in the special account or in the Site Restoration Account is withdrawn on closure of the account during any previous year by the assessee, the amount so withdrawn from the account as reduced by the amount, if any, payable to the Central Government by way of profit or production share as provided in the agreement referred to in section 42, shall be deemed to be the profits and gains of business or profession of that previous year and shall accordingly be chargeable to income-tax as the income of that previous year.

Where any amount is withdrawn on closure of the account in a previous year in which the business carried on by the assessee is no longer in existence, these provisions will apply as if the business is in existence in that previous year.

- (ix) Utilisation from scheme for business purpose not available as a deduction: Where any amount standing to the credit of the assessee in the special account or in the Site Restoration Account is utilised by the assessee for the purpose of any expenditure in connection with such business in accordance with the scheme or deposit scheme, such expenditure shall not be allowed in computing the business income.

- (x) Consequences of non-utilisation of withdrawn amount: Where any amount in the special account or Site Restoration Account is released in the previous year by the State Bank of India or is withdrawn from the Site Restoration Account for being utilised by the assessee for the purposes of such business and is not utilised in accordance with the scheme or the deposit scheme in that year, the unutilised amount shall be deemed to be profits and gains and chargeable to income-tax as the income of that previous year.
- (xi) Consequences of sale or transfer - Where any asset acquired in accordance with the scheme or the deposit scheme is sold or otherwise transferred in any previous year by the assessee to any person at any time before the expiry of 8 years from the end of the previous year in which such assets were acquired, such part of the cost of such asset as is relatable to the deduction allowed under section 33ABA(1) shall be deemed to be the profits and gains of business or profession of the previous year in which the asset is sold or otherwise transferred and shall accordingly be chargeable to income-tax as the income of that previous year.

Exceptions: This restriction will not apply in the following cases:

- (a) Where the asset is sold or otherwise transferred to Government, local authority, statutory corporation or a Government company.
- (b) Where the sale or transfer of the asset is made in connection with the succession of a firm by a company in the business or profession carried on by the firm as a result of which the firm sells or otherwise transfers to the company any asset and the scheme or the deposit scheme continues to apply to the company in the manner applicable to the firm.

Further, all the properties and liabilities of the firm relating to the business or profession immediately before the succession should become the properties and liabilities of the company and all the shareholders of the company should have been partners of the firm immediately before the succession.

- (xii) Power to Central Government for specified period: The Central Government has the power to direct that the deduction allowable under this section shall not be allowed after a specified date.

(7) Expenditure on Scientific Research [Section 35]

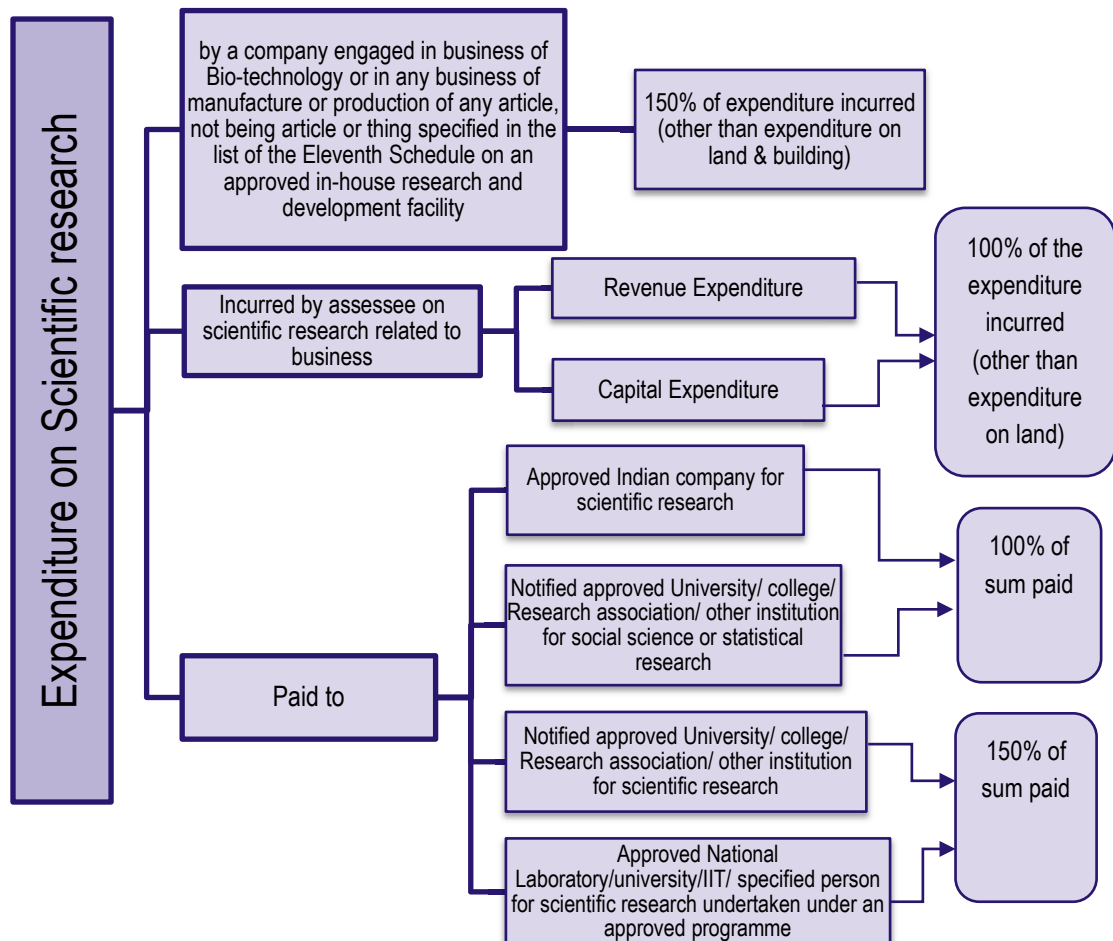

This section allows a deduction in respect of any expenditure on scientific research related to the business of assessee.

Meaning of certain terms:

Term	Meaning
Scientific research	Activities for the extension of knowledge in the fields of natural or applied science including agriculture, animal husbandry or fisheries [Section 43(4)(i)].
Scientific	Expenditure incurred on scientific research would include all expenditure

research expenditure	incurred for the prosecution or the provision of facilities for the prosecution of scientific research but does not include any expenditure incurred in the acquisition of rights in or arising out of scientific research.
Scientific research related to a business or a class of business	Scientific research related to a business or a class of business would include (i) any scientific research which may lead to or facilitate an extension of that business or all the business of that class, as the case may be; (ii) any scientific research of a medical nature which has a special relation to the welfare of the workers employed in that business or all the business of that class, as the case may be.

The deduction allowable under this section consists of –

(I) Incurred by assessee:

- (i) Revenue Expenditure: Any revenue expenditure incurred by the assessee on scientific research related to his business would be allowed as deduction in the year in which it was incurred. Expenditure incurred within 3 years immediately preceding the commencement of the business on payment of salary to research personnel engaged in scientific research related to his business carried on by the taxpayer or on purchase of material inputs for such scientific research will be allowed as deduction in the year in which the business is commenced. The deduction will be limited to the amount certified by the prescribed authority [Section 35(1)(i)]
- (ii) Capital Expenditure: Any expenditure of a capital nature on scientific research related to the business carried on by the assessee would be deductible in full in the previous year in which it is incurred [Section 35(1)(iv)].

(a) Capital expenditure prior to commencement of business

The Explanation 1 to sub-section (2)(ia) specifically provides that where any capital expenditure has been incurred prior to the commencement of the business the aggregate of the expenditure so incurred within the three years immediately preceding the commencement of the business shall be deemed to have been incurred in the previous year in which the business is commenced and will rank for deduction as expenditure for scientific research incurred during the previous year.

Expenditure on land disallowed

No deduction will be allowed in respect of capital expenditure incurred on the acquisition of any land whether the land is acquired as such or as part of any property.

(b) Carry forward of deficiency

Capital expenditure incurred on scientific research which cannot be absorbed by the business profits of the relevant previous year can be carried forward to the immediately succeeding previous year and shall be treated as the allowance for that year. In effect, this means that there is no time bar on the period of carry forward. It shall be accordingly allowable for that previous year.

(c) No depreciation

Section 35(2)(iv) clarifies that no depreciation will be admissible on any capital asset represented by expenditure which has been allowed as a deduction under section 35 whether in the year in which deduction under section 35 was allowed or in any other previous year.

(d) Sale of asset representing expenditure of capital nature on scientific research

Section 41, inter alia, seeks to tax the profits arising on the sale of an asset representing expenditure of a capital nature on scientific research.

Such an asset might be sold, discarded, demolished or destroyed, either after having been used for the purposes of business on the cessation of its use for the purpose of scientific research related to the business or without having been used for other purposes. In either case, tax liability could arise.

Where the asset is sold, etc., after having been used for the purposes of the business - It may be noted that in such cases, the actual cost of the concerned asset under section 43(1) read with Explanation 1 would be nil and no depreciation would be allowed by virtue of section 35(2)(iv). On sale of such asset, the moneys payable in respect of such asset together with the amount of scrap value, if any, could be brought to charge under section 41(1) the provisions of which are wide enough to cover such situations and to bring to tax that amount of deductions allowed in earlier years.

Where the asset representing expenditure of a capital nature on Scientific Research is sold without having been used for other purposes - This case would come under section 41(3) and if the proceeds of sale together with the total amount of the deductions made under section 35 exceed the amount of capital expenditure, the excess or the amount of deduction so made, whichever is less, will be charged to tax as income of the business of the previous year in which the sale took place.

In simple words, if (sale proceeds + deduction under section 35) > amount of capital expenditure, then sale proceeds + deduction under section 35 – amount of capital expenditure OR deduction under section 35, whichever is less, will be the charged to tax as income of the business.

(II) Amount contributed or paid to:

(i) Notified approved research association, university, college or other institution:

An amount equal to 1½ times (i.e., 150%) of any sum paid to -

- a research association which has as its object, the undertaking of scientific research or
- to a university, college or other institution to be used for scientific research.

provided that such university, college, institution or association is approved for this purpose and notified by the Central Government. [Section 35(1)(ii)]

The payments so made to such institutions would be allowable irrespective of whether:

- (a) the field of scientific research is related to the assessee's business or not, and
- (b) the payment is of a revenue nature or of a capital nature.

Note - Weighted deduction to be restricted to –

Rate	Period
100%	from P.Y.2020-21 onwards (i.e., from A.Y.2021-22 onwards)

- (ii) Approved Indian company for scientific research: A sum equal to any amount paid to a company to be used by it for scientific research [Section 35(1)(iia)]

However, such deduction would be available only if;

- the company is registered in India and
- has as its main object the scientific research and development.

Further, it should be approved by the prescribed authority and should fulfill the other prescribed conditions.

 A company approved under section 35(1)(iia) will not be entitled to claim weighted deduction of 150% under section 35(2AB). However, it can continue to claim deduction under section 35(1)(i) in respect of the revenue expenditure incurred on scientific research.

- (iii) Approved notified research association, university, college or other institution: A sum equal to any amount paid to

- a research association which has as its object the undertaking of research in social science or statistical research or
- to a university, college or other institution to be used for research in any social science or statistical research provided that they are approved for this purpose and notified by the Central Government. [Section 35(1)(iii)]

Further, it has been clarified that the deduction to which an assessee (i.e. donor) is entitled on account of payment of any sum to a research association or university or college or other institution, shall not be denied merely on the ground that subsequent to payment of such sum by the assessee, the approval granted to any of the aforesaid entities is withdrawn.

Weighted Deduction: Section 35(2AA) provides that any sum paid by an assessee to a National Laboratory or University or Indian Institute of Technology or a specified person for carrying out programmes of scientific research approved by the prescribed authority will be eligible for weighted deduction of 1½ times (i.e., 150%) of the amount so paid.

No other deduction under the Act: No contribution which qualifies for weighted deduction under this clause will be entitled to deduction under any other provision of the Act.

Approval of the Authority: The authority which will approve the National Laboratory, will also approve the programmes and procedure. Such programmes and procedure will be specified in rules.

The prescribed authority before granting approval has to satisfy itself about the feasibility of carrying out the scientific research and shall submit its report in the prescribed form to the Principal Chief Commissioner or Chief Commissioner or Principal Director General or Director General having jurisdiction over the company claiming the weighted deduction under the said section.

It has been clarified that the deduction to which an assessee is entitled on account of payment of any sum by him to a National Laboratory, University, Indian Institute of Technology or a specified person for the approved programme shall not be denied to the donor-assessee merely on the ground that after payment of such sum by him, the approval granted to any of the aforesaid donee-entities or to the programme has been withdrawn.

Term	Meaning
Specified person	A person who is approved by the prescribed authority.

Note - Weighted deduction to be restricted to –

Rate	Period
100%	from P.Y.2020-21 onwards (i.e., from A.Y.2021-22 onwards)

(III) Company engaged in Business of Bio-technology or manufacturing of article or thing etc. [Section 35(2AB)]

Where a company engaged in the business of bio-technology or in any business of manufacture or production of any article or thing, not being an article or thing specified in the list of the Eleventh Schedule incurs any expenditure on scientific research on in-house research and development facility as approved by the prescribed authority, a deduction of a sum equal to 1½ times (i.e., 150%) of the expenditure will be allowed. Such expenditure should not be in the nature of cost of any land or building.

“Expenditure on scientific research” in relation to drugs and pharmaceuticals shall include expenditure incurred on clinical drug trial, obtaining approval from any state regulatory authority, and filing an application for a patent under the Patents Act, 1970.

No other deduction under the Act: No deduction will be allowed in respect of the above expenditure under any other provision of the Income-tax Act, 1961.

Agreement with the prescribed authority: No company will be entitled to this deduction unless it enters into an agreement with the prescribed authority for co-operation in such research and development facility and fulfills the prescribed conditions with regard to maintenance and audit of accounts and also furnishes prescribed reports in the prescribed manner.

Approval of the Authority: The prescribed authority shall submit its report in relation to the approval of the said facility to the Principal Chief Commissioner or the Chief Commissioner or Principal Director General Director General in such form and within such time as may be prescribed.

Note - Weighted deduction to be restricted to –

Rate	Period
100%	from P.Y.2020-21 onwards (i.e., from A.Y.2021-22 onwards)

(8) Expenditure for obtaining right to use spectrum for telecommunication services [Section 35ABA]

- (i) Section 32 allows depreciation in respect of assets including certain intangible assets. Section 35ABB provides for amortisation of licence fee in case of telecommunication service.
- (ii) The Government has introduced spectrum fee for auction of airwaves.
- (iii) In order to resolve the uncertainty in tax treatment of payments in respect of spectrum i.e., whether spectrum is an intangible asset and the spectrum fees paid is eligible for depreciation under section 32 or whether it is in the nature of a 'licence to operate telecommunication business' and eligible for deduction under section 35ABB, section 35ABA provides for tax treatment of spectrum fee.
- (iv) Tax treatment of spectrum fee:

	Transaction	Manner of deduction
(1)	Acquisition of right to use spectrum
	Any capital expenditure incurred for acquisition of any right to use spectrum for telecommunication services either before the commencement of the business or thereafter at any time during any previous year and for which payment has actually been made to obtain a right to use spectrum.	Appropriate fraction of the amount of such expenditure [1/ total number of relevant previous years]
		Meaning of relevant previous years:
		Case	Meaning
		Where the spectrum fee is actually paid before the commencement of business to operate telecommunication services	The previous years beginning with the P.Y. in which such business commenced and the subsequent P.Y. or P.Y.s during which the spectrum, for which the fee is paid, shall be in force.
	In any other case	The previous years beginning with the P.Y. in which the spectrum fee is actually paid and the subsequent P.Y. or years during which the spectrum, for which the fee is paid, shall be in force.

Meaning of 'payment has actually been made'.
Payment has actually been made means actual payment of expenditure irrespective of the previous year in which the liability for expenditure was incurred according to the method of accounting regularly employed by the assessee or payable in the prescribed manner.
Rule 6A substantiates the meaning of the phrase 'payment has actually been made'
(a)	In a case where full upfront payment of spectrum fee has been made:	Where an assessee has opted and been allowed by the Department of Telecommunications, Government of India to make full upfront payment of spectrum fee, the actual payment of expenditure irrespective of the previous year in which the liability for the expenditure was incurred according to the method of accounting regularly employed by the assessee;
(b)	In a case where deferred payment is made:	Where an assessee has opted and been allowed by the Department of Telecommunications, Government of India to make deferred payment, the amount which would have been payable by the assessee had he opted for full upfront payment of spectrum fee irrespective of the previous year in which the liability for the expenditure was incurred according to the method of accounting regularly employed by the assessee.
However, in case of deferred payment referred to in clause (b) above, where there is failure by the assessee to comply with any of the conditions specified by the scheme of the Department of Telecommunications, Government of India and Department of Telecommunications terminates the allotment or assignment of spectrum, the Assessing Officer shall, in exercise of power vested in him under section 35ABA(3), re-compute the total income of the assessee for the previous year in which the deduction has been claimed and granted to him by deeming that,-
(i) the total amount of spectrum fee paid up to the date of termination is the amount of "payment actually been made";
(ii) the spectrum was in force up to the date of its termination for the purpose of computing "relevant previous year".
(2)	Transfer of the spectrum
Case 1: Where the proceeds of the transfer of spectrum are less than the expenditure incurred remaining unallowed	The expenditure remaining unallowed as reduced by the proceeds of transfer shall be allowed in the previous year in which the spectrum has been transferred.
	$\text{Amount of deduction} = \text{Expenditure remain unallowed} - \text{Sale proceeds}$

	Case 2: Where the proceeds of the transfer of whole or any part of the spectrum exceed the amount of expenditure remaining unallowed	The excess amount or expenditure allowed till date (i.e., difference between expenditure incurred to obtain spectrum and the expenditure remain unallowed), whichever is less, shall be chargeable to tax as profits and gains of business in the previous year in which the spectrum has been transferred. Taxable as profits and gains from business and profession = Sale proceeds – Expenditure remain unallowed  OR  Expenditure allowed till date } Whichever is less If the spectrum is transferred in a previous year in which the business is no longer in existence, the taxability would arise in the above manner as though the business is in existence in that previous year.
	Case 3: Where the proceeds of the transfer of whole or any part of the spectrum are not less than the amount of expenditure incurred remaining unallowed.	No deduction for such expenditure shall be allowed in the previous year in which spectrum is transferred or in respect of any subsequent previous year or years. Amount of deduction = NIL
(3) Transfer of spectrum in a scheme of amalgamation
	If the amalgamating company sells or transfers the spectrum to the amalgamated	The provisions of section 35ABA will apply to amalgamated company as they would have applied to amalgamating company as if the latter has not transferred the spectrum. The tax treatment in cases 1, 2 &amp; 3 given in (2) above will not apply to the amalgamating company. company, being an Indian company under the scheme of amalgamation

(4)	Transfer of spectrum in a scheme of demerger
	If the demerged company sells or transfers the spectrum to the resulting company, being an Indian company under the scheme of demerger	The provisions of section 35ABA will apply to resulting company as they would have applied to demerged company as if the latter has not transferred the spectrum. The tax treatment in cases 1, 2 & 3 given in (2) above will not apply to the demerged company.

(v) No depreciation

Where a deduction is claimed and allowed for any previous year under this section, then no depreciation on capital expenditure so incurred shall be allowed by way of depreciation under section 32(1) for the same previous year or in any other previous year.

(vi) Consequences of failure to comply with the conditions after grant of deduction:

Where, in a previous year, any deduction has been claimed and granted to an assessee and subsequently, there is failure to comply with any of the provisions of this section, then –

- (1) the deduction shall be deemed to have been wrongly allowed;
- (2) the Assessing Officer may recompute the total income of the assessee for the said previous year and make the necessary rectification. This is notwithstanding anything contained in the Income-tax Act, 1961;
- (3) the provisions under section 154 for rectification of mistake apparent from the record would apply. The period of four years would be reckoned from the end of the previous year in which the failure to comply with the provisions of section 35ABA takes place.

(9) Expenditure for obtaining licence to operate telecommunication services [Section 35ABB]

(i) Tax treatment of licence fee:

	Transaction	Manner of deduction
(1)	Acquisition of right to operate telecommunication services
	Any capital expenditure	Appropriate fraction of the amount of such expenditure [1/ total number of relevant previous years] incurred for acquisition of any right to operate telecommunication services either before the commencement of the business or thereafter at any time during any previous year and for which payment has actually been made (actual payment of expenditure) to obtain a licence.	Meaning of relevant previous years:

	Case	Meaning
	Where the licence fee is actually paid before the commencement of business to operate telecommunication services	The previous years beginning with the P.Y. in which such business commenced and the subsequent P.Y. or P.Y.s during which the licence, for which the fee is paid, shall be in force.
In any other case	The previous years beginning with the P.Y. in which the licence fee is actually paid and the subsequent P.Y. or years during which the licence, for which the fee is paid, shall be in force.
Payment has actually been made means the actual payment of expenditure irrespective of the previous year in which the liability for the expenditure was incurred according to the method of accounting regularly employed by the assessee.
(2) Transfer of the licence
Case 1: Where the proceeds of the transfer of licence are less than the expenditure incurred remaining unallowed	The expenditure remaining unallowed as reduced by the proceeds of transfer shall be allowed in the previous year in which the licence has been transferred. $\text{Amount of deduction} = \text{Expenditure remain unallowed} - \text{Sale proceeds}$
Case 2: Where the proceeds of the transfer of whole or any part of the licence exceed the amount of expenditure remaining unallowed	The excess amount shall be chargeable to tax as profits and gains of business in the previous year in which the licence has been transferred. However, the excess should not exceed the difference between the expenditure incurred to obtain the licence and the amount of expenditure remaining unallowed. Taxable as profits and gains from business and profession = $\left. \begin{array}{l} \text{Sale proceeds} - \text{Expenditure remain unallowed} \\ \text{OR} \\ \text{Expenditure allowed till date} \end{array} \right\} \text{Whichever is less}$

		If the licence is transferred in a previous year in which the business is no longer in existence, the taxability would arise in the above manner as if the business is in existence in that previous year.
	Case 3: Where the proceeds of the transfer of whole or any part of the licence are not less than the amount of expenditure incurred remaining unallowed.	No deduction for such expenditure shall be allowed in the previous year in which licence is transferred or in respect of any subsequent previous year or years. Amount of deduction = NIL
(3)	Transfer of licence in a scheme of amalgamation
	If the amalgamating company sells or transfers the licence to the amalgamated company, being an Indian company, under the scheme of amalgamation	The provisions of section 35ABB will apply to amalgamated company as they would have applied to amalgamating company as if the latter has not transferred the licence.  The tax treatment in cases 1, 2 & 3 given in (2) above will not apply to the amalgamating company.
(4)	Transfer of licence in a scheme of demerger
	If the demerged	The provisions of section 35ABB will apply to resulting company company sells or transfers the licence to the resulting company, being an Indian company, under the scheme of demerger	as they would have applied to demerged company as if the latter has not transferred the licence.  The tax treatment in cases 1, 2 & 3 given in (2) above will not apply to the demerged company.

(ii) No depreciation

Where a deduction is claimed and allowed for any previous year under this section, then no depreciation on capital expenditure so incurred shall be allowed by way of depreciation under section 32(1) for the same previous year or in any other previous year.

(10) “Investment-linked tax incentives” for specified businesses [Section 35AD]

(i) List of specified businesses: Although there is a plethora of tax incentives available under the Income-tax Act, 1961 they do not fulfill the intended purpose of creating infrastructure since these incentives are linked to profits and consequently have the effect of diverting profits from the taxable sector to the tax-free sector.

With the specific objective of creating rural infrastructure and environment friendly alternate means for transportation of bulk goods, investment-linked tax incentives have been introduced for specified businesses, namely –

- setting-up and operating ‘cold chain’ facilities for specified products;
- setting-up and operating warehousing facilities for storing agricultural produce;
- laying and operating a cross-country natural gas or crude or petroleum oil pipeline network for distribution, including storage facilities being an integral part of such network;
- building and operating a hotel of two-star or above category, anywhere in India;
- building and operating a hospital, anywhere in India, with at least 100 beds for patients;
- developing and building a housing project under a notified scheme for slum redevelopment or rehabilitation framed by the Central Government or a State Government.
- developing and building a housing project under a notified scheme for affordable housing framed by the Central Government or State Government;
- production of fertilizer in India;

- setting up and operating an inland container depot or a container freight station notified or approved under the Customs Act, 1962;
- bee-keeping and production of honey and beeswax;
- setting up and operating a warehousing facility for storage of sugar;
- laying and operating a slurry pipeline for the transportation of iron ore;
- setting up and operating a semiconductor wafer fabrication manufacturing unit, if such unit is notified by the Board in accordance with the prescribed guidelines;
- developing or maintaining and operating or developing, maintaining and operating a new infrastructure facility.

(ii) Deduction for Capital Expenditure: 100% of the capital expenditure incurred during the previous year, wholly and exclusively for the above businesses would be allowed as deduction from the business income.

➔ However, expenditure incurred on acquisition of any land, goodwill or financial instrument would not be eligible for deduction.

➔ Further, any expenditure in respect of which payment or aggregate of payment made to a person of an amount exceeding ₹ 10,000 in a day otherwise than by account payee cheque drawn on a bank or an account payee bank draft or use of electronic clearing system through a bank account or through such other prescribed electronic mode would not be eligible for deduction.

(iii) Expenditure prior to commencement of operation: Further, the expenditure incurred, wholly and exclusively, for the purpose of specified business prior to commencement of operation would be allowed as deduction during the previous year in which the assessee commences operation of his specified business.

The amount incurred prior to commencement should be capitalized in the books of account of the assessee on the date of commencement of its operations.

(iv) Conditions to be fulfilled: For claiming deduction under section 35AD, the specified business should fulfill the following conditions –

General Conditions:
To be fulfilled by every specified business
(i)	it should not be set up by splitting up, or the reconstruction, of a business already in existence;
(ii)	it should not be set up by the transfer to the specified business of machinery or plant previously used for any purpose;

	In order to satisfy this condition, the total value of the plant or machinery so transferred should not exceed 20% of the value of the total plant or machinery used in such specified business. For the purpose of this condition, machinery or plant would not be regarded as previously used if it had been used outside India by any person other than the assessee provided the following conditions are satisfied: (a) such plant or machinery was not used in India at any time prior to the date of its installation by the assessee; (b) the plant or machinery was imported into India from a foreign country; (c) no deduction in respect of depreciation of such plant or machinery has been allowed to any person at any time prior to the date of installation by the assessee.
Conditions required to be fulfilled by certain specified businesses:
I. Business of laying and operating a cross-country natural gas or crude or petroleum oil pipeline network for distribution, including storage facilities being an integral part of such network
(i)	Such business should be owned by a company formed and registered in India under the Companies Act, 1956 <sup>7</sup> or by a consortium of such companies or by an authority or a board or a corporation established or constituted under any Central or State Act;
(ii)	It should have been approved by the Petroleum and Natural Gas Regulatory Board and notified by the Central Government in the Official Gazette
(iii)	It should have made not less than such proportion of its total pipeline capacity available for use on common carrier basis by any person other than the assessee or an associated person.
(iv)	It should fulfill any other prescribed condition.
II. Business of developing or operating and maintaining or developing, operating and maintaining a new infrastructure facility
(i)	The business should be owned by a company registered in India or by a consortium of such companies or by an authority or a board or corporation or any other body established or constituted under any Central or State Act.
(ii)	The entity should have entered into an agreement with the Central Government or a State Government or a local authority or any other statutory body for developing or operating and maintaining or developing, operating and maintaining, a new infrastructure facility.

- (v) No deduction under section 10AA or Chapter VI-A under the heading “C.-Deductions in respect of certain incomes”: Where a deduction under this section is claimed and allowed in respect of the specified business for any assessment year, no deduction under the provisions of Chapter VI-A under the heading “C - Deductions in respect of certain incomes” or section 10AA is permissible in relation to such specified business for the same or any other assessment year.

Correspondingly, section 80A has been amended to provide that where a deduction under any provision of this Chapter under the heading “C – Deductions in respect of certain incomes” is claimed and allowed in respect of the profits of such specified business for any assessment year, no deduction under section 35AD is permissible in relation to such specified business for the same or any other assessment year.

 In short, once the assessee has claimed the benefit of deduction under section 35AD for a particular year in respect of a specified business, he cannot claim benefit under Chapter VI-A under the heading “C.-Deductions in respect of certain incomes” or section 10AA, for the same or any other year and vice versa.

- (vi) No deduction allowable under the Act in respect of expenditure for which deduction allowed under this section: The assessee cannot claim deduction in respect of such expenditure incurred for specified business under any other provision of the Income-tax Act, 1961 in the current year or under this section for any other year.
- (vii) Date of Commencement of specified businesses:

(ix) Set-off or carry forward and set-off of loss from specified business:

The loss of an assessee claiming deduction under section 35AD in respect of a specified business can be set-off against the profit of another specified business under section 73A, irrespective of whether the latter is eligible for deduction under section 35AD.

Example:

A assessee can therefore, set-off the losses of a hospital or hotel which begins to operate after 1st April, 2010 and which is eligible for deduction section 35AD, against the profits of the existing business of operating a hospital (with atleast 100 beds for patients) or a hotel (of two-star or above category), even if the latter is not eligible for deduction under section 35AD.

Mr. A commenced operations of the businesses of setting up a warehousing facility for storage of food grains, sugar and edible oil on 1.4.2019. He incurred capital expenditure of ₹ 80 lakh, ₹ 60 lakh and ₹ 50 lakh, respectively, on purchase of land and building during the period January, 2019 to March, 2019 exclusively for the above businesses, and capitalized the same in its books of account as on 1st April, 2019. The cost of land included in the above figures are ₹ 50 lakh, ₹ 40 lakh and ₹ 30 lakh, respectively. Further, during the P.Y.2019-20, he incurred capital expenditure of ₹ 20 lakh, ₹ 15 lakh & ₹ 10 lakh, respectively, for extension/ reconstruction of the building purchased and used exclusively for the above businesses.

The profits from the business of setting up a warehousing facility for storage of food grains, sugar and edible oil (before claiming deduction under section 35AD and section 32) for the A.Y. 2020-21 is ₹ 16 lakhs, ₹ 14 lakhs and ₹ 31 lakhs, respectively.

Compute the income under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" for the A.Y.2020-21 and the loss to be carried forward, assuming that Mr. A has fulfilled all the conditions specified for claim of deduction under section 35AD and has not claimed any deduction under Chapter VI-A under the heading "C. – Deductions in respect of certain incomes". Assume in respect of expenditure incurred, the payments are made by account payee cheque or use of ECS through bank account.

Notes:

- (i) Deduction of 100% of the capital expenditure is available under section 35AD for A.Y.2020-21 in respect of specified business of setting up and operating a warehousing facility for storage of sugar and setting up and operating a warehousing facility for storage of agricultural produce where operations are commenced on or after 01.04.2012 or on or after 01.04.2009, respectively.

- (ii) However, since setting up and operating a warehousing facility for storage of edible oils is not a specified business, Mr. A is not eligible for deduction under section 35AD in respect of capital expenditure incurred in respect of such business.
- (iii) Mr. A can, however, claim depreciation@10% under section 32 in respect of the capital expenditure incurred on buildings. It is presumed that the buildings were put to use for more than 180 days during the P.Y. 2019-20.
- (iv) Loss from a specified business can be set-off only against profits from another specified business. Therefore, the loss of ₹ 55 lakh from the specified businesses of setting up and operating a warehousing facility for storage of food grains and sugar cannot be set-off against the profits of ₹ 28 lakh from the business of setting and operating a warehousing facility for storage of edible oils, since the same is not a specified business. Such loss can, however, be carried forward indefinitely for set-off against profits of the same or any other specified business.

- (x) Transfer of hotel built by the assessee: Where the assessee builds a hotel of two-star or above category as classified by the Central Government and subsequently, while continuing to own the hotel, transfers the operation of the said hotel to another person, the assessee shall be deemed to be carrying on the specified business of building and operating a hotel. Therefore, he would be eligible to claim investment-linked tax deduction under section 35AD.

➔ Therefore, in effect, the assessee shall be deemed to be carrying on the specified business of building and operating hotel if –

- (i) The assessee builds a hotel of two-star or above category;
- (ii) Thereafter, he transfers the operation of the hotel to another person;
- (iii) He, however, should continue to own the hotel.

- (xi) Other conditions contained under section 35AD

S. No.	Particulars	Condition
1.	Transfer of goods and services	Where any goods or services held for the purposes of the specified business are transferred to any other business carried on by the assessee, or vice versa, and if the consideration for such transfer does not correspond with the market value of the goods or services then the profits and gains of the specified business shall be computed as if the transfer was made at market value. Market value means the price such goods or services would ordinarily fetch in the open market, subject to statutory or regulatory restrictions, if any.

2.	Close connection between assessee and any other person	Where due to the close connection between the assessee and the other person or for any other reason, it appears to the Assessing Officer that the profits of specified business is increased to more than the ordinary profits, the Assessing Officer shall compute the amount of profits of such eligible business on a reasonable basis for allowing the deduction.
2.	Audit of accounts	The deduction shall be allowed to the assessee only if the accounts of the assessee for the relevant previous year have been audited by a chartered accountant and the assessee furnishes the audit report in the prescribed form, duly signed and verified by such accountant along with his return of income.
3.	Asset to be used for specified business for eight years	Section 35AD(7A) provides that any asset in respect of which a deduction is claimed and allowed under section 35AD shall be used only for the specified business for a period of eight years beginning with the previous year in which such asset is acquired or constructed.
4.	Asset demolished, destroyed, discarded or transferred for which a deduction has been allowed	If any asset on which a deduction under section 35AD has been claimed and allowed, is demolished, destroyed, discarded or transferred, the sum received or receivable for the same is chargeable to tax under clause (vii) of section 28. This does not take into account a case where asset on which deduction under section 35AD has been claimed is used for any purpose other than the specified business by way of a mode other than that specified above.
5.	Asset used for any other business other than specified business during 8 years [Section 35AD(7B)]	If asset is used for any purpose other than the specified business during 8 years beginning with the previous year in which such asset is acquired, the total amount of deduction so claimed and allowed in any previous year in respect of such asset, as reduced by the amount of depreciation allowable in accordance with the provisions of section 32 as if no deduction had been allowed under section 35AD, shall be deemed to be income of the assessee chargeable under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" of the previous year in which the asset is so used.

	In such a case, as per the proviso to Explanation 13 to Section 43(1), the actual cost of such asset for the assessee shall be the actual cost as reduced by amount of depreciation would have been allowable had the asset been used for the purpose of business since the date of its acquisition. However, the deeming provision under sub-section (7B) shall not be applicable to a company which has become a sick industrial company under section 17(1) of the Sick Industrial Companies (Special Provisions) Act, 1985, during the intervening period of eight years specified in sub-section (7A).

ABC Ltd. is a company having two units – Unit A carries on specified business of setting up and operating a warehousing facility for storage of sugar; Unit B carries on non-specified business of operating a warehousing facility for storage of edible oil.

Unit A commenced operations on 1.4.2018 and it claimed deduction of ₹ 100 lacs incurred on purchase of two buildings for ₹ 50 lacs each (for operating a warehousing facility for storage of sugar) under section 35AD for A.Y. 2019-20. However, in February, 2020, Unit A transferred one of its buildings to Unit B.

Examine the tax implications of such transfer in the hands of ABC Ltd.

SOLUTION

Since the capital asset, in respect of which deduction of ₹ 50 lacs was claimed under section 35AD, has been transferred by Unit A carrying on specified business to Unit B carrying on non-specified business in the P.Y.2019-20, the deeming provision under section 35AD(7B) is attracted during the A.Y. 2020-21.

(11) Contributions for Rural Development [Section 35CCA]

This section allows a deduction of the following payment or contribution made by the assessee during the previous year to:

- (1) Notified rural development fund - Payment to a rural development fund set up and notified by the Central Government. National Fund for Rural Development has been notified for this purpose.
- (2) Notified National Urban Poverty Eradication Fund - Payments made to “National Urban Poverty Eradication Fund” (NUPEF) set up and notified by the Central Government.

No other deduction - It has been specifically provided that in every case where any deduction under this section is claimed by the assessee and allowed to him for any assessment year in respect of any expenditure incurred by way of payment of contribution to such notified fund, no deduction in respect of the same expenditure can again be claimed by the assessee under any other relevant provision for the same or any other assessment year.

(12) Weighted deduction in respect of expenditure incurred on notified agricultural extension project [Section 35CCC]

- (i) Eligible project and Quantum of Deduction: In order to incentivize the business entities to provide better and effective agriculture extensive services, section 35CCC provides a weighted deduction of a sum equal to 150% of expenditure incurred by an assessee on agricultural extension project in accordance with the prescribed guidelines.
- (ii) No other deduction: In case deduction in respect of such expenditure is allowed under this section then, no deduction in respect of such expenditure shall be allowed under any other provisions of the Act in the same or any other assessment year.
- (iii) Project must be notified: The agricultural extension project eligible for this weighted deduction shall be notified by the CBDT.

The agricultural extension project shall be considered for notification if it fulfils all of the following conditions, namely:—

- (a) the project shall be undertaken by an assessee for training, education and guidance of farmers;
- (b) the project shall have prior approval of the Ministry of Agriculture, Government of India; and
- (c) an expenditure (not being expenditure in the nature of cost of any land or building) exceeding the amount of ₹ 25 lakhs is expected to be incurred for the project.

Components of expenditure: All expenses (not being expenditure in the nature of cost of any land or building), as reduced by the amount received from beneficiary, if any, incurred wholly and exclusively for undertaking an eligible agricultural extension project shall be eligible for deduction under section 35CCC.

However, expenditure incurred on the agricultural extension project which is reimbursed or reimbursable to the assessee by any person, whether directly or indirectly, shall not be eligible for deduction under section 35CCC.

(iv) Conditions for claiming weighted deduction: Weighted deduction in respect of expenditure incurred for notified agricultural extension project would be available, if

- ◆ assessee maintain separate books of account of such agricultural extension project and get such books of account audited by an Accountant and
- ◆ furnish the following on or before the due date of furnishing the return of income to the Commissioner of Income-tax or Director of Income-tax, as the case may be :-

  - ❖ a note on agricultural project undertaken and programme of agricultural extension project to be undertaken during the current year and financial allocation for such programme and
  - ❖ a certificate from Ministry of Agriculture, Government of India, regarding the genuineness of such project.

Note - Deduction under this section to be restricted to 100% from P.Y.2020-21 onwards (i.e., from A.Y.2021-22 onwards).

(13) Weighted deduction in respect of expenditure incurred by companies on notified skill development project [Section 35CCD]

- (i) The National Manufacturing Policy (NMP) has been notified by the Department of Industrial Policy & Promotion (DIPP) vide Press Note dated 4th November, 2011. As per the notified NMP, the government will provide weighted standard deduction of 150% of the expenditure (other than land or building) incurred on Public Private Partnership (PPP) project for skill development in the ITIs in manufacturing sector. This is to encourage private sector to set up their own institution in coordination with National Skill Development Corporation.
- (ii) Quantum of Deduction: In order to encourage companies to invest on skill development projects in the manufacturing sector, section 35CCD provides for a weighted deduction of a sum equal to 150% of the expenditure (not being expenditure in the nature of cost of any land or building) on skill development project incurred by the company in accordance with the prescribed guidelines. However, expenditure incurred on the notified skill development project which is reimbursed or reimbursable to the company by any person, whether directly or indirectly, shall not be eligible for deduction under section 35CCD.

- (iii) No other deduction allowed: In case deduction in respect of such expenditure is allowed under this section then, no deduction of such expenditure shall be allowed under any other provisions of the Act in the same or any other assessment year.
- (iv) Only notified projects are eligible: The skill development project eligible for this weighted deduction shall be notified by the CBDT.

A skill development project would be considered for notification if it is undertaken by an eligible company (a company engaged in the business of manufacture or production of any article or thing, not being beer, wine and other alcoholic spirits and tobacco and tobacco preparations or engaged in providing specified services) and the project is undertaken in separate facilities in a training institute.

Skill development project in respect of existing employees of the company, however, would not be eligible for notification, where the training of such employees commences after six months of their recruitment.

Further, the weighted deduction would be available, if the company undertaking such project

- maintain separate books of account of the skill development project and get such books of account audited by an accountant.
- furnish the audited statement of accounts of the skill development project along with the audited report and amount of deduction claimed under this section on or before the due date of furnishing the return of income, to the Commissioner of Income-tax or Director of Income-tax, as the case may be.

Note - Deduction under this section shall be restricted to 100% from P.Y.2020-21 onwards (i.e., from A.Y.2021-22 onwards).

(14) Amortisation of Preliminary Expenses [Section 35D]

- (i) Nature of expenditure: Section 35D provides for the amortisation of preliminary expenses incurred by Indian companies and other resident non-corporate taxpayers for the establishment of business concerns or the expansion of the business of existing concerns.
- (ii) Applicable: This section applies
- (a) only to Indian companies and resident non-corporate assesseees;
  - (b) in the case of new companies to expenses incurred before the commencement of the business;
  - (c) in the case of extension of an existing undertaking to expenses incurred till the extension is completed, i.e., in the case of the setting up of a new unit - expenses incurred till the new unit commences production or operation.

(iii) Amount eligible for deduction: Such preliminary expenditure incurred shall be amortised over a period of 5 years. In other words, 1/5th of such expenditure is allowable as a deduction for each of the five successive previous years beginning with the previous year in which the business commences or, the previous year in which the extension of the undertaking is completed or the new unit commences production or operation, as the case may be.

(iv) Eligible expenses - The following expenditure are eligible for amortisation:

- (I) Expenditure in connection with—
  - (a) the preparation of feasibility report
  - (b) the preparation of project report;
  - (c) conducting market survey or any other survey necessary for the business of the assessee;
  - (d) engineering services relating to the assessee's business;
  - (e) legal charges for drafting any agreement between the assessee and any other person for any purpose relating to the setting up to conduct the business of assessee.
- (II) Where the assessee is a company, in addition to the above, expenditure incurred –
  - (f) by way of legal charges for drafting the Memorandum and Articles of Association of the company;
  - (g) on printing the Memorandum and Articles of Association;
  - (h) by way of fees for registering the company under the Companies Act; 1956<sup>8</sup>,
  - (i) in connection with the issue, for public subscription, of the shares in or debentures of the company, being underwriting commission, brokerage and charges for drafting, printing and advertisement of the prospectus; and
- (III) Such other items of expenditure (not being expenditure qualifying for any allowance or deduction under any other provision of the Act) as may be prescribed by the Board for the purpose of amortisation. However, the Board, so far, has not prescribed any specific item of expense as qualifying for amortisation under this clause.

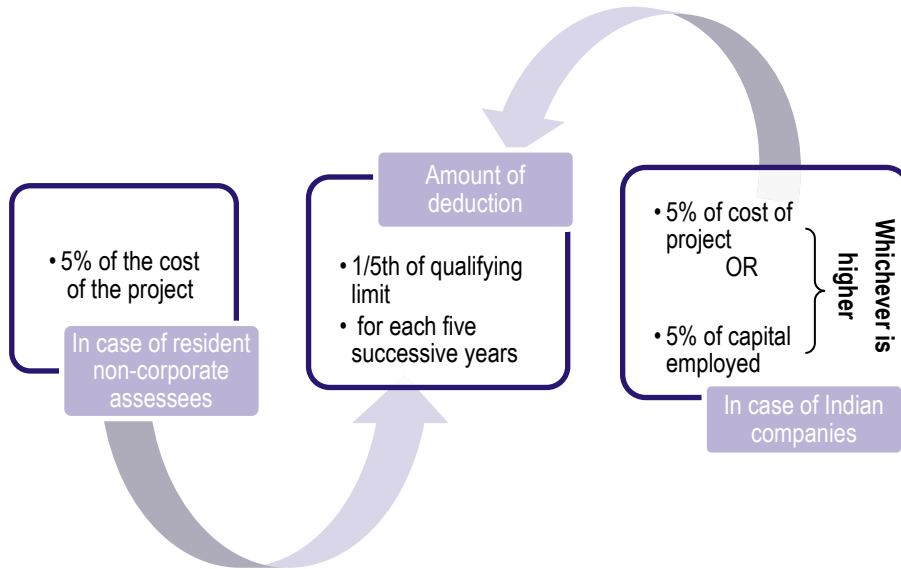

In the case of expenditure specified in items (a) to (d) above, the work in connection with the preparation of the feasibility report or the project report or the conducting of market survey or any other survey or the engineering services referred to must be carried out by the assessee himself or by a concern which is for the time being approved in this behalf by the Board.

- (v) Overall Limits - The maximum aggregate amount of the qualifying expenses that can be amortised has been fixed at 5% of the cost of the project or in the case of an Indian company, or, at the option of the company, 5% of the capital employed in the business of the company, whichever is higher. The excess, if any, of the qualifying expenses shall be ignored.

- (vi) Meaning of certain terms:

Terms	Meaning
Cost of the project	(i) Expenses incurred before the commencement of business: The actual cost of the fixed assets, being land, buildings, leaseholds, plant, machinery, furniture, fittings, railway sidings (including expenditure on the development of land, buildings) which are shown in the books of the assessee as on the last day of the previous year in which the business of the assessee commences; (ii) Expenses incurred for extension of the business or setting up of a new unit: The actual cost of the fixed assets being land, buildings, leaseholds, plant, machinery, furniture, fittings, and railway sidings (including expenditure on the development of land and buildings) which are shown in the books of the assessee as on the last day of the previous year in which the extension of the undertaking is completed or, as the case may be, the new unit commences production or operation, in so far as such fixed assets have been acquired or developed in connection with the extension of the undertaking or the setting up of the new unit.

Capital employed in the business of the company	(i) In the case of new company: The aggregate of the issued share capital, debentures and long-term borrowings as on the last day of the previous year in which the business of the company commences; (ii) In the case of extension of the business or the setting up of a new unit: The aggregate of the issued share capital, debentures, and long-term borrowings as on the last day of the previous year in which the extension of the undertaking is completed or, as the case may be, the unit commences production or operation in so far as such capital, debentures and long-term borrowings have been issued or obtained in connection with the extension of the undertaking or the setting up of the new undertaking or the setting up of the new unit of the company.
Long-term borrowing	(i) Any moneys borrowed in India by the company from the Government or the Industrial Finance Corporation of India or the Industrial Credit and Investment Corporation of India or any other financial institution eligible for deduction under section 36(1)(viii) or any banking institution, or (ii) any moneys borrowed or debt incurred by it in a foreign country in respect of the purchase outside India of plant and machinery where the terms under which such moneys are borrowed or the debt is incurred provide for the repayment thereof during a period of not less than 7 years.

(vii) Audit of accounts: In cases where the assessee is a person other than a company or a co-operative society, the deduction would be allowable only if the accounts of the assessee for the year or years in which the expenditure is incurred have been audited by a Chartered Accountant and the assessee furnishes, along with his return of income for the first year in respect of which the deduction is claimed, the report of such audit in the prescribed form duly signed and verified by the auditor and setting forth such other particulars as may be prescribed.

(viii) Special provisions for amalgamation and demerger- Where the undertaking of an Indian company is transferred, before the expiry of the period of five years, to another Indian company under a scheme of amalgamation, the aforesaid provisions will apply to the amalgamated company as if the amalgamation had not taken place. But no deduction will be admissible in the case of the amalgamating company for the previous year in which the amalgamation takes place.

Likewise, in the scheme of demerger where the resulting company will be able to claim amortisation of preliminary expenses as if demerger had not taken place, and no deduction shall be allowed to the demerged company in the year of demerger.

- (ix) No other deduction under any provision of the Act: It has been clarified that in case where a deduction under this section is claimed and allowed for any assessment year in respect of any item of expenditure, the expenditure in respect of which deduction is so allowed shall not qualify for deduction under any other provision of the Act for the same or any other assessment year.

(15) Amortisation of expense for Amalgamation/demerger [Section 35DD]

- (i) Nature of expenditure: This section applies where an assessee, being an Indian company, incurs expenditure, wholly and exclusively for the purpose of amalgamation or demerger.
- (ii) Amount of deduction: The assessee shall be allowed a deduction equal to one-fifth of such expenditure for five successive previous years beginning with the previous year in which amalgamation or demerger takes place.
- (iii) No other deduction under any provision of the Act: No deduction shall be allowed in respect of the above expenditure under any other provisions of the Act.

(16) Amortisation of expenditure incurred under voluntary retirement scheme [Section 35DDA]

- (i) Nature of expenditure: This section applies to an assessee who has incurred expenditure in any previous year in the form of payment to any employee in connection with his voluntary retirement, in accordance with any scheme or schemes of voluntary retirement.
- (ii) Amount of deduction: The amount of deduction allowable is one-fifth of the amount paid for that previous year, and the balance in four equal installments in the four immediately succeeding previous years.
- (iii) Transfer of business: In case of amalgamation, demerger, reorganisation or succession of business during the intervening period of the said 5 years, the benefit of deduction will be available to the “new company” for the balance period including the year in which such amalgamation/ demerger/ reorganisation or succession takes place.

Conditions to be satisfied - This will be applicable in the following situations:

- (i) where an Indian company is transferred to another Indian company in a scheme of amalgamation;
- (ii) where the undertaking of an Indian company is transferred to another company in a scheme of demerger;
- (iii) where due to a re-organisation of business, a firm is succeeded by a company fulfilling the conditions in section 47(xiii) or a proprietary concern is succeeded by a company fulfilling the conditions in section 47(xiv);

- (iv) where a private company or unlisted company is succeeded by LLP fulfilling the conditions laid down in section 47(xiiib).

In the above cases, the deduction shall be available to the successor company as such deduction would have applied to the original entity if such transfer had not taken place at all.

It is further provided that no deduction shall be available to the original entity being the amalgamating company, demerged company, or the firm or proprietary concern or private company (as the case may be) for the previous year in which the amalgamation, demerger or succession takes place.

- (iv) No other deduction under any provision of the Act: No deduction shall be allowed in respect of the above expenditure under any other provision of the Act.

(17) Amortisation of expenses for prospecting and development of certain minerals [Section 35E]

- (i) Eligible assessee: This provision applies only to expenditure incurred by an Indian company or other resident non-corporate taxpayer. In order to qualify for amortisation, the assessee should be engaged in any operations relating to prospecting for or the extraction or production of any mineral.
- (ii) Eligible expenses - The nature and kind of expenditure qualifying for amortisation are –
- (i) It must have been incurred during the year of commercial production and any one or more of the four years immediately preceding that year,
- (ii) It must be incurred wholly and exclusively on any operations relating to the prospecting for any mineral or group of certain minerals listed in the Seventh Schedule of the Income-tax Act, 1961 or on the development of a mine or other natural deposit of any mineral or group of associated minerals.
- (iii) Expenditure not allowed for deduction - Any portion of the expenditure which is met directly or indirectly by any other persons or authority and the sale, salvage, compensation or insurance moneys realised by the assessee in respect of any property or rights brought into existence as a result of the expenditure should be excluded from the amount of expenditure qualifying for amortisation.

Further, specific provision has been made to the effect that the following items of expenses do not qualify for amortisation at all viz.:

- (a) Expenditure incurred on the acquisition of the site of the source of any minerals or group of associated minerals stated above or of any right in or over such site;
- (b) Expenditure on the acquisition of the deposits of minerals or group of associated minerals referred to above or to any rights in or over such deposits; or

(c) Expenditure of a capital nature in respect of any building, machinery, plant or furniture for which depreciation allowance is permissible under section 32.

(iv) Amount of deduction - The assessee will be allowed for each of ten relevant previous years, a deduction of an amount equal to one-tenth of the aggregate amount of the qualifying expenditure.

Thus, the deduction to be allowed for any relevant previous year is

- (i) one-tenth of the expenditure or
- (ii) such amount as will reduce to nil the income of the previous year arising from the commercial exploration of any minerals or other natural deposit of the mineral or minerals in a group of associated minerals in respect of which the expenditure was incurred, whichever figure is less.

The amount of the deduction admissible in respect of any relevant previous year to the extent to which it remains unallowed, shall be carried forward and added to the installment relating to the previous year next following and shall be deemed to be a part of the installment and so on, for ten previous years beginning from the year of commercial production.

(v) Meaning of certain terms:

Term	Meaning
Operation relating to prospecting	Any operation undertaken for the purpose of exploiting, locating or proving deposits of any minerals and includes any such operation which proves to be infructuous or abortive.
Year of commercial production	The previous year in which as a result of any operation relating to prospecting or commercial production of any material or one or more of the minerals in a group of associated minerals specified in Part A or Part B, respectively, of the Seventh Schedule to Act actually commences.
Relevant previous year	Ten previous years beginning with the year of commercial production

(vi) Audit of accounts: The provisions with regard to audit of accounts relating to the qualifying expenditure are similar to those applicable for amortisation of preliminary expenses discussed earlier.

(vii) Special provisions for amalgamation or demerger: In the case of amalgamation, such deduction would continue to be admissible to the amalgamated company as if the amalgamation had not taken place.

Likewise, in case of demerger where such deduction can be availed of by the resulting company as if the demerger had not taken place.

Further, no deduction will be admissible to the amalgamating/ demerged company in the year of amalgamation/ demergers.

- (viii) No other deduction allowed in respect of the expenditure for which deduction is claimed under this section: Where a deduction is claimed and allowed on account of amortisation of the expenses under section 35E in any year in respect of any expenditure, the expenditure in respect of which deduction is so allowed shall not again qualify for deduction from the profits and gains under any other provisions of the Act for the same or any other assessment year.

(18) Other Deductions [Section 36]

This section authorises deduction of certain specific expenses. The items of expenditure and the conditions under which such expenditures are deductible are:

- (1) Insurance premia paid [Section 36(1)(i)] - If insurance policy has been taken out against risk, damage or destruction of the stock or stores of the business or profession, the premia paid is deductible. But the premium in respect of any insurance undertaken for any other purpose is not allowable under the clause.
- (2) Insurance premia paid by a Federal Milk Co-operative Society [Section 36(1)(ia)] - Deduction is allowed in respect of the amount of premium paid by a Federal Milk Co-operative Society to effect or to keep in force an insurance on the life of the cattle owned by a member of a co-operative society being a primary society engaged in supply of milk raised by its members to such Federal Milk Co-operative Society. The deduction is admissible without any monetary or other limits.
- (3) Premia paid by employer for health insurance of employees [Section 36(1)(ib)] - This clause seeks to allow a deduction to an employer in respect of premia paid by him by any mode of payment other than cash to effect or to keep in force an insurance on the health of his employees in accordance with a scheme framed by
  - (i) the General Insurance Corporation of India and approved by the Central Government; or
  - (ii) any other insurer and approved by the IRDA.
- (4) Bonus and Commission [Section 36(1)(ii)] - These are deductible in full provided the sum paid to the employees as bonus or commission shall not be payable to them as profits or dividends if it had not been paid as bonus or commission.

It is a provision intended to safeguard against a private company or an association escaping tax by distributing a part of its profits by way of bonus amongst the members, or employees of their own concern instead of distributing the money as dividends or profits.

- (5) Interest on borrowed capital [Section 36(1)(iii)] - Deduction of interest is allowed in respect of capital borrowed for the purposes of business or profession in the computation of income under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession".

Capital may be borrowed for several purposes like for acquiring a capital asset, or to pay off a trading debt or loss etc. The scope of the expression 'for the purposes of business' is very wide. Capital may be borrowed in the course of the existing business as well as for acquiring assets for extension of existing business.

As per proviso to section 36(1)(iii), deduction in respect of any amount of interest paid, in respect of capital borrowed for acquisition of new asset (whether capitalised in the books of account or not) for any period beginning from the date on which the capital was borrowed for acquisition of the asset till the date on which such asset was first put to use shall not be allowed.

Explanation 8 to section 43(1) clarifies that interest relating to a period after the asset is first put to use cannot be capitalised. Interest in respect of capital borrowed for any period from the date of borrowing to the date on which the asset was first put to use should, therefore, be capitalised.

Note: In the case of genuine business borrowings, the department cannot disallow any part of the interest on the ground that the rate of interest is unreasonably high except in cases falling under section 40A.

- (6) Discount on Zero Coupon Bonds (ZCBs) [Section 36(1)(iiia)] - Section 36(1)(iiia) provides deduction for the discount on ZCB on pro rata basis having regard to the period of life of the bond to be calculated in the manner prescribed.

Term	Meaning
Discount	Difference of the amount received or receivable by an infrastructure capital company/ infrastructure capital fund/ public sector company/ scheduled bank on issue of the bond and the amount payable by such company or fund or bank on maturity or redemption of the bond.
Period of life of the bond	The period commencing from the date of issue of the bond and ending on the date of the maturity or redemption.

Meaning of Infrastructure Capital Company [Section 2(26A)]

"Infrastructure capital company" means such company which makes investments by way of acquiring shares or providing long-term finance to -

- (1) any enterprise or undertaking wholly engaged –
  - (a) in the business referred to in section 80-IA(4) i.e. business of

- (i) developing/ operating and maintaining/ developing, operating and maintaining any infrastructure facility fulfilling the specified conditions
  - (ii) providing telecom services, whether basic or cellular
  - (iii) developing, developing and operating or maintaining and operating an industrial park or special economic zone notified by the Central Government
  - (iv) generating, transmitting or distributing power or undertaking substantial renovation and modernization of the existing network of transmission or distribution lines.
- (b) in the business referred to in section 80-IAB(1) i.e. any business of developing a SEZ.
- (2) an undertaking developing and building a housing project referred to in section 80-IB(10) i.e. approved before 31.3.2008 by a local authority and commences or commenced development and construction on or after 1.10.98 and completes or completed development and construction within the time specified.
  - (3) a project for constructing a hotel of not less than three-star category as classified by the Central Government or
  - (4) a project for constructing a hospital with at least 100 beds for patients.

Meaning of Infrastructure Capital Fund [Section 2(26B)]

Infrastructure capital fund means such fund operating under a trust deed registered under the provisions of the Registration Act, 1908 established to raise monies by the trustees for investment by way of acquiring shares or providing long-term finance to -

- (1) any enterprise or undertaking wholly engaged in the business referred to in section 80-IA(4) or section 80-IAB(1); or
  - (2) an undertaking developing and building a housing project referred to in section 80-IB(10); or
  - (3) a project for constructing a hotel of not less than three star category as classified by the Central Government; or
  - (4) a project for constructing a hospital with at least 100 beds for patients.
- (7) Contributions to provident and other funds [Section 36(1)(iv) and (v)] - Contribution to the employees' provident fund/ approved superannuation fund/ approved gratuity fund are allowable subject to the following conditions:
- (a) The gratuity fund should be settled upon a trust.

- (b) In case of Provident or superannuation or a Gratuity Fund, it should be one recognised or approved under the Fourth Schedule to the Income-tax Act, 1961.
- (c) The amount contributed should be periodic payment and not an adhoc payment to start the fund.
- (d) The gratuity fund should be for exclusive benefit of the employees.

The nature of the benefit available to the employees from the fund is not material; it may be pension, gratuity or provident fund.

(8) Employer's contribution to the account of the employee under a Pension Scheme referred to in section 80CCD [Section 36(1)(iva)]

- (i) Section 36(1)(iva) to provide that the employer's contribution to the account of an employee under a Pension Scheme as referred to in section 80CCD would be allowed as deduction while computing business income.
- (ii) However, deduction would be restricted to 10% of salary of the employee in the previous year.
- (iii) Salary, for this purpose, includes dearness allowance, if the terms of employment so provide, but excludes all other allowances and perquisites.
- (iv) Correspondingly, section 40A(9), which provides for disallowance of any sum paid by an employer towards contribution to any fund or trust has been amended to exclude from the scope of its disallowance, contribution by an employer to the pension scheme referred to in section 80CCD, to the extent to which deduction is allowable under section 36(1)(iva).

Excess contribution disallowed under section 40A(9)	60,000

- (9) Amount received by assessee as contribution from his employees towards their welfare fund to be allowed only if such amount is credited on or before due date – Section 36(1)(va) and section 57(ia) provide that deduction in respect of any sum received by the taxpayer as contribution from his employees towards any welfare fund of such employees will be allowed only if such sum is credited by the taxpayer to the employee's account in the relevant fund on or before the due date.

Due date	The date by which the assessee is required as an employer to credit such contribution to the employee's account in the relevant fund under the provisions of any law on term of contract of service or otherwise.
-----------------	---

As per the Employees Provident Funds Scheme, 1952, the amounts under consideration in respect of wages of the employees for any particular month shall be paid within 15 days of the close of every month.

- (10) Allowance for animals [Section 36(1)(vi)] – This clause grants an allowance in respect of animals which have died or become permanently useless.

The amount of the allowance is the difference between the actual cost of the animals and the price realized on the sale of the animals themselves or their carcasses.

The allowance under the clause would thus recoup to the assessee the entire capital expenditure in respect of animal.

- (11) Bad debts [Section 36(1)(vii) and section 36(2)]– These can be deducted subject to the following conditions:

- (a) The debts or loans should be in respect of a business which was carried on by the assessee during the relevant previous year.
- (b) The debt should have been taken into account in computing the income of the assessee of the previous year in which such debt is written off or of an earlier previous year or should represent money lent by the assessee in the ordinary course of his business of banking or money lending.

- I. Deduction under section 36(1)(vii) for bad debts limited to the amount by which bad debts exceed credit balance in the provision for doubtful debts account under section 36(1)(viia)

Under section 36(1)(vii), bad debt actually written off as irrecoverable in the books of account of the assessee is deductible. However, in the case of entities for which provision for bad and doubtful debts is allowable under section 36(1)(viia), deduction for bad debts written off under said clause (vii) shall be limited to the amount by which the bad debt written off exceeds the credit balance in the provision for bad and doubtful debts account made under section 36(1)(viia). This is provided in the proviso to section 36(1)(vii).

The CBDT has, clarified vide Circular no. 12/2016, dated 30-05-2016, that claim for any debt or part thereof in any previous year, shall be admissible under section 36(1)(vii), if it is written off as irrecoverable in the books of accounts of the assessee for that previous year and it fulfills the conditions stipulated in section 36(2).

However, no such requirement is there in law that the assessee has to establish that the debt has, in fact, become irrecoverable.

Further, the provisions of section 36(1)(vii) are subject to the provisions of section 36(2). Section 36(2)(v) provides that where the debt or part thereof relates to advances made by an assessee, to which section 36(1)(viia) applies, no deduction shall be allowed unless the assessee has debited the amount of such debt or part of such debt in that previous year to the provision for bad and doubtful debts account made under section 36(1)(viia).

Explanation 2 to section 36(1)(vii) states that for the purposes of the proviso to section 36(1)(vii) and section 36(2)(v), only one account as referred to therein shall be made in respect of provision for bad and doubtful debts under section 36(1)(viia) and such account shall relate to all types of advances, including advances made by rural branches.

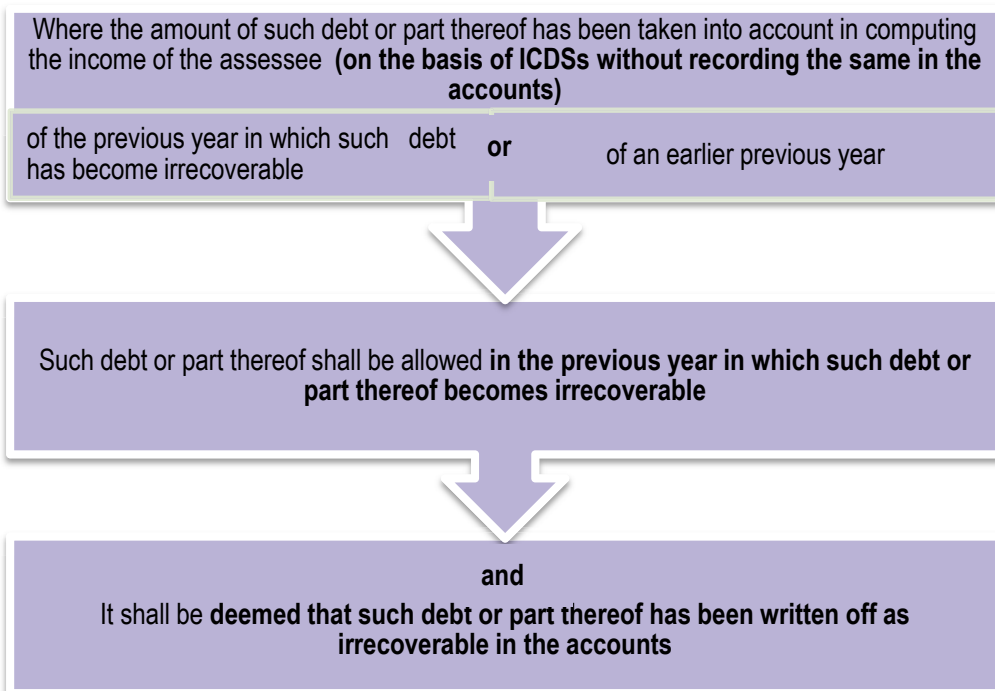

Therefore, in the case of an assessee to which section 36(1)(viia) applies, the amount of deduction in respect of the bad debts actually written off under section 36(1)(vii) shall be limited to the amount by which such bad debts exceeds the credit balance in the provision for bad and doubtful debts account made under section 36(1)(viia) without any distinction between rural advances and other advances.

II. Amount of debt taken into account in computing the income of the assessee on the basis of notified ICDSs to be allowed as deduction in the previous year in which such debt or part thereof becomes irrecoverable [Second proviso to section 36(1)(vii)]

- (i) Under section 36(1)(vii), deduction is allowed in respect of the amount of any bad debt or part thereof which is written off as irrecoverable in the accounts of the assessee for the previous year.
- (ii) Therefore, write off in the books of account is an essential condition for claim of bad debts under section 36(1)(vii).

- (iii) Amount of debt taken into account in computing the income of the assessee on the basis of notified ICDSs to be allowed as deduction in the previous year in which such debt or part thereof becomes irrecoverable.

If a debt, which has not been recognized in the books of account as per the requirement of the accounting standards but has been taken into account in the computation of income as per the notified ICDSs, has become irrecoverable, it can still be claimed as bad debts under section 36(1)(vii) since it shall be deemed that the debt has been written off as irrecoverable in the books of account by virtue of the second proviso to section 36(1)(vii). This is because some ICDSs require recognition of income at an earlier point of time (prior to the point of time such income is recognised in the books of account). Consequently, if the whole or part of such income recognised at an earlier point of time for tax purposes becomes irrecoverable, it can be claimed as bad debts on account of the second proviso to section 36(1)(vii).

III. Deduction of differential amount of debts due as bad debts in the year of recovery, to the extent of deficiency in recovery

If on the final settlement the amount recovered in respect of any debt, where deduction had already been allowed, falls short of the difference between the debt due and the amount of debt allowed, the deficiency can be claimed as a deduction from the income of the previous year in which the ultimate recovery out of the debt is made. It is permissible for the Assessing Officer to allow deduction in respect of a bad debt or any part thereof in the assessment of a particular year and subsequently to allow the balance of the amount, if any, in the year in which the ultimate recovery is made, that is to say, when the final result of the process of recovery comes to be known.

Recovery of a bad debt subsequently [Section 41(4)] - If a deduction has been allowed in respect of a bad debt under section 36, and subsequently the amount recovered in respect of such debt is more than the amount due after the allowance had been made, the excess shall be deemed to be the profits and gains of business or profession and will be chargeable as income of the previous year in which it is recovered, whether or not the business or profession in respect of which the deduction has been allowed is in existence at the time.

(12) Provision for bad and doubtful debts in cases of specified banks [Section 36(1)(viii)]

- (i) A scheduled bank which is not a bank incorporated by or under the laws of a country outside India or a non-scheduled bank or a co-operative bank other than a primary agricultural credit society or a primary co-operative agricultural and rural development bank, the following deductions will be allowed:
- (a) an amount not exceeding 8.5% of the total income (computed before making any deduction under this clause and Chapter VI-A), and
  - (b) an amount not exceeding 10% of the aggregate average advances made by the rural branches of such bank computed in the manner prescribed by the CBDT.

Accordingly, Rule 6ABA prescribed the manner for computation of aggregate average advance. The aggregate average advances made by the rural branches of a scheduled bank shall be computed in the following manner-

- (i) the amounts of advances made by each rural branch as outstanding at the end of the last day of each month comprised in the previous year shall be aggregated separately;
- (ii) the sum so arrived at in the case of each such branch shall be divided by the number of months for which the outstanding advances have been taken into account for the purposes of clause (i)
- (iii) the aggregate of the sums so arrived at in respect of each of the rural branches shall be the aggregate average advances made by the rural branches of the scheduled bank.

Such scheduled bank or a non-scheduled bank shall, at its option, be allowed in any of the relevant assessment years, deduction in respect of any provision made by it for any assets classified by the RBI as doubtful assets or loss assets in accordance with the guidelines issued by it in this behalf, for an amount not exceeding 5% of the amount of such assets shown in the books of account of the bank on the last day of the previous year.

Such scheduled bank or a non-scheduled bank shall, at its option, be allowed a further deduction in excess of the limits specified in the foregoing provisions, for an amount not exceeding the income derived from redemption of securities in accordance with a scheme framed by the Central Government.

It is also provided that this deduction shall not be allowed unless such income has been disclosed in the return of income under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession".

Meaning of certain terms:

Term	Meaning
Scheduled Bank	It refers to the State Bank of India or any of its subsidiaries or any of the nationalised banks and would also include any other bank which is listed in the Second Schedule to the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934.
Non-Scheduled Bank	This refers to a banking company as defined in clause (c) of section 5 of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949 which is not a scheduled bank.
Rural branch	A branch of a scheduled bank or a non-scheduled bank situated in a place which has a population of not more than 10,000 according to the last preceding census of which the relevant figures have been published before the first day of the previous year.

(13) Special deduction to Specified Entities engaged in eligible business [Section 36(1)(viii)]

- (i) This section provides deduction in respect of any special reserve created and maintained by a specified entity.
- (ii) Amount of deduction: The quantum of deduction, however, should not exceed 20% of the profits derived from eligible business computed under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" carried to such reserve account.

However, where the aggregate amount carried to such reserve account exceeds twice the amount of paid up share capital and general reserve, no deduction shall be allowed in respect of such excess.

- (iii) Eligible business for specified entities: The eligible business for different entities specified are given in the table below –

	Specified entity	Eligible business
1.	(a) Financial Corporation specified in section 4A of the Companies Act, 1956 <sup>11</sup> (b) Financial corporation which is a public sector company (c) Banking company (d) Co-operative bank (other than a primary agricultural credit society or a primary co-operative agricultural and rural development bank)	Business of providing long-term finance for - (i) industrial or agricultural development or (ii) development of infrastructure facility in India; or (iii) development of housing in India.
2.	A housing finance company	Business of providing long-term finance for the construction or purchase of residential house in India.
3.	Any other financial corporation including a public company	Business of providing long-term finance for development of infrastructure facility in India.

- (iv) Infrastructure facility has been defined to mean -

- (a) (1) an infrastructure facility as defined in the Explanation to clause (i) of sub-section (4) of section 80-IA i.e.
- (i) a road including toll road, a bridge or a rail system;
  - (ii) a highway project including housing or other activities being an integral part of the highway project;
  - (iii) a water supply project, water treatment system, irrigation project, sanitation and sewerage system or solid waste management system; and
  - (iv) a port, airport, inland waterway or inland port or a navigational channel in the sea

- (2) any other public facility of a similar nature as may be notified by the CBDT in this behalf in the Official Gazette and which fulfils the prescribed conditions;

Notification of public facilities as infrastructure facility for the purpose of section 36(1)(viii) [Notification No. 188/2006, dated 20.7.2006]

The following public facilities have been notified by the CBDT as infrastructure facility for purposes of section 36(1)(viii)-

- (i) Inland Container Depot and Container Freight Station notified under the Customs Act, 1962
- (ii) Mass Rapid Transit system
- (iii) Light Rail Transit system
- (iv) Expressways
- (v) Intra-urban or semi-urban roads like ring roads or urban by-passes or flyovers
- (vi) Bus and truck terminals
- (vii) Subways
- (viii) Road dividers
- (ix) Bulk Handling Terminals which are developed or maintained or operated for development of rail system
- (x) Multilevel Computerized Car Parking.

Conditions to be fulfilled by a public facility to be eligible to be notified as an infrastructure facility [Notification No.187/2006 dated 20.7.2006]:

Rule 6ABAA has been inserted in the Income-tax Rules, 1962 which specifies the conditions to be fulfilled by a public facility to be eligible to be notified as an infrastructure facility in accordance with the provisions of clause (d) of the Explanation to clause (viii) of sub-section (1) of section 36. The conditions specified therein are -

- (i) it is owned by a company registered in India or by a consortium of such companies or by an authority or a board or a corporation or any other body established or constituted under any Central or State Act;
- (ii) it has entered into an agreement with the Central Government or a State Government or a local authority or any other statutory body for (a) developing or (b) operating and maintaining or (c) developing, operating and maintaining a new infrastructure facility similar in nature to an infrastructure facility referred to in the Explanation to section 80-IA(4)(i);

- (iii) it has started or starts operating and maintaining such infrastructure facility on or after 1st April, 1995.
- (b) an undertaking referred to in clause (ii) or clause (iii) or clause (iv) of sub-section (4) of section 80-IA (i.e. an undertaking providing telecommunication services, an undertaking developing, developing and operating, maintaining and operating an industrial park or SEZ notified by the Central Government, an undertaking generating, distributing or transmitting power, substantial renovation and modernization of existing network of transmission or distribution lines); and
- (c) an undertaking referred to in sub-section (10) of section 80-IB i.e. an undertaking developing and building housing projects approved by a local authority.
- (v) Long term finance - Long-term finance means any loan or advance where the terms under which moneys are loaned or advanced provide for repayment along with interest thereof during a period of not less than 5 years.

Amount withdrawal from special reserve [Section 41(4A)] - Where a deduction has been allowed in respect of any special reserve created and maintain under section 36(1)(viii), and subsequently the amount is withdrawn from such special reserve then such amount shall be deemed to be the profits and gains of business or profession and will be chargeable as income of the previous year in which such amount is withdrawn.

If the amount is withdrawn in a previous year in which the business is no longer in existence, the taxability would arise in the above manner as though the business is in existence in that previous year.

(14) Expenses on family planning by a company [Section 36(1)(ix)] - Any expenditure of revenue nature bona fide incurred by a company for the purpose of promoting family planning amongst its employees will be allowed as a deduction in computing the company's business income;

- Where, the expenditure is of a capital nature, one-fifth of such expenditure will be deducted in the previous year in which it was incurred and in each of the four immediately succeeding previous years.
- This deduction is allowable only to companies and not to other assesseees.

- The assessee would be entitled to carry forward and set off the unabsorbed part of the allowance in the same way as unabsorbed depreciation.

The capital expenditure on promoting family planning will be treated in the same way as capital expenditure for scientific research for purposes of dealing with the profit or loss on the sale or transfer of the asset including a transfer on amalgamation.

(15) Deduction for expenditure incurred by entities established under any Central, State or Provincial Act [Section 36(1)(xii)]

Any expenditure (not being in the nature of capital expenditure) incurred by a corporation or a body corporate, by whatever name called, if –

- it is constituted or established by a Central, State or Provincial Act;
- such corporation or body corporate is notified by the Central Government in the Official Gazette for this purpose having regard to the objects and purposes of the Act;
- the expenditure is incurred for the objects and purposes authorised by the Act under which it is constituted and established.

Accordingly, the Central Government has notified the Oil Industry Development Board for the purpose of deduction under section 36(1)(xii).

(16) Deduction of contribution by a public financial institution to Credit guarantee fund trust for small industries [Section 36(1)(xiv)]

- Section 36(1)(xiv) provides for deduction of any sum paid by a public financial institution by way of contribution to such credit guarantee fund trust for small industries notified by the Central Government in the Official Gazette.
- Public financial institution has the meaning assigned to it in section 4A<sup>12</sup> of the Companies Act, 1956.

(17) Deduction of securities transaction tax paid [Section 36(1)(xv)]

The amount of securities transaction tax paid by the assessee during the year in respect of taxable securities transactions entered into in the course of business shall be allowed as deduction under section 36 subject to the condition that such income from taxable securities transactions is included under the head 'Profits and gains of business or profession'.

Thus, securities transaction tax paid would be allowed as a deduction like any other business expenditure.

(18) Deduction for commodities transaction tax paid in respect of taxable commodities transactions [Section 36(1)(xvi)]

- (i) The Finance Act, 2013 has introduced a new tax called Commodities Transaction Tax (CTT) to be levied on taxable commodities transactions entered into in a recognised association, vide Chapter VII of the Finance Act, 2013.
- (ii) For this purpose, a 'taxable commodities transaction' means a transaction of sale of commodity derivatives in respect of commodities, other than agricultural commodities, traded in recognised associations.
- (iii) CTT is to be levied at 0.01% on sale of commodity derivative. CTT is to be paid by the seller.
- (iv) A "commodity derivative" means –
  - (a) A contract for delivery of goods which is not a ready delivery contract
  - (b) A contract for differences which derives its value from prices or indices of prices -
    - (i) of such underlying goods; or
    - (ii) of related services and rights, such as warehousing and freight; or
    - (iii) with reference to weather and similar events and activities having a bearing on the commodity sector.
- (v) Consequently, clause (xvi) of section 36(1) provides that an amount equal to the CTT paid by the assessee in respect of the taxable commodities transactions entered into in the course of his business during the previous year shall be allowable as deduction, if the income arising from such taxable commodities transactions is included in the income computed under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession".

(19) Amount of expenditure incurred by a co-operative society for purchase of sugarcane at price fixed by the Government allowable as deduction [Section 36(1)(xvii)]

Section 36(xvii) provides for deduction of expenditure incurred by a co-operative society engaged in the business of manufacture of sugar for purchase of sugarcane at a price equal to or less than the price fixed or approved by the Government.

(20) Marked to market loss [Section 36(1)(xviii)]

Marked to market loss or other expected loss as computed in accordance with the ICDS notified under section 145(2), shall be allowed as deduction. ICDS I provides that marked to market losses would not be allowed unless the same is in accordance with any other ICDS. Therefore, only marked to market losses specifically permitted under any other ICDS would be allowable as deduction under section 36. This amendment is effective from A.Y. 2017-18.

(19) Residuary Expenses [Section 37]

(1) Revenue expenditure incurred for purposes of carrying on the business, profession or vocation - This is a residuary section under which only business expenditure is allowable but not the business losses, e.g., those arising out of embezzlement, theft, destruction of assets, misappropriation by employees etc. The deduction is limited only to the amount actually expended and does not extend to a reserve created against a contingent liability.

(2) Conditions for allowance: The following conditions should be fulfilled in order that a particular item of expenditure may be deductible under this section:

- (a) The expenditure should not be of the nature described in sections 30 to 36.
- (b) It should have been incurred by the assessee in the accounting year.
- (c) It should be in respect of a business carried on by the assessee the profits of which are being computed and assessed.
- (d) It must have been incurred after the business was set up.
- (e) It should not be in the nature of any personal expenses of the assessee.
- (f) It should have been laid out or expended wholly and exclusively for the purposes of such business.
- (g) It should not be in the nature of capital expenditure.
- (h) The expenditure should not have been incurred by the assessee for any purpose which is an offence or is prohibited by law.

This section is thus limited in scope. It does not permit an assessee to make all deductions which a prudent trader would make in ascertaining his own profit. It might be observed that the section requires that the expenditure should be wholly and exclusively laid out for purpose of the business but not that it should have been necessarily laid out for such purpose. Therefore, expenses wholly and exclusively laid out for the purpose of trade are, subject to the fulfilment of other conditions, allowed under this section even though the outlay is unnecessary.

- (3) Expenditure incurred on Keyman insurance policy: CBDT Circular no. 762/1998 dated 18.02.1998 clarifies that the premium paid on the Keyman Insurance Policy is allowable as business expenditure.

Taking into account the Explanation to Section 10(10D) and the CBDT Circular no. 762 dated 18.02.1998, Courts have held that a Keyman Insurance Policy is not confined to a policy taken for an employee but also extends to an insurance policy taken with respect to the life of another person who is connected in any manner whatsoever with the business of the subscriber (assessee).

The High Court of Punjab and Haryana has, in the case of M/s. Ramesh Steels, ITA No. 437 of 2015, vide judgement dated 2.2.2016, reiterating the above view, held that, “the said policy when obtained to secure the life of a partner to safeguard the firm against a disruption of the business is equally for the benefit of the partnership business which may be effected as a result of premature death of a partner. Thus, the premium on the Keyman Insurance Policy of partner of the firm is wholly and exclusively for the purpose of business and is allowable as business expenditure”.

In view of the above, the CBDT has clarified that in case of a firm, premium paid by the firm on the Keyman Insurance Policy of a partner, to safeguard the firm against a disruption of the business, is an admissible expenditure under section 37 of the Act.

- (4) Explanation 1 to section 37(1) - This Explanation provides that any expenditure incurred by the assessee for any purpose which is an offence or is prohibited by law shall not be allowed as a deduction or allowance.

Inadmissibility of expenses incurred in providing freebees to medical practitioner by pharmaceutical and allied health sector industry [Circular No. 5/2012 dated 1-8-2012]

Section 37(1) provides for deduction of any revenue expenditure (other than those falling under sections 30 to 36) from the business income if such expense is laid out or expended wholly or exclusively for the purpose of business or profession. However, the Explanation below section 37(1) denies claim of any such expenses, if the same has been incurred for a purpose which is either an offence or prohibited by law.

The CBDT, considering the fact that the claim of any expense incurred in providing freebees to medical practitioner is in violation of the provisions of Indian Medical Council (Professional Conduct, Etiquette and Ethics) Regulations, 2002 has clarified that the expenditure so incurred shall be inadmissible under section 37(1) of the Income-tax Act, 1961, being an expense prohibited by the law. The disallowance shall be made in the hands of such pharmaceutical or allied health sector industry or other assessee which has provided aforesaid freebees and claimed it as a deductible expense in its accounts against income.

This circular has also clarified that a sum equivalent to value of freebees enjoyed by the aforesaid medical practitioner or professional associations is also taxable as business income or income from other sources, as the case may be, depending on the facts of each case.

(5) Disallowance of CSR expenditure [Explanation 2 to Section 37(1)]

- (i) Section 135 of the Companies Act, 2013 read with Schedule VII thereto and Companies (Corporate Social Responsibility) Rules, 2014 are the special provisions under the new company law regime imposing mandatory CSR obligations.

Mandatory CSR obligations under section 135:

- Every company, listed or unlisted, private or public, having a -
  - net worth of ₹ 500 crores or more [Net worth criterion]; or
  - turnover of ₹ 1,000 crores or more [Turnover criterion]; or
  - a net profit of ₹ 5 crores or more [Net Profit criterion]
 during the immediate preceding financial year to constitute a CSR Committee of the Board;
- CSR Committee has to formulate CSR policy and the same has to be approved by the Board;
- Such company to undertake CSR activities as per the CSR Policy;
- Such company to spend in every financial year, at least 2% of its average net profits made in the immediately three preceding financial years “or where the company has not completed the period of three financial years since its incorporation, during such immediately preceding financial years, on the CSR activities specified in Schedule VII to the Companies Act, 2013.

- (ii) As per Rule 4 of the Companies (CSR) Rules, 2014, the following expenditure are not considered as CSR activity for the purpose of section 135:
- Expenditure on activities undertaken in pursuance of normal course of business;
  - Expenditure on CSR activities undertaken outside India;
  - Expenditure which is exclusively for the benefit of the employees of the company or their families; and
  - Contributions to political parties.
- (iii) Under section 37(1) of the Income-tax Act, 1961, only expenditure, not covered under sections 30 to 36, and incurred wholly and exclusively for the purposes of the business is allowed as a deduction while computing taxable business income. The issue under consideration is whether CSR expenditure is allowable as deduction under section 37.

- (iv) It has now been clarified that for the purposes of section 37(1), any expenditure incurred by an assessee on the activities relating to corporate social responsibility referred to in section 135 of the Companies Act, 2013 shall not be deemed to have been incurred for the purpose of business and hence, shall not be allowed as deduction under section 37.
  - (v) The rationale behind the disallowance is that CSR expenditure, being an application of income, is not incurred wholly and exclusively for the purposes of carrying on business.
  - (vi) However, the Explanatory Memorandum to the Finance (No.2) Bill, 2014 clarifies that CSR expenditure, which is of the nature described in sections 30 to 36, shall be allowed as deduction under those sections subject to fulfillment of conditions, if any, specified therein.
- (6) Advertisements in souvenirs of political parties: Section 37(2B) disallows any deduction on account of advertisement expenses representing contributions made by any person carrying on business or profession in computing the profits and gains of the business or profession. It has specifically been provided that this provision for disallowance would apply notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 37(1).

In other words, the expenditure representing contribution for political purposes would become disallowable even in those cases where the expenditure is otherwise incurred by the assessee in his character as a trader and the amount is wholly and exclusively incurred for the purpose of the business.

Accordingly, a taxpayer would not be entitled to any deduction in respect of expenses incurred by him on advertisement in any souvenir, brochure, tract or the like published by any political party, whether it is registered with the Election Commission of India or not.

- (7) Deduction in respect of cost of production allowable under section 37 in the case of Abandoned Feature Films [Circular No. 16, dated 6.10.2015]

The deduction in respect of the cost of production of a feature film certified for release by the Board of Film Censors in a previous year is provided in Rule 9A.

In the case of abandoned films, however, since certificate of Board of Film Censors is not received, in some cases no deduction was allowed by applying Rule 9A of the Rules or by treating the expenditure as capital expenditure.

The CBDT has examined the matter in light of judicial decisions on this subject. The order of the Hon'ble Bombay High Court dated 28.1.2015 in ITA 310 of 2013 in the case of Venus Records and Tapes Pvt. Ltd. on this issue has been accepted and the aforesaid disputed issue has not been further contested.

Consequently, it is clarified that Rule 9A does not apply to abandoned feature films and that the expenditure incurred on such abandoned feature films is not to be treated as a capital expenditure. The cost of production of an abandoned feature film is to be treated as revenue expenditure and allowed as per the provisions of section 37 of the Income-tax Act, 1961.

(20) Clarification regarding treatment of expenditure incurred for development of roads/highways in Build-Operate-Transfer (BOT) agreements under the Income-tax Act, 1961 [Circular No. 09/2014, dated 23.04.2014]

The CBDT has, vide this Circular, clarified the tax treatment of expenditure incurred on development and construction of infrastructural facilities like roads/highways on Build-Operate-Transfer (BOT) basis with right to collect toll - whether the same is entitled to depreciation under section 32(1)(ii) or can be amortized by treating it as an allowable business expenditure under the relevant provisions of the Income- tax Act, 1961.

Generally, the BOT basis projects are entered into between the developer and the government or the notified authority, on the following terms:

- (i) In such projects, the developer, in terms of concessionaire agreement with Government or its agencies, is required to construct, develop and maintain the infrastructural facility of roads/highways which, inter alia, includes laying of road, bridges, highways, approach roads, culverts, public amenities etc. at its own cost and its utilization thereof for a specified period.
- (ii) The possession of land is handed over to the assessee (i.e., the developer) by the Government/ notified authority for the purpose of construction of the project without any actual transfer of ownership. The assessee, therefore, has only a right to develop and maintain such asset. It also enjoys the benefits arising from the use of asset through collection of toll for a specified period, without having actual ownership over such asset. Therefore, the rights in the land remain vested with the Government/notified agencies.
- (iii) Since the assessee does not hold any rights in the project except recovery of toll fee to recoup the expenditure incurred, it cannot be treated as an owner of the property, either wholly or partly, for purposes of allowability of depreciation under section 32(1)(ii). Thus, claim of depreciation on toll ways is not allowable due to non-fulfillment of ownership criteria in such cases.
- (iv) Where the assessee incurs expenditure on a project for development of roads/highways, it is entitled to recover cost incurred towards development of such facility (comprising of construction cost and other pre-operative expenses) during construction period. Further, expenditure incurred by the assessee on such BOT projects brings to it an enduring benefit in the form of right to collect the toll during the period of agreement.

The Supreme Court, in Madras Industrial Investment Corporation Ltd. vs. CIT 225 ITR 802, allowed the spreading over of liability over a number of years on the ground that there was continuing benefit to the company over a period. Therefore, analogously, expenditure incurred on an infrastructure project for development of roads/highways under BOT agreement may be treated as having been made/ incurred for the purposes of business or profession of the assessee and same shall be allowed to be spread during the tenure of concessionaire agreement.

In view of the above, the CBDT, in exercise of the powers conferred under section 119, clarifies that the cost of construction on development of infrastructure facility, being roads/highways under BOT projects, may be amortized and claimed as allowable business expenditure under the Act in the following manner:

- (i) The amortization allowable may be computed at the rate which ensures that the whole of the cost incurred in creation of infrastructural facility of road/highway is amortised evenly over the period of concessionaire agreement after excluding the time taken for creation of such facility.
- (ii) Where an assessee has claimed any deduction out of initial cost of development of infrastructure facility of roads/highways under BOT projects in earlier years, the total deduction so claimed for the assessment years prior to assessment year under consideration may be deducted from the initial cost of infrastructure facility of roads/highways and the cost so reduced shall be amortised equally over the remaining period of toll concessionaire agreement.

The clarification given in this Circular is applicable only to those infrastructure projects for development of road/highways on BOT basis where ownership is not vested with the assessee under the concessionaire agreement.

6.7 INADMISSIBLE DEDUCTIONS [SECTION 40]

By dividing the assessee into distinct groups, this section places absolute restraint on the deductibility of certain expenses as follows:

In the case of any assessee, the following expenses are not deductible:

(1) Section 40(a)(i)

Any interest (not being interest on loan issued for public subscription before the 1st day of April, 1938), royalty, fees for technical services or other sum chargeable under this Act, which is payable, -

- (a) outside India;
- (b) in India to a non-resident, not being a company or to a foreign company, on which tax is deductible at source under Chapter XVIIIB and such tax has not been deducted or, after deduction, has not been paid on or before the due date of filing of return specified under section 139(1).

It is also provided that where in respect of any such sum, where tax has been deducted in any subsequent year, or has been deducted in the previous year but paid after the due date of filing of return under section 139(1), such sum shall be allowed as a deduction in computing the income of the previous year in which such tax has been paid.

In case, assessee fails to deduct the whole or any part of tax on any such sum but is not deemed as assessee in default under the first proviso to section 201(1) by reason that such payee –

- (i) has furnished his return of income under section 139;
- (ii) has taken into account such sum for computing income in such return of income; and
- (iii) has paid the tax due on the income declared by him in such return of income, and the payer furnishes a certificate to this effect from an accountant in such form as may be prescribed, it would be deemed that the assessee has deducted and paid the tax on such sum on the date on which return of income has been furnished by the payee.

Since the date of furnishing the return of income by the payee is taken to be the date on which the payer has deducted tax at source and paid the same, such expenditure/payment in respect of which the payer has failed to deduct tax at source shall be disallowed under section 40(a)(i) in the year in which the said expenditure is incurred. However, such expenditure will be allowed as deduction in the subsequent year in which the return of income is furnished by the payee, since tax is deemed to have been deducted and paid by the payer in that year.

Clarification regarding disallowance of 'other sum chargeable' under section 40(a)(i) [Circular No. 3/2015, dated 12-02-2015]

If there has been a failure in deduction or in payment of tax deducted in respect of any interest, royalty, fees for technical services or other sum chargeable under the Act either payable in India to non-corporate non-resident or a foreign company or payable outside India, then, disallowance of the related expenditure/ payment is attracted under section 40(a)(i) while computing income chargeable under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession".

The interpretation of the term 'other sum chargeable' in section 195 has been clarified in this circular i.e. whether this term refers to the whole sum being remitted or only the portion representing the sum chargeable to income-tax under the Act.

In its Instruction No. 2/2014, dated 26.02.2014, the CBDT has clarified that the Assessing Officer shall determine the appropriate portion of the sum chargeable to tax as mentioned in section 195(1), to ascertain the tax liability on which the deductor shall be deemed to be an assessee in default under section 201, in cases where no application is filed by the deductor for determining the sum so chargeable under section 195(2).

In this circular, the CBDT has, in exercise of its powers under section 119, clarified that for the purpose of making disallowance of 'other sum chargeable' under section 40(a)(i), the appropriate portion of the sum which is chargeable to tax shall form the basis of disallowance. Further, the appropriate portion shall be the same as determined by the Assessing Officer having jurisdiction for the purpose of section 195(1). Also, where the determination of 'other sum chargeable' has been made under sub-section (2), (3) or (7) of section 195 of the Act, such a determination will form the basis for disallowance, if any, under section 40(a)(i).

(2) Section 40(a)(ia)

Section 40(a)(ia) provides that 30% of any sum payable to a resident, on which tax is deductible at source under Chapter XVII-B, shall be disallowed if –

- (i) such tax has not been deducted; or

- (ii) such tax, after deduction, has not been paid on or before the due date specified in section 139(1).

If in respect of such sum, tax has been deducted in any subsequent year or has been deducted during the previous year but paid after the due date specified in section 139(1), 30% of such sum shall be allowed as deduction in computing the income of the previous year in which such tax has been paid.

For instance, tax on royalty paid to Mr. A, a resident, has been deducted during the previous year 2019-20, the same has to be paid by 31st July/ 30th September 2020, as the case may be. Otherwise, 30% of royalty paid would be disallowed in computing the income for A.Y. 2020-21. If in respect of such royalty, tax deducted during the P.Y.2019-20 has been paid after 31st July/ 30th September, 2020, 30% of such royalty would be allowed as deduction in the year of payment.

ILLUSTRATION 13

Delta Ltd. credited the following amounts to the account of resident payees in the month of March, 2020 without deduction of tax at source. What would be the consequence of non-deduction of tax at source by Delta Ltd. on these amounts during the financial year 2019-20, assuming that the resident payees in all the cases mentioned below, have not paid the tax, if any, which was required to be deducted by Delta Ltd.?

	Particulars	Amount (₹)
(1)	Salary to its employees (credited and paid in March, 2020)	12,00,000
(2)	Directors' remuneration (credited in March, 2020 and paid in April, 2020)	28,000

Would your answer change if Delta Ltd. has deducted tax on directors' remuneration in April, 2020 at the time of payment and remitted the same in July, 2020?

SOLUTION

Non-deduction of tax at source on any sum payable to a resident on which tax is deductible at source as per the provisions of Chapter XVII-B would attract disallowance under section 40(a)(ia).

Therefore, non-deduction of tax at source on any sum paid by way of salary on which tax is deductible under section 192 or any sum credited or paid by way of directors' remuneration on which tax is deductible under section 194J, would attract disallowance@30% under section 40(a)(ia). Whereas in case of salary, tax has to be deducted under section 192 at the time of payment, in case of directors' remuneration, tax has to be deducted at the time of credit of such sum to the account of the payee or at the time of payment, whichever is earlier. Therefore, in both the cases i.e., salary and directors' remuneration, tax is deductible in the P.Y.2019-20, since salary was paid in that year and directors' remuneration was credited in that year. Therefore, the amount to be disallowed under section 40(a)(ia) while computing business income for A.Y.2020-21 is as follows –

	Particulars	Amount paid in ₹	Disallowance u/s 40(a)(ia) @ 30% (₹)
(1)	Salary [tax is deductible under section 192]	12,00,000	3,60,000
(2)	Directors' remuneration [tax is deductible under section 194J without any threshold limit]	28,000	8,400
Disallowance under section 40(a)(ia)			3,68,400

If the tax is deducted on directors' remuneration in the next year i.e., P.Y.2020-21 at the time of payment and remitted to the Government, the amount of ₹ 8,400 would be allowed as deduction while computing the business income of A.Y.2021-22.

In case, assessee fails to deduct the whole or any part of tax on any such sum but is not deemed as assessee in default under the first proviso to section 201(1) by reason that such payee –

- (i) has furnished his return of income under section 139;
- (ii) has taken into account such sum for computing income in such return of income; and
- (iii) has paid the tax due on the income declared by him in such return of income, and the payer furnishes a certificate to this effect from an accountant in such form as may be prescribed, it would be deemed that the assessee has deducted and paid the tax on such sum.

The date of deduction and payment of taxes by the payer shall be deemed to be the date on which return of income has been furnished by the payee.

Since the date of furnishing the return of income by the payee is taken to be the date on which the payer has deducted tax at source and paid the same, 30% of such expenditure/payment in respect of which the payer has failed to deduct tax at source shall be disallowed under section 40(a)(ia) in the year in which the said expenditure is incurred. However, 30% of such expenditure will be allowed as deduction in the subsequent year in which the return of income is furnished by the payee, since tax is deemed to have been deducted and paid by the payer in that year.

Disallowance of any sum paid to a resident at any time during the previous year without deduction of tax under section 40(a)(ia) [Circular No.10/2013, dated 16.12.2013]

There have been conflicting interpretations by judicial authorities regarding the applicability of provisions of section 40(a)(ia), with regard to the amount not deductible in computing the income chargeable under the head 'Profits and gains of business or profession'. Some court rulings have held that the provisions of disallowance under section 40(a)(ia) apply only to the amount which remained payable at the end of the relevant financial year and would not be invoked to disallow the amount which had actually been paid during the previous year without deduction of tax at source.

Departmental View: The CBDT's view is that the provisions of section 40(a)(ia) would cover not only the amounts which are payable as on 31st March of a previous year but also amounts which are payable at any time during the year. The statutory provisions are amply clear and in the context of section 40(a)(ia), the term "payable" would include "amounts which are paid during the previous year".

The Circular has further clarified that where any High Court decides an issue contrary to the above "Departmental View", the "Departmental View" shall not be operative in the area falling in the jurisdiction of the relevant High Court.

ILLUSTRATION 14

During the financial year 2019-20, the following payments/expenditure were made/incurred by Mr. Yuvan Raja, a resident individual (whose turnover during the year ended 31.3.2019 was ₹ 99 lacs):

- (i) Interest of ₹ 45,000 was paid to Rehman & Co., a resident partnership firm, without deduction of tax at source;
- (ii) ₹ 3,00,000 was paid as salary to a resident individual without deduction of tax at source;
- (iii) Commission of ₹ 16,000 was paid to Mr. Vidyasagar on 2.7.2019 without deduction of tax at source.

Briefly discuss whether any disallowance arises under the provisions of section 40(a)(ia) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 assuming that the payees in all the cases mentioned above, have not paid the tax, if any, which was required to be deducted by Mr. Raja?

SOLUTION

Disallowance under section 40(a)(ia) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 is attracted where the assessee fails to deduct tax at source as is required under the Act, or having deducted tax at source, fails to remit the same to the credit of the Central Government within the stipulated time limit.

- (i) The obligation to deduct tax at source from interest paid to a resident arises under section 194A in the case of an individual, whose total turnover in the immediately preceding previous year, i.e., P.Y.2018-19 exceeds ₹ 100 lakhs. Thus, in present case, since the turnover of the assessee is less than ₹ 100 lakhs, he is not liable to deduct tax at source. Hence, disallowance under section 40(a)(ia) is not attracted in this case.
- (ii) The disallowance of 30% of the sums payable under section 40(a)(ia) would be attracted in respect of all sums on which tax is deductible under Chapter XVII-B. Section 192, which requires deduction of tax at source from salary paid, is covered under Chapter XVII-B. The obligation to deduct tax at source under section 192 arises, in the hands all assessee-employer even if the turnover amount does not exceed ₹100 lacs in the immediately preceding previous year.

Therefore, in the present case, the disallowance under section 40(a)(ia) is attracted for failure to deduct tax at source under section 192 from salary payment. However, only 30% of the amount of salary paid without deduction of tax at source would be disallowed.

- (iii) The obligation to deduct tax at source under section 194-H from commission paid in excess of ₹ 15,000 to a resident arises in the case of an individual, whose total turnover in the immediately preceding previous year, i.e., P.Y.2018-19 exceeds ₹ 100 lakhs. Thus, in present case, since the turnover of the assessee is less than ₹ 100 lakhs, he is not liable to deduct tax at source. Mr. Raja is not required to deduct tax at source u/s 194M also since the aggregate of such commission to Mr. Vidyasagar does not exceed ₹ 50 lakh during the P.Y. 2019-20. Therefore, disallowance under section 40(a)(ia) is not attracted in this case.

(3) Section 40(a)(ib)

Section 40(a)(ib) provides that where any consideration is paid or payable to a non-resident for a specified service on which equalisation levy is deductible, and such levy has not been deducted or after deduction, has not been paid on or before the due date under section 139(1), then, such expenses incurred by the assessee towards consideration for specified service shall not be allowed as deduction.

However, where in respect of such consideration, if the equalisation levy has been deducted in any subsequent year or has been deducted during the previous year but paid after the due date specified under section 139(1), such sum shall be allowed as deduction in computing the income of the previous year in which such levy has been paid.

(4) Section 40(a)(ii)

Any sum paid on account of rate or tax levied on profits on the basis of or in proportion to the profits and gains of any business or profession i.e., Income-tax, or assessed at a proportion of or otherwise on the basis of, any such profits or gains.

- (a) Any sum paid outside India (on account of any rate or tax levied) which is eligible for tax relief under section 90 or deduction from the income-tax payable under section 91 is not allowable and is deemed to have never been allowable as a deduction under section 40(a).
- (b) However, the tax payers will continue to be eligible for tax credit in respect of income-tax paid in a foreign country in accordance with the provisions of section 90 or section 91, as the case may be.
- (c) Any sum paid outside India (on account of any rate or tax levied) and eligible for relief under section 90A will not be allowed as a deduction.

(5) Section 40(a)(iib)

- (i) any amount paid by way of royalty, licence fee, service fee, privilege fee, service charge, etc., which is levied exclusively on, or
- (ii) any amount appropriated, directly or indirectly, from a State Government undertaking, by the State Government (SG)

A State Government undertaking includes –

- (a) A corporation established by or under any Act of the State Government;
- (b) A company in which more than 50% of the paid up equity share capital is held by the State Government;
- (c) A company in which more than 50% of the paid up equity share capital is held singly or jointly by (a) or (b);
- (d) A company or corporation in which the State Government has the right to appoint the majority of directors or to control the management or policy decisions
- (e) An authority, a board or an institution or a body established or constituted by or under any Act of the State Government or owned or controlled by the State Government.

(6) Section 40(a)(iii)

Any sum which is chargeable under the head 'Salaries' if it is payable outside India or to a non-resident and if the tax has not been paid thereon nor deducted therefrom under Chapter XVII-B.

(7) Section 40(a)(iv)

Any contribution to a provident fund or the fund established for the benefit of employees of the assessee, unless the assessee has made effective arrangements to make sure that tax shall be deducted at source from any payments made from the fund which are chargeable to tax under the head 'Salaries'.

(8) Section 40(a)(v)

Tax paid on perquisites on behalf of employees is not deductible - In case of an employee, deriving income in the nature of perquisites (other than monetary payments), the amount of tax on such income paid by his employer is exempt from tax in the hands of that employee.

Correspondingly, such payment is not allowed as deduction from the income of the employer. Thus, the payment of tax on perquisites by an employer on behalf of employee will be exempt from tax in the hands of employee but will not be allowable as deduction in the hands of the employer.

In the case of any firm assessable as such or a limited liability partnership (LLP) the following amounts shall not be deducted in computing the business income

Section 40(b)

- (1) Remuneration to non-working partner - Any salary, bonus, commission, remuneration by whatever name called, to any partner who is not a working partner. (In the following discussion, the term 'remuneration' is applied to denote payments in the nature of salary, bonus, commission);

- (2) Remuneration to a working partner not authorized by deed - Any remuneration paid to the working partner or interest to any partner which is not authorised by or which is inconsistent with the terms of the partnership deed
- (3) Remuneration or interest to a partner authorized by deed but relates to an earlier period - It is possible that the current partnership deed may authorise payments of remuneration to any working partner or interest to any partner for a period which is prior to the date of the current partnership deed. The approval by the current partnership deed might have been necessitated due to the fact that such payment was not authorised by or was inconsistent with the earlier partnership deed. Such payments of remuneration or interest will also be disallowed. However, it should be noted that the current partnership deed cannot authorise any payment which relates to a period prior to the date of earlier partnership deed.

Next, by virtue of a further restriction contained in section 40(b)(iii), such remuneration paid to the working partners will be allowed as deduction to the firm from the date of such partnership deed and not for any period prior thereto. Consequently, if, for instance, a firm incorporates the clause relating to payment of remuneration to the working partners, by executing an appropriate deed, say, on July 1, 2019 but effective from April 1, 2019 the firm would get deduction for the remuneration paid to its working partners from July 1, 2019 onwards, but not for the period from April 1 to June 30. In other words, it will not be possible to give retrospective effect to oral agreements entered into vis a vis such remuneration prior to putting the same in a written partnership deed

- (4) Interest to any partner in excess of 12% p.a.- Any interest payment authorised by the partnership deed falling after the date of such deed to the extent such interest exceeds 12% simple interest p.a.
- (5) Remuneration to a working partner in excess of prescribed limits - Any remuneration paid to a working partner, authorised by a partnership deed and falling after the date of the deed in excess of the following limits:

Book Profits	Quantum of deduction
On the first ₹ 3 lakh of book profit or in case of loss	₹ 1,50,000 or 90% of book profit, whichever is higher on the balance of book profit	60% of book profit

- (6) Meaning of certain terms:

Term	Meaning
Book Profit	The net profit as shown in the profit and loss account for the relevant previous year computed in accordance with the provisions for computing income from profits and gains [ Explanation 3 to section 40(b)].

	The above amount should be increased by the remuneration paid or payable to all the partners of the firm if the same has been deducted while computing the net profit.
Working partner	An individual who is actively engaged in conducting the affairs of the business or profession of the firm of which he is a partner [ Explanation 4 to section 40(b)]

ILLUSTRATION 15

A firm assessed as such has paid ₹ 7,50,000 as remuneration to its partners for the P.Y.2019-20, in accordance with its partnership deed, and it has a book profit of ₹ 10 lakh. What is the remuneration allowable as deduction?

SOLUTION

The allowable remuneration calculated as per the limits specified in section 40(b)(v) would be –

Particulars	₹
On first ₹ 3 lakh of book profit [₹ 3,00,000 × 90%]	2,70,000
On balance ₹ 7 lakh of book profit [₹ 7,00,000 × 60%]	4,20,000
	6,90,000

The excess amount of ₹ 60,000 (i.e., ₹ 7,50,000 – ₹ 6,90,000) would be disallowed as per section 40(b)(v).

(7) Explanations to section 40(b)

- (i) Where an individual is a partner in a firm in a representative capacity:
  - (a) interest paid by the firm to such individual otherwise than as partner in a representative capacity shall not be taken into account for the purposes of this clause.
  - (b) interest paid by the firm to such individual as partner in a representative capacity and interest paid by the firm to the person so represented shall be taken into account for the purposes of this clause [Explanation 1 to section 40(b)]
- (ii) Where an individual is a partner in a firm otherwise than in a representative capacity, interest paid to him by the firm shall not be taken into account if he receives the same on behalf of or for the benefit of any other person [Explanation 2 to section 40(b)].

ILLUSTRATION 16

Rao & Jain, a partnership firm consisting of two partners, reports a net profit of ₹ 7,00,000 before deduction of the following items:

- (1) Salary of ₹ 20,000 each per month payable to two working partners of the firm (as authorized by the deed of partnership).
- (2) Depreciation on plant and machinery under section 32 (computed) ₹ 1,50,000.
- (3) Interest on capital at 15% per annum (as per the deed of partnership). The amount of capital eligible for interest ₹ 5,00,000.

Compute:

- (i) Book-profit of the firm under section 40(b) of the Income-tax Act, 1961.
- (ii) Allowable working partner salary for the assessment year 2020-21 as per section 40(b).

SOLUTION

- (i) As per Explanation 3 to section 40(b), “book profit” shall mean the net profit as per the profit and loss account for the relevant previous year computed in the manner laid down in Chapter IV-D as increased by the aggregate amount of the remuneration paid or payable to the partners of the firm if the same has been already deducted while computing the net profit.

In the present case, the net profit given is before deduction of depreciation on plant and machinery, interest on capital of partners and salary to the working partners. Therefore, the book profit shall be as follows:

Computation of Book Profit of the firm under section 40(b)

Particulars	₹	₹
Net Profit (before deduction of depreciation, salary and interest)		7,00,000
Less: Depreciation under section 32	1,50,000
Interest @ 12% p.a. [being the maximum allowable as per section 40(b)] (₹ 5,00,000 × 12%)	60,000	2,10,000
Book Profit		4,90,000

- (ii) Salary actually paid to working partners = ₹ 20,000 × 2 × 12 = ₹ 4,80,000.

As per the provisions of section 40(b)(v), the salary paid to the working partners is allowed subject to the following limits -

On the first ₹ 3,00,000 of book profit or in case of loss	₹ 1,50,000 or 90% of book profit, whichever is more
On the balance of book profit	60% of the balance book profit

Therefore, the maximum allowable working partners' salary for the A.Y. 2020-21 in this case would be:

Particulars	₹
On the first ₹ 3,00,000 of book profit [(₹ 1,50,000 or 90% of ₹ 3,00,000) whichever is more]	2,70,000
On the balance of book profit [60% of (₹ 4,90,000 - ₹ 3,00,000)]	1,14,000
Maximum allowable partners' salary	3,84,000

Hence, allowable working partners' salary for the A.Y. 2020-21 as per the provisions of section 40(b)(v) is ₹ 3,84,000.

In the case of Association of persons or body of individuals, following amounts shall not be deducted in computing the business income

Section 40(ba)

Any payment of interest, salary, commission, bonus or remuneration made by an association of persons or body of individuals to its members will also not be allowed as a deduction in computing the income of the association or body.

There are three Explanations to section 40(ba):

Explanation 1 - Where interest is paid by an AOP or BOI to a member who has paid interest to the AOP/BOI, the amount of interest to be disallowed under clause (ba) shall be limited to the net amount of interest paid by AOP/BOI to the partner.

Explanation 2 - Where an individual is a member in an AOP/BOI in a representative capacity, interest paid by AOP/BOI to such individual or by such individual to AOP/BOI otherwise than as member in a representative capacity shall not be taken into account for the purposes of clause (ba). But interest paid to or received from each person in his representative capacity shall be taken into account.

Explanation 3 - Where an individual is a member in his individual capacity, interest paid to him in his representative capacity shall not be taken into account.

6.8 EXPENSES OR PAYMENTS NOT DEDUCTIBLE IN CERTAIN CIRCUMSTANCES [SECTION 40A]

(1) Payments to relatives and associates

Section 40A(2) provides that where the assessee incurs any expenditure in respect of which a payment has been or is to be made to a specified person [See column (2) of Table below] so much of the expenditure as is considered to be excessive or unreasonable shall be disallowed by the Assessing Officer. While doing so he shall have due regard to:

- (a) the fair market value of the goods, service of facilities for which the payment is made; or
- (b) the legitimate needs of the business or profession carried on by the assessee; or
- (c) the benefit derived by or accruing to the assessee from such a payment.

(2) Payments in excess of ₹ 10,000 made otherwise than through prescribed modes

According to section 40A(3), where the assessee incurs any expenditure, in respect of which payment or aggregate of payments made to a person in a day otherwise than by an account payee cheque drawn on a bank or by an account payee bank draft or use of electronic system through bank account or through such other prescribed electronic modes exceeds ₹ 10,000, such expenditure shall not be allowed as a deduction.

The provision applies to all categories of expenditure involving payments for goods or services which are deductible in computing the taxable income.

Example:

If, in respect of an expenditure of ₹ 32,000 incurred by X Ltd., 4 cash payments of ₹ 8,000 are made on a particular day to one Mr. Y – one in the morning at 10 a.m., one at 12 noon, one at 3 p.m. and one at 6 p.m., the entire expenditure of ₹ 32,000 would be disallowed under section 40A(3), since the aggregate of cash payments made during a day to Mr. Y exceeds ₹ 10,000.

Payments in excess of ₹ 10,000 made otherwise than through prescribed modes deemed to be the income of the subsequent year, if expenditure has been allowed as deduction in any previous year on due basis:

In case of an assessee following mercantile system of accounting, if an expenditure has been allowed as deduction in any previous year on due basis, and payment has been made in a subsequent year otherwise than by account payee cheque or account payee bank draft or use of electronic clearing system through a bank account or through such other prescribed electronic modes, then the payment so made shall be deemed to be the income of the subsequent year if such payment or aggregate of payments made to a person in a day exceeds ₹ 10,000 [Section 40A(3A)].

Increase in limit of cash payment, where payment made to transport operator: This limit of ₹ 10,000 has been raised to ₹ 35,000 in case of payment made to transport operators for plying, hiring or leasing goods carriages. Therefore, payment or aggregate of payments up to ₹ 35,000 in a day can be made to a transport operator otherwise than by way of account payee cheque or account payee bank draft or use of electronic clearing system through a bank account or through such other prescribed electronic modes. In all other cases, the limit would continue to be ₹ 10,000.

Cases and circumstances in which a payment or aggregate of payments exceeding ten thousand rupees may be made to a person in a day, otherwise than by an account payee cheque/ account payee bank draft/ use of ECS through a bank account or through such other prescribed electronic modes [Rule 6DD]:

As per this rule, no disallowance under section 40A(3) shall be made and no payment shall be deemed to be the profits and gains of business or profession under section 40A(3A) where a payment or aggregate of payments made to a person in a day, otherwise than by an account payee cheque drawn on a bank or account payee bank draft or use of electronic clearing system through a bank account or through such other prescribed electronic modes, exceeds ten thousand rupees in the cases and circumstances specified hereunder, namely:

- (a) where the payment is made to
  - (i) the Reserve Bank of India or any banking company;
  - (ii) the State Bank of India or any subsidiary bank;
  - (iii) any co-operative bank or land mortgage bank;
  - (iv) any primary agricultural credit society or any primary credit society;
  - (v) the Life Insurance Corporation of India;
- (b) where the payment is made to the Government and, under the rules framed by it, such payment is required to be made in legal tender;
- (c) where the payment is made by
  - (i) any letter of credit arrangements through a bank;
  - (ii) a mail or telegraphic transfer through a bank;
  - (iii) a book adjustment from any account in a bank to any other account in that or any other bank;
  - (iv) a bill of exchange made payable only to a bank;

- (v) a credit card;
  - (vi) a debit card.
- (d) where the payment is made by way of adjustment against the amount of any liability incurred by the payee for any goods supplied or services rendered by the assessee to such payee;
- (e) where the payment is made for the purchase of -
- (i) agricultural or forest produce; or
  - (ii) the produce of animal husbandry (including livestock, meat, hides and skins) or dairy or poultry farming; or
  - (iii) fish or fish products; or
  - (iv) the products of horticulture or apiculture,
- to the cultivator, grower or producer of such articles, produce or products;

Notes -

- (i) The expression 'fish or fish products' (iii) above would include 'other marine products such as shrimp, prawn, cuttlefish, squid, crab, lobster etc.'
- (ii) The 'producers' of fish or fish products for the purpose of Rule 6DD(e) would include, besides the fishermen, any headman of fishermen, who sorts the catch of fish brought by fishermen from the sea, at the sea shore itself and then sells the fish or fish products to traders, exporters etc.

However, the above exception will not be available on the payment for the purchase of fish or fish products from a person who is not proved to be a 'producer' of these goods and is only a trader, broker or any other middleman, by whatever name called.

- (f) where the payment is made for the purchase of the products manufactured or processed without the aid of power in a cottage industry, to the producer of such products;
- (g) where the payment is made in a village or town, which on the date of such payment is not served by any bank, to any person who ordinarily resides, or is carrying on any business, profession or vocation, in any such village or town;
- (h) where any payment is made to an employee of the assessee or the heir of any such employee, on or in connection with the retirement, retrenchment, resignation, discharge or death of such employee, on account of gratuity, retrenchment compensation or similar terminal benefit and the aggregate of such sums payable to the employee or his heir does not exceed fifty thousand rupees;

- (i) where the payment is made by an assessee by way of salary to his employee after deducting the income-tax from salary in accordance with the provisions of section 192 of the Act, and when such employee -
  - (i) is temporarily posted for a continuous period of fifteen days or more in a place other than his normal place of duty or on a ship; and
  - (ii) does not maintain any account in any bank at such place or ship;
- (j) where the payment was required to be made on a day on which the banks were closed either on account of holiday or strike;
- (k) where the payment is made by any person to his agent who is required to make payment in cash for goods or services on behalf of such person;
- (l) where the payment is made by an authorised dealer or a money changer against purchase of foreign currency or travelers cheques in the normal course of his business.

Note: Where any payment in respect of any expenditure is required to be made by an account payee cheque/ account payee bank draft or use of electronic clearing system through a bank account or through such other prescribed electronic modes in order that such expenditure may not be disallowed as a deduction under section 40A(3), then the payment may be made by such cheque or draft or electronic clearing system or through such other prescribed electronic modes.

No person is allowed to raise, in any suit or other proceeding, a plea based on the ground that the payment was not made or tendered in cash or in any other manner.

This is notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force or in any contract.

(3) Disallowance of provision for gratuity

Section 40A(7)(a) provides that no deduction would be allowable to any taxpayer carrying on any business or profession in respect of any provision (whether called as provision or by any other names) made by him towards the payment of gratuity to his employers on their retirement or on the termination of their employment for any reason.

The reason for this disallowance is that, under section 36(1)(v), deduction is allowable in computing the profits and gains of the business or profession in respect of any sum paid by a taxpayer in his capacity as an employer in the form of contributions made by him to an approved gratuity fund created for the exclusive benefit of his employees under an irrevocable trust. Further, section 37(1) provides that any expenditure other than the expenditure of the nature described in sections 30 to 36 laid out or expended, wholly and exclusively for the purpose of the business or profession must be allowed as a deduction in computing the taxable income from business.

A reading of these two provisions clearly indicates that the intention of the legislature has always been that the deduction in respect of gratuity be allowable to the employer either in the year in which the gratuity is actually paid or in the year in which contributions to an approved gratuity fund are actually made by employer.

This provision, therefore, makes it clear that any amount claimed by the assessee towards provision for gratuity, by whatever name called would be disallowable in the assessment of employer even if the assessee follows the mercantile system of accounting.

However, no disallowance would be made as per section 40A(7) in the case where any provision is made by the employer for the purpose of payment of sum by way of contribution to an approved gratuity fund during the previous year or for the purpose of making payment of any gratuity that has become payable during the previous year by virtue of the employee's retirement, death, termination of service etc.

Further, where any provision for gratuity for any reason has been allowed as a deduction to the assessee for any assessment year, any sum paid out of such provision by way of contribution towards an approved gratuity fund or by way to gratuity to employee shall not be allowed as deduction to the assessee in the year in which it is paid.

(4) Contributions by employers to funds, trust etc. [Sections 40A(9)]

This sub-section has been introduced to curb the growing practice amongst employers to claim deductions from taxable profits of the business of contributions made apparently to the welfare of employees from which, however, no genuine benefit flows to the employees.

Accordingly, no deduction will be allowed where the assessee pays in his capacity as an employer, any sum towards setting up or formation of or as contribution to any fund, trust, company, association of persons, body of individuals, society registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 or other institution for any purpose.

However, where such sum is paid in respect of funds covered by sections 36(1)(iv), 36(1)(iva) and 36(1)(v) or any other law, then the deduction will not be denied.

(5) Marked to market loss or other expected loss [Sections 40A(13)]

Section 40A(13) provides that no deduction or allowance in respect of any marked to market loss or other expected loss shall be allowed except as allowable under section 36(1)(xviii). 36(1)(xviii) provides that marked to market loss or other expected loss as computed in accordance with the ICDS notified under section 145(2), would be allowed as deduction. ICDS I provide that marked to market losses would not be allowed unless the same is in accordance with any other ICDS. Therefore, only marked to market losses specifically permitted under any other ICDS would be allowable as deduction under section 36. Other marked to market losses would not be allowed as deduction as per section 40A(13). This amendment is effective from A.Y. 2017-18.

6.9 PROFITS CHARGEABLE TO TAX [SECTION 41]

This section enumerates certain receipts which are deemed to be income under the head “Business or profession.” Such receipts would attract charge even if the business from which they arise had ceased to exist prior to the year in which the liability under this section arises. The particulars of such receipts are given below:

(1) Remission or cessation of trading liability [Section 41(1)]

Suppose an allowance or deduction has been made in any assessment year in respect of loss, expenditure or trading liability incurred by A. Subsequently, if A has obtained, whether in cash or in any manner whatsoever, any amount in respect of such loss or expenditure or some benefit in respect of such trading liability by way of remission or cessation thereof, the amount obtained by A, or the value of benefit accruing to him shall be taxed as income of that previous year. It does not matter whether the business or profession in respect of which the allowance or deduction has been made is in existence in that year or not.

It is possible that after the above allowance in respect of loss, expenditure, or trading liability has been given to A, he could have been succeeded in his business by another person. In such a case, the successor will be liable to be taxed in respect of any such benefit received by him during a subsequent previous year.

Successor in business:

- (i) Where there has been an amalgamation of a company with another company, the successor will be the amalgamated company.
- (ii) Where a firm carrying on a business or profession is succeeded by another firm the successor will be the other firm.
- (iii) In any other case, where one person is succeeded by any other person in that business or profession the other person will be the successor.
- (iv) In case of a demerger, the successor will be the resulting company.

Remission or cessation of a trading liability includes remission or cessation of liability by a unilateral act of the assessee by way of writing off such liability in his accounts.

(2) Balancing charge, Sale of capital asset used for scientific research, Recovery of a bad debt subsequently and withdrawal from reserves created [Section 41(2), (3), (4) & (4A)]

The provisions of section 41(2) relating to balancing charge, section 41(3) relating to sale of capital assets acquired for scientific research, section 41(4) dealing with recovery of bad debts and of section 41(4A) relating to withdrawal from special reserve created have been dealt with earlier under the respective items.

(3) Brought forward losses of defunct business [Section 41(5)]

In cases where a receipt is deemed to be profit of a business under section 41 relating to a business that had ceased to exist and there is an unabsorbed loss, not being a speculation loss, which arose in that business during the previous year in which it had ceased to exist, it would be set off against income that is chargeable under this section even after the expiry of 8 years.

6.10 OTHER PROVISIONS

(1) Special provisions for deduction in case of business for prospecting etc. for mineral oil [Section 42]

This section enables an assessee to claim an allowance which may on general principles be inadmissible, e.g., allowance in respect of expenditure which would be regarded as an accretion to capital on the ground that it brings into existence an asset of enduring benefit or to constitute initial expenditure incurred on the setting up of a profit-earning machinery in motion. It must further be noted that this concession can be availed of only in relation to contract or arrangements entered into by the Central Government for prospecting for, or the extraction or production of mineral oils.

(i) Allowable expenses

The allowance permissible under this section shall be in relation to

- (a) the expenditure by way of infructuous or abortive exploration expenses in respect of an area surrendered prior to the beginning of commercial production by the assessee;
- (b) after the beginning of commercial production, the expenditure incurred by the assessee, whether before or after such commercial production in respect of drilling or exploration activities in services in respect of physical assets used in that connection; and
- (c) to the depletion of mineral oil in the mining area in respect of the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which commercial production is begun and for such succeeding years as may be specified in the agreement.

(ii) Amount of deduction

The sum of those allowances should be computed and deduction should be made in the manner specified in the agreement entered into by the Central Government with any person for the association or participation of the Central Government or any authorized person by it in such business for the prospecting or exploration of mineral oil.

It has been specifically provided that the other provisions of the Act are being deemed, for the purpose of this allowance, to have been modified to the extent necessary to give effect to the terms of the agreement. It may be noted that allowances in this regard are made in lieu of or in addition to the other allowances permissible under the Act, depending upon the terms of the agreement.

(iii) Taxability in case of transfer

	Transaction	Manner of deduction
(1)	Subject to the provisions of the agreement entered into by the Central Government, where the business of assessee consisting of the prospecting for or extraction or production of petroleum and natural gas is transferred or any interest therein is transferred, wholly or partly, in accordance with the aforesaid agreement,
	Case 1: Where the proceeds of the transfer are less than the expenditure incurred remaining unallowed	The expenditure remaining unallowed as reduced by the proceeds of transfer shall be allowed in the previous year in which the business or interest has been transferred. $\text{Amount of deduction} = \text{Expenditure remain unallowed} - \text{Sale proceeds}$
	Case 2: Where the proceeds of the transfer of whole or any part of the business or interest therein exceed the amount of expenditure remaining unallowed	The excess amount or expenditure allowed till date (i.e., difference between expenditure incurred in connection with the business or to obtain interest therein and the expenditure remaining unallowed), whichever is less , shall be chargeable to tax as profits and gains of business in the previous year in which the business or interest therein has been transferred. $\text{Taxable as profits and gains from business and profession} = \left. \begin{array}{l} \text{Sale proceeds} - \text{Expenditure remain unallowed} \\ \text{OR} \\ \text{Expenditure allowed till date} \end{array} \right\} \text{Whichever is less}$ If the business or interest therein is transferred in a previous year in which the business is no longer in existence, the taxability would arise in the above manner as though the business is in existence in that previous year.
	Case 3: Where the proceeds of the transfer are not less than the amount of expenditure incurred remaining unallowed.	No deduction for such expenditure shall be allowed in the previous year in which business or interest therein is transferred or in respect of any subsequent previous year or years. $\text{Amount of deduction} = \text{NIL}$
	Case 4: Where transfer of the business or interest is not covered under Case 2 above	Deduction of unallowed expenditure as reduced by the proceeds of transfer from the expenditure remaining unallowed $\text{Allowable deduction} = \text{Unallowed expenditure} - \text{Sale proceeds}$

(2)	Transfer of business in a scheme of amalgamation
	If the amalgamating company sells or transfers the business to the amalgamated company, being an Indian company under the scheme of amalgamation	The provisions of section 42 will apply to amalgamated company as they would have applied to amalgamating company as if the latter has not transferred the business or interest therein.  The tax treatment in cases 1, 2, 3 & 4 given in (1) above will not apply to the amalgamating company.
(3)	Transfer of business in a scheme of demerger
	If the demerged company sells or transfers the business to the resulting company, being an Indian company under the scheme of demerger	The provisions of section 42 will apply to resulting company as they would have applied to demerged company as if the latter has not transferred the business or interest therein.  The tax treatment in cases 1, 2, 3 & 4 given in (1) above will not apply to the demerged company.

Note: Mineral oil includes petroleum and natural gas.

(2) Changes in the rate of exchange of currency [Section 43A]

- (i) The section provides that where an assessee has acquired any asset from a foreign country for the purpose of his business or profession, and due to a change thereafter in the exchange rate of the two currencies involved, there is an increase or decrease in the liability (expressed in Indian rupees) of the assessee at the time of making the payment, the following values may be changed accordingly with respect to the increase or decrease in such liability:
- (a) the actual cost of the asset under section 43(1)
  - (b) the amount of capital expenditure incurred on scientific research under section 35(1)(iv)
  - (c) the amount of capital expenditure incurred by a company for promoting family planning amongst its employees under section 36(1)(ix)
  - (d) the cost of acquisition of a non-depreciable capital asset falling under section 48.

The amount arrived at after making the above adjustment shall be taken as the amount of capital expenditure or the cost of acquisition of the capital asset, as the case may be.

- (ii) Where the whole or any part of the liability aforesaid is met, not by the assessee, but, directly or indirectly, by any other person or authority, the liability so met shall not be taken into account for the purposes of this section.
- (iii) Where the assessee has entered into a contract with authorised dealer as defined in section 2 of the Foreign Exchange Management Act, 1999 for providing him with a specified sum in a foreign currency on or after a stipulated future date at the rate of exchange specified in the contract to enable him to meet the whole or any part of the liability aforesaid, the amount, if any, for adjustment under this section shall be computed with reference to the rate of exchange specified therein.

(3) Taxation of foreign exchange fluctuation [Section 43AA]

- (i) Section 43AA provides that, subject to the provisions of section 43A, any gain or loss arising on account of any change in foreign exchange rates shall be treated as income or loss, as the case may be, which shall be computed in accordance with the notified ICDS i.e., ICDS VI: The effects of changes in foreign exchange rates.
- (ii) Gain or loss arising on account of the effects of change in foreign exchange rates shall be in respect of all foreign currency transactions, including those relating to –
  - (a) monetary items and non-monetary items;
  - (b) translation of financial statements of foreign operations
  - (c) forward exchange contracts;
  - (d) foreign currency translation reserves.

(4) Certain Deductions to be made only on actual payment [Section 43B]

The following sums are allowed as deduction only on the basis of actual payment within the time limits specified in section 43B.

- (a) Any sum payable by way of tax, duty, cess or fee, by whatever name called, under any law for the time being in force.
- (b) Any sum payable by the assessee as an employer by way of contribution to any provident fund or superannuation fund or gratuity fund or any other fund for the welfare of employees.

Allowability of Employer's Contribution to funds for welfare of employees paid after the due date under the relevant Act but before the due date of filing of return of income under section 139(1) [Circular No.22/2015 dated 17-12-2015]

Under section 43B of the Income-tax Act, 1961, certain deductions are admissible only on payment basis. The CBDT has observed that some field officers disallow employer's contributions to provident fund or superannuation fund or gratuity fund or any other fund for the welfare of employees, by invoking the provisions of section 43B, if it has been paid after the 'due dates' as per the relevant Acts.

The CBDT has examined the matter in light of the judicial decisions on this issue. In the case of Commissioner vs. Alom Extrusions Ltd, [2009] 185 Taxman 416, the Apex Court held that the deduction is allowable to the employer assessee if he deposits the contributions to welfare funds on or before the 'due date' of filing of return of income.

Accordingly, the settled position is that if the assessee deposits any sum payable by it by way of tax, duty, cess or fee, by whatever name called, under any law for the time being in force, or any sum payable by the assessee as an employer by way of contribution to any provident fund or superannuation fund or gratuity fund or any other fund for the welfare of employees, on or before the 'due date' applicable in his case for furnishing the return of income under section 139(1), no disallowance can be made under section 43B.

It is further clarified that this Circular does not apply to claim of deduction relating to employee's contribution to welfare funds which are governed by section 36(1)(va) of the Income-tax Act, 1961.

- (c) Bonus or Commission for services rendered payable to employees.
- (d) Any sum payable by the assessee as interest on any loan or borrowing from any public financial institution or a State Financial Corporation or a State Industrial Investment Corporation.
- (e) Any sum payable by the assessee as interest on any loan or borrowing from a deposit taking non-banking financial company or systemically important non-deposit taking non-banking financial company, in accordance with the terms and conditions of the agreement governing such loan or borrowing.
- (f) Interest on any loan or advance from a scheduled bank or co-operative bank other than a primary agricultural credit society or a primary co-operative agricultural and rural development bank on actual payment basis.
- (g) Any sum paid by the assessee as an employer in lieu of earned leave of his employee.
- (h) Any sum payable by the assessee to the Indian Railways for use of Railway assets.

The above sums can be paid by the assessee on or before the due date for furnishing the return of income under section 139(1) in respect of the previous year in which the liability to pay such sum was incurred and the evidence of such payment is furnished by the assessee along with such return.

Where in respect of any sum referred in (e) above, deduction is allowed in computing the income referred to in section 28, on due basis in the previous year relevant to the assessment year 2019-20 or any earlier assessment year, the assessee would not be entitled to any deduction under this section in respect of such sum in computing the income of the previous year in which the sum is actually paid by him [Explanation 3AA].

Any sum payable means a sum for which the assessee incurred liability in the previous year even though such sum might not have been payable within that year under the relevant law.

Example:

An assessee may collect GST from customers during the month of March, 2020. However, in respect of such collections he may have to discharge the liability only within say 10th April, 2020 under the GST law. The explanation covers this type of liability also. Consequently, if an assessee following accrual method of accounting has created a provision in respect of such a liability the same is not deductible unless remitted within the due date specified in this section

Conversion of interest into a loan or borrowing or advance or payable in other manner

Explanation 3C, 3CA & 3D clarifies that if any sum payable by the assessee as interest on any such loan or borrowing or advance referred to in (d), (e) and (f) above, is converted into a loan or borrowing or advance, the interest so converted and not “actually paid” shall not be deemed as actual payment, and hence would not be allowed as deduction. The clarificatory explanations only reiterate the rationale that conversion of interest into a loan or borrowing or advance does not amount to actual payment.

The manner in which the converted interest will be allowed as deduction has been clarified in Circular No.7/2006 dated 17.7.2006. The unpaid interest, whenever actually paid to the bank or financial institution, will be in the nature of revenue expenditure deserving deduction in the computation of income. Therefore, irrespective of the nomenclature, the deduction will be allowed in the previous year in which the converted interest is actually paid.

Meaning of certain terms:

Term	Meaning
Non-banking financial company	(i) a financial institution which is a company; (ii) a non-banking institution which is a company and which has as its principal business the receiving of deposits, under any scheme or arrangement or in any other manner, or lending in any manner; (iii) such other non-banking institution or class of such institutions, as the bank may, specify with the previous approval of the Central Government and by notification in the Official Gazette.
Deposit taking non-banking financial company	a non-banking financial company which is accepting or holding public deposits and is registered with the RBI under the provisions of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934.
Systemically important non-deposit	a non-banking financial company which is not accepting or holding public deposits and having total assets of not less than ₹ 500

taking non-banking financial company	crore rupees as per the last audited balance sheet and is registered with the RBI under the provisions of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934.

ILLUSTRATION 17

Hari, an individual, carried on the business of purchase and sale of agricultural commodities like paddy, wheat, etc. He borrowed loans from Andhra Pradesh State Financial Corporation (APSFC) and Indian Bank and has not paid interest as detailed hereunder:

(i)	Andhra Pradesh State Financial Corporation (P.Y. 2018-19 &amp; 2019-20)	15,00,000
(ii)	Indian Bank (P.Y. 2019-20)	30,00,000
		45,00,000

Both APSFC and Indian Bank, while restructuring the loan facilities of Hari during the year 2019-20, converted the above interest payable by Hari to them as a loan repayable in 60 equal installments. During the year ended 31.3.2020, Hari paid 5 installments to APSFC and 3 installments to Indian Bank.

Hari claimed the entire interest of ₹ 45,00,000 as an expenditure while computing the income from business of purchase and sale of agricultural commodities. Discuss whether his claim is valid and if not what is the amount of interest, if any, allowable.

SOLUTION

According to section 43B, any interest payable on the term loans to specified financial institutions and any interest payable on any loans and advances to scheduled banks shall be allowed only in the year of payment of such interest irrespective of the method of accounting followed by the assessee. Where there is default in the payment of interest by the assessee, such unpaid interest may be converted into loan. Such conversion of unpaid interest into loan shall not be construed as payment of interest for the purpose of section 43B. The amount of unpaid interest so converted as loan shall be allowed as deduction only in the year in which the converted loan is actually paid.

In the given case of Hari, the unpaid interest of ₹ 15,00,000 due to APSFC and of ₹ 30,00,000 due to Indian Bank was converted into loan. Such conversion would not amount to payment of interest and would not, therefore, be eligible for deduction in the year of such conversion. Hence, claim of Hari that the entire interest of ₹ 45,00,000 is to be allowed as deduction in the year of conversion is not tenable. The deduction shall be allowed only to the extent of repayment made during the financial year. Accordingly, the amount of interest eligible for deduction for the A.Y.2020-21 shall be calculated as follows:

	Interest outstanding (₹)	Number of Instalments	Amount per instalment (₹)	Instalments paid	Interest allowable (₹)
APSFC	15 lakh	60	25,000	5	1,25,000
Indian Bank	30 lakh	60	50,000	3	1,50,000
Total amount eligible for deduction					2,75,000

(5) Special Provision for Computation of Cost of Acquisition of Certain Assets [Section 43C]

- (i) Where an asset acquired under a scheme of amalgamation is sold by an amalgamated company as its stock-in-trade then in computing the profits and gains derived from sale of such stock-in-trade, the cost of acquisition of stock-in-trade to the amalgamated company shall be the cost of acquisition of the asset to the amalgamating company as increased by the cost, if any, of any improvement thereto and the expenditure incurred wholly and exclusively in connection with such a transfer.
- (ii) The provisions of section 43C will thus apply to the following cases of revaluation:
- (a) When the stock-in-trade of the amalgamating company is taken over at revalued price by the amalgamated company under the scheme of amalgamation.
- (b) Where a capital asset of the amalgamating company is taken over as stock-in-trade by the amalgamated company after revaluation under the scheme of amalgamation.
- (iii) The situation referred to at (b) above will in turn cover three situations:
- (a) When the capital asset is converted to stock-in-trade by the amalgamating company with revaluation and the revalued asset is taken over by the amalgamated company under the scheme of amalgamation.
- (b) Where the capital asset is taken over as stock-in-trade by the amalgamated company at revalued price at the time of amalgamation.
- (c) Where the capital asset of the amalgamating company is taken over by the amalgamated company as a capital asset and has been converted into stock-in-trade and revalued.
- (iv) In a case referred to (c) above, where the revaluation and conversion of capital asset into stock-in-trade takes place in the hands of the amalgamated company, the provisions of section 45(2) will apply. In such a case, the provisions of section 43C will not apply. This has been done with a view to ensure that a tax payer does not face double taxation in respect of the same transaction. However, when the stock-in-trade referred to in item (ii)(a) as well as at (a) and (b) of (iii) above are sold, the provisions of section 43C will apply.

- (v) A similar provision in section 43C has also been made to cover cases where the asset sold as stock-in-trade has been acquired by the assessee either by way of full or partial partition of HUF or under a gift or will or an irrevocable trust and such asset is sold as stock-in-trade.
- (6) Stamp Duty Value of land and building to be taken as the full value of consideration in respect of transfer, even if the same are held by the transferor as stock-in-trade [Section 43CA]
- (i) Section 43CA has been inserted as an anti-avoidance measure to provide that where the consideration for the transfer of an asset (other than capital asset), being land or building or both, is less than the stamp duty value, the value so adopted or assessed or assessable (i.e., the stamp duty value) shall be deemed to be the full value of the consideration for the purposes of computing income under the head "Profits and gains of business of profession".
- However, if the stamp duty value does not exceed 105% of the consideration received or accruing then, such consideration shall be deemed to be the full value of consideration for the purpose of computing profits and gains from transfer of such asset.
- (ii) Further, where the date of an agreement fixing the value of consideration for the transfer of the asset and the date of registration of the transfer of the asset are not same, the stamp duty value may be taken as on the date of the agreement for transfer instead of on the date of registration for such transfer, provided at least a part of the consideration has been received by way of an account payee cheque/ account payee bank draft or use of ECS through a bank account or through such other prescribed electronic modes on or before the date of the agreement.
- (iii) The Assessing Officer may refer the valuation of the asset to a valuation officer as defined in section 2(r) of the Wealth-tax Act, 1957 in the following cases -
- (1) Where the assessee claims before any Assessing Officer that the value adopted or assessed or assessable by the authority for payment of stamp duty exceeds the fair market value of the property as on the date of transfer and
  - (2) the value so adopted or assessed or assessable by such authority has not been disputed in any appeal or revision or no reference has been made before any other authority, court or High Court.
- (iv) Where the value ascertained by the Valuation Officer exceeds the value adopted or assessed or assessable by the Stamp Valuation Authority, the value adopted or assessed or assessable shall be taken as the full value of the consideration received or accruing as a result of the transfer.

The term “assessable” covers transfers executed through power of attorney.

The term ‘assessable’ has been defined to mean the price which the stamp valuation authority would have, notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any other law for the time being in force, adopted or assessed, if it were referred to such authority for the purposes of the payment of stamp duty.

Example

Case	Date of transfer of land / building held as stock-in-trade	Actual consideration	Stamp duty value on the date of agreement	Stamp duty value on the date of registration	Full value of consideration	Remark

(6) Income from construction and service contracts [Section 43CB]

The profits and gains arising from a construction contract or a service contract shall be computed on the basis of percentage of completion method (POCM) in accordance with the notified ICDS i.e., ICDS III: Construction Contracts.

However, the profits and gains arising from a service contract shall be computed on the basis of

Method	Condition
Project completion method	If the duration of the contract is not more than 90 days
Straight line method	If the contract involves indeterminate number of acts over a specific period of time

For the purpose of percentage of completion method, project completion method or straight line method –

- (i) the contract revenue shall include retention money;
- (ii) the contract cost shall not be reduced by any incidental income in the nature of interest, dividends or capital gains.

(7) Special Provision in case of income of Public Financial Institutions, Public companies etc. [Section 43D]

- (i) In the case of
  - a public financial institution or
  - a scheduled bank or
  - a co-operative bank other than primary agricultural credit society or a primary co-operative agricultural and rural development bank or
  - a State financial corporation or
  - a State industrial investment corporation or
  - a deposit taking non-banking financial company or
  - systemically important non-deposit taking non-banking financial company

the income by way of interest on such categories of bad and doubtful debts, as may be prescribed having regard to the guidelines issued by the Reserve Bank of India in relation to such debts,

- (ii) In the case of a public company, the income by way of interest in relation to such categories of bad and doubtful debts as may be prescribed having regard to the guidelines issued by the National Housing Bank established under the National Housing Bank Act, 1987 in relation to such debts, shall be chargeable to tax in the previous year in which it is credited to the profit and loss account by the said institutions or public company for that year or in the previous in which it is actually received by it, whichever is earlier.

(8) Insurance Business [Section 44]

The profits and gains of any business of insurance, including any such business carried on by a mutual insurance company or by a co-operative society, shall be computed in accordance with the rules contained in the First Schedule of the Income-tax Act, 1961.

This is notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 relating to computation of income chargeable under the head "Income from house property", "Capital gains" or "Income from other sources" or in section 199 or in sections 28 to 43B.

(9) Special provisions in the case of trade, professional or similar associations [Section 44A]

- This is a provision calculated to encourage the development activities carried on by the trade, professional and other associations other than those whose incomes are already exempted under section 10(23A).
- This section provides that where the expenditure incurred by an association solely for purposes of protection or advancement of the common interest of its members exceeds the amount collected by the association from the members whether by way of subscription or otherwise (not being remuneration received for rendering any specific services to such members), the resulting deficiency shall be allowed as a deduction in computing the income of the association assessable under the head "profits and gains of business or profession".
- If there is no such income or the deficiency allowable exceeds such income, then, the whole or the balance of the deficiency, as the case may be, will be allowed as a deduction in computing the income under any other head.
- However, the amount of any deficiency will be allowed from the assessable income of such association to the extent of 50% of the total taxable, as arrived before allowing this deduction.
- In computing the taxable income of the association, effect must first be given to the allowances or losses brought forward under any other section of the Act.
- This section applies only to such trade, professional or associations which do not distribute their income amongst their members except in the form of grants to affiliated associations or institutions.

6.11 COMPULSORY MAINTENANCE OF ACCOUNTS [SECTION 44AA]

- (1) Maintain the books of account and other documents by notified profession [Section 44AA(1)]: This section provides that every person carrying on the legal, medical, engineering or architectural profession or accountancy or technical consultancy or interior decoration or any other profession as has been notified by the CBDT in the Official Gazette must statutorily maintain such books of accounts and other documents as may enable the Assessing Officer to compute his total income in accordance with the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961.

Notified professions: The professions notified so far are as the profession of authorised representative; the profession of film artist (actor, camera man, director, music director, art director, dance director, editor, singer, lyricist, story writer, screen play writer, dialogue writer and dress designer); the profession of Company Secretary; and information technology professionals.

- (2) Maintain the books of account and other documents if income/ sales/ turnover/ gross receipts exceeds the prescribed limits [Section 44AA(2)]:
- I. In case of Individual or HUF: An Individual or HUF carrying on any business or profession (other than the professions specified in (1) above) must maintain such books of account and other documents as may enable the Assessing Officer to compute his total income in accordance with the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 in the following circumstances:
- (i) Existing business or profession: In cases where the income from the existing business or profession exceeds ₹ 2,50,000 or the total sales turnover or gross receipts, as the case may be, in the business or profession exceed ₹ 25,00,000 in any one of three years immediately preceding the previous year; or
  - (ii) Newly set up business or profession: In cases where the business or profession is newly set up in any previous year, if his income from business or profession is likely to exceed ₹ 2,50,000 or his total sales turnover or gross receipts, as the case may be, in the business or profession are likely to exceed ₹ 25,00,000 during the previous year.
- II. In case of Person (other than individual or HUF): Every person (other than individual or HUF) carrying on any business or profession (other than the professions specified in (1) above) must maintain such books of account and other documents as may enable the Assessing Officer to compute his total income in accordance with the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 in the following circumstances:

- (i) Existing business or profession: In cases where the income from the business or profession exceeds ₹ 1,20,000 or the total sales turnover or gross receipts, as the case may be, in the business or profession exceed ₹ 10,00,000 in any one of three years immediately preceding the previous year; or
- (ii) Newly set up business or profession: In cases where the business or profession is newly set up in any previous year, if his income from business or profession is likely to exceed ₹ 1,20,000 or his total sales turnover or gross receipts, as the case may be, in the business or profession are likely to exceed ₹ 10,00,000 during the previous year;
- III. Showing lower income as compared to income computed on presumptive basis under section 44AE or (section 44BB or section 44BBB)<sup>13</sup>: Where profits and gains from the business are calculated on a presumptive basis under section 44AE or section 44BB or section 44BBB and the assessee has claimed that his income is lower than the profits or gains so deemed to be the profits and gains of his business.
- IV. Where the provisions of section 44AD(4) are applicable in his case and his income exceeds the basic exemption limit in any previous year: In cases where an assessee becomes ineligible to claim the benefit of the provisions of section 44AD(1) for five assessment years subsequent to the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which the profit has not been declared in accordance with the provisions of 44AD(1) and his income exceeds the basic exemption limit during the previous year.
- (3) Prescribed books of accounts & other documents: The CBDT has been authorised, having due regard to the nature of the business or profession carried on by any class of persons, to prescribe by rules the books of account and other documents including inventories, wherever necessary, to be kept and maintained by the taxpayer, the particulars to be contained therein and the form and manner in which and the place at which they must be kept and maintained.

Rules pertaining to maintenance of books of accounts & other documents:

Rule 6F of the Income-tax Rules contains the details relating to the books of account and other documents to be maintained by certain professionals under section 44AA(1).

Prescribed class of persons: As per Rule 6F, every person carrying on legal, medical, engineering, or architectural profession or the profession of accountancy or technical consultancy or interior decoration or authorised representative or film artist shall keep and maintain the books of account and other documents specified in sub-rule (2) in the following cases:

- if his gross receipts exceed ₹1,50,000 in all the 3 years immediately preceding the previous year ; or
- if, where the profession has been newly set up in the previous year, his gross receipts are likely to exceed ₹1,50,000 in that year.

Note: Students may note that professionals whose gross receipts are less than the specified limits given above are also required to maintain books of account but these have not been specified in the Rule.

In other words, they are required to maintain (as per point (1) above) such books of account and other documents as may enable the Assessing Officer to compute the total income in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Prescribed books of accounts and other documents [Sub-rule (2) of Rule 6F]: The following books of account and other documents are required to be maintained.

- (i) a cash book;
- (ii) a journal, if accounts are maintained on mercantile basis;
- (iii) a ledger;
- (iv) Carbon copies of bills and receipts issued by the person whether machine numbered or otherwise serially numbered, in relation to sums exceeding ₹ 25;
- (v) Original bills and receipts issued to the person in respect of expenditure incurred by the person, or where such bills and receipts are not issued, payment vouchers prepared and signed by the person, provided the amount does not exceed ₹ 50. Where the cash book contains adequate particulars, the preparation and signing of payment vouchers is not required.

In case of a person carrying on medical profession, he will be required to maintain the following in addition to the list given above:

- (i) a daily case register in Form 3C.
- (ii) an inventory under broad heads of the stock of drugs, medicines and other consumable accessories as on the first and last day of the previous year used for his profession.

Place at which books to be kept and maintained: The books and documents shall be kept and maintained at the place where the person is carrying on the profession, or where there is more than one place, at the principal place of his profession. However, if he maintains separate set of books for each place of his profession, such books and documents may be kept and maintained at the respective places.

ILLUSTRATION 18

Vinod is a person carrying on profession as film artist. His gross receipts from profession are as under:

Financial year 2016-17	1,15,000
Financial year 2017-18	1,80,000
Financial year 2018-19	2,10,000

What is his obligation regarding maintenance of books of accounts for Assessment Year 2020-21 under section 44AA of Income-tax Act, 1961?

SOLUTION

Section 44AA(1) requires every person carrying on any profession, notified by the Board in the Official Gazette (in addition to the professions already specified therein), to maintain such books of account and other documents as may enable the Assessing Officer to compute his total income in accordance with the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961.

As per Rule 6F, a person carrying on a notified profession shall be required to maintain specified books of accounts, only if:

- (i) his gross receipts in all the three years immediately preceding the relevant previous year has exceeded ₹ 1,50,000; or
- (ii) it is a new profession which is setup in the relevant previous year, it is likely to exceed ₹ 1,50,000 in that previous year.

In the present case, Vinod is a person carrying on profession as film artist, which is a notified profession. Since his gross receipts have not exceeded ₹ 1,50,000 in financial year 2016-17, the requirement under section 44AA to compulsorily maintain the prescribed books of account is not applicable to him for A.Y. 2020-21.

Mr. Vinod, however, required to maintain such books of accounts as would enable the Assessing Officer to compute his total income.

- (4) Period for which the books of account and other documents are required to be kept and maintained: The Central Board of Direct Taxes has also been empowered to prescribe, by rules, the period for which the books of account and other documents are required to be kept and maintained by the taxpayer.

Prescribed period: The above books of account and documents shall be kept and maintained for a minimum of 6 years from the end of the relevant assessment year.

6.12 AUDIT OF ACCOUNTS OF CERTAIN PERSONS CARRYING ON BUSINESS OR PROFESSION [SECTION 44AB]

- (1) Who are required to get the accounts audited? It is obligatory in the following cases for a person carrying on business or profession to get his accounts audited before the “specified date” by a Chartered Accountant:
- (i) if the total sales, turnover or gross receipts in business exceeds ₹100 lakh in any previous year; or
  - (ii) if the gross receipts in profession exceeds ₹ 50 lakh in any previous year; or
  - (iii) where the assessee is covered under section 44AE, (44BB or 44BBB)<sup>14</sup> and claims that the profits and gains from business are lower than the profits and gains computed on a presumptive basis. In such cases, the normal monetary limits for tax audit in respect of business would not apply.
  - (iv) where the assessee is carrying on a notified profession under section 44AA, and he claims that the profits and gains from such profession are lower than the profits and gains computed on a presumptive basis under section 44ADA and his income exceeds the basic exemption limit.
  - (v) where the assessee is covered under section 44AD(4) and his income exceeds the basic exemption limit.
- (2) Audit Report: The person mentioned above would have to furnish by the specified date a report of the audit in the prescribed forms. For this purpose, the Board has prescribed under Rule 6G, Forms 3CA/ 3CB/ 3CD containing forms of audit report and particulars to be furnished therewith.
- (3) Accounts audits under other statutes are considered: In cases where the accounts of a person are required to be audited by or under any other law before the specified date, it will be sufficient if the person gets his accounts audited under such other law before the specified date and also furnish by the said date the report of audit in the prescribed form in addition to the report of audit required under such other law.

Thus, for example, the provision regarding compulsory audit does not imply a second or separate audit of accounts of companies whose accounts are already required to be audited under the Companies Act, 2013. The provision only requires that companies should get their accounts audited under the Companies Act, 2013 before the specified date and in addition to the report required to be given by the auditor under the Companies Act, 2013 furnish a report for tax purposes in the form to be prescribed in this behalf by the CBDT.

---

<sup>14</sup>Section 44BB and 44BBB will be discussed in Chapter 2: Non-resident taxation in Module 4 of the Study Material containing the chapters relating to Part II: International Taxation.

(4) Non-applicability:

- (i) The requirement of audit under section 44AB does not apply to a person who declares profits and gains on a presumptive basis under section 44AD and his total sales, turnover or gross receipts does not exceed ₹ 2 crore.
- (ii) Further, the requirement of audit under section 44AB does not apply to a person who derives income of the nature referred to in (sections 44B and 44BBA)<sup>15</sup>.

(5) Specified date: The expression “specified date” in relation to the accounts of the previous year or years relevant to any assessment year means the due date for furnishing the return of income under section 139(1). For due date of furnishing return of income, refer section 139(1) in Chapter 17 “Assessment Procedure”.

(6) Penal provision: It may be noted that under section 271B, penal action can be taken for not getting the accounts audited and for not filing the audit report by the specified date.

Note - The Institute has brought out a Guidance Note dealing with the various aspects of tax audit under section 44AB. Students are advised to read the same carefully.

6.13 SPECIAL PROVISIONS FOR COMPUTING PROFITS AND GAINS OF BUSINESS ON PRESUMPTIVE BASIS [SECTION 44AD]

(1) Eligible business: The presumptive taxation scheme under section 44AD covers all small businesses with total turnover/gross receipts of up to ₹ 200 lakh (except the business of plying, hiring and leasing goods carriages covered under section 44AE).

(2) Eligible assessee: Resident individuals, HUFs and partnership firms (but not LLPs) and who has not claimed deduction under any of the section 10AA or deduction under any provisions of Chapter VIA under the heading “C - Deductions in respect of certain incomes” in the relevant assessment year would be covered under this scheme.

(3) Presumptive rate: The presumptive rate would be 8% of total turnover or gross receipts.

However, the presumptive rate of 6% of total turnover or gross receipts will be applicable in respect of amount which is received

- ◆ by an account payee cheque or

---

<sup>15</sup> Section 44B and 44BBA will be discussed in Chapter 2: Non-resident taxation in Module 4 of the Study Material containing the chapters relating to Part II: International Taxation.

- ◆ by an account payee bank draft or
- ◆ by use of electronic clearing system
  - through a bank account or
  - through such other prescribed electronic modes

during the previous year or before the due date of filing of return under section 139(1) in respect of that previous year.

However, the assessee has the option to declare in his return of income, an amount higher than the presumptive income so calculated, claimed to have been actually earned by him.

- (4) No further deduction would be allowed: All deductions allowable under sections 30 to 38 shall be deemed to have been allowed in full and no further deduction shall be allowed.
- (5) Written down value of the asset: The WDV of any asset of such business shall be deemed to have been calculated as if the assessee had claimed and had been actually allowed the deduction in respect of depreciation for each of the relevant assessment years.
- (6) Relief from maintenance of books of accounts and audit: The intention of widening the scope of this scheme is to reduce the compliance and administrative burden on small businessmen and relieve them from the requirement of maintaining books of account. Such assessee opting for the presumptive scheme are not required to maintain books of account under section 44AA or get them audited under section 44AB.
- (7) Higher threshold for non-audit of accounts for assessee opting for presumptive taxation under section 44AD: Section 44AB makes it obligatory for every person carrying on business to get his accounts of any previous year audited if his total sales, turnover or gross receipts exceed ₹ 1 crore.

However, if an eligible person opts for presumptive taxation scheme as per section 44AD(1), he shall not be required to get his accounts audited if the total turnover or gross receipts of the relevant previous year does not exceed ₹ 2 crore.

- (8) Advance tax: The eligible assessee is required to pay advance tax by 15th March of the financial year.
- (9) Persons not eligible for presumptive taxation scheme: The following persons are specifically excluded from the applicability of the presumptive provisions of section 44AD -
  - (a) a person carrying on profession as referred to in section 44AA(1) i.e., legal, medical, engineering or architectural profession or the profession of accountancy or technical consultancy or interior decoration or any other profession as is notified by the Board (namely, authorized representatives, film artists, company secretaries and profession of information technology have been notified by the Board for this purpose);
  - (b) a person earning income in the nature of commission or brokerage; or

(c) a person carrying on any agency business.

- (10) Not eligible to opt for presumptive taxation under this section for 5 assessment years: Where an eligible assessee declares profit for any previous year in accordance with the provisions of this section and he declares profit for any of the five consecutive assessment years relevant to the previous year succeeding such previous year not in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1), he shall not be eligible to claim the benefit of the provisions of this section for five assessment years subsequent to the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which the profit has not been declared in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1). This is provided in sub-section (4).

Example:

Let us consider the following particulars relating to a resident individual, Mr. A, being an eligible assessee whose gross receipts do not exceed ₹ 2 crore in any of the assessment years between A.Y. 2020-21 to A.Y. 2022-23-

Particulars	A.Y.2020-21	A.Y.2021-22	A.Y.2022-23
Gross receipts (₹)	1,80,00,000	1,90,00,000	2,00,00,000
Income offered for taxation (₹)	14,40,000	15,20,000	10,00,000
% of gross receipts	8%	8%	5%
Offered income as per presumptive taxation scheme u/s 44AD	Yes	Yes	No

In the above case, Mr. A, an eligible assessee, opts for presumptive taxation under section 44AD for A.Y. 2020-21 and A.Y. 2021-22 and offers income of ₹14.40 lakh and ₹15.20 lakh on gross receipts of ₹1.80 crore and ₹1.90 crore, respectively.

However, for A.Y.2022-23, he offers income of only ₹ 10 lakh on turnover of ₹ 2 crore, which amounts to 5% of his gross receipts. He maintains books of account under section 44AA and gets the same audited under section 44AB. Since he has not offered income in accordance with the provisions of section 44AD(1) for five consecutive assessment years, after A.Y. 2020-21, he will not be eligible to claim the benefit of section 44AD for next five assessment years succeeding A.Y.2022-23 i.e., from A.Y.2023-24 to 2027-28.

- (11) Maintain books of accounts and Audit if sub-section (4) attracted: An eligible assessee to whom the provisions of sub-section (4) are applicable and whose total income exceeds the basic exemption limit has to maintain books of account under section 44AA and get them audited and furnish a report of such audit under section 44AB. This is provided in section 44AD(5).

ILLUSTRATION 19

Mr. Praveen engaged in retail trade, reports a turnover of ₹ 1,98,50,000 for the financial year 2019-20. His income from the said business as per books of account is ₹ 11,20,000 computed as per the provisions of Chapter IV-D "Profits and gains from business or Profession" of the Income-tax Act, 1961. All transactions are carried out by way of A/c payee cheque/ECS through bank A/c. Retail trade is the only source of income for Mr. Praveen. A.Y. 2019-20 was the first year for which he declared his business income in accordance with the provisions of presumptive taxation under section 44AD.

- (i) Is Mr. Praveen eligible to opt for presumptive taxation scheme in respect of his income from retail trade for the assessment year 2020-21?
- (ii) If so, determine his income from retail trade as per the applicable presumptive provision assuming that whole of the turnover represents cash receipts.
- (iii) In case Mr. Praveen does not opt for presumptive taxation of income from retail trade, what are his obligations under the Income-tax Act, 1961?
- (iv) What is the due date for filing his return of income under both the options?

SOLUTION

- (i) Yes. Since his total turnover for the F.Y.2019-20 is below ₹ 200 lakhs, he is eligible to opt for presumptive taxation scheme under section 44AD in respect of his retail trade business.
- (ii) His income from retail trade, applying the presumptive tax provisions under section 44AD, would be ₹ 11,91,000, being 6% of ₹ 1,98,50,000.
- (iii) Mr. Praveen had declared profit for the previous year 2018-19 in accordance with the presumptive provisions and if he does not opt for presumptive provisions for any of the five consecutive assessment years i.e., A.Y. 2020-21 to A.Y. 2024-25, he would not be eligible to claim the benefit of presumptive taxation for five assessment years subsequent to the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which the profit has not been declared in accordance the presumptive provisions i.e., if he does not opt for presumptive taxation in say P.Y. 2019-20, then he would not be eligible to claim the benefit of presumptive taxation for A.Y. 2021-22 to A.Y. 2025-26.

Consequently, Mr. Praveen is required to maintain the books of accounts and get them audited under section 44AB, since his income exceeds the basic exemption limit.

- (iv) In case he opts for the presumptive taxation scheme under section 44AD, the due date would be 31st July, 2020.

In case he does not opt for presumptive taxation scheme, he is required to get his books of account audited, in which case the due date for filing of return of income would be 30th September, 2020.

6.14 PRESUMPTIVE TAXATION SCHEME FOR ASSESSEES ENGAGED IN ELIGIBLE PROFESSION [SECTION 44ADA]

- (i) Eligible business: The presumptive taxation scheme under section 44ADA for estimating the income of an assessee:
- who is engaged in any profession referred to in section 44AA(1) such as legal, medical, engineering or architectural profession or the profession of accountancy or technical consultancy or interior decoration or any other profession as is notified by the Board in the Official Gazette; and
  - whose total gross receipts does not exceed ₹ 50 lakh rupees in a previous year,
- (ii) Presumptive rate: Presumptive rate would be a sum equal to 50% of the total gross receipts, or, as the case may be, a sum higher than the aforesaid sum claimed to have been earned by the assessee.
- (iii) Eligible Assessee

- (iv) No further deduction would be allowed: Under the scheme, the assessee will be deemed to have been allowed the deductions under section 30 to 38. Accordingly, no further deduction under those sections shall be allowed.
- (v) Written down value of the asset: The written down value of any asset used for the purpose of the profession of the assessee will be deemed to have been calculated as if the assessee had claimed and had actually been allowed the deduction in respect of depreciation for the relevant assessment years.
- (vi) Relief from maintenance of books of accounts and audit: The eligible assessee opting for presumptive taxation scheme will not be required to maintain books of account under section 44AA(1) and get the accounts audited under section 44AB in respect of such income.
- (vii) Option to claim lower profits: An assessee may claim that his profits and gains from the aforesaid profession are lower than the profits and gains deemed to be his income under section 44ADA(1); and if such total income exceeds the maximum amount which is not chargeable to income-tax, he has to maintain books of account under section 44AA and get them audited and furnish a report of such audit under section 44AB.

- (viii) Advance Tax: The eligible assessee is required to pay advance tax by 15th March of the financial year.

6.15 SPECIAL PROVISIONS FOR COMPUTING PROFITS AND GAINS OF BUSINESS OF PLYING, HIRING OR LEASING GOODS CARRIAGES [SECTION 44AE]

- (1) Eligible business: This section provides for estimating business income of an owner of goods carriages from the plying, hire or leasing of such goods carriages;
- (2) Eligible assessee: The scheme applies to persons owning not more than 10 goods vehicles at any time during the previous year;
- (3) Presumptive Income: The estimated income from each goods vehicle, being a heavy goods vehicle or other than heavy goods vehicle would be

Goods Carriage	Presumptive Income
Heavy goods vehicle	₹ 1,000 per ton of gross vehicle weight or unladen weight, as the case may be, for every month or part of a month	during which such vehicle is owned by the assessee for the previous year.
Other than heavy goods vehicle	₹ 7,500 for every month or part of a month

The assessee can also declare a higher amount in his return of income. In such case, the latter will be considered to be his income;

- (4) All other deduction deemed to be allowed: The assessee will be deemed to have been allowed the deductions under sections 30 to 38. Accordingly, the written down value of any asset used for the purpose of the business of the assessee will be deemed to have been calculated as if the assessee had claimed and had actually been allowed the deduction in respect of depreciation for each of the relevant assessment years.
- (5) Salary and interest to partners is allowed: Where the assessee is a firm, the salary and interest paid to its partner are allowed to be deducted subject to the conditions and limit specified under section 40(b).
- (6) Not requirement to maintain books of accounts and get the accounts audited: The assessee joining the scheme will not be required to maintain books of account under section 44AA and get the accounts audited under section 44AB in respect of such income.

- (7) Option to claim lower profits: An assessee may claim lower profits and gains than the deemed profits and gains specified in sub-section (1) subject to the condition that the books of account and other documents are kept and maintained as required under section 44AA(2) and the assessee gets his accounts audited and furnishes a report of such audit as required under section 44AB.
- (8) Meaning of certain terms

S.No	Term	Meaning
(1)	Heavy goods vehicle	any goods carriage, the gross vehicle weight of which exceeds 12,000 kilograms.
(2)	Gross vehicle weight	total weight of the vehicle and load certified and registered by the registering authority as permissible for that vehicle.
(3)	Unladen weight	the weight of a vehicle or trailer including all equipment ordinarily used with the vehicle or trailer when working but excluding the weight of driver or attendant and where alternative parts or bodies are used the unladen weight of the vehicle means the weight of the vehicle with the heaviest such alternative body or part

ILLUSTRATION 20

Mr. X commenced the business of operating goods vehicles on 1.4.2019. He purchased the following vehicles during the P.Y.2019-20. Compute his income under section 44AE for A.Y.2020-21.

	Gross Vehicle Weight (in kilograms)	Number	Date of purchase
(1)	7,000	2	10.04.2019
(2)	6,500	1	15.03.2020
(3)	10,000	3	16.07.2019
(4)	11,000	1	02.01.2020
(5)	15,000	2	29.08.2019
(6)	15,000	1	23.02.2020

Would your answer change if the two goods vehicles purchased in April, 2019 were put to use only in July, 2019?

SOLUTION

Since Mr. X does not own more than 10 vehicles at any time during the previous year 2019-20, he is eligible to opt for presumptive taxation scheme under section 44AE. ₹ 1,000 per ton of gross vehicle weight or unladen weight per month or part of the month for each heavy goods vehicle and ₹ 7,500 per month or part of month for each goods carriage other than heavy goods vehicle, owned by him would be deemed as his profits and gains from such goods carriage.

Heavy goods vehicle means any goods carriage, the gross vehicle weight of which exceeds 12,000 kg.

(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)
Number of Vehicles	Date of purchase	No. of months for which vehicle is owned	No. of months × No. of vehicles [(1) × (3)]
Heavy goods vehicle
2	29.08.2019	8	16
1	23.02.2020	2	2
			18
Goods vehicle other than heavy goods vehicle
2	10.4.2019	12	24
1	15.3.2020	1	1
3	16.7.2019	9	27
1	2.1.2020	3	3
			55

The presumptive income of Mr. X under section 44AE for A.Y.2020-21 would be -

₹ 6,82,500, i.e., 55 × ₹ 7,500, being for other than heavy goods vehicle + 18 × ₹ 1,000 × 15 ton being for heavy goods vehicle.

The answer would remain the same even if the two vehicles purchased in April, 2019 were put to use only in July, 2019, since the presumptive income has to be calculated per month or part of the month for which the vehicle is owned by Mr. X.

6.16 METHOD OF COMPUTING DEDUCTION IN THE CASE OF BUSINESS REORGANISATION OF CO-OPERATIVE BANKS [SECTION 44DB]

- (1) This section provides the manner in which the deduction under the following sections are to be allowed in a case where business reorganisation of a co-operative bank has taken place during the financial year –
- (i) Section 32 (Depreciation);
  - (ii) Section 35D (Amortisation of certain preliminary expenses);
  - (iii) Section 35DD (Amortisation of expenses in case of amalgamation or demerger);
  - (iv) Section 35DDA (Amortisation of expenditure incurred under voluntary retirement scheme).
- (2) Quantum of Deduction to predecessor co-operative bank: The amount of deduction allowable to the predecessor co-operative bank under the above-mentioned sections has to be determined in accordance with the following formula-

$$A \times \frac{B}{C}$$

- A = the amount of deduction allowable to the predecessor co-operative bank if the business reorganisation had not taken place;
- B = the number of days comprised in the period beginning with the 1st day of the financial year and ending on the day immediately preceding the date of business reorganisation; and

C= the total number of days in the financial year in which the business reorganisation has taken place.

- (3) Quantum of Deduction to successor co-operative bank: The amount of deduction allowable to the successor co-operative bank under the above-mentioned sections has to be determined in accordance with the formula -

$$A \times \frac{B}{C}$$

A = the amount of deduction allowable to the predecessor co-operative bank if the business reorganisation had not taken place;

B = the number of days comprised in the period beginning with the date of business reorganisation and ending on the last day of the financial year; and

C = the total number of days in the financial year in which the business reorganisation has taken place.

Example:

Let us take a case where the deduction allowable under section 32 to the predecessor co-operative bank is, say, ₹ 1,20,000 and the business re-organisation took place on 1.11.2019. Then, the deduction allowable to the predecessor co-operative bank under section 32 would be ₹ 70,164 i.e., ₹ 1,20,000 x 214/366. The deduction allowable to the successor co-operative bank would be ₹ 49,836 i.e., ₹ 1,20,000 x 152/366.

- (4) Manner for computing deduction: In a case where an undertaking of the predecessor co-operative bank entitled to the deduction under sections 35D, 35DD or 35DDA is transferred before the expiry of the period specified therein to a successor co-operative bank on account of business reorganisation, the provisions of section 35D, section 35DD or section 35DDA shall apply to the successor co-operative bank in the financial years subsequent to the year of business reorganisation as they would have applied to the predecessor co-operative bank, as if the business reorganisation had not taken place.

- (5) Meaning of certain terms:

Term	Meaning
Business reorganisation	The reorganisation of business involving the amalgamation or demerger of a co-operative bank.
Co-operative bank	Shall have the meaning assigned to it in clause (cci) of section 5 of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949 i.e., a primary co-operative bank or Central Co-operative bank or a State co-operative bank.
Predecessor co-operative bank	The amalgamating co-operative bank or the demerged co-operative bank, as the case may be.

Alpha Co-operative Bank amalgamated with Beta Co-operative Bank on 1.12.2019. The depreciation for the year ended 31.3.2020 calculated as per Income-tax Rules, 1962, allowable to Alpha Co-operative Bank had the amalgamation had not taken place amounts to ₹ 2,40,000. Compute the deduction on account of depreciation allowable in the hands of Alpha Co-operative Bank and Beta Co-operative Bank for A. Y. 2020-21.

SOLUTION

- (i) The amount of deduction allowable to the amalgamating co-operative bank (i.e. Alpha Co-operative bank, in this case) under section 32 has to be determined in accordance with the following formula -

$$A \times \frac{B}{C}$$

- A = the amount of deduction allowable to the predecessor co-operative bank (i.e. Alpha Co-operative bank, in this case) if the business reorganisation had not taken place. In this case, the amount of deduction is ₹ 2,40,000.
- B = the number of days comprised in the period beginning with the 1st day of the financial year (i.e., 1.4.2019, in this case) and ending on the day immediately preceding the date of business reorganization (i.e., 30.11.2019, in this case); and
- C = the total number of days in the financial year in which the business reorganisation has taken place (i.e., 366 days).

- (ii) The amount of deduction allowable to the amalgamated co-operative bank (i.e. Beta Co-operative bank, in this case) under section 32 has to be determined in accordance with the formula -

$$A \times \frac{B}{C}$$

- A = the amount of deduction allowable to the predecessor co-operative bank (i.e. Alpha Co-operative bank, in this case) if the business reorganisation had not taken place. In this case, the amount of deduction is ₹ 2,40,000.
- B = the number of days comprised in the period beginning with the date of business reorganisation (i.e. 1.12.2019, in this case) and ending on the last day of the financial year (i.e. 31.3.2020); and
- C = the total number of days in the financial year in which the business reorganisation has taken place (i.e. 366 days).
- (iii) In this case, the deduction that would have been allowable under section 32 to Alpha co-operative bank had the business reorganization had not taken place is ₹ 2,40,000 and the business re-organisation took place on 1.12.2019. Therefore, the deduction allowable to Alpha co-operative bank under section 32 would be ₹1,60,000 i.e., ₹ 2,40,000 x 244/366. The deduction allowable to Beta co-operative bank would be ₹ 80,000 i.e., ₹ 2,40,000 x 122/366.

6.17 COMPUTATION OF BUSINESS INCOME IN CASES WHERE INCOME IS PARTLY AGRICULTURAL AND PARTLY BUSINESS IN NATURE

(1) Income from the manufacture of rubber [Rule 7A]

- (i) Income derived from the sale of centrifuged latex or cenex or latex based crepes or brown crepes or technically specified block rubbers manufactured or processed from field latex or coagulum obtained from rubber plants grown by the seller in India shall be computed as if it were income derived from business, and 35% of such income shall be deemed to be income liable to tax.
- (ii) In computing such income, an allowance shall be made in respect of the cost of planting rubber plants in replacement of plants that have died or become permanently useless in an area already planted, if such area has not previously been abandoned, and for the purpose of determining such cost, no deduction shall be made in respect of the amount of any subsidy which, under the provisions of clause (31) of section 10, is not includible in the total income.

(2) Income from the manufacture of coffee [Rule 7B]

- (i) Income derived from the sale of coffee grown and cured by the seller in India shall be computed as if it were income derived from business, and 25% of such income shall be deemed to be income liable to tax.
- (ii) Income derived from the sale of coffee grown cured, roasted and grounded by the seller in India, with or without mixing of chicory or other flavouring ingredients, shall be computed as if it were income derived from business, and 40% of such income shall be deemed to be income liable to tax.
- (iii) In computing such income, an allowance shall be made in respect of the cost of planting coffee plants in such replacement of plants that have died or become permanently useless in an area already planted, if such area has not previously been abandoned, and for the purpose of determining such cost, no deduction shall be made in respect of the amount of any subsidy which, under the provisions of clause (31) of section 10, is not includible in the total income.

(3) Income from the manufacture of tea [Rule 8]

- (i) Income derived from the sale of tea grown and manufactured by the seller in India shall be computed as if it were income derived from business, and 40% of such income shall be deemed to be income liable to tax.
- (ii) In computing such income, an allowance shall be made in respect of the cost of planting bushes in replacement of bushes that have died or become permanently useless in an area already planted, if such area has not previously been abandoned, and for the purpose of determining such cost, no deduction shall be made in respect of the amount of any subsidy which, under the provision of section 10(30), is not includible in the total income.

Taxability in case of composite income: A Summary

Rule	Nature of composite income	Business income (Taxable)	Agricultural Income (Exempt)
7A	Income from the manufacture of rubber	35%	65%
7B	Income from the manufacture of coffee
	- sale of coffee grown and cured	25%	75%
	- sale of coffee grown, cured, roasted and grounded	40%	60%
8	Income from the manufacture of tea	40%	60%

ILLUSTRATION 22

Miss Vivitha, a resident and ordinarily resident in India, has derived the following income from various operations (relating to plantations and estates owned by her) during the year ended 31-3-2020:

S. No.	Particulars	₹
(i)	Income from sale of centrifuged latex processed from rubber plants	3,00,000

	grown in Darjeeling.
(ii)	Income from sale of coffee grown and cured in Yercaud, Tamil Nadu.	1,00,000
(iii)	Income from sale of coffee grown, cured, roasted and grounded, in Colombo. Sale consideration was received at Chennai.	2,50,000
(iv)	Income from sale of tea grown and manufactured in Shimla.	4,00,000
(v)	Income from sapling and seedling grown in a nursery at Cochin. Basic operations were not carried out by her on land.	80,000

You are required to compute the business income and agricultural income of Miss Vivitha for the assessment year 2020-21.

SOLUTION

Computation of business income and agricultural income of Ms. Vivitha for the A.Y.2020-21

Sr. No.	Source of income	Gross (₹)	Business income		Agricultural income
(i)	Sale of centrifuged latex from rubber plants grown in India.	3,00,000	35%	1,05,000	1,95,000
(ii)	Sale of coffee grown and cured in India.	1,00,000	25%	25,000	75,000
(iii)	Sale of coffee grown, cured, roasted and grounded outside India. (See Note 1 below)	2,50,000	100%	2,50,000	-
(iv)	Sale of tea grown and manufactured in India	4,00,000	40%	1,60,000	2,40,000
(v)	Saplings and seedlings grown in nursery in India (See Note 2 below)	80,000		Nil	80,000
	Total			5,40,000	5,90,000

Notes:

- Where income is derived from sale of coffee grown, cured, roasted and grounded by the seller in India, 40% of such income is taken as business income and the balance as agricultural income. However, in this question, these operations are done in Colombo, Sri Lanka. Hence, there is no question of such apportionment and the whole income is taxable as business income. Receipt of sale proceeds in India does not make this agricultural income. In the case of an assessee, being a resident and ordinarily resident, the income arising outside India is also chargeable to tax.
- Explanation 3* to section 2(1A) provides that the income derived from saplings or seedlings grown in a nursery would be deemed to be agricultural income whether or not the basic operations were carried out on land.

EXERCISE

Question 1

Examine critically the following cases in the context of provisions contained in the Income-tax Act, 1961 relevant for Assessment Year 2020-21. Support the answers with relevant case laws and workings.

- (a) Mr. Janak is proprietor of M/s. Yash Texnit which is engaged in garment manufacturing business. The entire block of Plant & Machinery chargeable to depreciation @ 15%, has 20 different machinery items as at 31-03-2020. One of the machineries used for packing had become obsolete and was discarded by Mr. Janak in July' 19.

Assessee filed its return for A.Y. 2020-21 claiming total depreciation of ₹ 40 lacs which includes ₹ 4 lacs being the depreciation claimed on the machinery item discarded by Mr. Janak. The A.O. disallowed the claim of depreciation of ₹ 4 lacs during the course of scrutiny assessment.

Comment on the validity of action taken by A.O.

- (b) X. Ltd. issued debentures in the previous year 2019-20, which were to be matured at the end of 5 years. The debenture holder was given an option of one time upfront payment of ₹ 60 per debenture on account of interest which was to be immediately paid by the company. As per the option exercised by the debenture holders, company paid interest upfront to them in the first year itself and the same was claimed as deduction in the return of the company. But in the accounts, the interest expenditure was shown as deferred expenditure to be written off over a period of 5 years. During the course of assessment, the Assessing Officer spread the upfront interest paid over a period of five year term of debentures and allowed only one-fifth of the amount in the previous year 2019-20. Examine the correctness of the action of Assessing Officer.

Answer

- (a) The issue under consideration is whether disallowance of depreciation made by the Assessing Officer with regard to the discarded asset, in arriving at the written down value of the block of assets, is justified.

One of the conditions for claim of depreciation under section 32 is that the eligible asset must have been put to use for the purpose of business or profession.

The other aspect to be considered is whether merely discarding an obsolete machinery, which is physically available, will attract the expression "moneys payable" appearing in section 43(6), so as to deduct its value from the written down value of the block.

The facts in the present case are similar to facts in the case of CIT v. Yamaha Motor India Pvt. Ltd. (2010) 328 ITR 297, wherein the Delhi High Court observed that the expression "used for the purposes of the business" in section 32 when used with respect to discarded machinery would mean the use in the business, not only in the relevant financial year/previous year, but also in the earlier financial years.

The discarded machinery may not be actually used in the relevant previous year but depreciation can be claimed as long as it was used for the purposes of business in the earlier years provided the block continues to exist in the relevant previous year. Therefore, the condition for claiming depreciation in respect of the discarded machine would be satisfied if it was used in the earlier previous years for the business.

For the purpose of section 43(6), "moneys payable" means the sale price, in case of sale, or the insurance, salvage or compensation moneys payable in respect of the asset. In this case, the machinery has not been sold as machinery or scrap or disposed off, and it continues to exist. Hence, there is no "moneys payable" in this case, which alone is deductible while computing the WDV of the block to which it belongs.

Applying the rationale of the above case, the action of the Assessing Officer in disallowing ₹ 4 lakhs, being the depreciation claim attributable to discarded machinery, on the ground that the same was not put to use in the relevant previous year, is invalid, since the said machinery was put to use in the earlier previous years.

- (b) The issue under consideration is whether, in a case where debentures are issued with maturity at the end of five years, and the debenture holders are given an option of upfront payment of interest in the first year itself, can the entire upfront interest paid, be claimed as deduction by the company in the first year or should the same be deferred over a period of five years; and would the treatment of such interest as deferred revenue expenditure in the books of account have any impact on the tax treatment.

The facts of the case are similar to the facts in Taparia Tools Ltd. v. JCIT (2015) 372 ITR 605, wherein the above issue came up before the Supreme Court. In that case, it was observed that under section 36(1)(iii), the amount of interest paid in respect of capital borrowed for the purposes of business or profession, is allowable as deduction.

The moment the option for upfront payment was exercised by the subscriber, the liability of X Ltd. to make the payment in that year had arisen. Not only had the liability arisen in the previous year in question, it was even quantified and discharged as well in that very year.

As per the rationale of the Supreme Court ruling in Taparia Tools Ltd.'s case, when the deduction of entire upfront payment of interest is allowable as per the Income-tax Act, 1961, the fact that a different treatment was given in the books of account could not be a factor which would bar the company from claiming the entire expenditure as a deduction.

Accordingly, the action of the Assessing Officer in spreading the upfront interest paid over the five year term of debentures and restricting the deduction in the P.Y.2019-20 to one-fifth of the upfront interest paid is not correct. The company is eligible to claim the entire amount of interest paid upfront as deduction under section 36(1)(iii) in the P.Y.2019-20.

Question 2

Compute the quantum of depreciation available under section 32 of the Income-tax Act, 1961 in respect of the following items of Plant and Machinery purchased by PQR Textile Ltd., by paying through account payee cheque, which is engaged in the manufacture of textile fabrics, for the year ended 31-3-2020:

	(₹ In crores)
New machinery installed on 1-5-2019	84
New Windmill purchased and installed on 18-6-2019.	22

Items purchased after 30th November 2019:
Fork-lift-trucks, used inside factory	4
Computers installed in office premises	1
Computers installed in factory	2
New imported machinery	12

The new imported machinery arrived at Chennai port on 30-03-2020 and was installed on 3-4-2020. All other items were installed during the year ended 31-3-2020.

The company was newly started during the year.

Also, compute the WDV of the various blocks of assets as on 1.4.2020.

- Additional depreciation	17.20	4.60
WDV as on 1.4.2020	72.45	11.00

Notes:

- (1) Windmills and any specially designed devices which run on windmills installed on or after 1.4.2014 would be eligible for depreciation @ 40%.
- (2) New imported machinery was not installed during the previous year 2019-20. Hence, it would not be eligible for additional depreciation for A.Y. 2020-21. It would also not be eligible for normal depreciation for A.Y 2020-21, since it was not put to use in the P.Y.2019-20 being the year of acquisition.
- (3) It may be noted that investment in the following plant and machinery would not be eligible for additional depreciation under section 32(1)(iia):
  - (a) Lorries for transporting goods to sales depots, being vehicles/road transport vehicles; and
  - (b) Computers installed in office premises.
- (4) As per section 2(28) of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, the definition of a “vehicle” excludes, inter alia, a vehicle of special type adopted for use only in a factory or in any enclosed premises. Therefore, fork-lift trucks used inside the factory would not fall within the definition of “vehicle”. Hence, it is eligible for additional depreciation under section 32(1)(iia).

Question 3

- (A) Examine the taxability and/ or allowability of the following receipts or expenditures under the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961, for the assessment year 2020-21:
  - (i) S Ltd. receives a sum of ₹ 10 lakhs from K Ltd. on 3rd January, 2020 for agreeing not to carry on any business relating to computer software in India for the next three years.

- (ii) Secret commission was paid during the previous year 2019-20.
  - (iii) P Ltd. paid dollars equivalent to ₹ 50 lakhs as sales commission for the year ended 31.03.2020, without deducting tax at source, to Mr. Rodrigues, a citizen of UK and non-resident who acted as agent for booking orders, from various customers who are outside India.
- (B) Can the following transactions be covered under section 43B for disallowance?
- (i) A bank guarantee given by a company towards disputed tax liabilities.
  - (ii) Interest payable to Goods and Services Tax Department but not paid before the due date specified in section 139(1).

Answer

- (A) (i) As per section 28(va), any sum received under an agreement for not carrying out any activity in relation to any business/ profession (i.e., non-compete fee) is chargeable to income-tax under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession".

Accordingly, ₹ 10 lakhs received by S Ltd. from K Ltd. for agreeing not to carry on any business relating to computer software in India for the next three years is chargeable to income-tax under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession".

The amount shall be allowed as deduction in the hands of K Ltd. provided tax has been deducted at source under section 194J on the payment so made to S Ltd. If tax is not deducted at source, 30% of the expenditure shall be disallowed under section 40(a)(ia).

- (ii) Secret commission is one of the forms of commission payment generally made by business organizations. Secret commission is a payment for obtaining business orders or contracts from parties and /or customers and paid to employees and / or officials of those parties and / or customers or companies from whom business orders are obtained by the assessee.

Explanation 1 below section 37(1) of Income-tax Act, 1961 provides that any expenditure incurred by an assessee for any purpose which is an offence or which is prohibited by law, shall not be deemed to have been incurred for the purpose of business and no deduction or allowance shall be made in respect of such expenditure. In view of the Explanation, any expenditure incurred for a purpose which is an offence and prohibited by law cannot be allowed as expenditure. Therefore, if secret commission payment could be established as a payment for an offence prohibited by law, the same cannot be allowed as deduction.

- (iii) A foreign agent of an Indian exporter operates in his own country and no part of his income accrues or arises in India. His commission is usually remitted directly to him and is, therefore, not received by him or on his behalf in India. The commission paid to the non-resident agent for services rendered outside India is, thus, not chargeable to tax in India.

Since commission income for booking orders by non-resident who remains outside India is not subject to tax in India, disallowance under section 40(a)(i) is not attracted in respect of payment of commission to such non-resident outside India even though tax has not been deducted at source. Thus, the amount of ₹ 50 lakhs remitted to Mr. Rodrigues outside India in foreign currency towards commission would not attract disallowance under section 40(a)(i) for non-deduction of tax at source.

- (B) (i) For claiming deduction of any expense enumerated under section 43B, the requirement is, the actual payment and not deemed payment. Furnishing of bank guarantee cannot be equated with actual payment. Actual payment requires that money must flow from the assessee to the public exchequer as specified in section 43B. Therefore, deduction of an expense covered under section 43B cannot be claimed by merely furnishing a bank guarantee [CIT v. McDowell & Co Ltd (2009) 314 ITR 167 (SC)]
- (ii) Interest payable to Goods and Services Tax department is part of Goods and Services Tax.

Therefore, interest payable to Goods and Services Tax department, which is not paid before the “due date” of filing of return of income, would attract disallowance under section 43B [Mewar Motors v. CIT (2003) 260 ITR 218 (Raj)]

Question 4

ILT Limited is engaged in manufacturing of pipes and tubes. The profit and loss account of the company for the year ended 31st March, 2020 shows a net profit of ₹ 405 lacs. The following information and particulars are furnished to you. You are required to compute total income of the company for Assessment Year 2020-21 indicating reasons for treatment of each item.

- (i) A group free air ticket was provided by a supplier for reaching a certain volume of purchase during the financial year 2019-20. The same is encashed by the company for ₹ 10 lacs in April 2019 and credited to General Reserve Account.
- (ii) A regular supplier of raw materials agreed for settlement of ₹ 8 lacs instead of ₹ 10 lacs for poor quality of material supplied during the previous year which was not given effect in the running account of the supplier.
- (iii) Andhra Bank sanctioned and disbursed a term loan in the financial year 2016-17 for a sum of ₹ 50 lacs. Interest of ₹ 8 lacs was in arrears. The bank has converted the arrear interest into a new loan repayable in 10 equal instalments. During the year, the company has paid 2 instalments and the amount so paid has been reduced from Funded Interest in the Balance Sheet.

- (iv) The company remitted ₹ 5 lacs as interest to a company incorporated in USA on a loan taken 2 years ago. Tax deducted under section 195 from such interest has been deposited by the company on 15th July, 2020. The said interest was debited to profit and loss account.
- (v) Sandeep, a sales executive stationed at HO at Delhi, was on official tour in Bangalore from 31st May, 2019 to 18th June, 2019 and 28th September, 2019 to 15th October, 2019 for the business development. The company has paid Sandeep's salary in cash, from its local office at Bangalore for the month of May, 2019 (payable on 1st June) and September 2019 (payable on 1st October), amounting to ₹ 45,000 and ₹ 47,000 respectively (net of TDS and other deduction), as Sandeep has no bank account at Bangalore. These were included in the amount of "salary" debited to Profit and Loss Account.
- (vi) The company has contributed ₹ 50,000 by account payee cheque to an electoral trust and the same stands included under the head "General Expenses".

Answer

Computation of total income of ILT Ltd. for the A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	₹ (in lacs)
Profits and gains from business or profession
Net profit as per profit and loss account		405.00
Add : Items debited to profit and loss account, but to be disallowed and items not considered in accounts but to be taxed
Value of group free air ticket provided by a supplier is taxable as business income under section 28(iv), as the value of any benefit, whether convertible into money or not, arising from business is taxable as business income.	10
Amount waived by the supplier of raw materials is a deemed income under section 41(1), as the expenditure was allowed as deduction in the last year and there is a benefit by way of remission or cessation of a trading liability. The fact that effect was not given in the running account of supplier is not relevant.	2
Interest payable outside India to a foreign company is allowable ( See Note 1 below )	-
Contribution to electoral trust is not an allowable expenditure while computing business income. Hence, the same has to be added back, since it is included in general expenses.	0.50
Salary paid to employee Sandeep is eligible for deduction. Disallowance under section 40A(3) will not apply [ See Note 2 below ]	-	12.50
		417.50

Less: Amount of deduction allowable
Under section 43B, interest on loan due to any scheduled bank, etc. is allowed as deduction, if such interest is actually paid irrespective of the method of accounting followed by the assessee. Conversion of arrear interest into a fresh loan by a bank cannot be considered as actual payment of interest. However, the amount of funded interest (i.e., converted loan) actually paid is allowable as deduction. Hence, ₹ 1,60,000, being two instalments of ₹ 80,000 each, actually paid is deductible.	1.60
Business Income	415.90
Gross total income	415.90
Less: Deduction under Chapter VI-A
Deduction under section 80GGB in respect of contribution by the assessee company to an electoral trust.	0.50
Total Income	415.40

Notes:

1. Since tax has been deducted on interest payable outside India to a foreign company during the previous year 2019-20 and the same has been deposited before the due date of filing return of income under section 139(1), disallowance under section 40(a)(i) is not attracted. Since the interest has already been debited to profit and loss account, no further adjustment is required.
2. In respect of payment of salary to sales executive in cash, no disallowance under section 40A(3) is to be made as the payments fall within the scope of Rule 6DD(i). Salary paid to him in cash is allowable as the executive was temporarily posted for a continuous period of more than 15 days in Bangalore which is not the place of his normal duty. Further tax was deducted from such salary under section 192 and he does not maintain any bank account in Bangalore. No disallowance under section 40A(3) is attracted in respect of such salary.

Question 5

G Ltd., a company in which public are substantially interest, is engaged in the business of growing and manufacturing tea in India. For the previous year ended 31.03.2019, its composite business profits before allowing deduction u/s 33AB is ₹ 60,00,000. On 01.09.2019, it deposited a sum of ₹ 11,00,000 in the Tea Development Account. During the previous year 2017-18, G Ltd. had incurred a business loss of ₹ 14,00,000 which has been carried forward. On 25.01.2020, it withdrew ₹ 10 lakhs, from deposit account which is utilized as under:

₹ 6,00,000 for purchase on non-depreciable asset as per the scheme specified.

₹ 3,00,000 for purchase of machinery to be installed in the office premises.

₹ 1,00,000 was spent for the purpose of scheme on 5.4.2020.

- (i) You are required to determine business income of G Ltd. and the tax consequences that may arise from the above transactions in the relevant assessment year.
- (ii) What will be the consequence if the asset which was purchased for ₹ 6,00,000 is sold for ₹ 8,00,000 in April, 2020.

Answer

(i) Computation of Business Income of G Ltd. for the A.Y. 2020-21

Particulars	₹
₹ 10,00,000 being the amount withdrawn from Tea Development Account has to be utilized in the prescribed manner, otherwise, the withdrawn amount would be chargeable to tax as business income. In the given case, the taxability of withdrawal amount based on their utilization is as follows:	Not taxable
- ₹ 6,00,000, out of the amount withdrawn from the deposit account, utilised for purchase of non-depreciable asset as per the specified scheme. [As per section 33AB(6), no deduction would be allowed under section 33AB since amount is spent out of ₹ 11 lakh deposited in Tea Development Account, which has already been allowed as deduction in A.Y.2019-20 (See Working Note below)].
- ₹ 3,00,000, being the amount utilized for purchase of machinery to be installed in the office premises is not a permissible utilization. Hence, the amount would be deemed as profits and gains of business of the previous year 2019-20 as per section 33AB(4).
- ₹ 1,00,000 was spent for the purpose of scheme on 05.04.2020. As per section 33AB(7), this amount would be taxable since the same is not utilized during the same previous year (i.e., P.Y. 2019-20) in which the amount is withdrawn from the deposit account.	1,00,000
When any part of withdrawal amount becomes taxable, the agricultural and non-agricultural portions of income must be segregated. Accordingly, ₹ 1,60,000, being 40% of ₹ 4,00,000 (₹ 3,00,000 + ₹ 1,00,000) would be chargeable to tax as business income and the balance ₹ 2,40,000, being 60% of ₹ 4,00,000 would be agricultural income exempt from tax.

Working Note:

Computation of Business Income of G Ltd. for the A.Y. 2019-20

Particulars	₹
Composite business profits before allowing deduction under section 33AB	60,00,000

Less: Deduction under section 33AB(1) would be the lower of:
- Amount deposited in Tea Development Account on or before 30.9.2019 [i.e., ₹ 11,00,000]
- 40% of profits of such business [i.e., ₹ 24,00,000, being 40% of ₹ 60,00,000]	11,00,000
	49,00,000
Less: 60% of ₹ 49,00,000, being agricultural income [as per Rule 8]	29,40,000
Business income	19,60,000
Less: Brought forward business loss of A.Y.2018-19 set-off as per section 72	14,00,000
Business income chargeable to tax	5,60,000

(ii) Consequences, if asset purchased out of deposit account is sold during the previous year 2020-21

As per section 33AB(8), if the asset is sold before the expiry of eight years from the end of the previous year in which it was acquired, then, the cost of such asset shall be deemed to be the profits and gains from business or profession of the previous year in which asset is sold.

Therefore, ₹ 6,00,000 would be deemed to be the business income (composite) for the A.Y.2021-22. However, since the full cost of the asset was deducted in the assessment year 2019-20 (being part of ₹ 11 lakh deposited in Tea Development Account) before segregation of agricultural income and non-agricultural income, the agricultural and non-agricultural portions of income should be segregated in the year in which such amount becomes taxable on account of sale of asset before the expiry of eight years. Therefore, ₹ 3,60,000, being 60% of ₹ 6,00,000 would represent agricultural income. The balance ₹ 2,40,000 being 40% of ₹ 6,00,000 would be chargeable to tax as business income.

Moreover, the difference between the sale consideration and purchase price of the asset would be chargeable to tax as “Short term capital gains”, which is computed as follows:

Sales consideration	8,00,000
Less: Cost of acquisition	6,00,000
Short term capital gain	2,00,000

Question 6

The trading and profit and loss account of Pingu Trading Pvt. Ltd. having business of agricultural produce, consumer items and other products for the year ended 31.03.2020 is as under:

Trading Account

Particulars	₹	Particulars	₹

Interest on income-tax refund	4,570
Gross Total Income	24,62,870
Less: Deduction under section 80GGB
Contribution to political party (See Note 3)	₹ 2,500
Contribution to an Electoral trust (See Note 3)	₹ 1,00,000
Total Income	23,60,370

Notes:

- (1) The business premises were surveyed and differences in the figures of opening and closing stocks and sales were found which have not been disputed and accepted by the assessee. Therefore, the trading account for the year is to be re-cast to arrive at the correct amount of the gross profit/ net profit for the purpose of return of income to be filed for the previous year ended on 31.3.2020.

Revised Trading Account

Particular	₹	Particular	₹
Opening Stock	8,75,000	Sales	1,56,25,000
Purchases	1,25,75,000	(₹ 1,55,50,000 + ₹ 75,000)
Freight and Cartage	1,26,000	Closing Stock	12,50,000
Gross Profit	32,99,000
	1,68,75,000		1,68,75,000

The difference of gross profit of ₹ 32,99,000 - ₹ 29,24,000 = ₹ 3,75,000 is to be added as income of the business for the year.

- (2) Bonus for the previous year 2018-19 paid after the due date for filing return for that year would have been disallowed under section 43B for the P.Y.2018-19. However, when the same has been paid in December 2019, it should be allowed as deduction in the P.Y.2019-20 (A.Y.2020-21). Since it is already included in the figure of bonus to staff debited to profit and loss account of this year, no further adjustment is required.
- (3) The amount of ₹ 2,500 paid for advertisement in the souvenir issued by a political party attracts disallowance under section 37(2B). However, such expenditure falls within the meaning assigned to “contribute” under section 293A of the Companies Act, 1956, and is hence, eligible for deduction under section 80GGB. Any contribution to the political party or electoral trust made by way of cash is not allowed as deduction under section 80GGB. Since in the present case, the payment to the political party is made by way of an account payee cheque, it is allowed as deduction under section 80GGB.
- (4) The penalty of ₹ 15,000 paid for non-fulfilment of delivery conditions of a contract for reasons beyond control is not for the breach of law but was paid for breach of contractual obligations and therefore, is an allowable expense.
- (5) It has been assumed that ₹ 25,000 is the reasonable payment for the wife of Director, working as a junior lawyer, since junior advocates of High Courts normally charge only ₹ 25,000 for the same opinion and therefore, the balance ₹ 75,000 has been disallowed.

- (6) Payment to an electoral trust qualifies for deduction under section 80GGB since the payment is made by way of a cheque. However, since the amount has been debited to profit and loss account, the same has to be added back for computing business income.
- (7) The interest of ₹ 12,750 paid on the delayed deposit of goods and services tax is for breach of contract and hence, is allowable as deduction. However, penalty of ₹ 5,300 for delay in filing of returns is not allowable since it is for breach of law.
- (8) Deduction @ 100% of the capital expenditure is available under section 35AD in respect of specified business of setting up and operating a warehouse facility for storage of agricultural produce which commences operation on or after 1.04.2012. It is presumed that ₹ 25 lacs does not include expenditure on acquisition of any land.

The loss from specified business under section 35AD (warehousing) should be segregated from the income from other businesses, since, as per section 73A(1), any loss computed in respect of any specified business referred to in section 35AD shall not be set off except against profits and gains, if any, of any other specified business.

In view of the provisions of section 73A(1), the loss of ₹ 10 lacs from the specified business cannot be set-off against income from other businesses. Such loss has to be carried forward to be set-off against profit from specified business in the next assessment year. The return should be filed on or before the due date under section 139(1) for carry forward of such losses.

Question 7

- (a) A Ltd. paid IDBI (a public financial institution) a lump sum pre-payment premium of ₹ 1.2 lacs on 7.4.2019 for restructuring its debts and reducing its rate of interest. It claimed the entire sum as business expenditure for the P.Y.2019-20. The Assessing Officer, however, held that the pre-payment premium should be amortised over a period of 10 years (being the tenure of the restructured loan), and thus, allowed only 10% of the pre-payment premium in the P.Y.2019-20. Discuss, with reasons, whether the contention of A Ltd. is correct or that of the Assessing Officer.
- (b) Explain the tax treatment of emergency spares (of plant and machinery) acquired during the year which, even though kept ready for use, have not actually been used during the relevant previous year.

Answer

- (a) This issue came up before the Delhi High Court in CIT v. Gujarat Guardian Ltd (2009) 177 Taxman 434. The Court observed that the assessee company's claim for deduction has to be allowed in one lump sum keeping in view the provisions of section 43B(d), which provide that any sum payable by the assessee as interest on any loan or borrowing from any financial institution shall be allowed to the assessee in the year in which the same is paid, irrespective of the periods, in which the liability to pay such sum is incurred by the assessee according to the method of accounting regularly followed by the assessee. The High Court concluded with the Tribunal's view supporting the assessee that in terms of section 36(1)(iii) read with section 2(28A), the deduction for pre-payment premium was allowable. Since there was no dispute that the pre-payment premium was nothing but interest and that it was paid to a public financial institution i.e. IDBI, the Court held that, in terms of section 43B(d), the assessee's claim for deduction has to be allowed in the year in which the payment has actually been made.

Therefore, applying the ratio of the above case, the contention of A Ltd. is correct and not that of the Assessing Officer.

Note – Section 36(1)(iii) provides for deduction of interest paid in respect of capital borrowed for the purposes of business or profession. Section 2(28A) defines interest to include, inter alia, any other charge in respect of the moneys borrowed or debt incurred. Section 43B provides for certain deductions to be allowed only on actual payment. From a combined reading of these three sections, it can be inferred that –

- (i) pre-payment premium represents interest as per section 2(28A);
  - (ii) such interest is deductible as business expenditure as per section 36(1)(iii);
  - (iii) such interest is deductible in one lump-sum on actual payment as per section 43B(d).
- (b) As per ICDS V on Tangible Fixed Assets, machinery spares shall be charged to the revenue as and when consumed. When such spares can be used only in connection with an item of tangible fixed asset and their use is expected to be irregular, they shall be capitalised. Where the spares are capitalised as per the above requirement, the issue as to provision of depreciation arises – whether depreciation can be provided where such spares are kept ready for use or is it necessary that they are actually put to use. This issue was dealt with by the Delhi High Court in CIT v. Insilco Ltd (2010) 320ITR 322. The Court observed that the expression “used for the purposes of business” appearing in section 32 also takes into account emergency spares, which, even though ready for use, yet are not consumed or used during the relevant period. This is because these spares are specific to a fixed asset, namely plant and machinery, and form an integral part of the fixed asset. These spares will, in all probability, be useless once the asset is discarded and will also have to be disposed of. In this sense, the concept of passive use which applies to standby machinery will also apply to emergency spares. Therefore, once the spares are considered as emergency spares required for plant and machinery, the assessee would be entitled to capitalize the entire cost of such spares and claim depreciation thereon.

Note – One of the conditions for claim of depreciation is that the asset must be “used for the purpose of business or profession”. In the past, courts have held that, in certain circumstances, an asset can be said to be in use even when it is “kept ready for use”. For example, depreciation can be claimed by a transport company on spare engines kept in store in case of need, though they have not actually been used by the company. Hence, in such cases, the term “use” embraces both active use and passive use for business purposes.

Question 8

“Easy Call Ltd.”, to provide telecom services in Mumbai, obtained a licence on 1.4.2017 for a period of 10 years ending on 31.3.2027 against a fee of ₹ 27 lacs to be paid in 3 installments of ₹ 9 lacs each by April, 2017, April, 2018 and April, 2019, respectively. The company has commenced business on 1.5.2018.

Explain, how the payment made for licence fee shall be dealt with under the Income-tax Act, 1961 and the amount, if any, deductible for A.Y. 2020-21.

Answer

The payment made for acquiring the licence to operate telecom services in Mumbai shall be subject to deduction as per the scheme in section 35ABB. As per section 35ABB, any amount actually paid for obtaining licence to operate telecommunication services shall be allowed as deduction in equal instalments during the number of years for which the license is in force.

If the payment is made before the commencement of business: The deduction shall be allowed beginning with the year of commencement of business.

In any other case: It will be allowed commencing from the year of payment. Deduction shall be allowed up to the year in which the license shall cease to be in force.

The amount of deduction available for A.Y. 2020-21 is worked out below:-

(1)	(2)	(3)	(4) = (3)/(2)
Previous year of payment	Unexpired period of license	Instalment paid (₹)	Deduction in respect of each instalment (₹)
2017-18	9 years	9,00,000	1,00,000
2018-19	9 years	9,00,000	1,00,000
2019-20	8 years	9,00,000	1,12,500
		27,00,000	3,12,500

The deduction under section 35ABB from assessment year 2020-21 shall be ₹ 3,12,500.

Question 9

Alpha Ltd., a manufacturing company, has disclosed a net profit of ₹ 12.50 lacs for the year ended 31st March, 2020. You are required to compute the taxable income (ignore the provisions of section 115BAA) of the company for the Assessment year 2020-21, after considering the following information, duly explaining the reasons for each item of adjustment:

- (i) Advertisement expenditure debited to profit and loss account includes the sum of ₹ 60,000 paid in cash to the sister concern of a director, the market value of which is ₹ 52,000.
- (ii) Repairs of plant and machinery debited to profit and loss account includes ₹ 1.80 lacs towards replacement of worn out parts of machineries. Such expenditure does not increase the future benefit from the asset beyond its previously assessed standard of performance.
- (iii) A sum of ₹ 6,000 on account of liability foregone by a creditor has been taken to general reserve. The original purchases was debited to the Profit & Loss Account in the A.Y.2015-16.
- (iv) Sale proceeds of import entitlements amounting to ₹ 1 lac has been credited to Profit & Loss Account, which the company claims as capital receipt not chargeable to income-tax.
- (v) Being also engaged in the biotechnology business, the company incurred the following expenditure on in-house research and development as approved by the prescribed authority:
  - (a) Research equipments purchased ₹ 1,50,000.
  - (b) Remuneration paid to scientists ₹ 50,000.

The total amount of ₹ 2,00,000 is debited to the profit and loss account.

Answer

Computation of taxable income of Alpha Ltd. for the A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	₹
Net profit as per profit and loss account	12,50,000
Add: Items debited to profit and loss A/c but not deductible or income to be taxed
1. Payment of advertisement expenditure of ₹60,000
(i) ₹ 8,000, being the excess payment to a relative disallowed under section 40A(2)	8,000
(ii) As the payment is made in cash and since the remaining amount of ₹ 52,000 exceeds ₹ 10,000, 100% shall be disallowed under section 40A(3)	52,000
2. Under section 31, expenditure relatable to current repairs regarding plant, machinery or furniture is allowed as deduction.
The test to determine whether replacement of parts of machinery amounts to repair or renewal is whether the replacement is one which is in substance replacement of defective parts or replacement of the entire machinery or substantial part of the entire machinery [ CIT v. Darbhanga Sugar Co. Ltd. [1956] 29 ITR 21 (Pat) ].
Here expenditure on repairs does not bring in any new asset into existence. Such replacement can only be considered as current repairs. Hence, no adjustment is required. Further, as per ICDS V on Tangible Fixed Assets, only an expenditure that increases the future benefits from the existing asset beyond its previously assessed standard of performance has to be added to the actual cost.

3. Liability foregone by creditor chargeable as business income but not credited to profit and loss account [taxable under section 41(1)]	6,000
4. Sale proceeds of import entitlements. The sale of the rights gives rise to profits or gains taxable under section 28(iiiia). As the amount has already been credited to profit and loss account, no further adjustment is necessary.	-
Less: Amount not debited to profit and loss account but allowable as deduction
5. Expenditure on in-house research and development is entitled to a weighted deduction of 150% of the expenditure (both capital and revenue) so incurred under section 35(2AB)(1) = ₹2 lacs x 150% = ₹3 lacs Expenditure of ₹ 2,00,000 has already been debited to Profit & Loss Account, therefore only additional deduction of ₹ 1 lacs further to be allowed	1,00,000
Taxable Income	12,16,000

Question 10

- (i) A corporation was set up by the State Government transferring all the buses owned by it for a consideration of ₹ 75 lacs, which was discharged by the Corporation by issue of equity shares. The Corporation in its assessment claimed depreciation. Can the depreciation be denied in the Corporation's hands on the ground that there was no registration of the buses in favour of the Corporation?
- (ii) Ravi succeeded to his father's business in the year 2017. In the previous year ended 31.3.2020, Ravi has written off the balance in the name of 'Y' which relates to supply made by his father, when he carried on business. Ravi desires to know whether the write off could be eligible for deduction.

Answer

- (i) The decision of the Supreme Court in Mysore Minerals Ltd v. CIT (1999) 239 ITR 775 is relevant in the context of the facts stated. The term "asset used" in section 32 must be assigned a wider meaning and anyone in possession of property in his own title, exercising dominion over the property, to the exclusion of others and having the right to use and enjoy it, must be taken to be the owner.

Registration of the buses is only a formality to perfect the title and does not bar enjoyment. The Corporation cannot, therefore, be denied depreciation on the buses. A similar decision was also taken in CIT v. J & K Tourism Development Corporation (2001) 248 ITR 94 (J&K).

- (ii) The deduction of bad debt is allowed if it is written off in the books of account of the assessee. In this case, Ravi has succeeded to the business carried on by his father. Under clause (vii) of section 36(1) the amount has been written off in the books of account as irrecoverable is eligible for deduction provided the debt has been taken into account in computing the income of the business in an earlier previous year [vide section 36(2)].

Therefore, Ravi is eligible for deduction in respect of the amount due in the name of Y which is written off in the books of account as bad debt, even though the debt represents the amount due for the supplies made by previous owner viz. deceased father of Ravi. [CIT v. T. Veerabhadra Rao, K. Koteswara Rao and Co (1985) 155 ITR 152 (SC)].

Question 11

Boat Club is an association governed by the provisions of Section 44A of the Income-tax Act, 1961. The subscription received from members for the year ended 31st March, 2020 was ₹ 2,00,000. The expenditures in the normal course of its activities were ₹ 3,85,000. Its other income taxable under the Act works out to ₹ 2,75,000. You are consulted as to how Boat Club's income would be determined for assessment year 2020-21?

Answer

As per section 44A, the deficiency arising on account of income from members by way of, inter alia, subscriptions, falling short of the expenditure incurred solely for the protection or advancement of the interest of its members, shall first be set off against the association's income under the head "Profits and gains of Business or Profession". If there is no such income under this head, the deficiency shall be set off against income under any other head.

Particulars	₹
Income from subscription	2,00,000
Less: Expenses incurred in the course of its activities	3,85,000
Deficiency	(-)1,85,000
Other income	2,75,000
Less: Deficiency ₹1,85,000 but limited to 50% of other income	1,37,500
Income of the Association	1,37,500

There is a ceiling on the deduction admissible by way of deficiency being that it shall not exceed one-half of the total income of the association computed before making any allowance under this section. This ceiling has been exceeded above and the deficiency hence is limited to ₹ 1,37,500 being one-half of ₹2,75,000 [Section 44A(3)].

SIGNIFICANT SELECT CASES

1. Whether rental income earned from letting out of premises is to be treated as business income or as income from house property?

Raj Dadarkar and Associates v. Assistant Commissioner of Income Tax [2017] 394 ITR 592 (SC)

Facts of the case: The assessee had acquired the right to conduct a market on certain land from Municipal Corporation, Greater Bombay under an auction on May 28, 1993. The premises allotted to the appellant was a bare structure and it was for the appellant to make the premises fit to be used as a market. The appellant spent substantial sums to construct 95 shops and 30 stalls. From the years 1999 to 2004, the assessee treated income from sub-letting of such shops and stalls as business income. The return of the assessee for assessment year 2000-2001 was reopened by Assessing Officer by issuing notice under section 148.

Issue: Whether the income earned by the appellant is to be taxed under the head 'Income from house property' or 'Profits and gains from the business or profession'?

Supreme Court's Observations: The Supreme Court held that wherever there is an income from leasing out of premises, it is to be treated as income from house property. However, it can be treated as business income if letting out of the premises itself is the business of the assessee. The question has to be decided based on the facts of each case as was held in Sultan Brothers Pvt Ltd. v. CIT [1964] 51 ITR 353 (SC).

In the given facts, it was an undisputed fact that the assessee would be considered to be a deemed owner under section 27(iiiB) read with section 269UA(f) as it had a leasehold right for more than 12 years. The only evidence adduced for proving that letting out and earning rents is the main business activity of the appellant was the object clause of the partnership deed. The clause provided that "The Partnership shall take the premises on rent to sub-let or do any other business as may be mutually agreed by the parties from time to time." The Supreme Court held the clause to be inconclusive and observed that the assessee had failed to produce sufficient material to show that its entire or substantial income was from letting out of the property.

Supreme Court's Decision: The Supreme Court, accordingly, held that, in this case, the income is to be assessed as "Income from house property" and not as business income, on account of lack of sufficient material to prove that the substantial income of the assessee was from letting out of the property.

Note - In Chennai Properties and Investments Ltd. v. CIT (2015) 373 ITR 673, the Supreme Court observed that holding of the properties and earning income by letting out of these properties is the main objective of the company. Further, in the return of income filed by the company and accepted by the Assessing Officer, the entire income of the company comprised of income from letting out of such properties. The Supreme Court, accordingly, held that such income was taxable as business income. Likewise, in Rayala Corporation (P) Ltd. v. Asst. CIT (2016) 386 ITR 500, the Supreme Court noted that the assessee was engaged only in the business of renting its properties and earning rental income therefrom and accordingly, held that such income was taxable as business income. In this case, however, on account of lack of sufficient material to prove that substantial income of the assessee was from letting out of property, the Supreme Court held that the rental income has to be assessed as "Income from house property".

2. Is interest income on margin money deposited with bank for obtaining bank guarantee to carry on business, taxable as business income?

CIT v. K and Co. (2014) 364 ITR 93 (Del)

Facts of the case: The assessee running a lottery, deposited certain funds with a bank in order to obtain bank guarantee to be furnished to the State Government of Sikkim. Such guarantee enabled the assessee to carry on the business of printing lottery tickets and for conducting lotteries on behalf of the State Government of Sikkim. The funds which were held as margin money, earned some interest.

Issue: The issue under consideration is whether such interest income would be taxable under the head 'Profits and Gains from Business or Profession' or under the head 'Income from other sources'.

High Court's Observations: The High Court noted that the interest income from the deposits made by the assessee is inextricably linked to the business of the assessee and such income, therefore, cannot be treated as income under the head 'Income from other sources'. The margin money requirement was an essential element for obtaining the bank guarantee which was necessary for the contract between the State Government of Sikkim and the assessee. If the assessee had not furnished bank guarantee, it would not have got the contract for running the said lottery

High Court Decision: The High Court, accordingly, held that the interest income received on funds kept as margin money for obtaining the bank guarantee would be taxable under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession".

3. Can depreciation on leased vehicles be denied to the lessor on the ground that the vehicles are registered in the name of the lessee and that the lessor is not the actual user of the vehicles?

I.C.D.S. Ltd. v. CIT (2013) 350 ITR 527 (SC)

Facts of the case: The assessee is a non-banking finance company engaged, inter alia, in the business of leasing and hire purchase. The assessee purchased vehicles directly from the manufacturers and as a part of its business, leased out these vehicles to its customers, after which the physical possession of the vehicles was with the lessee. Further, the lessees were registered as the owners of the vehicles in the certificate of registration issued under the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988. The assessee-lessor claimed depreciation on such vehicles.

The Assessing Officer disallowed the depreciation claim on the ground that the assessee's use of these vehicles was only by way of leasing out the vehicles to others and not as actual user of the vehicles in the business of running them on hire and secondly, the vehicles were registered in the name of the lessee and not the assessee-lessor. Therefore, according to the Assessing Officer, the assessee had merely financed the purchase of these assets and was neither the owner nor the user of these assets.

High Court's view: The High Court was also of the view that the assessee could not be treated as the owner of the vehicles, since the vehicles were not registered in the name of the assessee and the assessee had only financed the transaction. Therefore, the High Court held that the assessee was not entitled to claim depreciation.

Supreme Court's Observations: The Supreme Court observed that section 32 imposes a twin requirement of "ownership" and "usage for business" as conditions for claim of depreciation thereunder. The Apex Court further observed that as far as usage of the asset is concerned, the section requires that the asset must be used in the course of business. It does not mandate actual usage by the assessee itself. In this case, the assessee did use the vehicles in the course of its leasing business. Hence, this requirement of section 32 has been fulfilled, notwithstanding the fact that the assessee was not the actual user of the vehicles.

The Supreme Court further noted that section 2(30) of the Motor Vehicle Act, 1988, is a deeming provision which creates a legal fiction of ownership in favour of the lessee only for that Act, not for the purpose of law in general. No inference could be drawn from the registration certificate as to ownership of the legal title of the vehicles, since registration in the name of the lessee during the period of lease is mandatory as per the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988. If the lessee was in fact the legal owner, he would have claimed depreciation on the vehicles which was not the case.

The Apex Court observed that as long as the assessee-lessor has a right to retain the legal title against the rest of the world, he would be the owner of the asset in the eyes of law. In this regard, the following provisions of the lease agreement are noteworthy –

- The assessee is the exclusive owner of the vehicle at all points of time;
- The assessee is empowered to repossess the vehicle, in case the lessee committed a default;
- At the end of the lease period, the lessee was obliged to return the vehicle to the assessee;

- The assessee had a right of inspection of the vehicle at all times.

It can be seen that the proof of ownership lies in the lease agreement itself, which clearly points in favour of the assessee.

Supreme Court's Decision: The Supreme Court, therefore, held that assessee was entitled to claim depreciation in respect of vehicles leased out since it has satisfied both the requirements of section 32, namely, ownership of the vehicles and its usage in the course of business.

4. What is the eligible rate of depreciation in respect of computer accessories and peripherals under the Income-tax Act, 1961?

CIT v. BSES Yamuna Powers Ltd (2013) 358 ITR 47 (Delhi)

Assessee's contention vis-a-vis Department's contention: The assessee claimed depreciation on computer accessories and peripherals at the rate of 60%, being the eligible rate of depreciation on computers including computer software. However, the Revenue contended that computer accessories and peripherals cannot be treated at par with computers and computer software, and hence were eligible for depreciation at the general rate applicable to plant and machinery, i.e., 15%.

High Court's Decision: The High Court observed that computer accessories and peripherals such as printers, scanners and server etc. form an integral part of the computer system and they cannot be used without the computer. Consequently, the High Court held that since they are part of the computer system, they would be eligible for depreciation at the higher rate of 60% applicable to computers including computer software.

The Delhi High Court, in CIT v. Orient Ceramics and Industries Ltd. [2013] 358 ITR 0049, following its own judgment in the above case, held that depreciation on UPS is allowable @ 60%, being the eligible rate of depreciation on computers including computer software, and not at the general rate of 15% applicable to plant and machinery.

Note: The CBDT has, vide Notification No. 103/2016, dated 7-11-2016, with effect from A.Y. 2018-19 reduced the higher rate of normal depreciation of 50%, 60%, 80% or 100%, as the case may be to 40%.

Accordingly, with effect from A.Y. 2018-19, the applicable rate of normal depreciation for computers would be 40% and hence, the eligible rate of depreciation on computer accessories and peripherals such as printers, scanners and server etc. or UPS would be 40%.

5. Can business contracts, business information, etc., acquired by the assessee as part of the slump sale and described as 'goodwill', be classified as an intangible asset to be entitled for depreciation under section 32(1)(ii)?

Areva T and D India Ltd. v. DCIT (2012) 345 ITR 421 (Delhi)

Facts of the case: In the present case, a transferor under a transfer by way of slump sale, transferred its ongoing business unit to the assessee company. On perusal of the sale consideration, it was found that some part of it was attributable to the tangible assets and the balance payment was made by the assessee company for acquisition of various business and commercial rights categorized under the separate head, namely, "goodwill" in the books of account of the assessee. These business and commercial rights comprised the following: business claims, business information, business records, contracts, skilled employees, know-how. The assessee company claimed depreciation under section 32 on the excess amount paid which was classified as "goodwill" under the category of intangible assets.

Assessing Officer's contention vis-a-vis Assessee's contention: The Assessing Officer accepted the allocation of the slump sale between tangible and intangible assets (described as Goodwill). However, he claimed that depreciation in terms of section 32(1)(ii) is not allowable on goodwill. He further contended that the assessee has failed to prove that such payment can be categorized under "other business or commercial right of similar nature" as mentioned in section 32(1)(ii) to qualify for depreciation.

The assessee argued that any right which is obtained for carrying on the business effectively, is likely to come within the sweep of the meaning of intangible asset. Therefore, the present case shall qualify for claiming depreciation since business claims, business information, etc, are in the nature of "any other business or commercial rights". However, the Revenue argued that, the business or commercial rights acquired by the assessee would not fall within the definition of intangible assets under section 32.

High Court's Observations: The Delhi High Court observed that the principle of ejusdem generis provides that where there are general words following particular and specific words, the meaning of the latter words shall be confined to things of the same kind. The Court applied this principle for interpreting the expression "business or commercial rights of similar nature" specified in section 32(1)(ii). It is seen that such rights need not be the same as the description of "know-how, patents, trademarks, licenses or franchises" but must be of similar nature as that of specified assets. The use of these general words after the specified intangible assets in section 32(1)(ii) clearly demonstrates that the Legislature did not intend to provide for depreciation only in respect of specified intangible assets but also to other categories of intangible assets, which were neither feasible nor possible to exhaustively enumerate.

Further, it was observed that the above mentioned intangible assets are invaluable assets, which are required for carrying on the business acquired by the assessee without any interruption. In the absence of the aforesaid intangible assets, the assessee would have had to commence business from scratch and go through the gestation period whereas by acquiring the aforesaid business rights along with the tangible assets, the assessee has got a running business. The aforesaid intangible assets are, therefore, comparable to a license to carry on the existing business of the transferor.

High Court's Decision: The High Court, therefore, held that the specified intangible assets acquired under the slump sale agreement by the assessee are in the nature of intangible asset under the category "other business or commercial rights of similar nature" specified in section 32(1)(ii) and are accordingly eligible for depreciation under section 32(1)(ii).

6. Is the assessee entitled to depreciation on the value of goodwill considering it as an asset within the meaning of Explanation 3(b) to Section 32(1)?

CIT v. Smifs Securities Ltd. (2012) 348 ITR 302 (SC)

Facts of the case: In this case, the assessee has paid an excess consideration over the value of net assets of the amalgamating company acquired by it, which is treated as goodwill, since the extra consideration was paid towards the reputation which the amalgamating company was enjoying in order to retain its existing clientele. The assessee had claimed depreciation on the said goodwill. However, the Assessing Officer contended that the goodwill is not an asset falling under Explanation 3 to section 32(1) and therefore, is not eligible for depreciation.

Supreme Court's Observations: On this issue, the Supreme Court observed that Explanation 3 to section 32(1) states that the expression 'asset' shall mean an intangible asset, being know-how, patents, copyrights, trademarks, licences, franchises or any other business or commercial rights of similar nature.

Supreme Court's Decision: A reading of the words 'any other business or commercial rights of similar nature' in Explanation 3(b) indicates that goodwill would fall under the said expression. In the process of amalgamation, the amalgamated company had acquired a capital right in the form of goodwill because of which the market worth of the amalgamated company stood increased.

Therefore, it was held that 'Goodwill' is an asset under Explanation 3(b) to section 32(1) and depreciation thereon is allowable under the said section.

7. Can EPABX and mobile phones be treated as computers to be entitled to higher depreciation?

Federal Bank Ltd. v. ACIT (2011) 332 ITR 319 (Kerala)

High Court's Decision: On this issue, the High Court held that the rate of depreciation of 60% is available to computers and there is no ground to treat the communication equipment as computers. Hence, EPABX and mobile phones are not computers and therefore, are not entitled to higher depreciation at 60%.

The CBDT has, vide Notification No. 103/2016, dated 7-11-2016, with effect from A.Y. 2018-19 reduced the higher rate of normal depreciation of 50%, 60%, 80% or 100%, as the case may be to 40%.

Accordingly, with effect from A.Y. 2018-19, the applicable rate of normal depreciation for computers would be 40%.

8. Would beneficial ownership of assets suffice for claim of depreciation on such assets?

CIT v. Smt. A. Sivakami and Another (2010) 322 ITR 64 (Mad.)

Facts of the case: The assessee, running a proprietary concern, claimed depreciation on three buses, even though she was not the registered owner of the same. However, in order to establish that she was the beneficial owner, she furnished documents relating to loans obtained for the purchase of buses, repayment of such loans out of collections from the buses, road tax and insurance paid by her. She had also obtained an undertaking from the persons who hold the legal title to the vehicles as well as the permits, for plying buses in the name of her proprietary concern. Further, in the income and expenditure account of the proprietary concern, the entire collections and expenditure (by way of diesel, driver's salary, spares, R.T.O. tax etc.) from the buses was shown. The buses in dispute were also shown as assets in the balance sheet of the proprietary concern.

The assessee claimed depreciation on these buses. The Assessing Officer rejected the claim of the assessee on the ground that the assessee was not the owner of the three buses and the basic condition under section 32(1) to claim depreciation is that the assessee should be the owner of the asset. The Assessing Officer was of the view that mere admission of the income cannot per se permit the assessee to claim depreciation.

High Court's Observations: The High Court observed that in the context of the Income-tax Act, 1961, having regard to the ground realities and further having regard to the object of the Act i.e., to tax the income, the owner is a person who is entitled to receive income from the property in his own right. The Supreme Court, in CIT v. Podar Cement P Ltd. (1997) 226 ITR 625, observed that the owner need not necessarily be the lawful owner entitled to pass on the title of the property to another.

High Court's Decision: Since, in this case, the assessee has made available all the documents relating to the business and also established before the authorities that she is the beneficial owner, the High Court held that she was entitled to claim depreciation even though she was not the legal owner of the buses.

9. Can an assessee setting up a hotel claim deduction under section 35AD for the relevant previous year, on the basis that it had commenced its operations and made an application for three-star category classification in beginning of the said previous year, even though the same was granted by the authority only in the next year due to the requirement of completion of inspection?

CIT v. Ceebros Hotels Private Limited [2018] 409 ITR 423 (Mad)

Facts of the Case: The assessee commenced operation of hotel business in the relevant previous year and filed an application for classification of hotel in April of the said previous year and claimed deduction under section 35AD for the assessment year relevant to the said previous year. While completing the assessment under section 143(3) for the assessment year relevant to the said previous year, the Assessing Officer denied the benefit of deduction under section 35AD on the ground that the assessee obtained three-star category hotel classification only during the subsequent previous year. The appeal by the assessee was denied by the Commissioner (Appeals), while it was allowed by the Tribunal.

Issue: The issue under consideration is whether an assessee setting up a hotel can claim deduction under section 35AD for the relevant previous year, on the basis that it had commenced its operations and made an application for three-star category classification in the said year, even though the same was granted by the authority only in the next year due to the requirement of completion of inspection.

Appellate Tribunal's view: The reasoning of the Tribunal was that once the Department had accepted the assessee's income, offered to tax, the assessee was eligible for deduction under section 35AD. As the application for three star category classification was granted with no discrepancy during inspection, the assessee could not be penalised for the delay on the part of the concerned authority (the Hotel and Restaurant Approval and Classification Committee, in the instant case) to complete inspection before the end of the financial year.

High Court's Observations: The High Court observed that the reasons assigned by the Tribunal for grant of deduction to the assessee under section 35AD were just and proper. The assessee had made an application for classification as early as in the month of April of the relevant previous year. Thereafter, an inspection was required to be conducted for such purpose. The manner in which the inspection was conducted and the time frame taken by the competent authority were factors beyond the control of the assessee.

The Department had not disputed the operation of the new hotel from the relevant previous year as it had accepted the income, which was offered to tax. Under section 35AD, deduction is available from the previous year in which the assessee commences operation of the specified business i.e., hotel business, in this case. Section 35AD does not mandate that the date of the certificate has to be with effect from a particular date.

High Court's Decision: The High Court upheld the Tribunal's view that the assessee is entitled to claim the deduction under section 35AD for the relevant previous year, opining that the provision which was introduced to encourage the establishment of hotels of a particular category is a beneficial provision, and hence, should be read and interpreted liberally.

10. Whether “premium” on subscribed share capital is “capital employed in the business of the company” under section 35D to be eligible for a deduction?

Berger Paints India Ltd v. CIT [2017] 393 ITR 113 (SC)

Facts of the case: The assessee is a company engaged in the manufacture of paints. For the relevant assessment years, the assessee claimed deduction under section 35D of a sum representing share premium as being a part of the capital employed. The said deduction was disallowed by the Assessing Officer.

Issue: Whether “premium” on subscribed share capital is “capital employed in the business of the company” under section 35D to be eligible for a deduction?

Supreme Court’s Observations: The Supreme Court observed that the share premium collected by the assessee on its subscribed issued share capital could not be part of “capital employed in the business of the company” for the purpose of section 35D(3)(b). If it were the intention of the legislature to treat share premium as being “capital employed in the business of the company”, it would have been explicitly mentioned. Moreover, column III of the form of the annual return in Part II of Schedule V to the Companies Act, 1956 under Section 159 dealing with capital structure of the company provides the break-up of “issued share capital” which does not include share premium at the time of subscription. Hence, in the absence of the reference in section 35D, share premium is not a part of the capital employed. Also, section 78 of the Companies Act, 1956 requires a company to transfer the premium amount to be kept in a separate account called “securities premium account”.

Supreme Court’s Decision: Affirming the decision of the High Court, the Supreme Court held that the assessee is not entitled to claim deduction in relation to the premium amount received from shareholders at the time of share subscription

Note – Under the Companies Act, 2013, Serial No. IV(i) of Form MGT-7 (Annual Return) read with section 92 relates to the capital structure of a company, including break-up of issued share capital and section 52 deals with securities premium. Thus, the rationale of the Supreme Court ruling in the above case would hold good in the Companies Act, 2013 regime

11. Can part of the interest paid by the assessee on unsecured loans taken be disallowed due to the reason that, out of the said loans, the assessee had advanced certain sum of money to third parties without charging any interest?

Principal CIT v. Reebok India Company [2018] 409 ITR 587 (Del)

Facts of the Case: The assessee-company had taken unsecured loans of ₹ 502.69 crores. Out of the said sum, it had advanced ₹ 172.59 crores to third parties on which no interest was charged and received. Pursuant to this, for the relevant assessment year, the Assessing Officer proportionately disallowed, under section 36(1)(iii), an amount of ₹ 23.60 crores from the interest of ₹ 68.75 crores paid by the assessee.

The Dispute Resolution Panel affirmed the addition opining that the Assessing Officer was empowered to examine if the expenditure incurred by the assessee met the rigors of “business connection” and “expediency”.

Issue: The issue under consideration is whether part of the interest paid by the assessee on unsecured loans can be disallowed due to the reason that, out of the said loan, the assessee had advanced certain sum of money to third parties without charging any interest

Tribunal’s view: The Appellate Tribunal opined that the proportionate interest genuinely paid on unsecured loans taken for business purpose could not be disallowed. The assessee had paid interest on capital borrowed for business purpose and in the absence of any allegation and finding that the assessee had diverted unsecured loans for non-business purpose, no disallowance could be made.

High Court’s Observations: The High Court relied upon the Supreme Court ruling in S. A. Builders Ltd. v. CIT (Appeals) [2007] 288 ITR 1, which interpreted the expression “for purposes of business or profession” in section 36(1)(iii) as being wider in scope than the expression “for the purpose of earning income, profits or gains”. Accordingly, expenditure voluntarily incurred and meeting the “commercial expediency” test is to be allowed as a deduction. The expression “commercial expediency” is of wide import and is satisfied once it is established that there was a connection and nexus between the interest paid (claimed as expenditure) and the assessee’s business.

The High Court observed that merely because non-interest bearing advances were given to third parties, that would not justify a finding that the test of “commercial expediency” was not satisfied. Interest-free advances were advanced to the parties connected with the business of the assessee. Money taken on loan was not diverted for non-business purpose. The unsecured loans were not used for personal purpose. Therefore, according to section 36(1)(iii), interest paid on capital borrowed for the purpose of business had to be allowed as a deduction.

Further, the High Court opined that the Revenue cannot assume the role and occupy the armchair of a businessman to decide whether expenditure was reasonable. The Revenue cannot look at the matter from its own standpoint, but the opinion and decision of a businessman on “business expediency” matters.

High Court’s Decision: The High Court, accordingly, held that deduction for interest paid on unsecured loans has to be allowed under section 36(1)(iii), where the commercial expediency test is satisfied, even though part of the unsecured loan was advanced to third parties without charging interest.

12. Can employees contribution to Provident Fund and Employee's State Insurance be allowed as deduction where the assessee-employer had not remitted the same on or before the "due date" under the relevant Act but remitted the same on or before the due date for filing of return of income under section 139(1)?

CIT v. Gujarat State Road Transport Corpn (2014) 366 ITR 170 (Guj)

Facts of the case: The assessee collected employees' contribution to Provident Fund and ESI which were remitted, after the due date under the relevant Acts but before the 'due date' for filing the return specified in section 139(1). The assessing authority held that the amount collected by way of employees' contribution to PF and ESI are income under section 2(24)(x) and their remittance is governed by section 36(1)(va). The time limit prescribed for remitting the contribution is the 'due date' prescribed under the Provident Funds Act, Employees' State Insurance Act, rule, order or notification issued thereunder or under any standing order, award, contract or service or otherwise.

Issue: The issue under consideration is whether extended time limit upto the due date of filing the return contained in section 43B would be available in respect of remittances which are governed by section 36(1)(va).

High Court's Observations: The High Court noted that section 43B(b) pertaining to employer's contribution cannot be applied with respect to employees' contribution which is governed by section 36(1)(va). So far as the employee's contribution is concerned, the Explanation to section 36(1)(va) continues to remain in the statute and there is no provision for applying the extended time limit provided under section 43B for remittance of employee's contribution. The amount of employee's contribution to PF and ESI is an income upon recovery from salary and its remittance within the 'due date' as specified in Explanation to section 36(1)(va) makes it eligible for deduction. Employees' contribution recovered by the employer is not eligible for extended time limit upto the due date of filing of return, which is available under section 43B in the case of employer's own contribution.

High Court's Decision: The High Court, accordingly, held that the delayed remittance of employees' contribution beyond the 'due date' prescribed in section 36(1)(va), is not deductible while computing the business income, even though such remittance has been made before the due date of filing of return of income under section 139(1).

Note: A contrary view was expressed by Uttarakhand High Court in the case of CIT v. Kichha Sugar Co. Ltd. (2013) 356 ITR 351 holding that the employees' contribution to provident fund, deducted from the salaries of the employees of the assessee, shall be allowed as deduction from the income of the employer-assessee, if the same is deposited by the employer-assessee with the provident fund authority on or before the due date of filing the return for the relevant previous year.

13. In a case where payment of bonus due to employees is paid to a trust and such amount is subsequently paid to the employees before the stipulated due date, would the same be allowable under section 36(1)(ii) while computing business income?

Shasun Chemicals & Drugs Ltd v. CIT (2016) 388 ITR 1 (SC)

Facts of the case: The assessee-company and its employees union had a dispute as regard the quantum of bonus which led to labour unrest. Due to this reason, the workers refused to accept the bonus offered to them. However, in order to comply with the requirement of section 43B (i.e., deduction in respect of bonus would be allowable only if actual payment is made) the assessee made payment to a trust. The dispute with the workers was settled well in time and the bonus was paid to the workers on the very next day of deposit of the said amount in the trust that too, before the 'due date' by which such payment is supposed to be made in order to claim deduction under section 36.

The Assessing Officer, however, took a view that since the payment was made from the trust and not made by the assessee directly to the employees, it is not allowable in view of the provisions of section 40A(9) of the Act.

Appellate Authorities views: The Commissioner(Appeals) and the Appellate Tribunal did not accept the Assessing Officer's view but the High Court concurred with the Assessing Officer's view and denied deduction under section 36(1)(ii) to the assessee.

Supreme Court's decision: The Apex Court held that section 36(1) contains various kinds of expenses which are allowable as deduction while computing the business income. The amount paid by way of bonus is one such expenditure which is allowable as deduction under section 36(1)(ii).

It also held that the embargo contained in section 43B(b) or section 40A(9) does not come in the way of the assessee's claim, since the bonus was ultimately paid to the employees before the due date as per the statutory requirement. Therefore, the payment in respect of bonus is allowable as deduction, as there is no dispute that the amount was paid by the assessee to its employees before the due date by which such payment is supposed to be made in order to claim deduction under section 36(1)(ii).

Note – In this case, the Supreme Court has held that the bonus was allowable as deduction under section 36(1)(ii), even though it was initially remitted to the trust created for this purpose, from which the payment was ultimately made to the employees before the due date.

The Supreme Court has applied the concept of "substance over form" in allowing the deduction of bonus paid under section 36(1)(ii) by considering that the payment of bonus was ultimately made to employees before the stipulated due date. Applying the same concept, the intermittent process of creation of trust for remittance of bonus and subsequent payment therefrom to the employees, which formed the basis of disallowance of bonus by the Assessing Officer on the basis of the provisions of section 40A(9) has been ignored. However, had the payment to employees not been made before the stipulated due date, deduction under section 36(1)(ii) would not be allowable merely because the amount was remitted to the trust before the stipulated due date. It may be noted that as per section 43B(c), actual payment before the due date of filing of return of income under section 139(1) is a pre-requisite for claiming deduction under section 36(1)(ii).

14. What is the nature of expenditure incurred on glow-sign boards displayed at dealer outlets - capital or revenue?

CIT v. Orient Ceramics and Industries Ltd. (2013) 358 ITR 49 (Delhi)

High Court's Observations: On this issue, the Delhi High Court noted the following observations of the Punjab and Haryana High Court in CIT v. Liberty Group Marketing Division [2009] 315 ITR 125, while holding that such expenditure was revenue in nature -

- (i) The expenditure incurred by the assessee on glow sign boards does not bring into existence an asset or advantage for the enduring benefit of the business, which is attributable to the capital.
- (ii) The glow sign board is not an asset of permanent nature. It has a short life.
- (iii) The materials used in the glow sign boards decay with the effect of weather. Therefore, it requires frequent replacement. Consequently, the assessee has to incur expenditure on glow sign boards regularly in almost each year.
- (iv) The assessee incurred expenditure on the glow sign boards with the object of facilitating the business operation and not with the object of acquiring asset of enduring nature.

High Court's Decision: The Delhi High Court concurred with the above observations of the P & H High Court and held that such expenditure on glow sign boards displayed at dealer outlets was revenue in nature.

15. Would the expenditure incurred on issue and collection of convertible debentures be treated as revenue expenditure or capital expenditure?

CIT v. ITC Hotels Ltd. (2011) 334 ITR 109 (Kar.)

High Court's Decision: On this issue, the Karnataka High Court held that the expenditure incurred on the issue and collection of debentures shall be treated as revenue expenditure even in case of convertible debentures, i.e., the debentures which had to be converted into shares at a later date.

16. Would expenditure incurred on feasibility study conducted for examining proposals for technological advancement relating to the existing business be classified as a revenue expenditure, where the project was abandoned without creating a new asset?

CIT v. Priya Village Roadshows Ltd. (2011) 332 ITR 594 (Delhi)

Facts of the case: In this case, the assessee, engaged in the business of running cinemas, incurred expenditure towards architect fee for examining the technical viability of the proposal for takeover of cinema theatre for conversion into a multiplex/ four-screen cinema complexes. The project was, however, dropped due to lack of financial and technical viability. The issue under consideration is whether such expenses can be treated as revenue in nature, since no new asset has been created.

High Court's Observations: On this issue, the High Court observed that, in such cases, whether or not a new business/asset comes into existence would become a relevant factor. If there is no creation of a new asset, then the expenditure incurred would be of revenue nature.

High Court's Decision: The High Court held that, since the feasibility studies were conducted by the assessee for the existing business with a common administration and common fund and the studies were abandoned without creating a new asset, the expenses were of revenue nature.

17. Can expenditure incurred on alteration of a dam to ensure adequate supply of water for the smelter plant owned by the assessee be allowed as revenue expenditure?

CIT v. Hindustan Zinc Ltd. (2010) 322 ITR 478 (Raj.)

Facts of the case: The assessee company owned a super smelter plant which requires large quantity of water for its day-to-day operation, in the absence of which it would not be able to function. The assessee, therefore, incurred expenditure for alteration of the dam (constructed by the State Government) to ensure sharing of the water with the State Government without having any right or ownership in the dam or water. The assessee's share of water is also determined by the State Government. The assessee claimed the expenditure as deduction under section 37, which was disallowed by the Assessing Officer on the ground that it was of capital nature.

Tribunal view: The Tribunal, however, was of the view that since the object and effect of the expenditure incurred by the assessee is to facilitate its trade operation and enable the management to conduct business more efficiently and profitably, the expenditure is revenue in nature and hence, allowable as deduction.

High Court's Observations & Decision: The High Court observed that the expenditure incurred by the assessee for commercial expediency relates to carrying on of business. The expenditure is of such nature which a prudent businessman may incur for the purpose of his business. The operational expenses incurred by the assessee solely intended for the furtherance of the enterprise can by no means be treated as expenditure of capital nature.

18. Is Circular No. 5/2012 dated 01.08.2012 disallowing the expenditure incurred on freebies provided by pharmaceutical companies to medical practitioners, in line with Explanation to section 37(1), which disallows expenditure which is prohibited by law?

Confederation of Indian Pharmaceutical Industry (SSI) v. CBDT (2013) 353 ITR 388 (H.P.)

High Court's Observations: On this issue, the Himachal Pradesh High Court observed that as per Indian Medical Council (Professional Conduct, Etiquette and Ethics) Regulations, 2002, every medical practitioner and his or her professional associate is prohibited from accepting any gift, travel facility, hospitality, cash or monetary grant from any pharmaceutical and allied health sector industries. This is a salutary regulation in the interest of the patients and the public, considering the increase in complaints against the medical practitioners prescribing branded medicines instead of generic medicines, solely in lieu of gifts and other freebies granted to them by some particular pharmaceutical industries.

The CBDT, considering the fact that the claim of any expense incurred in providing freebies to medical practitioners is in violation of the provisions of Indian Medical Council (Professional Conduct, Etiquette and Ethics) Regulations, 2002, has, vide Circular No.5/2012 dated 1.8.2012, clarified that the expenditure so incurred shall be inadmissible under section 37(1). The disallowance shall be made in the hands of such pharmaceutical or allied health sector industry or other assessee which has provided aforesaid freebies and claimed it as a deductible expense in its accounts against income.

High Court's Decision: The High Court opined that the contention of the assessee that the above mentioned Circular goes beyond section 37(1) was not acceptable. As per Explanation to section 37(1), it is clear that any expenditure incurred by an assessee for any purpose which is prohibited by law shall not be deemed to have been incurred for the purpose of business or profession. The sum and substance of the circular is also the same. Therefore, the circular is totally in line with the Explanation to section 37(1).

However, if the assessee satisfies the assessing authority that the expenditure incurred is not in violation of the regulations framed by the Medical Council then it may legitimately claim a deduction, but it is for the assessee to satisfy the Assessing Officer that the expense is not in violation of the Medical Council Regulations.

19. Can the commission paid to doctors by a diagnostic centre for referring patients for diagnosis be allowed as a business expenditure under section 37 or would it be treated as illegal and against public policy to attract disallowance?

CIT v. Kap Scan and Diagnostic Centre P. Ltd. (2012) 344 ITR 476 (P&H)

High Court's Observations: On the above mentioned issue, the Punjab and Haryana High Court observed that the argument of the assessee that giving commission to the private doctors for referring the patients for various medical tests was a trade practice which could not be termed to be illegal and therefore, the same cannot be disallowed under section 37(1), is not acceptable. Applying the rationale and considering the purpose of Explanation to section 37(1), the assessee would not be entitled to deduction of payments made in contravention of law. Similarly, payments which are opposed to public policy being in the nature of unlawful consideration cannot also be claimed as deduction. The assessee cannot take a plea that businessmen are entitled to conduct their business even contrary to law and claim deduction of certain payments as business expenditure, notwithstanding that such payments are illegal or opposed to public policy or have pernicious consequences to the society as a whole.

As per the Indian Medical Council (Professional Conduct, Etiquette and Ethics) Regulations, 2002, no physician shall give, solicit, receive, or offer to give, solicit or receive, any gift, gratuity, commission or bonus in consideration of a return for referring any patient for medical treatment.

High Court's Decision: The demanding as well as paying of such commission is bad in law. It is not a fair practice and is opposed to public policy and should be discouraged. Thus, the High Court held that commission paid to doctors for referring patients for diagnosis is not allowable as a business expenditure.

20. Can expenditure incurred by a company on higher studies of the director's son abroad be claimed as business expenditure under section 37 on the contention that he was appointed as a trainee in the company under "apprentice training scheme", where there was no proof of existence of such scheme?

Echjay Forgings Ltd. v. ACIT (2010) 328 ITR 286 (Bom.)

High Court's Observations: On this issue, it was observed that there was no evidence on record to show that any other person at any point of time was appointed as trainee or sent abroad for higher education. Further, the appointment letter to the director's son, neither had any reference number nor was it backed by any previous application by him. The appointment letter referred to "apprentice training scheme" with the company in respect of which no details were produced. There was no evidence that he was recruited as trainee by some open competitive exam or regular selection process.

High Court's Decision: The High Court, thus, held that there was no nexus between the education expenditure incurred abroad for the director's son and the business of the assessee company. Therefore, the aforesaid expenditure was not deductible.

21. Can the expenditure incurred on heart surgery of an assessee, being a lawyer by profession, be allowed as business expenditure under section 31, by treating it as current repairs considering heart as plant and machinery, or under section 37, by treating it as expenditure incurred wholly and exclusively for the purpose of business or profession?

Shanti Bhushan v. CIT (2011) 336 ITR 26 (Delhi)

Facts of the case: In the present case, the assessee is a lawyer by profession. The assessee argued that the repair of vital organ (i.e. the heart) had directly impacted his professional competence. He contended that the heart should be treated as plant as it is used for the purpose of his professional work. He substantiated his contention by stating that after his heart surgery, his gross receipts from profession increased manifold. Hence, the expenditure on the heart surgery should be allowed as business expenditure either under section 31 as current repairs to plant and machinery or section 37 as an expense incurred wholly and exclusively for the purpose of profession. The department argued that the said expenditure was personal in nature and was not incurred wholly and exclusively for the purpose of business or profession, and therefore, the same should not be allowed as business expenditure.

High Court's Observations: On this issue, the Delhi High Court observed that a healthy and functional human heart is necessary for a human being irrespective of the vocation or profession he is attached with. Expenses incurred to repair an impaired heart would thus add to the longevity and efficiency of a human being which would be reflected in every activity he does, including professional activity. It cannot be said that the heart is used as an exclusive tool for the purpose of professional activity by the assessee. Further, the High Court held that:-

- (i) To allow the heart surgery expenditure as repair expenses to plant, the heart should have been first included in the assessee's balance sheet as an asset in the previous year and in the earlier years. Also, a value needs to be assigned for the same. The assessee would face difficulty in arriving at the cost of acquisition of such an asset for showing in his books of account.

Though the definition of "plant" as per the provisions of section 43(3) is inclusive in nature, such plant must have been used as a business tool which is not true in case of heart. Therefore, the heart cannot be said to be plant for the business or profession of the assessee. Therefore, the expenditure on heart surgery is not allowable as repairs to plant under section 31.

- (ii) According to the provisions of section 37, inter alia, the said expenditure must be incurred wholly and exclusively for the purposes of the assessee's profession. As mentioned above, a healthy heart will increase the efficiency of human being in every field including its professional work.

High Court's Decision: There is, therefore, no direct nexus between the expenses incurred by the assessee on the heart surgery and his efficiency in the professional field. Therefore, the claim for allowing the said expenditure under section 37 is also not tenable. Hence, the heart surgery expenses shall not be allowed as a business expenditure of the assessee under the Income-tax Act, 1961.

22. Can payment to police personnel and gundas to keep away from the cinema theatres run by the assessee be allowed as deduction?

CIT v. Neelavathi & Others (2010) 322 ITR 643 (Karn)

Facts of the case: The assessee running cinema theatres claimed deduction of the sum paid to the local police and local gundas towards maintenance of the theatre. The same was disallowed by the Assessing Officer.

High Court's Observations: On this issue, the High Court observed that if any payment is made towards the security of the business of the assessee, such amount is allowable as deduction, as the amount is spent for maintenance of peace and law and order in the business premises of the assessee i.e., cinema theatres in this case. However, the amount claimed by the assessee, in the instant case, was towards payment made to the police and gundas.

Any payment made to the police illegally amounts to bribe and such illegal gratification cannot be considered as an allowable deduction. Similarly, any payment to a gunda as a precautionary measure so that he shall not cause any disturbance in the theatre run by the assessee is an illegal payment for which no deduction is allowable under the Act.

High Court's Decision: If the assessee had incurred expenditure for the purpose of security, the same would have been allowed as deduction. However, in the instant case, since the payment has been made to the police and gundas to keep them away from the business premises, such a payment is illegal and hence, not allowable as deduction.

23. Is the amount paid by a construction company as regularization fee for violating building bye-laws allowable as deduction?

Millennia Developers (P) Ltd. v. DCIT (2010) 322 ITR 401 (Karn.)

Facts of the case: The assessee, a private limited company carrying on business activity as a developer and builder, claimed the amount paid by way of regularization fee for the deviations made while constructing a structure and for violating the plan sanctioned in terms of the building bye-laws, approved by the municipal authorities as per the provisions of the Karnataka Municipal Corporations Act, 1976. The assessee's claim was disallowed by the Assessing Officer and the disallowance was confirmed by the Tribunal.

High Court's Observations and Decision: The High Court observed that as per the provisions of the Karnataka Municipal Corporations Act, 1976, the amount paid to compound an offence is obviously a penalty and hence, does not qualify for deduction under section 37. Merely describing the payment as a compounding fee would not alter the character of the payment.

Note – In this case, it is the actual character of the payment and not its nomenclature that has determined the disallowance of such expenditure as deduction. The principle of substance over form has been applied in disallowing an expenditure in the nature of penalty, though the same has been described as regularization fee/compounding fee.

24. Whether section 40(a)(ia) is attracted when amount is not 'payable' to a sub-contractor but has been actually paid?

Palam Gas Service v. CIT [2017] 394 ITR 300 (SC)

Facts of the case: The assessee, Palam Gas Service, is engaged in the business of purchase and sale of LPG cylinders. The assessee had arranged for the transportation to be done through three sub-contractors within the meaning of section 194C. During the relevant assessment year, when the assessee made freight payments of ₹20,97,689 to the sub-contractors, it did not deduct tax at source. The Assessing Officer disallowed the freight expenses as per section 40(a)(ia) on account of failure to deduct tax. The assessee contended that section 40(a)(ia) did not apply as the amount was not 'payable' but had been actually paid.

Issue: Whether the provisions of Section 40(a)(ia) would be attracted when the amount is not 'payable' to a sub-contractor but has been actually paid? Would the obligation to deduct tax depend on the method of accounting followed by an assessee?

Supreme Court's Observations: The Supreme Court noted the difference in opinion amongst the various High Courts. On the one hand, the High Courts of Punjab & Haryana, Madras, Calcutta and Gujarat held that Section 40(a)(ia) extended to amounts actually paid. The Allahabad High Court had, however, held otherwise. The Supreme Court agreed with the observations of the majority High Courts and held that section 40(a)(ia) covers not only those cases where the amount is payable but also when it is paid. Accordingly, the judgment of the Allahabad High Court in CIT v. Vector Shipping Services (P.) Ltd. [2013] 357 ITR 642 stands overruled.

The Supreme Court reaffirmed that the obligation to deduct tax at source is mandatory and applicable irrespective of the method of accounting adopted. If the assessee follows the mercantile system of accounting, then, the moment amount was credited to the account of the payee on accrual of liability, tax was required to be deducted at source. If the assessee follows cash system of accounting, then, tax is required to be deducted at source at the time of making payment.

Supreme Court's Decision: The Supreme Court, accordingly, upheld the decision of the majority High Courts that section 40(a)(ia) would be attracted for failure to deduct tax in both cases i.e., when the amount is payable or when the amount is paid, as the case may be, depending on the system of accounting followed by the assessee.

25. Can payments made by an assessee to a non-resident agent who does not have any income assessable in India be disallowed under section 40(a)(i) for non-deduction of tax at source on the ground that no application was made by the assessee under section 195(2) for making deduction of tax at source at nil rate?

CIT v. Maruti Suzuki India Limited [2018] 407 ITR 165 (Del)

Facts of the Case: The issue relates to payments made by the assessee to its agents based and operating abroad. The agent had no assessable income in India. The Assessing Officer disallowed the payment invoking section 40(a)(i) on the ground that no application was made by the assessee under section 195(2) for making deduction of tax at source at nil rate or lower rate. The Commissioner (Appeals) and the Tribunal, however, allowed the deduction.

Issue: The issue under consideration is whether payments made by an assessee to a non-resident agent who does not have any income assessable in India be disallowed under section 40(a)(i) for non-deduction of tax at source on the ground that no application was made by the assessee under section 195(2) for making deduction of tax at source at nil rate.

High Court's Observations: The High Court observed that the non-resident agent who operated outside India did not have any income arising in India. In order to come to this conclusion, the High Court relied on CIT v Model Exims [2013] 358 ITR 72 (All) where it was held that there was no obligation to deduct tax under section 195 from commission paid to a non-resident recipient who was not liable to tax in India. Further, in CIT v. Gujarat Reclaim & Rubber Products Ltd. [2016] 383 ITR 236 (Bom), it was held that the commission earned by a non-resident agent who was in the business of selling Indian goods abroad, did not accrue or arise in India, and hence no tax was deductible on such commission payment to a non-resident agent.

High Court's Decision: The High Court, accordingly, held that where the assessee has made payment to a non-resident agent where such income is not chargeable to tax in India, section 40(a)(i) could not be invoked to disallow deduction of such payment for non-deduction of tax at source, while computing the business income of the assessee.

26. Can remuneration paid to working partners as per the partnership deed be considered as unreasonable and excessive for attracting disallowance under section 40A(2)(a) even though the same is within the statutory limit prescribed under section 40(b)(v)?

CIT v. Great City Manufacturing Co. (2013) 351 ITR 156 (All)

Facts of the case: In this case, the Assessing Officer contended that the remuneration paid by the firm to its working partners was highly excessive and unreasonable, on the ground that the remuneration to partners (₹ 39.31 lakh) was many times more than the total payment of salary to all the employees (₹ 4.87 lakh). Therefore, he disallowed the excessive portion of the remuneration to partners by invoking the provisions of section 40A(2)(a).

High Court's Observations: On this issue, the High Court observed that section 40(b)(v) prescribes the limit of remuneration to working partners, and deduction is allowable up to such limit while computing the business income. If the remuneration paid is within the ceiling limit provided under section 40(b)(v), then, recourse to provisions of section 40A(2)(a) cannot be taken.

The Assessing Officer is only required to ensure that the remuneration is paid to the working partners mentioned in the partnership deed, the terms and conditions of the partnership deed provide for payment of remuneration to the working partners and the remuneration is within the limits prescribed under section 40(b)(v). If these conditions are complied with, then the Assessing Officer cannot disallow any part of the remuneration on the ground that it is excessive.

High Court's Decision: The Allahabad High Court, therefore, held that the question of disallowance of remuneration under section 40A(2)(a) does not arise in this case, since the Tribunal has found that all the three conditions mentioned above have been satisfied. Hence, the remuneration paid to working partners within the limits specified under section 40(b)(v) cannot be disallowed by invoking the provisions of section 40A(2)(a).

LEARNING OUTCOMES

After studying this chapter, you would be able to -

- appreciate the scope of income chargeable under this head;
- examine the provisions of section 2(42A), relating to period of holding, for classification of a capital asset as short-term capital asset and long-term capital asset;
- analyse and apply the provisions of section 47 to determine whether a particular transaction would be considered/ not be considered as transfer for the purpose of capital gains taxation;
- determine the cost of acquisition/ improvement and indexed cost of acquisition/ improvement, in case of a short-term capital asset and long-term capital asset, respectively for the purpose of computing the capital gains;
- compute capital gains on transfer of depreciable assets;
- compute capital gains in case of slump sale;
- determine the quantum of exemption available on investment of capital gains/ net consideration arising on transfer of certain assets and appreciate the conditions to be satisfied to avail such exemption;
- compute the capital gains chargeable to tax applying the charging and deeming provisions and giving effect to the exemptions available in respect of capital gains;
- identify the cases where an Assessing Officer can make a reference to the Valuation Officer;
- appreciate the concessional tax treatment available for short-term capital gains and for long term capital gains on transfer of listed equity shares/ units of an equity oriented fund/ unit of a business trust;
- compute the tax liability applying the special rates of tax on long-term capital gains and short-term capital gains on transfer of listed equity shares/ units of an equity oriented fund and the normal rates of tax on transfer of other short-term capital assets.

7.1 INTRODUCTION

In this chapter on capital gains, we begin our discussion with the definition of “capital asset” and “transfer”. Thereafter, we will proceed to discuss the various circumstances under which capital gains tax is levied. There are certain transactions which are not to be regarded as transfer for the purposes of capital gains. These transactions have also been discussed in this chapter. For computing long-term capital gains, knowledge of cost inflation index is necessary. Again, there is a separate method of computation of capital gains in respect of depreciable assets. Also, there are exemptions in cases where capital gains are invested in specified assets. All these aspects are being discussed in this chapter.

Section 45 provides that any profits or gains arising from the transfer of a capital asset effected in the previous year will be chargeable to income-tax under the head ‘Capital Gains’. Such capital gains will be deemed to be the income of the previous year in which the transfer took place. In this charging section, two terms are important. One is “capital asset” and the other is “transfer”.

7.2 CAPITAL ASSET

Definition: According to section 2(14), a capital asset means –

- (a) property of any kind held by an assessee, whether or not connected with his business or profession;
- (b) any securities held by a Foreign Institutional Investor which has invested in such securities in accordance with the SEBI regulations.

However, it does not include—

- (i) Stock-in trade: Any stock-in-trade [other than securities referred to in (b) above, consumable stores or raw materials held for the purpose of the business or profession of the assessee;

The exclusion of stock-in-trade from the definition of capital asset is only in respect of sub-clause (a) above and not sub-clause (b). This implies that even if the nature of such security in the hands of the Foreign Portfolio Investor is stock in trade, the same would be treated as a capital asset and the profit on transfer would be taxable as capital gains.

Further, the Explanatory Memorandum to the Finance (No.2) Bill, 2014 clarifies that the income arising from transfer of such security by a Foreign Portfolio Investor (FPI) would be in the nature of capital gain, irrespective of the presence or otherwise in India, of the Fund manager managing the investments of the assessee.

- (ii) Personal effects: Personal effects, that is to say, movable property (including wearing apparel and furniture) held for personal use by the assessee or any member of his family dependent on him.

EXCLUSIONS:

- (a) jewellery;
- (b) archaeological collections;
- (c) drawings;
- (d) paintings;
- (e) sculptures; or
- (f) any work of art.

Definition of Jewellery - Jewellery is a capital asset and the profits or gains arising from the transfer of jewellery held for personal use are chargeable to tax under the head "capital gains". For this purpose, the expression 'jewellery' includes the following:

- (i) Ornaments made of gold, silver, platinum or any other precious metal or any alloy containing one or more of such precious metals, whether or not containing any precious or semi-precious stones and whether or not worked or sewn into any wearing apparel;
- (ii) Precious or semi-precious stones, whether or not set in any furniture, utensil or other article or worked or sewn into any wearing apparel.

- (iii) Rural agricultural land in India i.e., agricultural land in India which is not situated in any specified area.

As per the definition that only rural agricultural lands in India are excluded from the purview of the term 'capital asset'. Hence urban agricultural lands constitute capital assets. Accordingly, the agricultural land described in (a) and (b) below, being land situated within the specified urban limits, would fall within the definition of "capital asset", and transfer of such land would attract capital gains tax -

- (a) agricultural land situated in any area within the jurisdiction of a municipality or cantonment board having population of not less than ten thousand, or
- (b) agricultural land situated in any area within such distance, measured aerially, in relation to the range of population as shown hereunder -

	Shortest aerial distance from the local limits of a municipality or cantonment board referred to in item (a)	Population according to the last preceding census of which the relevant figures have been published before the first day of the previous year.
(i)	≤ 2 kilometers	> 10,000 ≤ 1,00,000

(ii)	≤ 6 kilometers	> 1,00,000 ≤ 10,00,000
(iii)	≤ 8 kilometers	> 10,00,000

Example

	Area	Shortest aerial distance from the local limits of a municipality or cantonment board referred to in item (a)	Population according to the last preceding census of which the relevant figures have been published before the first day of the previous year.	Is the land situated in this area a capital asset?
(i)	A	1 km	9,000	No
(ii)	B	1.5 kms	12,000	Yes
(iii)	C	2 kms	11,00,000	Yes
(iv)	D	3 kms	80,000	No
(v)	E	4 kms	3,00,000	Yes
(v)	F	5 kms	12,00,000	Yes
(vi)	G	6 kms	8,000	No
(vii)	H	7 kms	4,00,000	No
(viii)	I	8 kms	10,50,000	Yes
(ix)	J	9 kms	15,00,000	No

Explanation regarding gains arising on the transfer of urban agricultural land - Explanation 1 to section 2(1A) clarifies that capital gains arising from transfer of any agricultural land situated in any non-rural area (as explained above) will not constitute agricultural revenue within the meaning of section 2(1A).

In other words, the capital gains arising from the transfer of such urban agricultural lands would not be treated as agricultural income for the purpose of exemption under section 10(1). Hence, such gains would be exigible to tax under section 45.

- (iv) Specified Gold Bonds: 6½% Gold Bonds, 1977, or 7% Gold Bonds, 1980, or National Defence Gold Bonds, 1980, issued by the Central Government;
- (v) Special Bearer Bonds, 1991 issued by the Central Government;
- (vi) Gold Deposit Bonds issued under the Gold Deposit Scheme, 1999 or deposit certificates issued under the Gold Monetisation Scheme, 2015 notified by the Central Government.

Note – ‘Property’ includes and shall be deemed to have always included any rights in or in relation to an Indian company, including rights of management or control or any other rights whatsoever.

7.3 SHORT TERM AND LONG TERM CAPITAL ASSETS

- Definition – As per section 2(42A), short-term capital asset means a capital asset held by an assessee for not more than 36 months immediately preceding the date of its transfer.

As per section 2(29A), long-term capital asset means a capital asset which is not a short-term capital asset.

Thus, a capital asset held by an assessee for more than 36 months immediately preceding the date of its transfer is a long-term capital asset.

- Exception - A security (other than a unit) listed in a recognized stock exchange, or a unit of an equity oriented fund or a unit of the Unit Trust of India or a Zero Coupon Bond will, however, be considered as a long-term capital asset if the same is held for more than 12 months immediately preceding the date of its transfer.

Further, a share of a company (not being a share listed in a recognized stock exchange in India) or an immovable property, being land or building or both would be treated as a short-term capital asset if it was held by an assessee for not more than 24 months immediately preceding the date of its transfer.

Thus, the period of holding of unlisted shares or an immovable property, being land or building or both, for being treated as a long-term capital asset would be “more than 24 months” instead of “more than 36 months”.

- Meaning of certain terms:

Term	Meaning
Equity oriented fund [Clause (a) of Explanation to section 112A]	a fund set up under a scheme of a mutual fund specified under section 10(23D) and (i) in a case where the fund invested in the units of another fund which is traded on a recognised stock exchange – I. a minimum of 90% of the total proceeds of such fund is invested in the units of such other fund; and II. such other fund also invests a minimum of 90% of its total proceeds in the equity shares of domestic companies listed on a recognised stock exchange; and (ii) in any other case, a minimum of 65% of the total proceeds of such fund is invested in the equity shares of domestic companies listed on a recognised stock exchange. However, the percentage of equity shareholding or unit held in respect of the fund, as the case may be, shall be computed with reference to the annual average of the monthly averages of the opening and closing figures.
Zero Coupon Bond [Section 2(48)]	a bond <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- issued by any infrastructure capital company or infrastructure capital fund or a public sector company or a scheduled bank on or after 1st June, 2005,</li> <li>- in respect of which no payment and benefit is received or receivable before maturity or redemption from such issuing entity and</li> <li>- which the Central Government may notify in this behalf.</li> </ul>

Note: The income from transfer of a Zero coupon bond (not being held as stock-in-trade) is to be treated as capital gains. Section 2(47)(iva) provides that maturity or redemption of a Zero coupon bond shall be treated as a transfer for the purposes of capital gains tax.

The terms “infrastructure capital company” and “infrastructure capital fund” have been already defined in Chapter 6 – “Profits and gains from business and profession”.

Applicability of tax on capital gains in the hands of the unit holders where the term of the units of Mutual Funds under the Fixed Maturity Plans has been extended [Circular No. 6/2015, dated 09-04-2015]

Fixed Maturity Plans (FMPs) are closed ended funds having a fixed maturity date wherein the duration of investment is decided upfront. Prior to amendment by the Finance (No. 2) Act, 2014, units of a mutual fund under the FMPs held for a period of more than twelve months qualified as long term capital asset. The amendment in sub-section (42A) of section 2 by the Finance (No. 2) Act, 2014 required the period of holding in case of units of a mutual fund [other than an equity oriented fund] to be more than thirty-six months to qualify as long term capital asset.

As a result, gains arising out of any investment in the units of FMPs made earlier and sold/ redeemed after 10.07.2014 would be taxed as short term capital gains if the unit was held for a period of thirty-six months or less. To enable the FMPs to qualify as a long-term capital asset, some Asset Management Companies (AMCs) administering mutual funds have offered extension of the duration of the FMPs to a date beyond thirty-six months from the date of the original investment by providing to the investor an option of roll-over of FMPs in accordance with the provisions of Regulation 33(4) of the SEBI (Mutual Funds) Regulation, 1996.

The CBDT has, vide this Circular, clarified that the roll over in accordance with the aforesaid regulation will not amount to transfer as the scheme remains the same.

Accordingly, no capital gains will arise at the time of exercise of the option by the investor to continue in the same scheme. The capital gains will, however, arise at the time of redemption of the units or opting out of the scheme, as the case may be.

- Determination of period of holding [Clause (i) of Explanation 1 to section 2(42A)]: In determining period of holding of any capital asset by the assessee in the circumstances stated in column (1), the period shall be determined by considering the period specified in Column (2).

Determination of period of holding

S. No.	Circumstances (Column 1)	Period to be reckoned/ included/ excluded, as the case may be (Column 2)
1	Where shares held in a company in liquidation	The period subsequent to the date of liquidation of company shall be excluded .
2	Where asset becomes the property of an assessee by virtue of section 49(1)	The period for which the capital asset was held by the previous owner shall be included .
3	Where inventory of business is converted into or treated as a capital asset by the assessee	Period from the date of conversion or treatment as a capital asset shall be considered .
4	Where share/s in the Indian company (amalgamated company) , becomes the property of an assessee in lieu of share(s) held by him in the amalgamating company at the time of transfer referred under section 47(vii).	The period for which the share(s) was held by the assessee in the amalgamating company shall be included .
5	Where the share or any other security is subscribed by the assessee on the basis of right to subscribe to any share or security or by the person in whose favour such right is renounced by the assessee	Period from the date of allotment of such share or security shall be reckoned .
6	Where the right to subscribe to any share or security, which is renounced in favour of any other person	Period from the date of offer of such right by the company or institution shall be reckoned .
7	Where any financial asset is allotted without any payment and on the basis of holding of any other financial asset	Period from the date of allotment of such financial asset shall be reckoned .

8	Where share(s) in the Indian company being a resulting company becomes the property of an assessee in consideration of demerger	The period for which the share/s were held by the assessee in demerged company shall be included .
9	Where trading or clearing rights of a recognized stock exchange in India is acquired by a person pursuant to demutualization or corporation of a recognized stock exchange in India as referred to in section 47(xiii)	The period for which the person was a member of the recognized stock exchange immediately prior to such demutualization or corporatization shall be included .
10	Where equity share(s) in a company allotted pursuant to demutualization or corporation of a recognized stock exchange in India as referred to in section 47(xiii)	The period for which the person was a member of the recognized stock exchange immediately prior to such demutualization or corporatization shall be included .
11	Where unit of a business trust , allotted pursuant to transfer of share(s) as referred to in section 47(xvii)	The holding period for which the share(s) held by the assessee shall be included .
12	Where unit(s) becomes the property of the assessee in consideration of transfer of unit(s) in the consolidated scheme of the mutual fund referred to in section 47(xviii)	The period for which the unit(s) in the consolidating scheme of the mutual fund were held by the assessee shall be included .
13	Where share(s) of a company is acquired by the non-resident assessee on redemption of Global Depository Receipts referred to in clause (b) of section 115AC(1) held by such assessee	Period from the date on which a request for such redemption was made shall be reckoned .
14	Where equity share of a company becomes the property of the assessee by way of conversion of preference shares into	The period for which the preference shares were held by the assessee shall be included .

	equity shares referred under section 47(xb)
15	Where unit(s) becomes the property of the assessee in consideration of transfer of unit(s) in the consolidated plan of a mutual fund scheme as referred to in section 47(xix)	The period for which the unit(s) in the consolidating plan of a mutual fund scheme was held by the assessee shall be included .
16	Where any specified security or sweat equity shares allotted or transferred, directly or indirectly, by the employer free of cost or at concessional rate to his employees (including former employees)	Period from the date of allotment or transfer of such specified security or sweat equity shares shall be reckoned .
	“Specified security” means the securities as defined in section 2(h) of the Securities Contracts (Regulation) Act, 1956 and, where employees’ stock option has been granted under any plan or scheme therefor, includes the securities offered under such plan or scheme. “Sweat equity shares” means equity shares issued by a company to its employees or directors at a discount or for consideration other than cash for providing know-how or making available rights in the nature of intellectual property rights or value additions, by whatever name called.

- Period of holding in respect of other capital assets - The period for which any capital asset is held by the assessee shall be determined in accordance with any rules made by the CBDT in this behalf.

Accordingly, the CBDT has inserted Rule 8AA in the Income-tax Rules, 1962 to provide for method of determination of period of holding of capital assets, other than the capital assets mentioned in clause (i) of Explanation 1 to section 2(42A).

- In the case of a capital asset, being a share or debenture of a company, which becomes the property of the assessee in the circumstances mentioned in section 47(x), there shall be included the period for which the bond, debenture, debenture-stock or deposit certificate, as the case may be, was held by the assessee prior to the conversion.

Note: Section 47(x) provides that any transfer by way of conversion of bonds or debentures, debenture-stock or deposit certificates in any form, of a company into shares or debentures of that company shall not be regarded as transfer for the purposes of levy of capital gains tax.

- In case of a capital asset, declared under the Income Declaration Scheme, 2016
  - o being an immovable property, the period for which such property is held shall be reckoned from the date on which such property is acquired if the date of acquisition is evidenced by a deed registered with any authority of a State Government.
  - o in any other case, the period for which such asset is held shall be reckoned from 1st June, 2016.

Income Declaration Scheme, 2016: Significant Features

- (1) The Income Declaration Scheme, 2016 is contained in the Finance Act, 2016, which received the assent of the President on 14th May 2016. The Scheme provides an opportunity to persons who have paid not full taxes in the past to come forward and declare the undisclosed income and pay tax, surcharge and penalty totalling in all to 45% of such undisclosed income declared.
- (2) A declaration under the aforesaid Scheme may be made in respect of any income or income in the form of investment in any asset located in India and acquired from income chargeable to tax under the Income-tax Act, 1961 for any assessment year prior to the assessment year 2017-18 for which the declarant had failed to furnish a return under section 139; or failed to disclose such income in a return furnished before the date of commencement of the Scheme or such income had escaped assessment by reason of the omission or failure on the part of such person to make a return under the Income-tax Act or to disclose fully and truly all material facts necessary for the assessment or otherwise. Where the income chargeable to tax is declared in the form of investment in any asset, the fair market value of such asset as on 1st June, 2016 computed in accordance with Rule 3 of the Income Declaration Scheme Rules, 2016 shall be deemed to be the undisclosed income.
- (3) The person making a declaration under the Scheme would be liable to pay tax at the rate of 30% of the value of such undisclosed income as increased by surcharge at the rate of 25% of such tax. In addition, he would also be liable to pay penalty at the rate of 25% of such tax. Therefore, the declarant would be liable to pay a total of 45% of the value of the undisclosed income declared by him. This special rate of tax, surcharge and penalty specified in the Scheme will override any rate or rates specified under the provisions of the Income-tax Act or the annual Finance Acts.
- (4) A declaration under the Scheme could be made anytime on or after 1st June, 2016 but before 30th September, 2016, being the last date for making a declaration under the Scheme, as notified by the Central Government.

7.4 TRANSFER: WHAT IT MEANS? [SECTION 2(47)]

The Act contains an inclusive definition of the term 'transfer'. Accordingly, transfer in relation to a capital asset includes the following types of transactions:—

- (i) the sale, exchange or relinquishment of the asset; or
- (ii) the extinguishment of any rights therein; or
- (iii) the compulsory acquisition thereof under any law; or
- (iv) the owner of a capital asset may convert the same into the stock-in-trade of a business carried on by him. Such conversion is treated as transfer; or
- (v) the maturity or redemption of a zero coupon bond; or
- (vi) possession of an immovable property in consideration of part-performance of a contract referred to in section 53A of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882.
- (vii) transactions which have the effect of transferring or enabling the enjoyment of an immovable property.

Example:

A person may become a member of a co-operative society, company or other association of persons which may be building houses/ flats. When he pays an agreed amount, the society etc. hands over possession of the house to the person concerned. No conveyance is registered. For the purpose of income-tax, the above transaction is a transfer.

Note – Section 2(47) provides an inclusive definition of “transfer”, in relation to a capital asset. Explanation 2 to section 2(47) clarifies that ‘transfer’ includes and shall be deemed to have always included –

- |   |   |                                |
|---|---|--------------------------------|
| (1) disposing of or parting with an asset or any interest therein, or | } | - directly or indirectly,      |
|   |   | - absolutely or conditionally, |
| (2) creating any interest in any asset in any manner whatsoever       | } | - voluntarily or involuntarily |

by way of an agreement (whether entered into in India or outside India) or otherwise.

The above transactions would be deemed as a transfer notwithstanding that such transfer of rights has been characterized as being effected or dependent upon or flowing from the transfer of a share or shares of a company registered or incorporated outside India.

7.5 SCOPE AND YEAR OF CHARGEABILITY [SECTION 45]

(1) General Provision [Section 45(1)]

Any profits or gains arising from the transfer of a capital asset effected in the previous year (other than exemptions covered under this chapter) shall be chargeable to Income-tax under this head in the previous year in which the transfer took place.

Year of chargeability- Capital gains are chargeable as the income of the previous year in which the sale or transfer takes place. In other words, for determining the year of chargeability, the relevant date of transfer is not the date of the agreement to sell, but the actual date of sale i.e., the date on which the effect of transfer of title to the property as contemplated by the parties has taken place [Alapati Venkatramiah v. CIT [1965] 57 ITR 185 (SC)].

However, as already noted, Income-tax Act has recognised certain transactions as transfer in spite of the fact that conveyance deed might not have been executed and registered. Power of Attorney sales as explained above or co-operative society transactions for acquisition of house are examples in this regard.

(2) Insurance receipts [Section 45(1A)]

Where any person receives any money or other assets under any insurance from an insurer on account of

- ◆ damage to or destruction of any capital asset,
- ◆ as a result of flood, typhoon, hurricane, cyclone, earthquake or other convulsion of nature,
- ◆ riot or civil disturbance,
- ◆ accidental fire or explosion or
- ◆ because of action by an enemy or action taken in combating an enemy (whether with or without declaration of war), then, any profits or gains arising from receipt of such money or other assets shall be chargeable to income-tax under the head “Capital gains” and shall be deemed to be the income of the such person for the previous year in which such money or other asset was received.

Full value of consideration: In order to compute capital gains, the value of any money or the fair market value of other assets on the date of such receipt shall be deemed to be the full value of the consideration received or accruing as a result of the transfer of such capital assets.

(3) Conversion or treatment of a capital asset as stock-in-trade [Section 45(2)]

A person who is the owner of a capital asset may convert the same or treat it as stock-in-trade of the business carried on by him. As noted above, the above transaction is a transfer.

As per section 45(2), notwithstanding anything contained in section 45(1), being the charging section, the profits or gains arising from the above conversion or treatment will be chargeable to income-tax as his income of the previous year in which such stock-in-trade is sold or otherwise transferred by him.

Full value of consideration: In order to compute the capital gains, the fair market value of the asset on the date of such conversion or treatment shall be deemed to be the full value of the consideration received as a result of the transfer of the capital asset.

Note – Both Capital Gains and Business income are chargeable to tax in the year in which stock-in-trade is sold or otherwise transferred.

ILLUSTRATION 1

X converts his capital asset (acquired on June 10, 2003 for ₹ 60,000) into stock-in-trade on March 10, 2019. The fair market value on the date of the above conversion was ₹ 5,50,000. He subsequently sells the stock-in-trade so converted for ₹ 6,00,000 on June 10, 2019. Examine the tax implication.

Cost Inflation Index - F.Y. 2003-04: 109; F.Y. 2018-19: 280; F.Y. 2019-20: 289.

SOLUTION

Since the capital asset is converted into stock-in-trade during the previous year relevant to the A.Y. 2019-20, it will be a transfer under section 2(47) during the P.Y. 2018-19. However, the profits or gains arising from the above conversion will be chargeable to tax during the A.Y. 2020-21, since the stock-in-trade has been sold only on June 10, 2019. For this purpose, the fair market value on the date of such conversion (i.e. 10th March, 2019) will be the full value of consideration.

The capital gains will be computed after deducting the indexed cost of acquisition from the full value of consideration. The cost inflation index for 2003-04 i.e., the year of acquisition is 109 and the index for the year of transfer i.e., 2018-19 is 280. The indexed cost of acquisition is  $60,000 \times 280/109 = ₹ 1,54,128$ . Hence, ₹ 3,95,872 (i.e. ₹ 5,50,000 – ₹ 1,54,128) will be treated as long-term capital gains chargeable to tax during the A.Y.2020-21. During the same assessment year, ₹ 50,000 (₹ 6,00,000 - ₹ 5,50,000) will be chargeable to tax as business profits.

(4) Transfer of beneficial interest in securities [Section 45(2A)]

As per section 45(2A), where any person has had at any time during the previous year any beneficial interest in any securities, then, any profits or gains arising from the transfer made by the Depository or participant of such beneficial interest in respect of securities shall be chargeable to tax as the income of the beneficial owner of the previous year in which such transfer took place and shall not be regarded as income of the depository who is deemed to be the registered owner of the securities by virtue of section 10(1) of the Depositories Act, 1996.

Full value of consideration and period of holding: For the purposes of section 48 and proviso to section 2(42A), the cost of acquisition and the period of holding of securities shall be determined on the basis of the first-in-first-out (FIFO) method.

When the securities are transacted through stock exchanges, it is the established procedure that the brokers first enter into contracts for purchase/ sale of securities and thereafter, follow it up with delivery of shares, accompanied by transfer deeds duly signed by the registered holders.

- ◆ The seller is entitled to receive the consideration agreed to as on the date of contract.
- ◆ Thus, it is the date of broker's note that should be treated as the date of transfer in case of sale transactions of securities provided such transactions are followed up by delivery of shares and also the transfer deeds.
- ◆ Similarly, in respect of the purchasers of the securities, the holding period shall be reckoned to take place directly between the parties and not through stock exchanges.
- ◆ The date of contract of sale as declared by the parties shall be treated as the date of transfer provided it is followed up by actual delivery of shares and the transfer deeds.

Where securities are acquired in several lots at different points of time, the First-In-First-Out (FIFO) method shall be adopted to reckon the period of the holding of the security, in cases where the dates of purchase and sale could not be correlated through specific numbers of the scrips.

In other words, the assets acquired last will be taken to be remaining with the assessee while assets acquired first will be treated as sold. Indexation, wherever applicable, for long-term assets will be regulated on the basis of the holding period determined in this manner - CBDT Circular No. 704, dated 28.4.1995.

Meaning of certain terms:

Term	Meaning
Beneficial owner	A person whose name is recorded as such with a depository.
Depository	A company formed and registered under the Companies Act, 1956 <sup>1</sup> and which has been granted a certificate of registration under section 12(1A) of the Securities and Exchange Board of India Act, 1992.
Security	Such security as may be specified by SEBI.

(5) Introduction of capital asset as capital contribution [Section 45(3)]

Where a person transfers a capital asset to a firm, AOP or BOI in which he is already a partner/ member or is to become a partner/ member by way of capital contribution or otherwise, the profits or gains arising from such transfer will be chargeable to tax as income of the previous year in which such transfer takes place.

Full value of consideration: For this purpose, the value of the consideration will be the amount recorded in the books of account of the firm, AOP or BOI as the value of the capital asset.

(6) Distribution of capital assets on dissolution of firm/AOP or BOI [Section 45(4)]

The profits or gains arising from the transfer of capital assets by way of

- distribution of capital assets on the dissolution of a firm or AOP or BOI or shall be chargeable to tax as the income of the firm etc. of the previous year in which such transfer takes place.
- otherwise

Full value of consideration: For this purpose, the fair market value of the asset on the date of such transfer shall be the full value of consideration.

The Bombay High Court made a landmark judgment in Commissioner of Income-tax v. A.N. Naik Associates (2004) 136 Taxman 107. The Court applied the “mischief rule” about interpretation of statutes and pointed out that the idea behind the introduction of sub-section (4) in section 45 was to plug in a loophole and block the escape route through the medium of the firm. The High Court observed that the expression ‘otherwise’ has not to be read ejusdem generis with the expression ‘dissolution of a firm or body of individuals or association of persons’. The expression ‘otherwise’ has to be read with the words ‘transfer of capital assets by way of distribution of capital assets’. If so read, it becomes clear that even when a firm is in existence and there is a transfer of capital asset, it comes within the expression ‘otherwise’ since the object of the amendment was to remove the loophole which existed, whereby capital gains tax was not chargeable. Therefore, the word

'otherwise' takes into its sweep not only cases of dissolution but also cases of subsisting partners of a partnership, transferring assets in favour of retiring partners.

Note - Since the tax treatment accorded to a LLP and a general partnership is the same, the conversion from a general partnership firm to an LLP will have no tax implications if the rights and obligations of the partners remain the same after conversion and if there is no transfer of any asset or liability after conversion. However, if there is a change in rights and obligations of partners or there is a transfer of asset or liability after conversion, then the provisions of section 45 would get attracted.

(7) Compensation on compulsory acquisition [Section 45(5)]

Sometimes, a building or some other capital asset belonging to a person is taken over by the Central Government by way of compulsory acquisition. In that case, the consideration for the transfer is determined by the Central Government or RBI. When the Central Government pays the above compensation, capital gains may arise. Such capital gains are chargeable as income of the previous year in which such compensation is received.

Enhanced Compensation- Many times, persons whose capital assets have been taken over by the Central Government and who get compensation from the government go to the court of law for enhancement of compensation. If the court awards a compensation which is higher than the original compensation, the difference thereof will be chargeable to capital gains in the year in which the same is received from the government.

Cost of acquisition in case of enhanced compensation - For this purpose, the cost of acquisition and cost of improvement shall be taken to be nil.

Compensation received in pursuance of an interim order deemed as income chargeable to tax in the year of final order - In order to remove the uncertainty regarding the year in which the amount of compensation received in pursuance of an interim order of the court is to be charged to tax, a proviso has been inserted after clause (b) to provide that such compensation shall be deemed to be income chargeable under the head 'Capital gains' in the previous year in which the final order of such court, Tribunal or other authority is made.

Reduction of enhanced compensation - Where capital gain has been charged on the compensation received by the assessee for the compulsory acquisition of any capital asset or enhanced compensation received by the assessee and subsequently such compensation is reduced by any court, tribunal or any authority, the assessed capital gain of that year shall be recomputed by taking into consideration the reduced amount. This re-computation shall be done by way of rectification under section 155.

Death of the transferor- It is possible that the transferor may die before he receives the enhanced compensation. In that case, the enhanced compensation or consideration will be chargeable to tax in the hands of the person who received the same.

(8) Taxability of capital gains in case of Specified agreement [Section 45(5A)]

Genuine hardship on account of taxability of capital gains in the year of transfer of property to developer: The definition of 'transfer', inter alia, includes any arrangement or transaction where any rights are handed over in execution of part performance of contract, even though the legal title has not been transferred.

Applying the definition of transfer, under these development agreements, the transfer took place in the year in which the owner of the immovable property, being land or building or both handed over the immovable property to the developer.

Consequently, the capital gains tax liability in the hands of the owner would arise in the year in which the possession of immovable property is handed over to the developer for development of a project, in spite of the fact that the consideration thereof (i.e. the actual constructed property) will be received only after a couple of years.

Postponement of taxability of capital gains: With a view to minimise the genuine hardship which the owner of land or building may face in paying capital gains tax in the year of transfer, section 45(5A) provides that

- in case of an assessee being individual or Hindu undivided family,
- who enters into a specified agreement for development of a project,
- the capital gain arises from such transfer shall be chargeable to income-tax as income of the previous year in which the certificate of completion for the whole or part of the project is issued by the competent authority.

Meaning of Specified Agreement: Specified agreement means the registered agreement in which a person owning land or building or both, agrees to allow another person to develop a real estate project on such land or building or both, in consideration of a share, being land or building or both in such project, whether with or without payment of part of the consideration in cash.

Full value of consideration: For the purpose of section 48, the stamp duty value of his share, being land or building or both, in the project on the date of issuing of said certificate of completion as increased by any consideration received in cash, if any, shall be deemed to be the full value of the consideration received or accruing as a result of the transfer of the capital asset.

Non-applicability of the beneficial provision: It may, however, be noted these beneficial provisions would not apply, where the assessee transfers his share in the project on or before the date of issue of said completion certificate and the capital gain tax liability would be deemed to arise in the previous year in which such transfer took place. In such a case, full value of consideration received or accruing shall be determined by the general provisions of the Act. [Proviso to section 45(5A)]

Meaning of certain terms:

Term	Meaning
Competent authority	The authority empowered to approve the building plan by or under any law for the time being in force
Stamp duty value	The value adopted or assessed or reassessable by any authority of Government for the purpose of payment of stamp duty in respect of an immovable property being land or building or both.

Taxability of capital gains in case of Specified Agreement: At a Glance

7.6 CAPITAL GAINS ON DISTRIBUTION OF ASSETS BY COMPANIES IN LIQUIDATION [SECTION 46]

- (1) In the hands of liquidated company: Where the assets of a company are distributed to its shareholders on its liquidation, such distribution shall not be regarded as a transfer by the company for the purposes of section 45 [Section 46(1)].

The above section is restricted in its application to the circumstances mentioned therein i.e., the assets of the company must be distributed in specie to shareholders on the liquidation of the company. If, however, the liquidator sells the assets of the company resulting in a capital gain and distributes the funds so collected, the company will be liable to pay tax on such gains.

- (2) In the hands of shareholders: Shareholders receive money or other assets from the company on its liquidation. They will be chargeable to income-tax under the head 'capital gains' in respect of the market value of the assets received on the date of distribution, or the moneys so received by them. The portion of the distribution which is attributable to the accumulated profits of the company is to be treated as dividend income of the shareholder under section 2(22)(c), which is subject to dividend distribution tax in the hands of the company. The same will be deducted from the amount received/ fair market value for the purpose of determining the consideration for computation of capital gains.
- (3) Capital gains tax on subsequent sale by the shareholders: If the shareholder, after receipt of any such asset on liquidation of the company, transfers it, then Fair Market value on the date of distribution would be treated as cost of acquisition of such asset.

7.7 CAPITAL GAINS ON BUYBACK OF SHARES OR OTHER SECURITIES [SECTION 46A]

- (1) In case of specified securities other than shares: Any consideration received by a holder of specified securities (other than shares) from any company on purchase of its specified securities is chargeable to tax in the hands of the holder of specified securities. The difference between the cost of acquisition and the value of consideration received by the holder of securities is chargeable to tax as capital gains in his hands. The computation of capital gains shall be made in accordance with the provisions of section 48.

Such capital gains shall be chargeable in the year in which such securities were purchased by the company. For this purpose, "specified securities" shall have the same meaning as given in Explanation to section 77A of the Companies Act, 1956<sup>3</sup>.

As per Section 68 of the Companies Act, 2013, "specified securities" includes employees' stock option or other securities as may be notified by the Central Government from time to time.

Note – With effect from 5.7.2019, as far as shares are concerned, this provision would be attracted in the hands of the shareholder only if the shares are bought back by a company, other than a domestic company. Prior to that date, this provision was attracted even in the hands of shareholders of domestic company, where listed shares were bought back.

- (2) In case of shares (whether listed or unlisted): With effect from 5.7.2019, in case of buyback of shares (whether listed or unlisted) by domestic companies, additional income-tax @20% (plus surcharge@12% and cess@4%) is leviable in the hands of the company under section 115QA.

Consequently, the income arising to the shareholders in respect of such buyback of shares by the domestic company would be exempt under section 10(34A), since the domestic company is liable to pay additional income-tax on the buyback of shares.

Note: Prior to 5.7.2019, additional income-tax was attracted only in case of buy back of unlisted shares by domestic companies. Consequently, only holders of unlisted shares were entitled to exemption under section 10(34A).

Taxation provisions in respect of buyback effected on or after 5.7.2019

(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)
Taxability in the hands of	Buyback of shares by domestic companies	Buyback of shares by a company, other than a domestic company	Buyback of specified securities by any company
Company	Subject to additional income-tax@23.296%.	Not subject to tax in the hands of the company.	Not subject to tax in the hands of the company.
Shareholder/holder of specified securities	Income arising to shareholders exempt under section 10(34A)	Income arising to shareholder taxable as capital gains u/s 46A.	Income arising to holder of specified securities taxable as capital gains u/s 46A.

Note - The provisions of section 115QA would not, however, apply to such buyback of listed shares in respect of which public announcement has been made before 5th July, 2019 in accordance with the provisions of SEBI (Buy Back Of Securities) Regulation 2018 made under the SEBI Act, 1992 as amended from time to time. Consequently, in these cases, exemption under section 10(34A) would not be available to shareholders.

7.8 TRANSACTIONS NOT REGARDED AS TRANSFER [SECTION 47]

Section 47 specifies certain transactions which will not be regarded as transfer for the purpose of capital gains tax:

- (1) Total or partial partition of a HUF: Any distribution of capital assets on the total or partial partition of a HUF [Section 47(i)];
- (2) A gift or will or an irrevocable trust: Any transfer of a capital asset under a gift or will or an irrevocable trust [Section 47(iii)];

However, this clause shall not include transfer under a gift or an irrevocable trust of a capital asset being shares, debentures or warrants allotted by a company directly or indirectly to its employees under the Employees' Stock Option Plan or Scheme offered to its employees in accordance with the guidelines issued in this behalf by the Central Government.

- (3) Transfer of capital asset by holding company to its wholly owned Indian subsidiary company: Any transfer of capital asset by a company to its subsidiary company [Section 47(iv)]

Conditions –

- (i) The parent company or its nominee must hold the whole of the shares of the subsidiary company;
- (ii) The subsidiary company must be an Indian company.

- (4) Transfer of capital asset by a subsidiary company to its 100% holding company, being an Indian company: Any transfer of capital asset by a subsidiary company to the holding company [Section 47(v)]

Conditions –

- (i) The whole of shares of the subsidiary company must be held by the holding company;
- (ii) The holding company must be an Indian company.

Exception - The exemption mentioned in 3 or 4 above will not apply if a capital asset is transferred as stock-in-trade.

- (5) Transfer of capital asset by amalgamating company to amalgamated Indian company, in a scheme of amalgamation: Any transfer, in a scheme of amalgamation, of a capital asset by the amalgamating company to the amalgamated company if the amalgamated company is an Indian company [Section 47(vi)].

- (6) Transfer of share(s) held in an Indian company by amalgamating foreign company to amalgamated foreign company, in a scheme of amalgamation: Any transfer, in a scheme of amalgamation, of shares held in an Indian company by the amalgamating foreign company to the amalgamated foreign company [Section 47(via)].

Conditions –

- (i) At least 25 percent of the shareholders of the amalgamating foreign company must continue to remain shareholders of the amalgamated foreign company;
  - (ii) Such transfer should not attract capital gains in the country in which the amalgamating company is incorporated.
- (7) Transfer of capital asset by banking company to banking institution, in a scheme of amalgamation: Any transfer of a capital asset by banking company to banking institution in a scheme of amalgamation of a banking company with a banking institution sanctioned and brought into force by the Central Government under section 45(7) of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949 [Section 47(viaa)].
- (8) Transfer of share(s) of foreign company by amalgamating foreign company to amalgamated foreign company, in a scheme of amalgamation: Any transfer, in a scheme of amalgamation, of a capital asset, being a share of a foreign company referred to in Explanation 5 to section 9(1)(i), which derives, directly or indirectly, its value substantially from the share or shares of an Indian company, held by the amalgamating foreign company to the amalgamated foreign company [Section 47(viab)]

Conditions –

- (i) At least 25% of the shareholders of the amalgamating foreign company must continue to remain shareholders of the amalgamated foreign company;
  - (ii) Such transfer should not attract capital gains in the country in which the amalgamating company is incorporated.
- (9) Transfer of capital asset by the demerged company to the resulting Indian company, in a scheme of demerger: Any transfer in a demerger, of a capital asset by the demerged company to the resulting company, if the resulting company is an Indian company [Section 47(vib)].
- (10) Transfer of share(s) held in an Indian company by demerged foreign company to resulting foreign company, in a scheme of demerger: Any transfer in a demerger, of a capital asset, being a share or shares held in an Indian company, by the demerged foreign company to the resulting foreign company [Section 47(vic)].

Conditions –

- (i) The shareholders holding at least three-fourths in value of the shares of the demerged foreign company continue to remain shareholders of the resulting foreign company;
- (ii) Such transfer does not attract tax on capital gains in the country, in which the demerged foreign company is incorporated.

However, the provisions of sections 391 to 394 of the Companies Act, 1956<sup>4</sup>, shall not apply in case of demergers referred to in this clause.

- (11) Transfer of capital asset by the predecessor co-operative bank to successor co-operative bank in business reorganization: Any transfer in a business reorganisation, of a capital asset by the predecessor co-operative bank to the successor co-operative bank [Section 47(vica)].
- (12) Transfer of share(s) in predecessor co-operative bank by a shareholder in a business reorganization: Any transfer by a shareholder, in a business reorganisation, of a capital asset being a share or shares held by him in the predecessor co-operative bank if the transfer is made in consideration of the allotment to him of any share or shares in the successor co-operative bank [Section 47(vicb)].

Note – Refer to section 44DB for the meanings of “business reorganisation”, “predecessor co-operative bank” and “successor co-operative bank”.

- (13) Transfer of share(s) of foreign company by demerged foreign company to resulting foreign company, in a scheme of demerger: Any transfer, in a scheme of demerger, of a capital asset, being a share of a foreign company referred to in Explanation 5 to section 9(1)(i), which derives, directly or indirectly, its value substantially from the share or shares of an Indian company, held by the demerged foreign company to the resulting foreign company [Section 47(vicc)].

Conditions –

- (i) The shareholders holding at least three-fourths in value of the shares of the demerged foreign company continue to remain shareholders of the resulting foreign company;
- (ii) Such transfer does not attract tax on capital gains in the country, in which the demerged foreign company is incorporated.

However, the provisions of sections 391 to 394 of the Companies Act, 1956<sup>4</sup>, shall not apply in case of demergers referred to in this clause.

- (14) Transfer or issue of shares by the resulting company to the shareholder of demerged company, in a scheme of demerger: Any transfer or issue of shares by the resulting company, in a scheme of demerger to the shareholders of the demerged company, if the transfer or issue is made in consideration of demerger of the undertaking [Section 47(vi)].
- (15) Transfer of share(s) held in the amalgamating company by a shareholder, in a scheme of amalgamation: Any transfer by a shareholder, in a scheme of amalgamation, of shares held by him in the amalgamating company [Section 47(vii)].

Conditions –

- (i) The transfer is made in consideration of the allotment to him of any share in the amalgamated company, except where the shareholder itself is the amalgamated company;
- (ii) The amalgamated company is an Indian company.

Example:

Let us take a case where A Ltd., an Indian company, holds 60% of shares in B Ltd. B Ltd. amalgamates with A Ltd. Since A Ltd. itself is the shareholder of B Ltd., A Ltd., being the amalgamated company, cannot issue shares to itself. However, A Ltd. has to issue shares to the other shareholders of B Ltd.

ILLUSTRATION 2

M held 2000 shares in a company ABC Ltd. This company amalgamated with another company during the previous year ending 31-3-2020. Under the scheme of amalgamation, M was allotted 1000 shares in the new company. The market value of shares allotted is higher by ₹ 50,000 than the value of holding in ABC Ltd.

The Assessing Officer proposes to treat the transaction as an exchange and to tax ₹ 50,000 as capital gain. Is he justified?

SOLUTION

In the above example, assuming that the amalgamated company is an Indian company, the transaction is squarely covered by the exemption explained above and the proposal of the Assessing Officer to treat the transaction as an exchange is not justified.

- (16) Transfer of bond or Global Depository Receipts by a non-resident to another non-resident outside India: Any transfer of bonds or Global Depository Receipts referred to in section 115AC(1), by a non-resident to another non-resident outside India [Section 47(viia)].
- (17) Transfer of Rupee Denominated bond of an Indian company by a non-resident to another non-resident outside India: Any transfer, made outside India, of a capital asset being rupee denominated bond of an Indian company issued outside India, by a non-resident to another non-resident [Section 47(viiaa)].

- (18) Transfer of specified capital asset by a non-resident on a recognized stock exchange in any IFSC [Section 47(viiab)] – Transfer of the following capital assets by a non-resident on a recognised stock exchange located in any International Financial Services Centre (IFSC) shall not be regarded as transfer, where the consideration for such transaction is paid or payable in foreign currency:
- bond or GDR referred to in section 115AC(1); or
  - rupee denominated bond of an Indian company; or
  - derivative; or
  - other securities notified by the Central Government
- (19) Transfer of Government Security by a non-resident to another non-resident outside India through an intermediary: Any transfer of a capital asset, -
- (i) being a Government Security carrying a periodic payment of interest,
  - (ii) made outside India through an intermediary dealing in settlement of securities,
  - (iii) by a non-resident to another non-resident [Section 47(viib)]
- (20) Redemption of Sovereign Gold Bonds by an Individual: Redemption by an individual of Sovereign Gold Bond issued by RBI under the Sovereign Gold Bond Scheme, 2015 [Section 47(viic)]
- Sovereign Gold Bond Scheme, 2015
- This scheme has been introduced by the Government of India to reduce the demand for physical gold and consequently, reduce the foreign exchange outflow due to import of gold. The two-fold benefits of this scheme are:
- (1) The gold bond would serve as a substitute for physical gold; and
  - (2) The gold bond would provide security to the individual investor investing in gold for meeting their social obligation.
- (21) Transfer of specified capital asset to the Government or university etc.: Any transfer of any of the following capital asset to the Government or to the University or the National Museum, National Art Gallery, National Archives or any other public museum or institution notified by the Central Government to be of national importance or to be of renown throughout any State [Section 47(ix)]:

- (iii) The sole proprietor does not receive any consideration or benefit in any form, directly or indirectly, other than by way of allotment of shares in the company.

(30) Transfer in a scheme for lending of any securities: Any transfer in a scheme for lending of any securities under an agreement or arrangement which the assessee has entered into with the borrower of such securities and which is subject to the guidelines issued by SEBI or the RBI [Section 47(xv)]

Example:

The Securities Lending and Borrowing (SLB) Scheme for all market participants in the Indian securities market under the overall framework of Securities Lending Scheme, 1997 of SEBI

(31) Transfer of capital asset under Reverse Mortgage: Any transfer of a capital asset in a transaction of reverse mortgage under a scheme made and notified by the Central Government [Section 47(xvi)].

The Reverse Mortgage scheme is for the benefit of senior citizens, who own a residential house property. In order to supplement their existing income, they can mortgage their house property with a scheduled bank or housing finance company, in return for a lump-sum amount or for a regular monthly/ quarterly/ annual income. The senior citizens can continue to live in the house and receive regular income, without the botheration of having to pay back the loan.

The loan will be given up to, say, 60% of the value of residential house property mortgaged. Also, the bank/housing finance company would undertake a revaluation of the property once every 5 years. The borrower can use the loan amount for renovation and extension of residential property, family's medical and emergency expenditure etc., amongst others. However, he cannot use the amount for speculative or trading purposes.

The Reverse Mortgage Scheme, 2008, includes within its scope, disbursement of loan by an approved lending institution, in part or in full, to the annuity sourcing institution, for the purposes of periodic payments by way of annuity to the reverse mortgagor. This would be an additional mode of disbursement i.e., in addition to direct disbursements by the approved lending institution to the Reverse Mortgagor by way of periodic payments or lump sum payment in one or more tranches.

An annuity sourcing institution has been defined to mean Life Insurance Corporation of India or any other insurer registered with the Insurance Regulatory and Development Authority.

Maximum Period of Reverse Mortgage Loan:

	Mode of disbursement	Maximum period of loan
(a)	Where the loan is disbursed directly to the Reverse Mortgagor	20 years from the date of signing the agreement by the reverse mortgagor and the approved lending institution.
(b)	Where the loan is disbursed, in part or in full, to the annuity sourcing institution for the purposes of periodic payments by way of annuity to the Reverse mortgagor	The residual life time of the borrower.

The bank will recover the loan along with the accumulated interest by selling the house after the death of the borrower. The excess amount will be given to the legal heirs. However, before resorting to sale of the house, preference will be given to the legal heirs to repay the loan and interest and get the mortgaged property released.

Therefore, section 47(xvi) clarifies that any transfer of a capital asset in a transaction of reverse mortgage under a scheme made and notified by the Central Government would not amount to a transfer for the purpose of capital gains.

Exemption of income received in a transaction of reverse mortgage [Section 10(43)]: Section 10(43), further, provides that the amount received by the senior citizen as a loan, either in lump sum or in installments, in a transaction of reverse mortgage would be exempt from income-tax.

Capital gains tax liability would be attracted only at the stage of alienation of the mortgaged property by the bank/ housing finance company for the purposes of recovering the loan.

- (32) Transfer of shares of a special purpose vehicle to a business trust: Any transfer of a capital asset, being share of a special purpose vehicle to a business trust in exchange of units allotted by that trust to the transferor [Section 47(xvii)]

Meaning of business trust and special purpose vehicle will be discussed in Chapter 12: "Assessment of Various Entities".

- (33) Transfer of unit(s) by a unit holder under consolidating scheme of Mutual Fund: Any transfer by a unit holder of a capital asset, being a unit or units, held by him in the consolidating scheme of a mutual fund, made in consideration of the allotment to him of a capital asset, being a unit or units, in the consolidated scheme of the mutual fund [Section 47(xviii)].

However, this exemption would be available only if, the consolidation takes place of two or more schemes of equity oriented fund or of two or more schemes of a fund other than equity oriented fund.

- (34) Transfer of unit(s) by a unit holder under consolidating plan of Mutual Fund scheme: Any transfer by a unit holder of a capital asset, being a unit or units, held by him in the consolidating plan of a mutual fund scheme, made in consideration of the allotment to him of a capital asset, being a unit or units, in the consolidated plan of that scheme of the mutual fund [Section 47(xix)].

Meaning of the following terms:

Term	Meaning
Consolidating scheme	The scheme of a mutual fund which merges under the process of consolidation of the schemes of mutual fund in accordance with the SEBI (Mutual Funds) Regulations, 1996 made under SEBI Act, 1992.
Consolidated scheme	The scheme with which the consolidating scheme merges or which is formed as a result of such merger.
Consolidating plan	The plan within a scheme of a mutual fund which merges under the process of consolidation of the plans within a scheme of mutual fund in accordance with the SEBI (Mutual Funds) Regulations, 1996 made under SEBI Act, 1992.
Consolidated plan	The plan with which the consolidating plan merges or which is formed as a result of such merger.

Mutual Fund	A mutual fund specified under section 10(23D), i.e., (i) a Mutual Fund registered under the SEBI Act, 1992 or regulations made thereunder; (ii) such other Mutual Fund set up by a public sector bank or a public financial institution or authorised by the Reserve Bank of India and subject to conditions notified by the Central Government.

ILLUSTRATION 3

In which of the following situations capital gains tax liability does not arise?

- (i) Mr. A purchased gold in 1970 for ₹ 25,000. In the P.Y. 2019-20, he gifted it to his son at the time of marriage. Fair market value (FMV) of the gold on the day the gift was made was ₹ 1,00,000.
- (ii) A house property is purchased by a Hindu undivided family in 1945 for ₹ 20,000. It is given to one of the family members in the P.Y. 2019-20 at the time of partition of the family. FMV on the day of partition was ₹ 12,00,000.
- (iii) Mr. B purchased 50 convertible debentures for ₹ 40,000 in 1995 which are converted in to 500 shares worth ₹ 85,000 in November 2019 by the company.

SOLUTION

We know that capital gains arise only when we transfer a capital asset. The liability of capital gains tax in the situations given above is discussed as follows:

- (i) As per the provisions of section 47(iii), transfer of a capital asset under a gift is not regarded as transfer for the purpose of capital gains. Therefore, capital gains tax liability does not arise in the given situation.
- (ii) As per the provisions of section 47(i), transfer of a capital asset (being in kind) on the total or partial partition of Hindu undivided family is not regarded as transfer for the purpose of capital gains. Therefore, capital gains tax liability does not arise in the given situation.
- (iii) As per the provisions of section 47(x), transfer by way of conversion of bonds or debentures, debenture stock or deposit certificates in any form of a company into shares or debentures of that company is not regarded as transfer for the purpose of capital gains. Therefore, capital gains tax liability does not arise in the given situation.

Mr. Abhishek a senior citizen, mortgaged his residential house with a bank, under a notified reverse mortgage scheme. He was getting loan from bank in monthly installments. Mr. Abhishek did not repay the loan on maturity and hence gave possession of the house to the bank, to discharge his loan. How will the treatment of long-term capital gain be on such reverse mortgage transaction?

SOLUTION

Section 47(xvi) provides that any transfer of a capital asset in a transaction of reverse mortgage under a scheme made and notified by the Central Government shall not be considered as a transfer for the purpose of capital gain.

Accordingly, the mortgaging of residential house with bank by Mr. Abhishek will not be regarded as a transfer. Therefore, no capital gain will be charged on such transaction.

Further, section 10(43) provides that the amount received by the senior citizen as a loan, either in lump sum or in installment, in a transaction of reverse mortgage would be exempt from income-tax. Therefore, the monthly installment amounts received by Mr. Abhishek would not be taxable.

However, capital gains tax liability would be attracted at the stage of alienation of the mortgaged property by the bank for the purposes of recovering the loan.

7.9 IMPORTANT DEFINITIONS

(a) Amalgamation [Section 2(1B)] - "Amalgamation", in relation to companies, means

- the merger of one or more companies with another company or
- the merger of two or more companies to form one company

(the company or companies which so merge being referred to as the amalgamating company or companies and the company with which they merge or which is formed as a result of the merger, as the amalgamated company) in such a manner that -

- (i) all the property of the amalgamating company or companies immediately before the amalgamation becomes the property of the amalgamated company by virtue of the amalgamation;
- (ii) all the liabilities of the amalgamating company or companies immediately before the amalgamation become the liabilities of the amalgamated company by virtue of the amalgamation;
- (iii) shareholders holding not less than three-fourth in value of the shares in the amalgamating company or companies (other than shares already held therein immediately before the amalgamation by, or by a nominee for, the amalgamated company or its subsidiary) become shareholders of the amalgamated company by virtue of the amalgamation, otherwise than as a result of the acquisition of the property of one company by another company pursuant to the purchase of such property by the other company or as a result of the distribution of such property to the other company after the winding up of the first mentioned company.

(b) Demerger [Section 2(19AA)] - “Demerger”, in relation to companies, means the transfer, pursuant to a scheme of arrangement under sections 230 to 232 of the Companies Act, 2013, by a demerged company of its one or more undertaking to any resulting company in such a manner that -

- (c) Demerged company [Section 2(19AAA)] - Demerged company means the company whose undertaking is transferred, pursuant to a demerger, to a resulting company.
- (d) Resulting company [Section 2(41A)] - Resulting company means one or more companies (including a wholly owned subsidiary thereof) to which the undertaking of the demerged company is transferred in a demerger and, the resulting company in consideration of such transfer of undertaking, issues shares to the shareholders of the demerged company and includes any authority or body or local authority or public sector company or a company established, constituted or formed as a result of demerger.

7.10 WITHDRAWAL OF EXEMPTION IN CERTAIN CASES

Section 47A provides for withdrawal of the benefit of exemption given by section 47 in certain cases.

- 1. Conditions for transfer of capital asset by holding to its wholly owned subsidiary and vice versa [Section 47(iv) or 47(v)]: As noted above, capital gains arising from the transfer of a capital asset by a company to its wholly owned subsidiary company is exempt from tax.

Similarly, capital gains arising from the transfer of a capital asset by the subsidiary company to its 100% holding company is also exempt from tax, provided under both circumstances the transferee is an Indian company.

Section 47A provides that the above exemption will be withdrawn if at any time before the expiry of 8 years from the date of transfer of a capital asset referred to above

- (1) such capital asset is converted by the transferee company or is treated by it as stock-in-trade of its business; or
- (2) the parent company or its nominee ceases to hold the whole of the share capital of the subsidiary company.

In the above two cases, the amount of capital gains exempt from tax by virtue of the provisions contained in section 47 will be deemed to be the income of the transferor company chargeable under the head 'capital gains' of the year in which such transfer took place.

2. Transfer of membership of a recognised stock exchange for shares [Section 47(xi)]: Capital gains not charged to tax under clause (xi) of section 47 shall be deemed to be the income chargeable under the head “capital gains” of the previous year in which such transfer took place if the shares of the company received in exchange for transfer of membership in a recognised stock exchange, are transferred at any time before the expiry of 3 years of such transfer.
3. Transfer of capital asset or intangible asset on succession of firm/ sole proprietary concern by a company [Section 47(xiii) or 47(xiv)]: Where any of the conditions laid down in section 47(xiii) or (xvi), as the case may be, for succession of a firm or sole proprietary concern by a company are not complied with, the amount of profits or gains arising from the transfer of such capital asset or intangible asset shall be deemed to be the profits and gains chargeable to tax of the successor company for the previous year in which the conditions are not complied with.
4. Transfer of capital asset or intangible asset by private company or unlisted company and share held by shareholder to LLP in a conversion of private company or unlisted public company by a LLP [Section 47(xiiib)]: If subsequent to the conversion of a private company or unlisted company into an LLP, any of the conditions laid down in section 47(xiiib) are not complied with, the capital gains not charged under section 45 would be deemed to be chargeable to tax in the previous year in which the conditions are not complied with, in the hands of the LLP or the shareholder of the predecessor company, as the case may be.

7.11 MODE OF COMPUTATION OF CAPITAL GAINS (SECTION 48)

- (1) Computation of capital gains: The income chargeable under the head ‘capital gains’ shall be computed by deducting the following items from the full value of the consideration received or accruing as a result of the transfer of the capital asset:
  - (i) Expenditure incurred wholly and exclusively in connection with such transfer.
  - (ii) The cost of acquisition and cost of any improvement thereto.
- (2) No deduction in respect of STT paid: However, no deduction shall be allowed in computing the income chargeable under the head “Capital Gains” in respect of any amount paid on account of securities transaction tax under Chapter VII of the Finance (No.2) Act, 2004.
- (3) Cost inflation index: Under section 48, for computation of long term capital gains, the cost of acquisition and cost of improvement increased by applying the cost inflation index (CII). Once the cost inflation index is applied to the cost of acquisition and cost of improvement, it becomes indexed cost of acquisition and indexed cost of improvement.

This means an amount which bears to the cost of acquisition, the same proportion as CII for the year in which the asset is transferred bears to the CII for the first year in which the asset was held by the assessee or for the year beginning on 1st April, 2001, whichever is later.

Similarly, indexed cost of any improvement means an amount which bears to the cost of improvement, the same proportion as CII for the year in which the asset is transferred bears to the CII for the year in which the improvement to the asset took place.

“Cost Inflation Index” in relation to a previous year means such index as may be notified by the Central Government having regard to 75% of average rise in the Consumer Price Index (Urban) for the immediately preceding previous year to such previous year.

Note - The benefit of indexation will not apply to the long-term capital gains arising from the transfer of bonds or debentures other than –

- (1) Capital indexed bonds issued by the Government; or
- (2) Sovereign Gold Bond issued by the RBI under the Sovereign Gold Bond Scheme, 2015.

In case of depreciable assets (discussed later), there will be no indexation and the capital gains will always be short-term capital gains.

The cost inflation indices for the financial years so far have been notified as under:

Financial Year	Cost Inflation Index
2001-02	100
2002-03	105
2003-04	109
2004-05	113
2005-06	117
2006-07	122
2007-08	129
2008-09	137
2009-10	148
2010-11	167
2011-12	184
2012-13	200
2013-14	220
2014-15	240
2015-16	254
2016-17	264

2017-18	272
2018-19	280
2019-20	289

- (4) Full value of consideration of shares, debentures or warrants issued under ESOP in case of transfer under a gift etc. - In case where shares, debentures or warrants allotted by a company directly or indirectly to its employees under the Employees' Stock Option Plan or Scheme in accordance with the guidelines issued in this behalf by the Central Government are transferred under a gift or irrevocable trust, then the market value on the date of such transfer shall be deemed to be the full value of consideration received or accruing as a result of transfer of such asset.
- (5) Special provision for non-residents - In order to give protection to non-residents who invest foreign exchange to acquire capital assets, the first proviso to section 48 provides that, in the case of non-residents, capital gains arising from the transfer of shares or debentures of an Indian company is to be computed as follows:
- The cost of acquisition, the expenditure incurred wholly and exclusively in connection with the transfer and the full value of the consideration are to be converted into the same foreign currency with which such shares were acquired.
  - The resulting capital gains shall be reconverted into Indian currency.

The aforesaid manner of computation of capital gains shall be applied for every purchase and sale of shares or debentures in an Indian company. Rule 115A is relevant for this purpose. Benefit of indexation will not be applied in this case.

Note – Refer to Chapter 2: Non-resident Taxation of Module 4 where Rule 115A is detailed.

Non-corporate non-residents and foreign companies to be subject to tax at a concessional rate of 10% (without indexation benefit or currency fluctuation) on long-term capital gains arising from transfer of unlisted securities or shares of a company in which public are not substantially interested [Section 112]

Rupee Denominated Bonds (RDBs)

As a measure to enable Indian companies to raise funds from outside India, the RBI has permitted them to issue rupee denominated bonds outside India. Accordingly, in case of non-resident assessee, any gains arising on account of appreciation of rupee between the date of purchase and the date of redemption of rupee denominated bond of an Indian company held by him against foreign currency in which investment is made shall not be included in computation of full value of consideration. This would provide relief to the non-resident investor who bears the risk of currency fluctuation.

Note – The benefit of indexation and currency fluctuation would not be applicable to the long-term capital gains arising from the transfer of the following assets referred to in section 112A –

- (i) equity share in a company on which STT is paid both at the time of acquisition and transfer
- (ii) unit of equity oriented fund or unit of business trust on which STT is paid at the time of transfer.

7.12 ASCERTAINMENT OF COST IN SPECIFIED CIRCUMSTANCES [SECTION 49]

A person becomes the owner of a capital asset not only by purchase but also by several other methods. Section 49 gives guidelines as to how to compute the cost under different circumstances.

- (1) Cost to previous owner deemed as cost of acquisition of asset: In the following cases, the cost of acquisition of the asset shall be deemed to be cost for which the previous owner of the property acquired it. To this cost, the cost of improvement to the asset incurred or borne by the previous owner or the assessee must be added:

Where the capital asset became the property of the assessee:

- (i) on any distribution of assets on the total or partition of a HUF;
- (ii) under a gift or will;
- (iii) by succession, inheritance or devaluation;
- (iv) on any distribution of assets on the liquidation of a company;
- (v) under a transfer to revocable or an irrevocable trust;
- (vi) under any transfer of capital asset by a holding company to its wholly owned subsidiary Indian company or by a subsidiary company to its 100% holding Indian company, referred to in section 47(iv) and 47(v) respectively;
- (vii) under any transfer referred to in section 47(vi) of a capital asset by amalgamating company to the amalgamated Indian company, in a scheme of amalgamation;
- (viii) under any transfer referred to in section 47(via) of shares held in an Indian company, in a scheme of amalgamation, by amalgamating foreign company to the amalgamated foreign company;
- (ix) under any transfer referred to in section 47(viaa) by a banking company to the banking institution, in a scheme of amalgamation of the banking company with a banking institution;

- (x) under any transfer of a capital asset, being a share of a foreign company, which derives directly or indirectly its value substantially from the share(s) of an Indian company, held by the amalgamating foreign company to the amalgamated foreign company, in the scheme of amalgamation referred to under section 47(viab);
- (xi) under any transfer referred to in section 47(vib), of a capital asset by the demerged company to the resulting Indian company, in a scheme of demerger;
- (xii) by any transfer of a capital asset, being share(s) held in an Indian company, by the demerged foreign company to the resulting foreign company, in a scheme of demerger referred to in section 47(vic);
- (xiii) by any transfer of a capital asset in a business reorganization under section 47(vica), by the predecessor co-operative bank to the successor co-operative bank;
- (xiv) by any transfer by a shareholder, in a business reorganisation referred to under section 47(vicb), of a capital asset being a share or shares held by him in the predecessor co-operative bank, if the transfer is made in consideration of the allotment to him of any share or shares in the successor co-operative bank;
- (xv) by transfer of a capital asset, being a share in a foreign company, which derives, directly or indirectly, its value substantially from the share or shares of an Indian company, held by the demerged foreign company to the resulting foreign company in the scheme of demerger referred under section 47(vicc);
- (xvi) by any transfer of capital asset or intangible asset on succession of a firm by a company in a business carried on by it or any transfer of a capital asset on succession of an AOP/BOI by a company on demutualisation or corporatization of a recognized stock exchange referred to in section 47(xiii);
- (xvii) under any transfer under section 47(xiiib) of a capital asset or intangible asset by a private company or unlisted public company to a LLP;
- (xviii) by any transfer of capital asset or intangible asset on succession of a sole proprietorship concern by a company in a business carried on by it, fulfilling the conditions mentioned in section 47(xiv);
- (xix) by conversion by an individual of his separate property into a HUF property, by the mode referred to in section 64(2).

Accordingly, section 2(42A) provides that in all such cases, for determining the period for which the capital asset is held by the transferee, the period of holding of the asset by the previous owner shall also be considered.

Note: The issue as to whether indexation benefit in respect of a gifted asset shall apply from the year in which the asset was first held by the assessee or from the year in which the same was first acquired by the previous owner was taken up by the Bombay High Court in CIT v. Manjula J. Shah (2013) 355 ITR 474 (Bom.).

As per Explanation 1 to section 2(42A), in case the capital asset becomes the property of the assessee in the circumstances mentioned in section 49(1), inter alia, by way of gift by the previous owner, then for determining the nature of the capital asset, the aggregate period for which the capital asset is held by the assessee and the previous owner shall be considered.

As per the provisions of section 48, the profit and gains arising on transfer of a long-term capital asset shall be computed by reducing the indexed cost of acquisition from the net sale consideration.

The indexed cost of acquisition means the amount which bears to the cost of acquisition the same proportion as Cost Inflation Index (CII) for the year in which the asset is transferred bears to the CII for the year in which the asset was first held by the assessee transferring it i.e., the year in which the asset was gifted to the assessee in case of transfer by the previous owner by way of gift.

The issue under consideration was whether, in a case where the assessee had acquired a capital asset by way of gift from the previous owner, the said asset can be treated as a long-term capital asset considering the period of holding by the assessee as well as the previous owner.

The Bombay High Court held that the indexed cost of acquisition in case of gifted asset has to be computed with reference to the year in which the previous owner first held the asset and not the year in which the assessee became the owner of the asset.

As per the plain reading of the provisions of section 48, however, the indexed cost of acquisition would be determined by taking CII for the year in which in which asset is first held by the assessee.

ILLUSTRATION 5

Neerja was carrying on the textile business under a proprietorship concern, Neerja Textiles. On 21.07.2019 the business of Neerja Textiles was succeeded by New Look Textile Private Limited and all the assets and liabilities of Neerja Textiles on that date became the assets and liabilities of New Look Textile Private Limited and Neerja was given 52% share in the share capital of the company. No other consideration was given to Neerja on account of this succession.

The assets and liabilities of Neerja Textiles transferred to the company include an urban land which was acquired by Neerja on 19.7.2013 for ₹ 9,80,000. The company sold the same on 30.03.2020 for ₹ 15,00,000.

Examine the tax implication of the above-mentioned transaction and compute the income chargeable to tax in such case(s).

SOLUTION

Taxability in case of succession of Neerja Textiles by New Look Textile Private Limited

As per provisions of section 47(xiv), in case a proprietorship concern is succeeded by a company in the business carried by it and as a result of which any capital asset is transferred to the company, then the same shall not be treated as transfer and will not be chargeable to capital gain tax in case the following conditions are satisfied:

- (1) all the assets and liabilities of sole proprietary concern becomes the assets and liabilities of the company.
- (2) the shareholding of the sole proprietor in the company is not less than 50% of the total voting power of the company and continues to remain as such for a period of 5 years from the date of succession.
- (3) the sole proprietor does not receive any consideration or benefit in any form from the company other than by way of allotment of shares in the company.

In the present case, all the conditions mentioned above are satisfied therefore, the transfer of capital asset by Neerja Textiles to New Look Textiles Private Limited shall not attract capital gain tax provided Neerja continues to hold 50% or more of voting power of New Look Textiles Private Limited for a minimum period of 5 years.

Taxability in case of transfer of land by New Look Textiles Private Limited

As per the provisions of section 49(1) and Explanation 1 to section 2(42A), in case a capital asset is transferred in the circumstances mentioned in section 47(xiv), the cost of the asset in the hands of the company shall be the cost of the asset in the hands of the sole proprietor. Consequently, for the determining the period of holding of the asset, the period for which the asset is held by the sole proprietor shall also be considered.

Therefore, in the present case, the urban land shall be a long-term capital asset since it is held for more than 24 months by New Look Textile Private Limited and Neerja Textiles taken together. Cost of acquisition of land in the hands of the company shall be ₹ 9,80,000 i.e., the purchase cost of the land in the hands of Neerja.

Computation of capital gain chargeable to tax in the hands of New Look Textile Private Ltd.

Particulars	₹
Net Sale Consideration	15,00,000
Less: Indexed cost of acquisition $9,80,000 \times 289/289$ (Refer Note below)	9,80,000
Long-term capital gain	5,20,000

Note: The year of transfer and the year in which the company first held the asset are the same in this case, which is the reason why the numerator and the denominator for calculating the indexed cost of acquisition would remain the same. Therefore, in effect, there is no benefit of indexation in this case. However, as per the view expressed by Bombay High Court in CIT v. Manjula J. Shah 16 Taxman 42, in case the cost of acquisition of the capital asset in the hands of the assessee is taken to be cost of such asset in the hands of the previous owner, the indexation benefit would be available from the year in which the capital asset is acquired by the previous owner. If this view is considered, the indexed cost of acquisition would have to be calculated by taking the CII of F.Y.2013-14 i.e., 220, being the year in which the capital asset was acquired by the previous owner, Neerja, as the denominator, in which case, the capital gains chargeable to tax would undergo a change. The long-term capital gains in such a case would be ₹ 2,12,636 [₹ 15,00,000 - ₹ 12,87,364 ( $9,80,000 \times ₹ 289/220$ )].

- (2) Cost of acquisition of shares received under the scheme of amalgamation: Where shares in an amalgamated company which is an Indian company become the property of the assessee in consideration of the transfer of shares referred to in section 47(vii) held by him in the amalgamating company under a scheme of amalgamation, the cost of acquisition to him of the shares in the amalgamated company shall be taken as the cost of acquisition of the shares in the amalgamating company [Section 49(2)].

This also applies in relation to business reorganization of a co-operative bank as referred to in section 44DB. The cost of acquisition of shares in the amalgamated co-operative bank, which became the property of the assessee by virtue of a transfer referred to in section 47(vicb), as a result of business reorganization, shall be the cost of acquisition to him of the shares in the amalgamating co-operative bank.

- (3) Cost of acquisition of shares or debentures received during the process of conversion of bonds or debentures, debenture stock or deposit certificates: It is possible that a person might have become the owner of shares or debentures in a company during the process of conversion of bonds or debentures, debenture stock or deposit certificates referred under section 47(x) or conversion of bonds [clause (a) of section 115AC(1)] referred to in section 47(xa).

In such a case, the cost of acquisition of such shares or debentures to the person shall be deemed to be that part of the cost of debentures, debenture stock, bond or deposit certificate in relation to which such asset is acquired by that person [Section 49(2A)].

- (4) Cost of acquisition of specified security or sweat equity shares: Where the capital gain arises from the transfer of specified security or sweat equity shares referred to in section 17(2)(vi), the cost of acquisition of such security or shares shall be the fair market value which has been taken into account for perquisite valuation [Section 49(2AA)].
- (5) Cost of acquisition of rights of a partner received on conversion of private or unlisted public company into LLP: Where a shareholder of a company receives rights in a partnership firm as consideration for transfer of shares on conversion of a company into a LLP referred to in section 47(xiiib), then the cost of acquisition of the capital asset being rights of a partner referred to in section 42 of the LLP Act, 2008 shall be deemed to be the cost of acquisition to him of the shares in the predecessor company, immediately before its conversion [Section 49(2AAA)].
- (6) Cost of acquisition of shares acquired on redemption of Global Depository Receipts: The cost of acquisition of the capital asset, being share or shares of a company acquired by a non-resident assessee, consequent to redemption of GDRs [referred to in section 115AC(1)(b)] held by him would be the price of such share or shares prevailing on any recognized stock exchange on the date on which a request for such redemption was made [Section 49(2ABB)].
- (7) Cost of acquisition of unit of business trust in consideration of shares of a special purpose vehicle: Where the capital asset, being unit of a business trust, became the property of the assessee in consideration of transfer of shares of a special purpose vehicle as referred to in section 47(xvii), the cost of acquisition of the unit would be the cost of acquisition of the shares to him [Section 49(2AC)].
- (8) Cost of acquisition of units acquired under consolidated scheme of Mutual Fund: The cost of acquisition of the units acquired by the assessee in consolidated scheme of mutual fund in consideration of transfer referred in section 47(xviii) shall be deemed to be the cost of acquisition to him of the units in the consolidating scheme of mutual fund [Section 49(2AD)].
- (9) Cost of acquisition of equity shares received at the time of conversion of preference shares: Cost of acquisition of the equity share of a company, which became the property of the assessee in consideration of transfer by way of conversion of preference shares referred to in section 47(xb), shall be deemed to be that part of the cost of the preference share in relation to which such asset is acquired by the assessee [Section 49(2AE)].
- (10) Cost of acquisition of units acquired under consolidated plan of Mutual Fund scheme: Cost of acquisition of the unit or units in the consolidated plan of the scheme of the mutual fund in consideration of a transfer referred to in section 47(xix) shall be deemed to be the cost of acquisition to him of the unit or units in consolidating plan of the scheme of the mutual fund [Section 49(2AF)].

- (11) Cost of acquisition of shares received in the resulting company in the scheme of demerger: In the case of a demerger, the cost of acquisition of the shares in the resulting company shall be the amount which bears to the cost of acquisition of shares held by the assessee in the demerged company the same proportion as the net book value of the assets transferred in a demerger bears to the net worth of the demerged company immediately before such demerger [Section 49(2C)].

$$\text{Cost of acquisition of shares in the resulting company} = A \times \frac{B}{C}$$

A = Cost of acquisition of shares held in the demerged company

B = Net book value of the assets transferred in a demerger

C = Net worth of the demerged company

“Net worth” means the aggregate of the paid up share capital and general reserves as appearing in the books of account of the demerged company immediately before the demerger.

This also applies in relation to business reorganization of a co-operative bank as referred to in section 44DB. The cost of acquisition of the shares in the resulting co-operative bank shall be the amount which bears to the cost of acquisition of shares held by the assessee in the demerged co-operative bank, the same proportion as the net book value of the assets transferred in a demerger bears to the net worth of the demerged co-operative bank immediately before demerger i.e.,

$$\text{Cost of acquisition of shares in the resulting co-operative bank} = A \times \frac{B}{C}$$

A = Cost of acquisition of shares held in the demerged co-operative bank

B = Net book value of the assets transferred in a demerger

C = Net worth of the demerged co-operative bank

- (12) Cost of acquisition of the shares held in the demerged company: Further, the cost of acquisition of the original shares held by the shareholder in the demerged company shall be deemed to have been reduced by the amount as so arrived under the sub-section (2C) [Section 49(2D)].

This also applies in relation to business reorganization of a co-operative bank as referred to in section 44DB. The cost of acquisition of the original shares held by the shareholder in the demerged co-operative bank shall be deemed to have been reduced by the amount so arrived at in (11) above.

- (13) Cost of acquisition of capital asset transferred by holding to its wholly owned subsidiary Indian company or vice a versa, in case of attraction of section 47A: The capital asset transferred by holding to its wholly owned subsidiary Indian company or by subsidiary to its 100% holding Indian company is not regarded as transfer. If the capital asset so transferred is converted into stock in trade or the parent company or its nominee ceases to hold the 100% share capital of the subsidiary company at any time before the expiry of 8 years from the date of transfer, then, the capital gain arising from such transfer shall become taxable by virtue of section 47A. In such case, the cost of acquisition of such asset to the transferee-company shall be the cost for which such asset was acquired by it [Section 49(3)].
- (14) Cost of acquisition of property subject to tax under section 56(2)(x): Where the capital gain arises from the transfer of such property which has been subject to tax under section 56(2)(x), the cost of acquisition of the property shall be deemed to be the value taken into account for the purposes of section 56(2)(x) [Section 49(4)].
- (15) Cost of acquisition of capital asset declared under Income Declaration Scheme, 2016: Where capital gain arises from the transfer of asset declared under the Income Declaration Scheme, 2016 and the tax, surcharge and penalty have been paid in accordance with the provisions of the Scheme on the fair market value of the asset as on the date of commencement of the Scheme, the cost of acquisition of the asset shall be deemed to be the fair market value of the asset which has been taken into account for the purposes of the said scheme [Section 49(5)].
- (16) Cost of Acquisition of specified capital asset referred under clause (c) of the Explanation to section 10(37A):

Where the capital gain arises from the transfer of a reconstituted plot or land, (received by the assessee in lieu of land or building or both transferred under the Land Pooling Scheme of Andhra Pradesh) which has been transferred after the expiry of 2 years from the end of the financial year in which the possession of such plot or land was handed over to the assessee, the cost of acquisition of such reconstituted plot or land shall be deemed to be its stamp duty value as on the last day of the second financial year after the end of the financial year in which the possession of the said plot or land was handed over to the assessee. [Section 49(6)]

For the purpose, "stamp duty value" means the value adopted or assessed or reassessable by the authority of the State Government for the purpose of payment of stamp duty in respect of an immovable property.

Exemption in respect of capital gains arising on transfer of Specified Capital Assets under the Land Pooling Scheme notified under the provisions of Andhra Pradesh Capital Region Development Authority Act, 2014 [Section 10(37A)]

- ◆ As per section 96 of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2014, the specified compensation received by the landowner in lieu of acquisition of land is exempt from income tax. The Land Pooling Scheme is an alternative form of arrangement made by the Government of Andhra Pradesh for formation of new capital city of Amaravati to avoid land acquisition disputes and lessen the financial burden associated with payment of compensation under that Act.
- ◆ In Land pooling scheme, the compensation in the form of reconstituted plot or land is provided to land owners. However, the existing provisions of the Act do not provide for exemption from tax on transfer of land under the land pooling scheme as well as on transfer of Land Pooling Ownership Certificates (LPOCs) or reconstituted plot or land.
- ◆ With a view to provide relief to an individual or Hindu undivided family who was the owner of such land as on 2nd June, 2014, and has transferred their land under the land pooling scheme notified under the provisions of Andhra Pradesh Capital Region Development Authority Act, 2014, clause (37A) of section 10 provides that in respect of said persons, capital gains arising from the transfer of the specified capital assets shall not be chargeable to tax under the Act:

Meaning of Specified Capital Asset:

Specified Capital Assets means

- the land or building or both owned by the assessee as on 2nd day of June, 2014 and which has been transferred under the land pooling scheme; or
- the land pooling ownership certificate(LPOC) issued to the assessee in lieu of transferred land or building or both or
- the reconstituted plot or land, as the case may be received by the assessee in lieu of land or building or both in accordance with the scheme, if such plot or land, as the case may be, so received is transferred within two years from the end of the financial year in which the possession of such plot or land was handed over to him.

Taxability/ Exemption of Capital Gains arising on transfer of Specified Capital Assets

- (17) Cost of acquisition of capital asset, being share in the project referred under section 45(5A): Where the capital gain arises from the transfer of a capital asset, being share in the project, in the form of land or building or both, referred to in section 45(5A) which is chargeable to tax in the previous year in which the completion of certificate for the whole or part of the project is issued by the competent authority), the cost of acquisition of such asset, shall be the amount which is deemed as full value of consideration in that sub-section i.e., stamp duty value on the date of issue of certificate of completion plus cash consideration.

However, this does not apply to a capital asset, being share in the project which is transferred on or before the date of issue of said completion certificate [Section 49(7)].

- (18) Cost of Acquisition of capital assets of entities in case of levy of tax on accreted income under section 115TD: Where the capital gain arises from the transfer of an asset, being the asset held by a trust or an institution in respect of which accreted income has been computed, and the tax has been paid thereon in accordance with the provisions relating to tax on accreted income of certain trusts and institutions under Chapter XII-EB, the cost of acquisition of such asset shall be deemed to be the fair market value of the asset which has been taken into account for computation of accreted income as on the specified date referred to in section 115TD(2) [Section 49(8)].

Note: Refer to Chapter 13 on “Assessment of Charitable or Religious Trusts or Institutions, Political Parties and Electoral Trusts” for understanding the concept of related income.

- (19) Cost of acquisition of a capital asset which was used by the assessee as an inventory: Where the capital gain arises from the transfer of a capital asset which was used by the assessee as inventory earlier before its conversion into capital asset, the cost of acquisition of such capital asset shall be the fair market value of the inventory as on the date of such conversion determined in the prescribed manner [Section 49(9)].

7.13 COST OF ACQUISITION [SECTION 55]

- (1) Goodwill of a business or a trademark or brand name associated with a business or a right to manufacture, produce or process any article or thing, or right to carry on any business or profession, tenancy rights, stage carriage permits and loom hours

- (i) In case of acquisition from previous owner: In the case of the above capital assets, if the assessee has purchased them from a previous owner, the cost of acquisition means the amount of the purchase price.
- (ii) In case of self-generated assets - There are circumstances where it is not possible to visualise cost of acquisition.

For example, suppose a doctor starts his profession. With the passage of time, the doctor acquires lot of reputation. He opens a clinic and runs it for 5 years. After 5 years he sells the clinic to another doctor for ₹ 10 lacs which includes ₹ 2 lacs for his reputation or goodwill.

Now a question arises as to how to find out the profit in respect of goodwill. It is obvious that the goodwill is self-generated and hence it is difficult to calculate the cost of its acquisition. However, it is certainly a capital asset.

The Supreme Court in CIT v. B.C. Srinivasa Shetty [1981] 128 ITR 294 (SC) held that in order to bring the gains on sale of capital assets to charge under section 45, it is necessary that the provisions dealing with the levy of capital gains tax must be read as a whole.

Section 48 deals with the mode of computing the capital gains. Unless the cost of acquisition is correctly ascertainable, it is not possible to apply the provisions of section 48. Self-generated goodwill is such a type of capital asset where it is not possible to visualise cost of acquisition. Once section 48 cannot be applied, the gains thereon cannot be brought to charge.

This decision of the Supreme Court was applicable not only to self-generated goodwill of a business but also to other self-generated assets like tenancy rights, stage carriage permits, loom hours etc.

In order to supersede the decision of the Supreme Court cited above, section 55 was amended. Accordingly, in case of self-generated assets namely, goodwill of a business or a trademark or brand name associated with a business or a right to manufacture, produce or process any article or thing, or right to carry on any business or profession, tenancy rights, stage carriage permits, or loom hours, the cost of acquisition will be taken to be nil.

However, it is significant to note that the above amendment does not cover self-generated goodwill of a profession. So, in respect of self-generated goodwill of a profession and other self-generated assets not specifically covered by the amended provisions of section 55, the decision of the Supreme Court in B. C. Srinivasa Setty's case will still apply.

- (iii) In case of other modes - In the following cases, cost of acquisition of goodwill of a business or a trademark or brand name associated with a business or a right to manufacture, produce or process any article or thing, or right to carry on any business or profession, tenancy rights, stage carriage permits and loom hours shall not be nil, but will be deemed to be the cost for which the previous owner of the property acquired it:

Where the capital asset became the property of the assessee —

- (a) On any distribution of assets on the total or partial partition of a Hindu undivided family.
- (b) Under a gift or will.
- (c) By succession, inheritance or devolution.
- (d) On any distribution of assets on the liquidation of a company.
- (e) Under a transfer to a revocable or an irrevocable trust.
- (f) Under any transfer referred to in section 47(iv)/ (v)/ (vi)/ (via)/ (viaa)/ (viab)/ (vib)/ (vic)/ (vica)/ (vicb)/ (vicc)/ (xiii)/ (xiiiib) or (xiv)
- (g) Where the assessee is a Hindu undivided family, by the mode referred to in section 64(2).

- (2) Financial assets - Many times persons who own shares or other securities become entitled to subscribe to any additional shares or securities. Further, they are also allotted additional shares or securities without any payment. Such shares or securities are referred to as financial assets in Income-tax Act. Section 55 provides the basis for ascertaining the cost of acquisition of such financial assets.
- (i) Original shares (which form the basis of entitlement of rights shares): In relation to the original financial asset on the basis of which the assessee becomes entitled to any additional financial assets, cost of acquisition means the amount actually paid for acquiring the original financial assets.
  - (ii) Rights entitlement (which is renounced by the assessee in favour of a person): In relation to any right to renounce the said entitlement to subscribe to the financial asset, when such a right is renounced by the assessee in favour of any person, cost of acquisition shall be taken to be nil in the case of such assessee.
  - (iii) Rights shares acquired by the assessee: In relation to the financial asset, to which the assessee has subscribed on the basis of the said entitlement, cost of acquisition means the amount actually paid by him for acquiring such asset.
  - (iv) Bonus Shares: In relation to the financial asset allotted to the assessee without any payment and on the basis of holding of any other financial assets, cost of acquisition shall be taken to be nil in the case of such assessee.

In other words, where bonus shares are allotted without any payment on the basis of holding of original shares, the cost of such bonus shares will be nil in the hands of the original shareholder.

Bonus shares allotted before 01.04.2001: However, in respect of bonus shares allotted before 1.4.2001, although the cost of acquisition of the shares is nil, the assessee may opt for the fair market value as on 1.4.2001 as the cost of acquisition of such bonus shares.
  - (v) Rights shares which are purchased by the person in whose favour the assessee has renounced the rights entitlement: In the case of any financial asset purchased by the person in whose favour the right to subscribe to such assets has been renounced, cost of acquisition means the aggregate of the amount of the purchase price paid by him to the person renouncing such right and the amount paid by him to the company or institution for acquiring such financial asset.
- (3) Equity shares received on demutualisation or corporatisation of a recognized stock exchange – In relation to equity shares allotted to a shareholder of a recognised stock exchange in India under a scheme for demutualisation or corporatisation approved by SEBI, the cost of acquisition of such shares shall be the cost of acquiring his original membership of the exchange.

(4) Clearing or trading right acquired on demutualisation or corporatisation of a recognized stock exchange – The cost of a capital asset, being trading or clearing rights of a recognised stock exchange acquired by a shareholder (who has been allotted equity share or shares under such scheme of demutualisation or corporatisation), shall be deemed to be nil.

(5) Long-term capital assets referred to in section 112A

The cost of acquisition in relation to the long-term capital assets being,

- o equity shares in a company on which STT is paid both at the time of purchase and transfer or
- o unit of equity oriented fund or unit of business trust on which STT is paid at the time of transfer.

acquired before 1st February, 2018 shall be the higher of

- (i) cost of acquisition of such asset; and
- (ii) lower of
  - (a) the fair market value of such asset; and
  - (b) the full value of consideration received or accruing as a result of the transfer of the capital asset.

(6) Any other capital asset-

- (i) Where the capital asset become the property of the assessee before 1-4-2001, cost of acquisition means the cost of acquisition of the asset to the assessee or the fair market value of the asset on 1-4-2001 at the option of the assessee.
- (ii) Where the capital asset became the property of the assessee by any of the modes specified in section 49(1): The cost of acquisition to the assessee will be the cost of acquisition to the previous owner. Even in such cases, where the capital asset became the property of the previous owner before 1-4-2001, the assessee has got a right to opt for the fair market value as on 1-4-2001.

Note: The provisions contained in (i) & (ii) of (6) above shall also apply to the financial assets mentioned in (i) to (v) of (2) and long term capital assets referred to in section 112A of (5) above.

- (iii) Where the capital asset became the property of the assessee on the distribution of the capital assets of a company on its liquidation and the assessee has been assessed to capital gains in respect of that asset under section 46, the cost of acquisition means the fair market value of the asset on the date of distribution.
- (iv) A share or a stock of a company may become the property of an assessee under the following circumstances:
- the consolidation and division of all or any of the share capital of the company into shares of larger amount than its existing shares.
  - the conversion of any shares of the company into stock,
  - the re-conversion of any stock of the company into shares,
  - the sub-division of any of the shares of the company into shares of smaller amount, or

- (e) the conversion of one kind of shares of the company into another kind.

In the above circumstances the cost of acquisition to the assessee will mean the cost of acquisition of the asset calculated with reference to the cost of acquisition of the shares or stock from which such asset is derived.

- (7) Where the cost for which the previous owner acquired the property cannot be ascertained, the cost of acquisition to the previous owner means the fair market value on the date on which the capital asset became the property of the previous owner.

SOLUTION

The capital gains on the sale of the capital asset converted to stock-in-trade is taxable in the given case. It arises in the year of conversion (i.e. P.Y. 2017-18) but will be taxable only in the year in which the stock-in-trade is sold (i.e. P.Y. 2019-20). Profits from business will also be taxable in the year of sale of the stock-in-trade (P.Y. 2019-20).

The long-term capital gains and business income for the A.Y.2020-21 are calculated as under:

Particulars	₹	₹
Profits and Gains from Business or Profession
Sale proceeds of the stock-in-trade	6,50,000
Less: Cost of the stock-in-trade (FMV on the date of conversion)	4,50,000	2,00,000
Long Term Capital Gains

Less: Indexed cost of acquisition (₹ 50,000 x 272/109)	1,24,771	3,25,229

Note: For the purpose of indexation, the cost inflation index of the year in which the asset is converted into stock-in-trade should be considered.

7.14 COST OF IMPROVEMENT [SECTION 55]

- (1) Goodwill of a business, etc.: In relation to a capital asset being goodwill of a business or a right to manufacture, produce or process any article or thing, or right to carry on any business or profession, the cost of improvement shall be taken to be Nil.
- (2) Any other capital asset:
  - (i) Where the capital asset became the property of the previous owner or the assessee before 1-4-2001, cost of improvement means all expenditure of a capital nature incurred in making any addition or alteration to the capital asset on or after the said date by the previous owner or the assessee.

- (ii) In any other case, cost of improvement means all expenditure of a capital nature incurred in making any additions or alterations to the capital assets by the assessee after it became his property.

However, there are cases where the capital asset might become the property of the assessee by any of the modes specified in section 49(1). In that case, cost of improvement means capital expenditure in making any addition or alterations to the capital assets incurred by the previous owner.

However, cost of improvement does not include any expenditure which is deductible in computing the income chargeable under the head "Income from house property", "Profits and gains of business or profession" or "Income from other sources".

7.15 COMPUTATION OF CAPITAL GAINS IN CASE OF DEPRECIABLE ASSETS [SECTIONS 50 & 50A]

- (1) Transfer of depreciable assets [Section 50]: Section 50 provides for the computation of capital gains in case of depreciable assets. It may be noted that where the capital asset is a depreciable asset forming part of a block of assets, section 50 will have overriding effect in spite of anything contained in section 2(42A) which defines a short-term capital asset.

Accordingly, where the capital asset is an asset forming part of a block of assets in respect of which depreciation has been allowed, the provisions of sections 48 and 49 shall be subject to the following modification:

- Where the full value of consideration received or accruing for the transfer of the asset plus the full value of such consideration for the transfer of any other capital asset falling with the block of assets during previous year exceeds the aggregate of the following amounts namely:
  - expenditure incurred wholly and exclusively in connection with such transfer;
  - WDV of the block of assets at the beginning of the previous year;
  - the actual cost of any asset falling within the block of assets acquired during the previous year such excess shall be deemed to be the capital gains arising from the transfer of short-term capital assets.

- Where all assets in a block are transferred during the previous year, the block itself will cease to exist. In such a situation, the difference between the sale value of the assets and the WDV of the block of assets at the beginning of the previous year together with the actual cost of any asset falling within that block of assets acquired by the assessee during the previous year will be deemed to be the capital gains arising from the transfer of short-term capital assets.

V	Full value of consideration
C	Opening WDV of Block (+) Actual Cost of Asset acquired in the Block during the P.Y. (+) Expenses in connection with transfer of asset
STCG	Short Term Capital Gain
STCL	Short Term Capital Loss
WDV	Written Down Value

- (2) Cost of acquisition in case of power sector assets [Section 50A]: With respect to the power sector, in case of depreciable assets referred to in section 32(1)(i), the provisions of sections 48 and 49 shall apply subject to the modification that the WDV of the asset (as defined in section 43(6)), as adjusted, shall be taken to be the cost of acquisition.

Singhania & Co., a sole proprietorship own six machines, put in use for business in March, 2019. The depreciation on these machines is charged @15%. The written down value of these machines as on 1st April, 2019 was ₹ 8,50,000. Three of the old machines were sold on 10th June, 2019 for ₹ 11,00,000. A second hand plant was bought for ₹ 8,50,000 on 30th November, 2019.

You are required to:

- (i) determine the claim of depreciation for Assessment Year 2020-21.
- (ii) compute the capital gains liable to tax for Assessment Year 2020-21.
- (iii) If Singhania & Co. had sold the three machines in June, 2019 for ₹ 21,00,000, will there be any difference in your above workings? Examine.

SOLUTION

- (i) Computation of depreciation for A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	₹
W.D.V. of the block as on 1.4.2019	8,50,000
Add: Purchase of second hand plant during the year	8,50,000
	17,00,000
Less: Sale consideration of old machinery during the year	11,00,000
W.D.V of the block as on 31.03.2020	6,00,000

Since the value of the block as on 31.3.2020 comprises of a new asset which has been put to use for less than 180 days, depreciation is restricted to 50% of the prescribed percentage of 15% i.e. depreciation is restricted to 7½%. Therefore, the depreciation allowable for the year is ₹ 45,000, being 7½% of ₹ 6,00,000.

- (ii) The provisions under section 50 for computation of capital gains in the case of depreciable assets can be invoked only under the following circumstances:
- When one or some of the assets in the block are sold for consideration more than the value of the block.
  - When all the assets are transferred for a consideration more than the value of the block.
  - When all the assets are transferred for a consideration less than the value of the block.

Since in the first two cases, the sale consideration is more than the written down value of the block, the computation would result in short term capital gains.

In the third case, since the written down value exceeds the sale consideration, the resultant figure would be a short-term capital loss.

In the given case, capital gains will not arise as the block of asset continues to exist, and some of the assets are sold for a price which is lesser than the written down value of the block.

- (iii) If the three machines are sold in June, 2019 for ₹ 21,00,000, then short term capital gains would arise, since the sale consideration is more than the aggregate of the written down value of the block at the beginning of the year and the additions made during the year.

Particulars	₹	₹
Sale consideration		21,00,000
Less: W.D.V. of the machines as on 1.4.2019	8,50,000

Short term capital gains		4,00,000

7.16 CAPITAL GAINS IN RESPECT OF SLUMP SALE [SECTION 50B]

- (1) Long term capital gains - Any profits or gains arising from the slump sale of one or more undertakings held for more than 36 months, shall be chargeable to income-tax as capital gains arising from the transfer of long-term capital assets and shall be deemed to be the income of the previous year in which the transfer took place.

Short term capital gains - Any profits and gains arising from such transfer of one or more undertakings held by the assessee for not more than thirty-six months shall be deemed to be short-term capital gains [Sub-section (1)].

- (2) Deemed cost of acquisition and cost of improvement - The net worth of the undertaking or the division, as the case may be, shall be deemed to be the cost of acquisition and the cost of improvement for the purposes of sections 48 and 49 in relation to capital assets of such undertaking or division transferred by way of such sale and the provisions contained in the second proviso to section 48 shall be ignored [Sub-section (2)]. It means no indexation benefit would be available
- (3) Report of a Chartered Accountant - Every assessee in the case of slump sale shall furnish in the prescribed form along with the return of income, a report of a chartered accountant indicating the computation of net worth of the undertaking or division, as the case may be, and certifying that the net worth of the undertaking or division has been correctly arrived at in accordance with the provisions of this section [Sub-section (3)].

Meaning of Certain Terms:

Explanation	Term	Particulars
1	Net worth	Aggregate value of total assets of the undertaking or division as reduced by the value of liabilities of such undertaking or division as appearing in the books of account.  However, any change in the value of assets on account of revaluation of assets shall not be considered for this purpose.
2	Aggregate value of total assets of undertaking or division	In the case of depreciable assets: The written down value of block of assets determined in accordance with the provisions contained in sub-item (C) of item (i) of section 43(6)(c);  Capital asset in respect of which 100% deduction is claimed: In case of capital assets in respect of which the whole of the expenditure has been allowed or is allowable as a deduction under section 35AD: Nil ;  For all other assets: Book value

Mr. A is a proprietor of Akash Enterprises having 2 units. He transferred on 1.4.2019 his Unit 1 by way of slump sale for a total consideration of ₹ 25 lacs. Unit 1 was started in the year 2005-06. The expenses incurred for this transfer were ₹ 28,000. His Balance Sheet as on 31.3.2019 is as under:

Liabilities	Total (₹)	Assets	Unit 1 (₹)	Unit 2 (₹)	Total (₹)

Other information:

- Revaluation reserve is created by revising upward the value of the building of Unit 1.
- No individual value of any asset is considered in the transfer deed.
- Other assets of Unit 1 include patents acquired on 1.7.2017 for ₹ 50,000 on which no depreciation has been charged.

Machinery		3,00,000
Debtors		1,00,000
Patents (See Note 2 below)		28,125

Other assets (₹ 1,50,000 – ₹ 50,000)		1,00,000
Total assets		14,28,125
Less: Creditors	37,500
Bank Loan	1,40,000	1,77,500
Net worth		12,50,625

2. Written down value of patents as on 1.4.2019

Value of patents	₹
Cost as on 1.7.2017	50,000
Less: Depreciation @ 25% for Financial Year 2017-18	12,500
WDV as on 1.4.2018	37,500
Less: Depreciation for Financial Year 2018-19	9,375
WDV as on 1.4.2019	28,125

For the purposes of computation of net worth, the written down value determined as per section 43(6) has to be considered in the case of depreciable assets. The problem has been solved assuming that the Balance Sheet values of ₹ 3 lakh and ₹ 9 lakh (₹ 12 lakh – ₹ 3 lakh) represent the written down value of machinery and building, respectively, of Unit 1.

3. Since the Unit is held for more than 36 months, capital gain arising would be long term capital gain. However, indexation benefit is not available in case of slump sale.

7.17 SPECIAL PROVISION FOR FULL VALUE OF CONSIDERATION IN CERTAIN CASES [SECTION 50C]

- (1) Stamp Duty Value would be the Full value of consideration: Where the consideration received or accruing as a result of transfer of a capital asset, being land or building or both, is less than the value adopted or assessed or assessable by any authority of a State Government (Stamp Valuation Authority) for the purpose of payment of stamp duty in respect of such asset, such value adopted or assessed or assessable shall be deemed to be the full value of the consideration received or accruing as a result of such transfer [Sub-section (1)].

Full value of consideration where the date of agreement and date of registration are not the same:

In order to ensure parity in tax treatment vis-a-vis section 43CA, it has been provided that where the date of the agreement fixing the amount of consideration for the transfer of immovable property and the date of registration are not the same, the stamp duty value on the date of the agreement may be taken for the purposes of computing the full value of consideration.

Condition for taking Stamp duty value of the date of agreement:

However, the stamp duty value on the date of agreement can be adopted only in a case where the amount of consideration, or a part thereof, has been paid by way of an account payee cheque or account payee bank draft or use of electronic clearing system through a bank account or through such other prescribed electronic mode, on or before the date of the agreement for the transfer of such immovable property.

However, where the stamp duty value does not exceed 105% of the sale consideration received or accruing as a result of the transfer, the consideration so received or accruing shall be deemed to be the full value of the consideration.

- (2) Reference to Valuation Officer: The Assessing Officer may refer the valuation of the asset to a valuation officer as defined in section 2(r) of the Wealth-tax Act, 1957 in the following cases -
- (i) Where the assessee claims before any Assessing Officer that the value adopted or assessed or assessable by the authority for payment of stamp duty exceeds the fair market value of the property as on the date of transfer and
  - (ii) the value so adopted or assessed or assessable by such authority has not been disputed in any appeal or revision or no reference has been made before any other authority, court or High Court.
- (3) Where the value ascertained by such valuation officer exceeds the value adopted or assessed or assessable by the Stamp authority the value adopted or assessed or assessable shall be taken as the full value of the consideration received or accruing as a result of the transfer [Sub-section (3)].

The term “assessable” has been added to cover transfers executed through power of attorney. The term ‘assessable’ has been defined to mean the price which the stamp valuation authority would have, notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any other law for the time being in force, adopted or assessed, if it were referred to such authority for the purposes of the payment of stamp duty.

7.18 SPECIAL PROVISION FOR FULL VALUE OF CONSIDERATION FOR TRANSFER OF UNLISTED SHARES [SECTION 50CA]

In order to ensure the full consideration is not understated in case of transfer of unlisted shares, section 50CA provides that where the consideration received or accruing as a result of transfer of a capital asset, being share of a company other than a quoted share, is less than the fair market value of such share determined in such manner as may be prescribed, such fair market value shall be deemed to be the full value of consideration received or accruing as a result of such transfer.

For the purpose, “quoted shares” means the share quoted on any recognized stock exchange with regularity from time to time, where the quotation of such share is based on current transaction made in the ordinary course of business.

The provisions of this section would, however, not be applicable to any consideration received or accruing as a result of transfer by such class of persons and subject to such conditions as may be prescribed.

Note: The fair market value of the unquoted shares would be determined in the manner provided in sub-clause (b) or sub-clause (c), as the case may be, of Rule 11UA(1)(c) and for this purpose the reference to valuation date in the Rule 11U and 11UA shall mean the date on which the capital asset, being unquoted share of a company is transferred. (Rule 11UAA)<sup>5</sup>.

7.19 FAIR MARKET VALUE OF THE CAPITAL ASSET ON THE DATE OF TRANSFER TO BE TAKEN AS SALE CONSIDERATION, IN CASES WHERE THE CONSIDERATION IS NOT DETERMINABLE [SECTION 50D]

Section 50D provides that, in case where the consideration received or accruing as a result of the transfer of a capital asset by an assessee is not ascertainable or cannot be determined, then, for the purpose of computing income chargeable to tax as capital gains, the fair market value of the said asset on the date of transfer shall be deemed to be the full value of consideration received or accruing as a result of such transfer.

7.20 ADVANCE MONEY RECEIVED [SECTION 51]

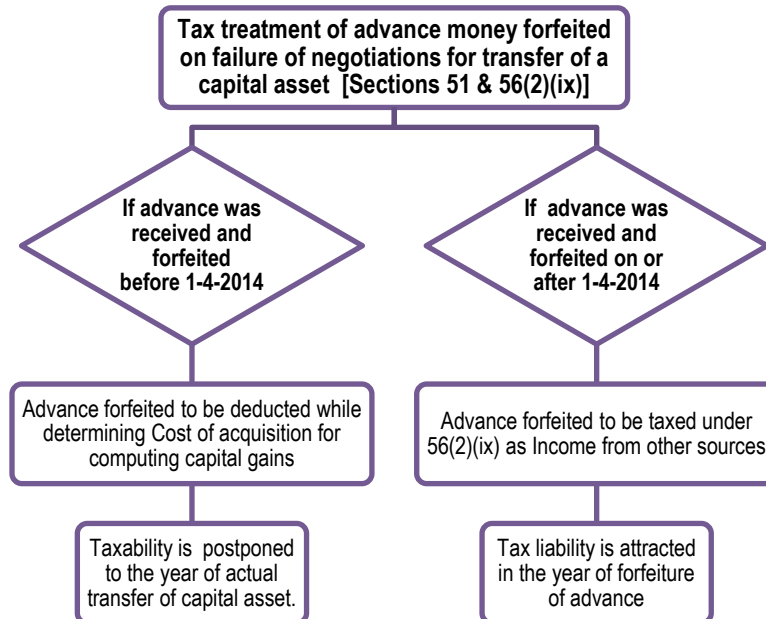

It is possible for an assessee to receive some advance in regard to the transfer of capital asset. Due to the break-down of the negotiation, the assessee may have retained the advance.

Section 51 provides that while calculating capital gains, the above advance retained by the assessee must go to reduce the cost of acquisition. However, if advance has been received and retained by the previous owner and not the assessee himself, then the same will not go to reduce the cost of acquisition of the assessee.

Section 56(2)(ix) provides for the taxability of any sum of money, received as an advance or otherwise in the course of negotiations for transfer of a capital asset. Consequently, such sum shall be chargeable to income-tax under the head 'Income from other sources', if such sum is forfeited on or after 1st April, 2014 and the negotiations do not result in transfer of such capital asset.

In order to avoid double taxation of the advance received and retained, section 51 provides that where any sum of money received as an advance or otherwise in the course of negotiations for transfer of a capital asset has been included in the total income of the assessee for any previous year in accordance with section 56(2)(ix), then, such amount shall not be deducted from the cost for which the asset was acquired or the written down value or the fair market value, as the case may be, in computing the cost of acquisition.

However, any such sum of money forfeited before 1st April, 2014, will be deducted from the cost of acquisition for computing capital gains.

Mr. Kay purchases a house property on April 10, 1992 for ₹ 65,000. The fair market value of the house property on April 1, 2001 was ₹ 2,70,000. On August 31, 2004, Mr. Kay enters into an agreement with Mr. Jay for sale of such property for ₹ 3,70,000 and received an amount of ₹ 60,000 as advance. However, as Mr. Jay did not pay the balance amount, Mr. Kay forfeited the advance. In May 2008, Mr. Kay constructed the first floor by incurring a cost of ₹ 2,35,000. Subsequently, in January 2009, Mr. Kay gifted the house to his friend Mr. Dee. On February 10, 2020, Mr. Dee sold the house for ₹ 12,00,000.

Compute the capital gains in the hands of Mr. Dee for A.Y.2020-21.

SOLUTION*Computation of taxable capital gains of Mr. Dee for A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	₹	₹
Sale consideration		12,00,000
Less: Indexed cost of acquisition (See Note below)	5,69,562
Indexed cost of improvement (See Note below)	4,95,730	10,65,292
Long-term capital gain		1,34,708

Note: For the purpose of capital gains, holding period is considered from the date on which the house was purchased by Mr. Kay, till the date of sale. However, indexation of cost of acquisition is considered from the date on which the house was gifted by Mr. Kay to Mr. Dee, till the date of sale. i.e. from January 2009 (P.Y. 2008-09) to February, 2020 (P.Y. 2019-20).

Indexed cost of acquisition = (₹ 2,70,000 × 289/137) = ₹ 5,69,562

Indexed cost of improvement = (₹ 2,35,000 × 289/137) = ₹ 4,95,730

Amount forfeited by previous owner, Mr. Kay, shall not be deducted from cost of acquisition.

Alternative view - As per the view expressed by Bombay High Court in CIT v. Manjula J. Shah 16 Taxman 42, in case the cost of acquisition of the capital asset in the hands of the assessee is taken to be cost of such asset in the hands of the previous owner, the indexation benefit would be available from the year in which the capital asset is acquired by the previous owner. If this view is considered, the indexed cost of acquisition would have to be calculated by taking the CII of F.Y.2001-02, since the Fair Market Value as on 1.4.2001 has been taken as the cost of acquisition.

Note – In case, Mr. Kay had gifted the house to his friend Mr. Dee on or after 1.10.2009, the stamp duty value of the property which was subject to tax in the hands of Mr. Dee under section 56(2) would be deemed to be the cost of acquisition for computation of capital gains.

The property was proposed to be sold to Mr. Z in the month of May, 2007 and an advance of ₹ 40,000 was taken from him. As the entire money was not paid in time, Mr. X forfeited the advance and subsequently sold the property to Mr. Y in the month of March, 2020 for ₹ 52,00,000. The fair value of the property on April 1, 2001 was ₹ 11,90,000. What is the capital gain chargeable in the hands of Mr. X for the A.Y. 2020-21?

7.21 EXEMPTION OF CAPITAL GAINS

(1) Exemption under section 10

The following are the exemption in respect of capital gains under section 10:

(i) Exemption of capital gain on transfer of a unit of Unit Scheme, 1964 (US 64) [Section 10(33)]

This clause provides that any income arising from the transfer of specified units, shall be exempt from tax. Such transfer should take place on or after 1.4.2002.

(ii) Exemption of capital gains on compulsory acquisition of agricultural land situated within specified urban limits [Section 10(37)]

With a view to mitigate the hardship faced by the farmers whose agricultural land situated in specified urban limits has been compulsorily acquired, clause (37) provide to exempt the capital gains arising to an individual or a HUF from transfer of urban agricultural land by way of compulsory acquisition.

Such exemption is available where the compensation or the enhanced compensation or consideration, as the case may be, is received on or after 1.4.2004.

The exemption is available only when such land has been used for agricultural purposes during the preceding two years by such individual or a parent of his or by such HUF.

Clarification on taxability of the compensation received by the land owners for the land acquired under the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (RFCTLARR Act) [Circular No. 36/2016, dated 25-10-2016]

The RFCTLARR Act which came into effect from 1st January, 2014, in section 96, inter alia provides that income-tax shall not be levied on any award or agreement made (except those made under section 46) under the RFCTLARR Act. Therefore, compensation received for compulsory acquisition of land under the RFCTLARR Act (except those made under section 46 of RFCTLARR Act), is exempted from the levy of income-tax.

As no distinction has been made between compensation received for compulsory acquisition of agricultural land and non-agricultural land in the matter of providing exemption from income-tax under the RFCTLARR Act, the exemption provided under section 96 of the RFCTLARR Act is wider in scope than the tax-exemption provided under the existing provisions of Income-tax Act, 1961.

The CBDT has clarified that compensation received in respect of award or agreement which has been exempted from levy of income-tax vide section 96 of the RFCTLARR Act shall also not be taxable under the provisions of Income-tax Act, 1961 even if there is no specific provision for exemption of such compensation in the Income-tax Act, 1961.

ILLUSTRATION 16

Mr. Kumar has an agricultural land costing ₹ 6 lakh in Lucknow on 1.4.2003 and has been using it for agricultural purposes till 1.8.2012 when the Government took over compulsory acquisition of this land. A compensation of ₹ 12 lakh was settled. The compensation was received by Mr. Kumar on 1.7.2019. Compute the amount of capital gains taxable in the hands of Mr. Kumar.

Cost Inflation Index: 2003-04: 109, 2012-13: 200, 2019-20: 289

SOLUTION

In the given problem, compulsory acquisition of an urban agricultural land has taken place and the compensation is received after 1.4.2004. This land had also been used for at least 2 years by the assessee himself for agricultural purposes. Thus, as per section 10(37), entire capital gains arising on such compulsory acquisition will be fully exempt and nothing is taxable in the hands of Mr. Kumar in the year of receipt of compensation i.e. A.Y.2020-21.

ILLUSTRATION 17

Will your answer be any different if Mr. Kumar had by his own will sold this land to his friend Mr. Sharma? Examine.

SOLUTION

As per section 10(37), exemption is available if compulsory acquisition of urban agricultural land takes place. Since the sale is out of own will and desire, the provisions of this section are not attracted and the capital gains arising on such sale will be taxable in the hands of Mr. Kumar.

ILLUSTRATION 18

Will your answer be different if Mr. Kumar had not used this land for agricultural activities? Examine and compute the amount of capital gains taxable in the hands of Mr. Kumar, if any.

SOLUTION

As per section 10(37), exemption is available only when such land has been used for agricultural purposes during the preceding two years by such individual or a parent of his or by such HUF. Since the assessee has not used it for agricultural activities, the provisions of this section are not attracted and the capital gains arising on such compulsory acquisition will be taxable in the hands of Mr. Kumar in the year of receipt of compensation i.e., A.Y. 2020-21.

Computation of capital gains

Particulars	Amount (₹)
Sales consideration	12,00,000
Less: Cost of acquisition (₹ 6,00,000 x 200/109)	11,00,917
Long term capital Gains	99,083

ILLUSTRATION 19

Will your answer be different if the land belonged to ABC Ltd. and not Mr. Kumar and compensation on compulsory acquisition was received by the company? Examine.

SOLUTION

Section 10(37) exempts capital gains arising to an individual or a HUF from transfer of agricultural land by way of compulsory acquisition. If the land belongs to ABC Ltd., a company, the provisions of this section are not attracted and the capital gains arising on such compulsory acquisition will be taxable in the hands of ABC Ltd.

(2) Exemption of Capital Gains under section 54/ 54B/ 54D/ 54EC/ 54EE/ 54F/ 54G/ 54GA/ 54GB/ 54H*(i) Capital Gains on sale of residential house [Section 54]

Eligible assessee – Individual & HUF

Conditions to be fulfilled

- There should be a transfer of residential house (buildings or lands appurtenant thereto)
- It must be a long-term capital asset
- Income from such house should be chargeable under the head “Income from house property”
- Where the amount of capital gains exceeds ₹ 2 crore

Where the amount of capital gain exceeds ₹ 2 crore, one residential house in India should be –

- purchased within 1 year before or 2 years after the date of transfer (or)

- constructed within a period of 3 years after the date of transfer.

Where the amount of capital gains does not exceed ₹2 crore

Where the amount of capital gains does not exceed ₹ 2 crore, the assessee i.e., individual or HUF, may at his option,

- purchase two residential houses in India within 1 year before or 2 years after the date of transfer (or)
- construct two residential houses in India within a period of 3 years after the date of transfer.

Where during any assessment year, the assessee has exercised the option to purchase or construct two residential houses in India, he shall not be subsequently entitled to exercise the option for the same or any other assessment year.

This implies that if an assessee has availed the option of claiming benefit of section 54 in respect of purchase of two residential houses in Jaipur and Jodhpur, say, in respect of capital gains of ₹ 1.50 crores arising from transfer of residential house at Bombay in the P.Y.2019-20 then, he will not be entitled to avail the benefit of section 54 again in respect of purchase of two residential houses in, say, Pune and Baroda, in respect of capital gains of ₹ 1.20 crores arising from transfer of residential house in Jaipur in the P.Y.2023-24, even though the capital gains arising on transfer of the residential house at Jaipur does not exceed ₹ 2 crore.

- If such investment is not made before the date of filing of return of income, then the capital gain has to be deposited under the CGAS. (Refer points (x) and (xi) at the end of 7.21). Amount utilized by the assessee for purchase or construction of new asset and the amount so deposited shall be deemed to be the cost of new asset.

Quantum of Exemption

- If cost of new residential house or houses, as the case may be  $\geq$  Long term capital gains, entire long term capital gains is exempt.
- If cost of new residential house or houses, as the case may be  $<$  Long term capital gains, long term capital gains to the extent of cost of new residential house is exempt

Examples

- Example 1 - If the long-term capital gains is ₹ 5 lakhs and the cost of the new house is ₹ 7 lakhs, then, the entire long-term capital gains of ₹ 5 lakhs is exempt.

- Example 2 - If long-term capital gains is ₹ 5 lakhs and cost of new house is ₹ 3 lakhs, then, long-term capital gains is exempt only upto ₹ 3 lakhs. Balance ₹ 2 lakhs is taxable @ 20%.

Consequences of transfer of new asset before 3 years

- If the new asset is transferred before 3 years from the date of its acquisition or construction, then, cost of the asset will be reduced by capital gains exempted earlier for computing capital gains.
- Continuing Example 1, if the new house was sold after 21 months for ₹ 8 lakhs, then short term capital gain chargeable to tax would be –

Particulars	₹
Net Consideration	8,00,000
Less: Cost of acquisition minus capital gains exempt earlier (₹ 7,00,000 – ₹ 5,00,000)	2,00,000
Short term capital gains chargeable to tax	6,00,000

ILLUSTRATION 20

Mr. Cee purchased a residential house on July 20, 2017 for ₹ 10,00,000 and made some additions to the house incurring ₹ 2,00,000 in August 2017. He sold the house property in April 2019 for ₹ 20,00,000. Out of the sale proceeds, he spent ₹ 5,00,000 to purchase another house property in September 2019.

What is the amount of capital gains taxable in the hands of Mr. Cee for the A.Y. 2020-21?

SOLUTION

The house is sold before 24 months from the date of purchase. Hence, the house is a short-term capital asset and no benefit of indexation would be available.

Particulars	₹
Sale consideration	20,00,000
Less: Cost of acquisition	10,00,000
Cost of improvement	2,00,000
Short-term capital gains	8,00,000

Note: The exemption of capital gains under section 54 is available only in case of long-term capital asset. As the house is short-term capital asset, Mr. Cee cannot claim exemption under section 54. Thus, the amount of taxable short-term capital gains is ₹ 8,00,000.

(ii) Capital Gains on transfer of agricultural land [Section 54B]*Eligible assessee – Individual & HUFConditions to be fulfilled

- There should be a transfer of urban agricultural land.
- Such land must have been used for agricultural purposes by the assessee, being an individual or his parent, or a HUF in the 2 years immediately preceding the date of transfer.
- He should purchase another agricultural land (urban or rural) within 2 years from the date of transfer.
- If such investment is not made before the date of filing of return of income, then the capital gain has to be deposited under the CGAS (Refer points (x) and (xi) at the end of 7.21). Amount utilized by the assessee for purchase of new asset and the amount so deposited shall be deemed to be the cost of new asset.

Quantum of exemption

- If cost of new agricultural land  $\geq$  capital gains, entire capital gains is exempt.
- If cost of new agricultural land  $<$  capital gains, capital gains to the extent of cost of new agricultural land is exempt.

Examples

- Example 1 - If the capital gains is ₹ 3 lakhs and the cost of the new agricultural land is ₹ 4 lakhs, then the entire capital gains of ₹ 3 lakhs is exempt.
- Example 2 - If capital gains is ₹ 3 lakhs and cost of new agricultural land is ₹ 2 lakhs, then capital gains is exempt only upto ₹ 2 lakhs.

Consequences of transfer of new agricultural land before 3 years

- If the new agricultural land is transferred before 3 years from the date of its acquisition, then cost of the land will be reduced by capital gains exempted earlier for computing capital gains of new agricultural land.
- However, if the new agricultural land is a rural agricultural land, there would be no capital gains on transfer of such land.
- Continuing Example 1, if the new agricultural land (urban land) is sold after, say, 1 year for ₹ 6 lakhs, then short term capital gain chargeable to tax would be –

Particulars	₹	₹
Net consideration		6,00,000

Less: Cost of acquisition minus capital gains exempt earlier (₹ 4,00,000 – ₹ 3,00,000)		1,00,000

(iii) Capital Gains on transfer by way of compulsory acquisition of land and building of an industrial undertaking [Section 54D]

Eligible assessee – Any assessee

Conditions to be fulfilled

- There must be compulsory acquisition of land and building or any right in land or building forming part of an industrial undertaking.
- The land and building should have been used by the assessee for purposes of the business of the industrial undertaking in the 2 years immediately preceding the date of transfer.
- The assessee must purchase any other land or building or construct any building (for shifting or re-establishing the existing undertaking or setting up a new industrial undertaking) within 3 years from the date of transfer.
- If such investment is not made before the date of filing of return of income, then the capital gain has to be deposited under the CGAS. (Refer point (x) and (xi) at the end of 7.21). Amount utilized by the assessee for purchase of new asset and the amount so deposited shall be deemed to be the cost of new asset

- If cost of new asset  $\geq$  Capital gains, entire capital gains is exempt.
- If cost of new asset  $<$  Capital gains, capital gains to the extent of cost of new asset is exempt.

Note: The exemption in respect of capital gains from transfer of capital asset would be available even in respect of short-term capital asset, being land or building or any right in any land or building, provided such capital asset is used by assessee for the industrial undertaking belonging to him, even if he was not the owner for the said period of 2 years.

Consequences of transfer of new asset before 3 years

- If the new asset is transferred before 3 years from the date of its acquisition, then cost of the asset will be reduced by capital gains exempted earlier for computing capital gains.

Taxable long term capital gain	1,04,867

(iv) Capital Gains not chargeable on investment in certain bonds [Section 54EC]

Eligible assessee – Any assessee

Conditions to be fulfilled

- There should be transfer of a long-term capital asset being land or building or both.
- Such asset can also be a depreciable asset held for more than 36 months. [CIT v. Dempo Company Ltd (2016) 387 ITR 354 (SC)]
- The capital gains arising from such transfer should be invested in a long-term specified asset within 6 months from the date of transfer.
- Long-term specified asset means specified bonds, redeemable after 5 years, issued on or after 1.4.2018 by the National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) or the Rural Electrification Corporation Limited (RECL) or any other bond notified by the Central Government in this behalf.
- The assessee should not transfer or convert or avail loan or advance on the security of such bonds for a period of 5 years from the date of acquisition of such bonds.

Other points

- In case of conversion of capital asset into stock in trade and subsequent sale of stock in trade - Period of 6 months to be reckoned from the date of sale of stock in trade for the purpose of section 54EC exemption [CBDT Circular No.791 dated 2-6-2000].

- Receipt of money on liquidation of company – is chargeable to tax in the hands of shareholders [Section 46(2)] – However, there is no transfer of capital asset in such a case – Therefore, exemption under section 54EC is not available – CIT v. Ruby Trading Co. (P) Ltd. 259 ITR 54 (Raj.)

Quantum of exemption

Capital gains or amount invested in specified bonds, whichever is lower.

Ceiling limit for investment in long-term specified asset

The maximum investment which can be made in notified bonds or bonds of NHAI and RECL, out of capital gains arising from transfer of one or more assets, during the previous year in which the original asset is transferred and in the subsequent financial year cannot exceed ₹ 50 lakhs.

Violation of condition

- In case of transfer or conversion of such bonds or availing loan or advance on security of such bonds before the expiry of 5 years, the capital gain exempted earlier shall be taxed as long-term capital gain in the year of violation of condition.

ILLUSTRATION 22

Long term capital gain of ₹ 75 lakh arising from transfer of building on 1.5.2019 will be fully exempt from tax if such capital gain is invested in the bonds redeemable after five years, issued by NHAI under section 54EC. Examine with reasons whether the given statement is true or false having regard to the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961.

SOLUTION

False: The exemption under section 54EC has been restricted, by limiting the maximum investment in long term specified assets (i.e. bonds of NHAI or RECL or any other bond notified by Central Government in this behalf, redeemable after 5 years) to ₹ 50 lakh, whether such investment is made during the relevant previous year or the subsequent previous year, or both. Therefore, in this case, the exemption under section 54EC can be availed only to the extent of ₹ 50 lakh, provided the investment is made before 1.11.2019 (i.e., within six months from the date of transfer).

- (v) Exemption of long-term capital gains on investment in notified units of specified fund [Section 54EE]

Objective:

For incentivising the start-up ecosystem in India, the 'start-up India Action Plan' envisages establishment of a Fund of Funds which intends to raise ₹ 2,500 crores annually for four years to finance the start-ups.

Eligible assessee – Any assessee

Exemption of LTCG invested in units of specified fund:

- There should be transfer of a long-term capital asset.
- The capital gains arising from such transfer should be invested in a long-term specified asset within 6 months from the date of transfer.
- Long-term specified asset means a unit or units issued before 1st April, 2019 of such fund, as may be notified by the Central Government in this behalf.
- The assessee should not transfer or avail loan or advance on the security of such units for a period of 3 years from the date of acquisition of such units.

Quantum of Exemption:

- If amount invested in notified units of specified fund  $\geq$  capital gains, entire capital gains is exempt.
- If amount invested in notified units of specified fund  $<$  capital gains, capital gains to the extent of cost of amount invested in notified units is exempt.

Ceiling limit for investment in units of the specified fund

The maximum investment in units of the specified fund in any financial year is ₹ 50 lakh. Further, the investment made by an assessee in the units of specified fund out of capital gains arising from the transfer of one or more capital assets, cannot exceed ₹ 50 lakh, whether the investment is made in the same financial year or subsequent financial year or partly in the same financial year and partly in the subsequent financial year.

Conditions for availing exemption:

Consequence of transfer of units before 3 years:

Where units are transferred or loan or advance is taken on security of such units within a period of 3 years from its acquisition, the capital gains, to the extent exempt earlier, would be chargeable as long term capital gains in the year of transfer.

Violation of condition

Further, if the assessee takes any loan or advance on the security of such units, he shall be deemed to have transferred such units on the date on which such loan or advance is taken.

(vi) Capital gains in cases of investment in residential house [Section 54F]

Consequences if the new house of transfer within 3 years from the date of its purchase

- If the new asset is transferred before 3 years from the date of its acquisition, then the Capital gains would arise on transfer of the new house and capital gain exempted earlier under section 54F would be taxable as long-term capital gains.
- In the given illustration, if the new residential house is sold for ₹ 6,00,000 after say, 1 year, then

- ◆ ₹ 1,00,000 [i.e. ₹ 6,00,000 (-) ₹ 5,00,000] would be chargeable as short-term capital gain of that year in which the new house is sold.

Note – In case the new residential house is sold after 2 years, the capital gains would be long-term capital gains and indexation benefit would be available.

- ◆ ₹ 11,601, being the capital gains exempt earlier, would be taxable as long-term capital gains of the year in which the new house is sold.

Consequences where assessee purchases any other residential house within 2 years or constructs within 3 years from the date of transfer of original asset

The capital gain exempted earlier under section 54F would be deemed to be long-term capital gains and chargeable to tax in the previous year in which such residential house is purchased or constructed.

(vii) Exemption of capital gains for shifting of industrial undertaking from urban areas [Section 54G]

Eligible assessee: Any assessee

Conditions to be fulfilled

- There should be a shifting of the industrial undertaking from an urban area to any other area other than an urban area.
- There should be a transfer of machinery, plant, building or land or any right in building or land used for the business of an industrial undertaking situated in an urban area.
- Such transfer should be in the course of, or in consequence of, shifting the industrial undertaking from an urban area to any other area other than an urban area.
- The capital gain (short-term or long-term) should be utilized for any of the following purposes within 1 year before or 3 years after the date of transfer –
  - ◆ purchase of new plant and machinery for the purposes of business of the industrial undertaking in the area to which the said undertaking is shifted;
  - ◆ acquisition of building or land or construction of building for the purposes of his business in the said area;
  - ◆ expenses on shifting of the industrial undertaking from the urban area to the other area;
  - ◆ such other expenditure as the Central Government may specify in a scheme framed by the Central Government.
- If such investment is not made before the date of filing of return of income, then the capital gain has to be deposited under the CGAS. (Refer points (x) at the end of 7.21). Amount utilized by the assessee for purchase of new asset and expenses of shifting and the amount so deposited shall be deemed to be the cost of new asset.

Quantum of exemption

- If cost of new assets plus expenses incurred for the specified purpose  $\geq$  Capital gains, entire capital gains (short-term or long-term) is exempt.
- If cost of new assets plus expenses incurred for the specified purpose  $<$  Capital gains, capital gains (short-term or long-term) to the extent of such cost and expenses is exempt.

Consequences if the new asset is transferred within a period of 3 years

If the new asset is transferred within a period of 3 years of its purchase or construction, then the capital gain, which was exempt earlier under section 54G would be deducted from the cost of acquisition of the new asset for the purpose of computation of capital gains in respect of the transfer of the new asset.

(viii) Exemption of capital gains on transfer of certain capital assets in case of shifting of an industrial undertaking from an urban area to any SEZ [Section 54GA]

Eligible assessee – Any assessee

Conditions to be fulfilled

- There must be transfer of capital assets
- Such transfer must be effected in the course of, or in consequence of the shifting of an industrial undertaking from an urban area to any SEZ, whether developed in an urban area or not.
- The capital asset should be either machinery or plant or building or land or any rights in building or land used for the purposes of the business of an industrial undertaking situated in an urban area.
- The assessee should, within a period of 1 year before or 3 years after the date of transfer,
  - ◆ purchase machinery or plant for the purposes of business of the industrial undertaking in the SEZ;
  - ◆ acquire building or land or construct building for the purposes of his business in the SEZ;
  - ◆ expenses on shifting of the industrial undertaking from the urban area to the SEZ; and
  - ◆ incur expenses for such other purposes as may be specified in a scheme framed by the Central Government.
- If such investment is not made before the date of filing of return of income, then the capital gain has to be deposited under the CGAS. (Refer points (x) at the end of 7.21). Amount utilized by the assessee for purchase of new asset and expenses of shifting and the amount so deposited shall be deemed to be the cost of new asset.

Quantum of exemption

- If cost of new assets plus expenses incurred for shifting  $\geq$  Capital gains, entire capital gains (short-term or long-term) is exempt.
- If cost of new assets plus expenses incurred for shifting  $<$  Capital gains, capital gains (short-term or long-term) to the extent of such cost and expenses is exempt.

Consequences if the new asset is transferred within a period of 3 years

- If the new asset is transferred within a period of 3 years of its purchase or construction, then the capital gain, which was exempt earlier under section 54GA would be deducted from the cost of acquisition of the new asset for the purpose of computation of capital gains in respect of the transfer of the new asset.

(ix) Exemption of long-term capital gains on transfer of residential property if the net sale consideration is used for subscription in equity shares of an eligible start-up company to be used for purchase of new plant and machinery [Section 54GB]

- Section 54GB exempts long-term capital gains on sale of a residential property (house or plot of land) owned by an individual or a HUF in case of re-investment of net sale consideration in the equity shares of an eligible company being an eligible start-up, which is utilized by the company for the purchase of new plant and machinery.
- In order to qualify as an “eligible company” under section 54GB the company should be –
  - (i) incorporated in the financial year in which the capital gain arises or in the following year on or before the due date of filing return of income by the individual or HUF;
  - (ii) engaged in an eligible business;
  - (iii) a company in which the individual or HUF holds more than 25% of the share capital or 25% of the voting rights, after the subscription in shares by the individual or HUF; and
  - (iv) a company which is an eligible start-up.

Meaning of eligible start-up:

Meaning of eligible business:

A business carried out by an eligible start up engaged in

- innovation, development or improvement of products or processes or services or
- a scalable business model with a high potential of employment generation or wealth creation.

Conditions to be fulfilled

- (i) The amount of net consideration should be used by the individual or HUF before the due date of furnishing of return of income under section 139(1), for subscription in equity shares of the eligible company.
- (ii) The amount of subscription as share capital is to be utilized by the eligible company for the purchase of new plant and machinery within a period of one year from the date of subscription in the equity shares.
- (iii) If the amount of net consideration subscribed as equity shares in the eligible company is not utilized by the company for the purchase of plant and machinery before the due date of filing of return by the individual or HUF, the unutilized amount shall be deposited in an account with any specified bank or institution before such due date of filing return of income. The return of income furnished by the assessee, should be accompanied by the proof of such deposit.
- (iv) The said amount is to be utilized in accordance with any scheme which may be notified by the Central Government in the Official Gazette.

The amount of net consideration utilized by the company for purchase of new plant and machinery and the amount deposited as mentioned in (iv) above, will be deemed to be the cost of new plant and machinery for the purpose of computation of capital gains in the hands of individual or HUF.

New plant and machinery does not include -

- (i) any machinery or plant which, before its installation by the assessee, was used either within or outside India by any other person;
- (ii) any machinery or plant installed in any office premises or any residential accommodation, including accommodation in the nature of a guest house;
- (iii) any office appliances including computer and computer software;
- (iv) any vehicle; or
- (v) any machinery or plant, the whole of the actual cost of which is allowed as a deduction, whether by way of depreciation or otherwise, in computing the income chargeable under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" of any previous year.

In case of an eligible start-up, being a technology driven start-up so certified by the notified Inter-Ministerial Board of Certification (IMBC), the company can also utilize the amount invested in shares to purchase computers or computer software. This is because computers or computer software form the core asset base of such technology driven start-ups.

- Quantum of exemption under section 54GB

- ◆ If cost of new plant and machinery  $\geq$  Net consideration of residential house, entire capital gains is exempt.
- ◆ If cost of new plant and machinery  $<$  Net consideration of residential house, only proportionate capital gains is exempt i.e.

$$\text{LTCG} \times \frac{\text{Amount invested in new plant and machinery}}{\text{Net consideration}}$$

- The exemption under this section would not be available in respect of transfer of residential property made after 31st March, 2021.
- If the amount deposited by the company in specified banks/ institutions, is not utilized wholly or partly for the purchase of new plant and machinery within the period specified, then, the amount of capital gains not charged to tax under section 45 on account of such deposit by the company shall be charged to tax under section 45 as income of the assessee for the previous year in which the period of 1 year from the date of subscription in the equity shares by the assessee expires.
- If the equity shares of the company acquired by the individual or HUF or the new plant and machinery acquired by the company are sold or transferred within a period of five years from the date of acquisition (within a period of three years from the date of acquisition, in case the new asset is computer or computer software acquired by a technology driven start-up), the amount of capital gains earlier exempt under section 54GB shall be deemed to be the income of the individual or HUF chargeable under the head "Capital Gains" of the previous year in which such equity shares or such new plant and machinery are sold or otherwise transferred. This would be in addition to the capital gains arising on transfer of shares by the individual or HUF or capital gains arising on transfer of new plant and machinery by the company, as the case may be. These are safeguards to restrict the transfer of the shares of the company and of the plant and machinery for a period of 5 years (3 years in case of computer or computer software) to prevent diversion of these funds.

*The exemption under section 54EE is also available in respect of capital gains on transfer of other long term capital assets and the exemption under section 54EC is available in respect of capital gains on transfer of long term capital asset, being land or building or both.

(x) Capital Gains Account Scheme (CGAS)

Under sections 54, 54B, 54D, 54F, 54G and 54GA, capital gains is exempt to the extent of investment of such gains/ net consideration (in the case of section 54F) in specified assets within the specified time. If such investment is not made before the date of filing of return of income, then the capital gain or net consideration (in case of exemption under section 54F) has to be deposited under the CGAS.

Time limit

Such deposit in CGAS should be made before filing the return of income or on or before the due date of filing the return of income, whichever is earlier. Proof of such deposit should be attached with the return. The deposit can be withdrawn for utilization for the specified purposes in accordance with the scheme.

Consequences if the amount deposited in CGAS is not utilized within the stipulated time of 2 years / 3 years

If the amount deposited is not utilized for the specified purpose within the stipulated period, then the unutilized amount shall be charged as capital gain of the previous year in which the specified period expires. In the case of section 54F, proportionate amount will be taxable.

CBDT Circular No.743 dated 6.5.96 clarifies that in the event of death of an individual before the stipulated period, the unutilized amount is not chargeable to tax in the hands of the legal heirs of the deceased individual. Such unutilized amount is not income but is a part of the estate devolving upon them.

(xi) Extension of time for acquiring new asset or depositing or investing amount of Capital Gain [Section 54H]

In case of compulsory acquisition of the original asset, where the compensation is not received on the date of transfer, the period available for acquiring a new asset or making investment in CGAS under sections 54, 54B, 54D, 54EC and 54F would be considered from the date of receipt of such compensation and not from the date of the transfer.

7.22 REFERENCE TO VALUATION OFFICER [SECTION 55A]

Section 55A provides that the Assessing Officer may refer the valuation of a capital asset to a Valuation Officer in the following circumstances with a view to ascertaining the fair market value of the capital asset for the purposes of capital gains -

- (i) In a case where the value of the asset as claimed by the assessee is in accordance with the estimate made by a registered valuer, if the Assessing Officer is of the opinion that the value so claimed is at variance with its fair market value.

Under this provision, the Assessing Officer can make a reference to the Valuation Officer in cases where the fair market value is taken to be the sale consideration of the asset. An Assessing Officer can also make a reference to the Valuation Officer in a case where the fair market value of the asset as on 01.04.2001 is taken as the cost of the asset, if he is of the view that there is any variation between the value as on 01.04.2001 claimed by the assessee in accordance with the estimate made by a registered valuer and the fair market value of the asset on that date.

- (ii) If the Assessing Officer is of the opinion that the fair market value of the asset exceeds the value of the asset as claimed by the assessee by more than 15% of the value of asset as so claimed or by more than ₹ 25,000.
- (iii) The Assessing Officer is of the opinion that, having regard to the nature of asset and other relevant circumstances, it is necessary to make the reference.

7.23 TAX ON SHORT TERM CAPITAL GAINS IN RESPECT OF EQUITY SHARES/ UNITS OF AN EQUITY ORIENTED FUND/ UNITS OF A BUSINESS TRUST [SECTION 111A]

- (1) Concessional rate of tax in respect of STCG on transfer of certain assets: This section provides for a concessional rate of tax (i.e. 15%) on the short-term capital gains on transfer of -
  - (i) an equity share in a company or
  - (ii) a unit of an equity oriented fund or
  - (iii) a unit of a business trust.
- (2) Conditions: The conditions for availing the benefit of this concessional rate are –
  - (i) the transaction of sale of such equity share or unit should be entered into on or after 1.10.2004, being the date on which Chapter VII of the Finance (No. 2) Act, 2004 came into force; and
  - (ii) such transaction should be chargeable to securities transaction tax under the said Chapter.

However, short-term capital gains arising from transactions undertaken in foreign currency on a recognized stock exchange located in an International Financial Services Centre (IFSC) would be taxable at a concessional rate of 15% even though STT is not leviable in respect of such transaction.

- (3) Adjustment of Unexhausted Basic Exemption Limit: In the case of resident individuals or HUF, if the basic exemption is not fully exhausted by any other income, then the short-term capital gain will be reduced by the unexhausted basic exemption limit and only the balance would be taxed at 15%. However, the benefit of availing the basic exemption limit is not available in the case of non-residents.

- (4) No deduction under Chapter VI-A against STCG taxable under section 111A: Deductions under Chapter VI-A cannot be availed in respect of such short-term capital gains on equity shares of a company or units of an equity oriented mutual fund or unit of a business trust included in the total income of the assessee.

7.24 TAX ON LONG TERM CAPITAL GAINS [SECTION 112]

- (1) Concessional rate of tax: Where the total income of an assessee includes long-term capital gains, tax is payable by the assessee @20% on such long-term capital gains. The treatment of long-term capital gains in the hands of different types of assessee are as follows -

- (i) Resident individual or Hindu undivided family: Income-tax payable at normal rates on total income as reduced by long-term capital gains plus 20% on such long-term capital gains.

However, where the total income as reduced by such long-term capital gains is below the maximum amount which is not chargeable to income-tax then such long-term capital gains shall be reduced by the amount by which the total income as so reduced falls short of the maximum amount which is not chargeable to income-tax and the tax on the balance of such long-term capital gains will be calculated @20%.

- (ii) Domestic Company: Long-term capital gains will be charged @ 20%.

- (iii) Non-corporate non-resident or foreign company:

(i) Long-term capital gains arising from the transfer of a capital asset, being unlisted securities or shares of a company not being a company in which public are substantially interested, would be calculated at the rate of 10% on the capital gains in respect of such asset without giving effect to the indexation provision under second proviso to section 48 and currency fluctuation under first proviso to section 48.

(ii) In respect of other long-term capital gains, the applicable rate of tax would be 20%.

- (iv) Residents (other than those included in (i) above): Long-term capital gains will be charged @20%.

- (2) Lower rate of tax for transfer of listed securities and zero coupon bonds: Where the tax payable in respect of any income arising from the transfer of a listed security (other than a unit) or a zero coupon bond, being a long-term capital asset, exceeds 10% of the amount of capital gains before indexation, then such excess shall be ignored while computing the tax payable by the assessee.

Consequently, long term capital gains on transfer of units and unlisted securities are not eligible for concessional rate of tax @10% (without indexation benefit). Therefore, the long-term capital gains, in such cases, are taxable @20% (with indexation benefit).

However, in case of non-corporate non-residents and foreign companies, long term capital gains arising from transfer of a capital asset, being unlisted securities or shares in a company in which public are not substantially interested are eligible for a concessional rate of tax @10% (without indexation benefit).

- (3) No deduction under Chapter VI-A against LTCG: The provisions of section 112 make it clear that the deductions under Chapter VIA cannot be availed in respect of the long-term capital gains included in the total income of the assessee.

Tax on long-term capital gains [Section 112]

	Person	Rate of tax	Particulars
1.	Resident persons, other than companies
	Resident Individuals and HUF	20%	Unexhausted basic exemption limit can be exhausted against LTCG taxable u/s 112
	Resident AOPs and BOIs	20%	Unexhausted basic exemption limit cannot be adjusted against LTCG taxable u/s 112
	Resident Firms and LLPs	20%
2.	Domestic companies	20%
3.	Non-corporate non-residents and foreign companies	20%	Capital assets, other than unlisted securities or shares of closely held companies
		10%	Unlisted securities or shares of closely held companies (without benefit of indexation or foreign currency fluctuation)

In case of transfer of listed securities (other than units) and Zero Coupon Bonds, LTCG would be taxable at the lower of the following rates –

(1) 10% without indexation benefit; and
(2) 20% with indexation benefit.

7.25 TAX ON LONG TERM CAPITAL GAINS ON CERTAIN ASSETS [SECTION 112A]

- (1) Concessional rate of tax in respect of LTCG on transfer of certain assets: In order to minimize economic distortions and curb erosion of tax base, section 112A provides that notwithstanding anything contained in section 112, a concessional rate of tax @10% will be leviable on the long-term capital gains exceeding ₹ 1,00,000 on transfer of –
- an equity share in a company or
  - a unit of an equity oriented fund or
  - a unit of a business trust.
- (2) Conditions: The conditions for availing the benefit of this concessional rate are–
- In case of equity share in a company, STT has been paid on acquisition and transfer of such capital asset
  - In case of unit of an equity oriented fund or unit of business trust, STT has been paid on transfer of such capital asset.

However, the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, specify the nature of acquisition of equity share in a company on which the condition of payment of STT on acquisition would not be applicable.

Accordingly, the Central Government has, vide notification No. 60/2018, dated 1st October, 2018, notified that the condition of chargeability of STT shall not apply to the acquisition of equity shares entered into

- before 1st October, 2004 or
- on or after 1st October, 2004 which are not chargeable to STT, other than the following transactions.

In effect, only in respect of the following transactions mentioned in column (2), the requirement of paying STT at the time of acquisition for availing the benefit of concessional rate of tax under section 112A would apply. It may be noted that the exceptions are listed in column (3) against the transaction. The requirement of payment of STT at the time of acquisition for availing benefit of concessional tax rate under section 112A will not apply to acquisition transactions mentioned in column (3).

Further, long-term capital gains arising from transaction undertaken on a recognized stock exchange located in an International Financial Service Centre (IFSC) would be taxable at a concessional rate of 10%, where the consideration for transfer is received or receivable in foreign currency, even though STT is not leviable in respect of such transaction.

- (3) Adjustment of Unexhausted Basic Exemption Limit: In the case of resident individuals or HUF, if the basic exemption is not fully exhausted by any other income, then such long-term capital gain exceeding ₹ 1 lakh will be reduced by the unexhausted basic exemption limit and only the balance would be taxed at 10%.

However, the benefit of adjustment of unexhausted basic exemption limit is not available in the case of non-residents. It is also not available in case of resident AOPs and BOIs.

- (4) No deduction under Chapter VI-A against LTCG taxable under section 112A: Deductions under Chapter VI-A cannot be availed in respect of such long-term capital gains on equity shares of a company or units of an equity oriented mutual fund or unit of a business trust included in the total income of the assessee.

- (5) No benefit of rebate under section 87A against LTCG taxable under section 112A: Rebate under section 87A is not available in respect of tax payable @10% on LTCG under section 112A.

Subsequent to insertion of section 112A, the CBDT has issued clarification F. No. 370149/20/2018-TPL dated 04.02.2018 in the form of a Question and Answer format to clarify certain issues raised in different fora on various issues relating to the new tax regime for taxation of long-term capital gains. The relevant questions raised and answers to such questions as per the said Circular are given hereunder:

Q 1. What is the meaning of long term capital gains under the new tax regime for long term capital gains?

Ans 1. Long term capital gains mean gains arising from the transfer of long-term capital asset.

It provides for a new long-term capital gains tax regime for the following assets—

- i. Equity Shares in a company listed on a recognised stock exchange;
- ii. Unit of an equity oriented fund; and
- iii. Unit of a business trust.

The new tax regime applies to the above assets, if—

- a. the assets are held for a minimum period of twelve months from the date of acquisition; and
- b. the Securities Transaction Tax (STT) is paid at the time of transfer. However, in the case of equity shares acquired after 1.10.2004, STT is required to be paid even at the time of acquisition (subject to notified exemptions).

Q 2. What is the point of chargeability of the tax?

Ans 2. The tax will be levied only upon transfer of the long-term capital asset on or after 1st April, 2018, as defined in clause (47) of section 2 of the Act.

Q 3. What is the method for calculation of long-term capital gains?

Ans 3. The long-term capital gains will be computed by deducting the cost of acquisition from the full value of consideration on transfer of the long-term capital asset.

Q 4. How do we determine the cost of acquisition for assets acquired on or before 31st January, 2018?

Ans 4. The cost of acquisition for the long-term capital asset acquired on or before 31st of January, 2018 will be the actual cost.

However, if the actual cost is less than the fair market value of such asset as on 31st of January, 2018, the fair market value will be deemed to be the cost of acquisition.

Further, if the full value of consideration on transfer is less than the fair market value, then such full value of consideration or the actual cost, whichever is higher, will be deemed to be the cost of acquisition.

Q 5. Please provide illustrations for computing long-term capital gains in different scenarios, in the light of answers to questions 4.

Ans 5. The computation of long-term capital gains in different scenarios is illustrated as under

Scenario 1 – An equity share is acquired on 1st of January, 2017 at ₹100, its fair market value is ₹200 on 31st of January, 2018 and it is sold on 1st of April, 2019 at ₹250. As the actual cost of acquisition is less than the fair market value as on 31st of January, 2018, the fair market value of ₹200 will be taken as the cost of acquisition and the long-term capital gain will be ₹50 (₹250 – ₹200).

Scenario 2 – An equity share is acquired on 1st of January, 2017 at ₹100, its fair market value is ₹200 on 31st of January, 2018 and it is sold on 1st of April, 2019 at ₹150. In this case, the actual cost of acquisition is less than the fair market value as on 31st of January, 2018. However, the sale value is also less than the fair market value as on 31st of January, 2018. Accordingly, the sale value of ₹150 will be taken as the cost of acquisition and the long-term capital gain will be NIL (₹150 – ₹150).

Scenario 3 – An equity share is acquired on 1st of January, 2017 at ₹100, its fair market value is ₹50 on 31st of January, 2018 and it is sold on 1st of April, 2019 at ₹150. In this case, the fair market value as on 31st of January, 2018 is less than the actual cost of acquisition, and therefore, the actual cost of ₹100 will be taken as actual cost of acquisition and the long-term capital gain will be ₹50 (₹150 – ₹100).

Scenario 4 – An equity share is acquired on 1st of January, 2017 at ₹100, its fair market value is ₹200 on 31st of January, 2018 and it is sold on 1st of April, 2019 at ₹50. In this case, the actual cost of acquisition is less than the fair market value as on 31st January, 2018. The sale value is less than the fair market value as on 31st of January, 2018 and also the actual cost of acquisition. Therefore, the actual cost of ₹100 will be taken as the cost of acquisition in this case. Hence, the long-term capital loss will be ₹50 (₹50 – ₹100) in this case.

Q 6. Whether the cost of acquisition will be inflation indexed?

Ans 6. Third proviso to section 48, provides that the long-term capital gain will be computed without giving effect to the provisions of the second provisos of section 48. Accordingly, it is clarified that the benefit of inflation indexation of the cost of acquisition would not be available for computing long-term capital gains under the new tax regime.

Q 7. What will be the tax treatment of transfer made on or after 1st April 2018?

Ans 7. The long-term capital gains exceeding ₹1 lakh arising from transfer of these assets made on or after 1st April, 2018 will be taxed at 10 per cent. However, there will be no tax on gains accrued upto 31st January, 2018.

Q 8. What is the date from which the holding period will be counted?

Ans 8. The holding period will be counted from the date of acquisition.

Q 9. Whether tax will be deducted at source in case of gains by resident tax payer?

Ans 9. No. There will be no deduction of tax at source from the payment of long-term capital gains to a resident tax payer.

Q 10. What will be the cost of acquisition in the case of bonus shares acquired before 1st February 2018?

Ans 10. The cost of acquisition of bonus shares acquired before 31st January, 2018 will be determined as per section 55(2)(ac). Therefore, the fair market value of the bonus shares as on 31st January, 2018 will be taken as cost of acquisition (except in some typical situations explained in Ans 5), and hence, the gains accrued upto 31st January, 2018 will continue to be exempt<sup>6</sup>.

Q 11. What will be the cost of acquisition in the case of right share acquired before 1st February 2018?

Ans 11. The cost of acquisition of right share acquired before 31st January, 2018 will be determined as per section 55(2)(ac). Therefore, the fair market value of right share as on

---

<sup>6</sup> Subject to the notification issued by the Central Government to specify the nature of acquisition of equity share in a company on which the condition of payment of STT on acquisition would not be applicable.

31st January, 2018 will be taken as cost of acquisition (except in some typical situations explained in Ans 5), and hence, the gains accrued upto 31st January, 2018 will continue to be exempt<sup>7</sup>.

Q 12. What will be the treatment of long-term capital loss arising from transfer made on or after 1st April, 2018?

Ans 12. Long-term capital loss arising from transfer made on or after 1st April, 2018 will be allowed to be set-off and carried forward in accordance with existing provisions of the Act. Therefore, it can be set-off against any other long-term capital gains and unabsorbed loss can be carried forward to subsequent eight years for set-off against long-term capital gains.

The Finance (No. 2) Act, 2019 has levied an enhanced surcharge of 25% and 37%, where the total income of individuals/HUF/AOPs/BOIs exceeds ₹ 2 crores and ₹ 5 crores, respectively. However, the enhanced surcharge has been withdrawn on tax payable at special rates under section 111A and 112A on short-term and long-term capital gains arising from the transfer of equity share in a company or unit of an equity-oriented fund/ business trust, which has been subject to securities transaction tax. Refer to Chapter 1 containing rates of surcharge for understanding the manner of computation of surcharge on capital gains and other income components of total income.

Total tax liability	Nil	₹ 1,560	₹ 18,720	₹ 11,960

Notes:

1. Since Mrs. B and Mr. D are non-residents, they cannot avail the higher basic exemption limit of ₹ 3,00,000 and ₹ 5,00,000 for persons over the age of 60 years and 80 years, respectively.
2. Since Mr. A is a resident whose total income does not exceed ₹ 5 lakhs, he is eligible for rebate of ₹ 12,500 or the actual tax payable, whichever is lower, under section 87A

7.26 SURPLUS ON SALE OF SHARES AND SECURITIES - WHETHER TAXABLE AS CAPITAL GAINS OR BUSINESS INCOME? [CIRCULAR NO. 06/2016, DATED 29-2-2016]

Section 2(14) defines the term "capital asset" to include property of any kind held by an assessee, whether or not connected with his business or profession, but does not include any stock-in-trade or personal assets subject to certain exceptions. As regards shares and other securities, the same can be held either as capital assets or stock-in-trade/trading assets or both.

Determination of the character of a particular investment in shares or other securities, whether the same is in the nature of a capital asset or stock-in-trade, is essentially a fact-specific determination and has led to a lot of uncertainty and litigation in the past.

Parameters laid down by CBDT and Courts to distinguish shares held as investments and shares held as stock in trade

Over the years, the courts have laid down different parameters to distinguish the shares held as investments from the shares held as stock-in-trade. The CBDT has also, through Instruction No. 1827, dated August 31, 1989 and Circular No. 4 of 2007 dated June 15, 2007, summarized the said principles for guidance of the field formations.

Principles to determine whether gains on sale of listed shares and other securities would constitute capital gains or business income

Disputes, however, continue to exist on the application of these principles to the facts of an individual case since the taxpayers find it difficult to prove the intention in acquiring such shares/securities. In this background, while recognizing that no universal principle in absolute terms can be laid down to decide the character of income from sale of shares and securities (i.e. whether the same is in the nature of capital gain or business income), CBDT realizing that major part of shares/securities transactions takes place in respect of the listed ones and with a view to reduce litigation and uncertainty in the matter, in partial modification to the aforesaid Circulars, further instructs the Assessing Officers to take into account the following while deciding whether the surplus generated from sale of listed shares or other securities would be treated as Capital Gain or Business Income —

- a) Where assessee opts to treat such shares and securities as stock-in-trade: Where the assessee itself, irrespective of the period of holding the listed shares and securities, opts to treat them as stock-in-trade, the income arising from transfer of such shares/securities would be treated as its business income,
- b) Listed shares and securities held for a period of more than 12 months: In respect of listed shares and securities held for a period of more than 12 months immediately preceding the date of its transfer, if the assessee desires to treat the income arising from the transfer thereof as Capital Gain, the same shall not be put to dispute by the Assessing Officer. However, this stand, once taken by the assessee in a particular Assessment Year, shall remain applicable in subsequent Assessment Years also and the taxpayers shall not be allowed to adopt a different/contrary stand in this regard in subsequent years;

- c) Other cases: In all other cases, the nature of transaction (i.e. whether the same is in the nature of capital gain or business income) shall continue to be decided keeping in view the aforesaid Circulars issued by the CBDT.

Principles listed above not to apply in case of sham transactions

It is, however, clarified that the above shall not apply in respect of such transactions in shares/securities where the genuineness of the transaction itself is questionable, such as bogus claims of Long Term Capital Gain/Short Term Capital Loss or any other sham transactions.

Objective of formulation of principles: Reducing litigation and ensuring consistency

It is reiterated that the above principles have been formulated with the sole objective of reducing litigation and maintaining consistency in approach on the issue of treatment of income derived from transfer of shares and securities. All the relevant provisions of the Act shall continue to apply on the transactions involving transfer of shares and securities.

Question 1

Hari has acquired a residential house property in Delhi on 15th April, 2002 for ₹ 9,00,000 and decided to sell the same on 3rd May, 2005 to Ms. Pari and an advance of ₹ 25,000 was taken from her. The balance money was not paid by Ms. Pari and Hari has forfeited the entire advance sum. On 3rd June, 2019, he has sold this house to Mr. Suri for ₹ 40,00,000. In the meantime, on 4th April, 2019, he had purchased a residential house in Delhi for ₹ 8,00,000, where he was staying with his family on rent for the last 5 years and paid the full amount as per the purchase agreement. However, Hari does not possess any legal title till 31st March, 2020, as such transfer was not registered with the registration authority.

Hari has purchased another old house in Chennai on 14th October, 2019 from Mr. X, an Indian resident, by paying ₹ 5,00,000 and the purchase was registered with the appropriate authority.

Determine the taxable capital gain arising from above transactions in the hands of Hari for Assessment Year 2020-21.

[Cost inflation Index - 2002-03: 105; 2005-06: 117; 2019-20: 289]

Answer

Computation of taxable capital gain of Mr. Hari for the A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	₹
Sale proceeds	40,00,000
Less: Indexed cost of acquisition (See Note 1)	24,08,333
Long Term Capital Gain	15,91,667
Less: Exemption under section 54 in respect of investment in house at Delhi (See Note 2)	8,00,000
Exemption under section 54 in respect of investment in house at Chennai (See Note 3)	5,00,000
Taxable long-term capital gain	2,91,667

Notes:

1. Computation of indexed cost of acquisition

Particulars	₹
Cost of acquisition	9,00,000
Less: Advance taken and forfeited	25,000
Cost for the purpose of Indexation	8,75,000
Indexed cost of acquisition (₹ 8,75,000 x 289/105)	24,08,333

Note: Advance received and forfeited on or after 01.04.2014 is taxable under section 56(2)(ix). Such amount would not be reduced to compute indexed cost of acquisition while determining capital gains on sale of such property.

However, in this case, since the advance was received and forfeited in the year 2005, such advance has to be reduced for calculating indexed cost of acquisition for the purpose of arriving at capital gains.

2. In order to avail exemption of capital gains under section 54, residential house should be purchased within 1 year before or 2 years after the date of transfer or constructed within a period of 3 years after the date of transfer. In this case, Hari has purchased the residential house in Delhi within one year before the date of transfer and paid the full amount as per the purchase agreement, though he does not possess any legal title till 31.3.2020 since the transfer was not registered with the registration authority. However, for the purpose of claiming exemption under section 54, holding of legal title is not necessary. If the taxpayer pays the full consideration in terms of the purchase agreement within the stipulated period, the exemption under section 54 would be available. It was so held in Balraj v. CIT(2002) 254 ITR 22 (Del.) and CIT v. Shahzada Begum (1988) 173 ITR 397 (A.P.).
- 3 As per section 54, since the amount of capital gain does not exceeds ₹ 2 crore, Mr. Hari can claim exemption thereunder in respect of investment made in two residential houses situated in India.

However, if Mr. Hari exercises the option to claim exemption in respect of two residential houses in Delhi and Chennai in P.Y. 2019-20, he shall not be subsequently entitled to exercise the option for the same or any other assessment year.

Question 2

The proprietary firm of "Mr. Amolak" a practicing Chartered Accountant, was converted into partnership on 01.09.2019 when his son joined him in the firm for 50% share. All the assets and liabilities of the erstwhile proprietary firm were transferred into the newly constituted partnership firm.

"Mr. Amolak" was credited and paid an amount of ₹ 5 lacs in his account from the firm. Explain as to chargeability of this amount of ₹ 5 lacs in the hands of "Mr. Amolak" when it stands paid for:

- (i) transfer of business into partnership;
- (ii) goodwill by the incoming partner.

Answer

(i) If the amount was paid for transfer of business/ profession to partnership

As per section 45(3), the profits and gains arising from the transfer of a capital asset by a person to the firm in which he becomes a partner shall be chargeable to tax as the income of the previous year which such transfer takes place. The amount recorded in the books of account of the firm would be deemed to be the full value of consideration received or accruing as a result of transfer of the capital asset.

Since in this case, consideration of ₹ 5 lacs is received for such transfer, profit or gain accrues to the transferor for the purposes of section 45. The amount of ₹ 5 lacs would be the full value of consideration received as a result of transfer and the capital gains resulting from this transfer would be chargeable to tax.

(ii) If the amount is paid by the incoming partner for Goodwill

The Supreme Court, in CIT v. B.C. Srinivasa Setty (1981) 128 ITR 294, observed that the income chargeable to capital gains tax is to be computed by deducting from the full value of consideration “the cost of acquisition of the capital asset”. If it is not possible to ascertain the cost of acquisition, then, transfer of such asset is not chargeable to tax.

Section 55(2)(a) provides that the cost of acquisition of certain self-generated assets, including goodwill of a business, is Nil. Therefore, in respect of these self-generated assets covered under section 55(2)(a), the decision of the Supreme Court in B.C. Srinivasa Setty's case would not apply. However, in respect of other self-generated assets, including goodwill of profession, the decision of the Supreme Court in B.C. Srinivasa Setty's case, would continue to be applicable.

In effect, in case of self-generated assets not covered under section 55(2)(a), since the cost is not ascertainable, there would be no capital gains tax liability.

Therefore, in this case, since the consideration of ₹ 5 lakhs is paid towards goodwill of a profession, whose cost is NOT to be taken as ‘Nil’ since it is not covered under section 55(2)(a), the liability to capital gains tax will not arise.

Question 3

Mr. Ganesh sold his residential house in Mumbai and earned long term capital gain of 2.5 crores. He purchased two residential flats adjacent to each other on the same day vide two separate registered sale deeds from two different persons. The builder had certified that he had effected necessary modification to make it one residential apartment. Mr. Ganesh sought exemption under section 54 in respect of the investment made in purchase of the two residential flats. The Assessing Officer, however, gave exemption under section 54 to the extent of purchase of one residential flat only contending that since the long term capital gain exceeds ₹ 2 crore, sub-section (1) of section 54 clearly restricts the benefit of exemption to purchase one residential house only and the two flats cannot be treated as one residential unit since –

- (i) the flats were purchased through different sale deeds; and*
- (ii) it was found by the Inspector that, before its sale to the assessee, the residential flats were in occupation of two different tenants.*

Examine the correctness of the contention of the Assessing Officer.

Answer

This issue came up before the Karnataka High Court in CIT v. D. Ananda Basappa (2009) 309 ITR 329. The Court observed that the assessee had shown that the flats were situated side by side and the builder had also certified that he had effected modification of the flats to make them one unit by opening the door between the apartments. Therefore, it was immaterial that the flats were occupied by two different tenants prior to sale or that it was purchased through different sale deeds. The Court observed that these were not the grounds to hold that the assessee did not have the intention to purchase the two flats as one unit. The Court held that the assessee was entitled to exemption under section 54 in respect of purchase of both the flats to form one residential house.

Applying the ratio of the above decision to the case on hand, Mr. Ganesh is entitled to exemption under section 54 in respect of purchase of two flats to form one residential house. Therefore, the contention of the Assessing Officer is not correct.

Question 4

Vijay, an individual, owned three residential houses which were let out. Besides, he and his four brothers co-owned a residential house in equal shares. He sold one residential house owned by him during the previous year relevant to the assessment year 2020-21. Within a month from the date of such sale, the four brothers executed a release deed in respect of their shares in the co-owned residential house in favour of Vijay for a monetary consideration.

Vijay utilised the entire long-term capital gain arising out of the sale of the residential house for payment of the said consideration to his four brothers. Vijay is not using the house, in respect of which his brothers executed a release deed, for his own residential purposes, but has let it out to another person, who is using it for his residential purposes.

Is Vijay eligible for exemption under section 54 of the Income-tax Act, 1961 for the assessment year 2020-21 in respect of the long-term capital gain arising from the sale of his residential house, which he utilised for acquiring the shares of his brothers in the co-owned residential house? Will the non-use of the new house for his own residential purposes disentitle him to exemption?

Answer

The long-term capital gain arising on sale of residential house would be exempt under section 54 if it is utilized, inter alia, for purchase of one residential house situated in India within one year before or two years after the date of transfer. Release by the other co-owners of their share in co-owned property in favour of Vijay would amount to “purchase” by Vijay for the purpose of claiming exemption under section 54 [CIT v. T.N. Arvinda Reddy (1979) 120 ITR 46 (SC)]. Since such purchase is within the stipulated time of two years from the date of transfer of asset, Vijay is eligible for exemption under section 54. As Vijay has utilised the entire long-term capital gain arising out of the sale of the residential house for payment of consideration to the other co-owners who have released their share in his favour, he can claim full exemption under section 54.

There is no requirement in section 54 that the new house should be used by the assessee for his own residence. The condition stipulated is that the new house should be utilised for residential purposes and its income is chargeable under the head "Income from house property". This requirement would be satisfied even when the new house is let out for residential purposes.

Question 5

Aries Tubes Private Ltd. went into liquidation on 01.06.2019. The company was seized and possessed of the following funds prior to the distribution of assets to the shareholders:

Share Capital (issued on 01.04.2013)	5,00,000
Reserves prior to 1.6.2019	3,00,000
Excess realization in the course of liquidation	5,00,000
Total	13,00,000

There are 5 shareholders, each of whom received ₹ 2,60,000 from the liquidator in full settlement. The shareholders desire to invest the resultant element of capital gain in long term specified assets as defined in section 54EC. You are required to examine the various issues and advice the shareholders about their liability to income tax.

Answer

Under section 46(1), where the assets of a company are distributed to its shareholders on its liquidation, such distribution shall not be regarded as transfer in the hands of the company for the purpose of section 45.

However, under section 46(2), where the shareholder, on liquidation of a company, receives any money or other assets from the company, he shall be chargeable to income-tax under the head "capital gains", in respect of the money so received or the market value of the other assets on the date of distribution as reduced by the amount of dividend deemed under section 2(22)(c) and the sum so arrived at shall be deemed to be the full value of the consideration for the purposes of section 48.

As per section 2(22)(c), dividend includes any distribution made to the shareholders of a company on its liquidation, to the extent to which the distribution is attributable to the accumulated profits of the company immediately before its liquidation, whether capitalized or not.

In this case, the accumulated profits immediately before liquidation is ₹ 3,00,000. The share of each shareholder is ₹ 60,000 (being one-fifth of ₹ 3,00,000). An amount of ₹ 60,000 is the deemed dividend under section 2(22)(c). The same is exempt under section 10(34) in the hands of the shareholder, since the company is liable to dividend distribution tax in respect of the same<sup>7</sup>.

Therefore, ₹ 2,00,000 [i.e. ₹ 2,60,000 minus ₹ 60,000, being the deemed dividend under section 2(22)(c)] is the full value of consideration in the hands of each shareholder as per section 46(2). Against this, the investment of ₹ 1,00,000 by each shareholder is to be deducted to arrive at the capital gains of ₹ 1,00,000 of each shareholder. The benefit of indexation is available to the shareholders (since the shares are held for more than 24 months and hence long-term capital asset), but could not be computed in the absence of required information. Since the equity shares are not listed, it would not be liable for securities transaction tax and hence, the capital gain (long term) would be taxable under section 112. The benefit of concessional rate of tax @10% without indexation would also not be available. Hence, such long term capital gain would be taxable @20% with indexation benefit.

Exemption under section 54EC is available only where there is an actual transfer of capital assets and not in the case of deemed capital gain as per the decision rendered in the case of CIT v. Ruby Trading Co (P) Ltd (2003) 259 ITR 54 (Raj). Therefore, exemption under section 54EC will not be available in this case since it is deemed transfer and not actual transfer. Furthermore, with effect from A.Y. 2019-20, exemption under section 54EC is available only on transfer of long-term capital asset, being land or building or both.

Question 6

Xavier had taken a loan under registered mortgage deed against the house, which was purchased by him on 26.05.2002 for ₹ 5 lacs. The said property was inherited by his son Abraham in financial year 2009-10 as per Will.

For obtaining a clear title thereof, Abraham paid the outstanding amount of loan on 12.02.2010 of ₹ 15 lacs. The said house property was sold by Abraham on 16.03.2020 for ₹ 50 lacs. Examine with reasons the amount chargeable to capital gains for A.Y. 2020-21

(Cost Inflation Index 2002-03: 105, 2009-10: 148 and 2019-20: 289).

Answer

The cost of inherited property to Mr. Abraham shall be the cost to the previous owner as per provisions of section 49(1)(iiiia) and therefore, ₹ 5 lacs, being the cost to his father (amount paid by his father on 26.5.2001 for acquiring the property) shall be the cost to Mr. Abraham, who is the new owner. Payment of outstanding loan of the predecessor by the successor for obtaining a clear title of the property by release of Mortgage Deed shall be the cost of acquisition of the successor under section 48 read with section 55(2) of the Act as held by the Apex Court in case of RM. Arunachalam v. CIT [1997] 227 ITR 222.

Computation of Taxable Capital Gain for the A.Y. 2020-21

Particulars	₹
Sale consideration of house property	50,00,000
Less: Indexed cost of acquisition (See Note below)

(i) Cost to previous owner ( $\text{₹ } 5,00,000 \times 289/148$ )	9,76,351
(ii) Loan amount paid by Mr. Abraham (Benefit of CII is available since the loan amount was paid in the financial year 2009-10) ( $\text{₹ } 15,00,000 \times 289/148$ )	29,29,054	39,05,405
Capital gains		10,94,595

Note: Since the property was acquired by Mr. Abraham through inheritance, the cost of acquisition will be cost to the previous owner.

As per the definition of indexation cost of acquisition under clause (iii) of Explanation below section 48, indexation benefit will be available only from the previous year in which Abraham first held the asset i.e. P.Y. 2009-10.

However, as per the view expressed by Bombay High Court, in the case of CIT v. Manjula J. Shah (2013) 355 ITR 474, in case the cost of acquisition of the capital asset in the hands of the assessee is taken to be cost of such asset in the hands of the previous owner, the indexation benefit would be available from the year in which the capital asset is acquired by the previous owner. If this view is considered, the indexed cost of acquisition would be ₹ 43,05,244 ( $\text{₹ } 13,76,190 + \text{₹ } 29,29,054$ ) and long term capital gain would be ₹ 6,94,756.

Question 7

Gama Ltd, located within the corporation limits decided in December, 2019 decided to shift its industrial undertaking to non-urban area. The company sold some of the assets and acquired new assets in the process of shifting. The relevant details are as follows:

(₹ in lacs)
	Particulars	Land	Building	Plant & Machinery	Furniture
(i)	Sale proceeds (sale effected in March, 2020)	8	18	16	3
(ii)	Indexed cost of acquisition	4	10	12	2
(iii)	WDV in terms of section 50	--	4	5	2
(iv)	Cost of new assets purchased in July, 2020 for the purpose of business in the new place	4	7	17	2

Compute the capital gains of Gama Ltd for the assessment year 2020-21.

Answer

Section 54G deals with deduction in respect of any capital gain that may arise from the transfer of an industrial undertaking situated in an urban area in the course of or in consequence of shifting to a non-urban area.

If the assessee purchases new machinery or plant or acquires a building or land or constructs a new building or shifts the original asset and transfers the establishment to the new area, within 1 year before or 3 years after the date on which the transfer takes place, then, instead of the capital gain being charged to tax, it shall be dealt with as under:

1. If the capital gain is greater than the cost of the new asset, the difference between the capital gain and the cost of the new asset shall be chargeable as income 'under section 45'.
2. If the capital gain is equal to or less than the cost of the new asset, section 45 is not to be applied.

The capital assets referred to in section 54G are machinery or plant or land or building or any rights in building or land. Capital gain arising on transfer of furniture does not qualify for exemption under section 54G. No exemption is therefore available under section 54G in respect of investment of ₹ 2 lacs in acquiring furniture.

The first step therefore is to determine the capital gain arising out of the transfer and thereafter apply the provisions of section 54G.

	Particulars	₹
(a)	Land – Sale proceeds (Non-depreciable asset)	8,00,000
	Less: Indexed cost of acquisition	4,00,000
	Long term capital gain	4,00,000
	Less: Cost of new assets purchased within three year after the date of transfer (under section 54G) (See Note below)	3,00,000
	Taxable Long term capital gain	1,00,000
(b)	Building – sale proceeds (depreciable assets)	18,00,000
	Less: W.D.V. is deemed as cost of acquisition under section 50	4,00,000
	Short term capital gain	14,00,000
(c)	Plant &amp; machinery- sale proceeds (depreciable asset)	16,00,000
	Less: WDV is deemed cost under section 50	5,00,000
	Short term capital gain	11,00,000
(d)	Furniture - sale proceeds (depreciable asset)	3,00,000
	Less: WDV is deemed cost under section 50	2,00,000
	Short term capital gain (A)	1,00,000

Summary	₹
Short term capital gain : Building	14,00,000
Short term capital gain : Plant & machinery	11,00,000
	25,00,000
Less: Section 54G [New assets purchased] (See Note below)	25,00,000
Net short term capital gain (B)	Nil
Total short term capital gain (A)+(B) = ₹ 1 lac

Note – Total exemption available under section 54G is ₹ 28 lacs (₹ 4 lacs + ₹ 7 lacs + ₹ 17 lacs). The exemption should first be exhausted against short term capital gain as the incidence of tax in case of short-term capital gain is more than in case of long term capital gain. Therefore, ₹ 25 lacs is exhausted against short term capital gain and the balance of ₹ 3 lacs against long term capital gain.

The taxable capital gains would be:

Long term capital gains	₹ 1,00,000 (taxable @20% under section 112)
Short term capital gains (furniture)	₹ 1,00,000 (taxable @30%/25%, as the case may be)
	₹ 2,00,000

Question 8

The assessee was a company carrying on business of manufacture and sale of art-silk cloth. It purchased machinery worth ₹ 4 lacs on 1.5.2008 and insured it with United India Assurance Ltd against fire, flood, earthquake etc., The written down value of the asset as on 01.04.2019 was ₹ 2,08,800. The insurance policy contained a reinstatement clause requiring the insurance company to pay the value of the machinery, as on the date of fire etc., in case of destruction of loss. A fire broke out in August, 2019 causing extensive damage to the machinery of the assessee rendering them totally useless. The assessee company received a sum of ₹ 6 lacs from the insurance company on 15th March, 2020. Discuss the issues arising on account on the transactions and their tax treatment.

(Cost inflation index for financial year 2008-09 and 2019-20 are 137 and 289 respectively)

Answer

As per section 45(1A), where any person receives any money or other assets under an insurance from an insurer on account of damage to or destruction of capital asset as a result of, inter alia, accidental fire then, any profits and gains arising from the receipt of such money or other assets, shall be chargeable to income tax under the head "Capital Gains" and shall be deemed to be the income of such person of the previous year in which such money or asset was received.

For the purpose of section 48, the money received or the market value of the asset shall be deemed to be the full value of the consideration accruing as a result of the transfer of such capital asset. Since the asset was destroyed and the money from the insurance company was received in the previous year, there will be a liability to capital gains in respect of the insurance moneys received by the assessee.

Under section 45(1A) any profits and gains arising from receipt of insurance moneys is chargeable under the head "Capital gains". For the purpose of section 48, the moneys received shall be deemed to be the full value of the consideration accruing or arising. Under section 50 the capital gains in respect of depreciable assets had to be computed in the following manner (assuming it was the only asset in the block).

The computation of capital gain and tax implication is given below:

Full value of the consideration	₹ 6,00,000
Less: Written down value as on April 1 st , 2019	₹ 2,08,800
Short term capital gains	₹ 3,91,200

Question 9

Tani purchased a land at a cost of ₹ 35 lakhs in the financial year 2004-05 and held the same as her capital asset till 31st May, 2018. Tani started her real estate business on 1st June, 2018 and converted the said land into stock-in-trade of her business on the said date, when the fair market value of the land was ₹ 210 lakhs.

She constructed 15 flats of equal size, quality and dimension. Cost of construction of each flat is ₹ 10 lakhs. Construction was completed in January, 2020. She sold 10 flats at ₹ 30 lakhs per flat between January, 2020 and March, 2020. The remaining 5 flats were held in stock as on 31st March, 2020.

She invested ₹ 50 lakhs in bonds issued by National Highway Authority of India on 31st March, 2020 and another ₹ 50 lakhs in bonds of Rural Electrification Corporation Ltd. in April, 2020.

Compute the amount of chargeable capital gain and business income in the hands of Tani arising from the above transactions for Assessment Year 2020-21 indicating clearly the reasons for treatment for each item.

Cost Inflation Index: FY 2004-05: 113; FY 2018-19: 280; FY 2019-20: 289.

Answer

Computation of capital gains and business income of Tani for A.Y. 2020-21

Particulars	₹
Capital Gains
Fair market value of land on the date of conversion deemed as the full value of	2,10,00,000 consideration for the purposes of section 45(2)

Less: Indexed cost of acquisition [ $\text{₹ } 35,00,000 \times 280/113$ ]	86,72,566
	1,23,27,434
Proportionate capital gains arising during A.Y.2020-21 [ $\text{₹ } 1,23,27,434 \times 2/3$ ]	82,18,289
Less: Exemption under section 54EC	50,00,000
Capital gains chargeable to tax for A.Y.2020-21	32,18,289
Business Income
Sale price of flats [ $10 \times \text{₹ } 30 \text{ lakhs}$ ]	3,00,00,000
Less: Cost of flats
Fair market value of land on the date of conversion [ $\text{₹ } 210 \text{ lacs} \times 2/3$ ]	1,40,00,000
Cost of construction of flats [ $10 \times \text{₹ } 10 \text{ lakhs}$ ]	1,00,00,000
Business income chargeable to tax for A.Y.2020-21	60,00,000

Notes:

- (1) The conversion of a capital asset into stock-in-trade is treated as a transfer under section 2(47). It would be treated as a transfer in the year in which the capital asset is converted into stock-in-trade.
- (2) However, as per section 45(2), the capital gains arising from the transfer by way of conversion of capital assets into stock-in-trade will be chargeable to tax only in the year in which the stock-in-trade is sold.
- (3) The indexation benefit for computing indexed cost of acquisition would, however, be available only up to the year of conversion of capital asset to stock-in-trade and not up to the year of sale of stock-in-trade.
- (4) For the purpose of computing capital gains in such cases, the fair market value of the capital asset on the date on which it was converted into stock-in-trade shall be deemed to be the full value of consideration received or accruing as a result of the transfer of the capital asset.

In this case, since only 2/3rd of the stock-in-trade (10 flats out of 15 flats) is sold in the P.Y.2019-20, only proportionate capital gains (i.e., 2/3rd) would be chargeable in the A.Y.2020-21.
- (5) On sale of such stock-in-trade, business income would arise. The business income chargeable to tax would be computed after deducting the fair market value on the date of conversion of the capital asset into stock-in-trade and cost of construction of flats from the price at which the stock-in-trade is sold.

- (6) In case of conversion of capital asset into stock-in-trade and subsequent sale of stock-in-trade, the period of 6 months is to be reckoned from the date of sale of stock-in-trade for the purpose of exemption under section 54EC [CBDT Circular No.791 dated 2.6.2000]. In this case, since the investment in bonds of NHAI has been made within 6 months of sale of flats, the same qualifies for exemption under section 54EC. With respect to long-term capital gains arising in any financial year, the maximum deduction under section 54EC would be ₹ 50 lakhs, whether the investment in bonds of NHAI or RECL are made in the same financial year or next financial year or partly in the same financial year and partly in the next financial year.

Therefore, even though investment of ₹ 50 lakhs has been made in bonds of NHAI during the P.Y.2019-20 and investment of ₹ 50 lakhs has been made in bonds of RECL during the P.Y.2020-21, both within the stipulated six month period, the maximum deduction allowable for A.Y.2020-21, in respect of long-term capital gain arising on sale of long-term capital asset(s) during the P.Y.2019-20, is only ₹ 50 lakhs.

Question 10

X Limited has transferred its Unit N to Y Limited by way of slump sale on November 30, 2019. The summarised Balance Sheet of X Limited as on that date is given below:

Liabilities	₹ (in lakhs)	Assets	₹ (in lakhs)
Paid up capital	1,700	Fixed Assets :
Reserve & surplus	620	Unit L	150
Liabilities:		Unit M	150
Unit L	40	Unit N	550
Unit M	110	Other Assets:
Unit N	90	Unit L	520
		Unit M	800
		Unit N	390
Total	2,560	Total	2,560

Using the further information given below, compute the capital gain arising from slump sale of Unit N and tax on such capital gain.

- (i) Lump sum consideration on transfer of Unit N is ₹ 880 lakhs.
- (ii) Fixed assets of Unit N include land which was purchased at ₹ 60 lakhs in August 2007 and revalued at ₹ 90 lakhs as on March 31, 2019.
- (iii) Other fixed assets are reflected at ₹ 460 lakhs (i.e. ₹ 550 lakhs less value of land) which represents written down value of those assets as per books. The written down value of these assets under section 43(6) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 is ₹ 410 lakhs.

- (iv) Unit N was set up by X Limited in July, 2007.
- (v) Cost inflation index for financial year 2007-08 and financial year 2019-20 are 129 and 289, respectively.

Answer*Computation of capital gain on slump sale of Unit N under section 50B

Particulars	₹ (in lacs)
Sale consideration for the slump sale of Unit N	880
Less: Net worth of Unit N (Refer Note 1 below)	770
Long term capital gain arising on slump sale	110

Computation of tax liability of X Ltd. on slump sale of Unit N

Particulars	₹ (in lacs)
Tax on capital gains@20%	22.00
Add: Surcharge@7%	1.54
	23.54
Add: Health and Education cess @4%	0.94
Total tax liability on capital gain arising on slump sale of Unit N	24.48

Notes:

- The net worth of an undertaking transferred by way of slump sale shall be deemed to the cost of acquisition and cost of improvement for the purposes of section 48 and 49 [Section 50B(2)].

Computation of net worth of Unit N

Particulars	₹ (in lacs)
(A) Book value of non-depreciable assets:
(i) Land (Revaluation is to be ignored for computing net worth)	60
(ii) Other assets	390
(B) Written down value of depreciable assets under section 43(6)	410
Aggregate value of total assets	860
Less: Value of liabilities of Unit N	90
Net worth of Unit N	770

2. Since Unit N is held for more than 36 months, the capital gains of ₹ 110 lacs arising on transfer of such unit would be a long term capital gain taxable under section 112. However, indexation benefit is not available in the case of a slump sale.

Question 11

Following are the details of income provided by Mr. Singh, the assessee for the financial year ended 31st March, 2020:

- (i) Rental income from property at Bangalore - ₹ 3 lakhs, Standard Rent - ₹ 2,50,000, Fair Rent - ₹ 2,80,000.
- (ii) Municipal and water tax paid during 2019-20: Current year ₹ 35,000, Arrears - ₹ 1,50,000.
- (iii) Interest on loan borrowed towards major repairs to the property: ₹ 1,50,000.
- (iv) Arrears of rent of ₹ 30,000 received during the year, which was not charged to tax in earlier years.

Further, the assessee furnished following additional information regarding sale of property at Chennai:

- (i) Mr. Singh's father acquired a residential house in April 2006 for ₹ 1,25,000 and thereafter gifted this property to the assessee, Mr. Singh on 1st March, 2007.
- (ii) The property, so gifted, was sold by Mr. Singh on 10th June 2019. The consideration received was ₹ 25,00,000.
- (iii) Stamp duty charges paid by the purchaser at the time of registration @ 13% (as per statutory guidelines) was ₹ 3,90,000.
- (iv) Out of the sale consideration received:
  - (a) On 02/01/2020, the assessee had purchased two adjacent flats, in the same building, and made suitable modification to make it as one unit. The investment was made by separate sale deeds, amount being ₹ 8,00,000 and ₹ 7,00,000, respectively.
  - (b) On 10/10/2019, ₹ 10 lakhs was invested in bonds issued by National Highways Authority of India, but the allotment of the bonds was made on 1.2.2020.

Compute Mr. Singh's taxable income for assessment year 2020-21.

Cost inflation index: F.Y. 2006-07: 122; F.Y. 2019-20: 289

Question 12

SS(P) Ltd., an Indian company having two undertakings engaged in manufacture of cement and steel, decided to hive off cement division to RV(P) Ltd., an Indian company, by way of demerger. The net worth of SS(P) Ltd. immediately before demerger was ₹ 40 crores. The net book value of assets transferred to RV(P) Ltd. was ₹ 10 crores. The demerger was made in January 2020. In the scheme of demerger, it was fixed that for each equity share of ₹ 10 each (fully paid up) of SS(P) Ltd., two equity shares of ₹ 10 each (fully paid up) were to be issued.

One Mr. N.K. held 25,000 equity shares in SS(P) Ltd. which were acquired in the financial year 2004-05 for ₹ 6,00,000. Mr. N.K. received 50,000 equity shares from RV(P) Ltd. consequent to demerger in January 2020. He sold all the shares of RV(P) Ltd. for ₹ 8,00,000 in March, 2020. In this background you are requested to answer the following:

- (i) Does the transaction of demerger attract any income tax liability in the hands of SS(P) Ltd. and RV(P) Ltd.?
- (ii) Compute the capital gain that could arise in the hands of Mr. N.K. on receipt of shares of RV(P) Ltd.
- (iii) Compute the capital gain that could arise in the hands of Mr. N.K. on sale of shares of RV(P) Ltd.
- (iv) Will the sale of shares by Mr. N.K. affect the tax benefits availed by SS(P) Ltd. and/or RV(P) Ltd.?

- (v) Is Mr. N.K. eligible to avail any tax exemption under any of the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 on the sale of shares of RV(P) Ltd.? If so, mention in brief.

Note:	Financial Year	Cost inflation index
	2004-05	113
	2019-20	289

Answer

- (i) No, the transaction of demerger would not attract any income-tax liability in the hands of SS(P) or RV(P) Ltd.

As per section 47(vib), any transfer in a demerger, of a capital asset, by the demerged company to the resulting company would not be regarded as "transfer" for levy of capital gains tax if the resulting company is an Indian company.

Hence, capital gains tax liability would not be attracted in the hands of SS(P) Ltd., the demerged company, in this case, since RV(P) Ltd. is an Indian company

- (ii) There would be no capital gains liability in the hands of Mr. N.K. on receipt of shares of RV (P) Ltd., since as per section 47(vid), any issue of shares by the resulting company in a scheme of demerger to the shareholders of the demerged company will not be regarded as "transfer" for levy of capital gains tax, if the issue is made in consideration of demerger of the undertaking.

- (iii) Yes, capital gains would arise in the hands of Mr. N.K. on sale of shares of RV (P) Ltd.

Sale consideration 8,00,000

Less: Indexed cost of acquisition of shares of RV (P) Ltd.

Cost of acquisition of shares of RV(P) Ltd. as per section 49(2C):

Cost of acquisition of shares of SS(P) Ltd.  $\times \frac{\text{Net book value of assets transferred in a demerger}}{\text{Net worth of the demerged company immediately before demerger}}$

$$₹6,00,000 \times \frac{10 \text{ crore}}{40 \text{ crore}} = ₹1,50,000$$

Indexed cost of acquisition of shares of RV (P) Ltd. [₹ 1,50,000  $\times$  289/113] ₹ 3,83,628

Long-term capital gain (since period of holding of shares in demerged company is also to be considered)

₹ 4,16,372

- (iv) No, sale of shares by Mr. N.K. would not affect the tax benefits availed by SS(P) Ltd. or RV (P) Ltd.

One of the conditions to be satisfied is that the shareholders holding not less than three-fourths in value of the shares in the demerged company become shareholders of the resulting company by virtue of the demerger. It is presumed that the condition is satisfied in this case.

There is no stipulation that they continue to remain shareholders for any period of time thereafter.

- (v) Since the resultant capital gain on sale of shares of RV(P) Ltd. is a long-term capital gain (on account of the period of holding of shares in demerged company being considered by virtue of section 2(42A)(g)), Mr. N.K. can avail exemption –
- (1) under section 54EE, by investing the long-term capital gain units of specified fund, within a period of 6 months from the date of transfer.
  - (2) under section 54F by investing the entire net consideration in purchase (within one year before and two years after the date of transfer) or construction (within three years after the date of transfer) of one residential house in India. If part of the net consideration is invested, only proportionate exemption would be available.

Question 13

The Balance sheet of JB Optical Limited as on 31-03-2020 reads as under:

Paid up capital ₹ 2,52,00,000

	Unit A (₹)	Unit B (₹)
Fixed assets	1,00,00,000	1,50,00,000
Debtors	1,00,00,000	75,00,000
Liabilities	28,00,000	50,00,000

The company acquired Unit B on 1.04.2017. They made certain capital additions in the form of Generator set and additional building etc., for ₹ 25 lacs during the year 2017-18. The members of the company have authorized the Board in their meeting held on 28.01.2020 to dispose of Unit 'B'. The company decides to sell Unit 'B' by way of slump sale for ₹ 225 lacs as consideration. The buyer is keen on buying the unit at the earliest, preferably before 31.3.2020. JB Optical Ltd. has offered 4% discount if the buyer closes the sale and makes payment between 1.4.2020 and 30.4.2020, since the company would be able to avail benefit of concessional rate of tax on long-term capital gains. Accordingly, this discount would not be available if the sale is completed (and payment is made) before 31.03.2020. You are required to advise the company as a measure of tax planning to determine the date of sale keeping in view the capital gains tax. Assume that the written down value of the fixed assets as per section 43(6) is ₹ 120 lacs.

Would your answer change if the buyer is ready to accept discount of 3%, other facts remaining the same?

Note: Total turnover for the P.Y. 2017-18 was ₹ 450 crore.

Solution

Determination of net worth of Unit B of M/s. J.B. Opticals Ltd.

	₹ (in lacs)
Written down value of fixed assets	120
Debtors	75
Stock-in-trade	25
	220
Less : Liabilities	50
Net worth	170

Comparative calculation of chargeable capital gains

	Sale before 31.3.2020	Sale after 31.03.2020
Sale consideration	2,25,00,000	2,25,00,000
Less: Discount	Nil	9,00,000
Net sale consideration	2,25,00,000	2,16,00,000
Less: Net worth	1,70,00,000	1,70,00,000
Short term capital gain	55,00,000	N.A.
Long term capital gain	N.A.	46,00,000
Tax rate	31.2%	20.8%
Tax thereon	17,16,000	9,56,800

Computation of Net Cash flow

	Sale before 31.3.2020	Sale after 31.03.2020
Net sale consideration	2,25,00,000	2,16,00,000
Less: Income-tax	17,16,000	9,56,800
Net Cash flow	2,07,84,000	2,06,43,200

Note: The assessee is advised to effect slump sale before 31.03.2020 as the net cash flow arising from sale effected before 31.03.2020 is higher than the net cash flow arising from sale effected after 31.03.2020, inspite of the higher rate of tax on short-term capital gains.

Alternate Situation: If the buyer is ready to accept discount of 3% offered by J.B. Optical Ltd.

In this case, the capital gain tax and net cash flow would be as under:

Comparative calculation of chargeable capital gains

	Sale before 31.3.2020	Sale after 31.03.2020
Sale consideration	2,25,00,000	2,25,00,000
Less: Discount	Nil	6,75,000
Net sale consideration	2,25,00,000	2,18,25,000
Less: Net worth	1,70,00,000	1,70,00,000
Short term capital gain	55,00,000	N.A.
Long term capital gain	N.A.	48,25,000
Tax rate	31.2%	20.8%
Tax thereon	17,16,000	10,03,600

Computation of Net Cash flow

	Sale before 31.3.2020	Sale after 31.03.2020
Net sale consideration	2,25,00,000	2,18,25,000
Less: Income-tax	17,16,000	10,03,600
Net Cash flow	2,07,84,000	2,08,21,400

Note: In case the buyer is ready to accept discount of 3%, the assessee can effect slump sale after 31.03.2020 as the net cash flow arising from sale effected after 31.03.2020 is higher than the net cash flow arising from sale effected before 31.03.2020.

Question 14

PQR Limited has two units - one engaged in manufacture of computer hardware and the other involved in developing software. As a restructuring drive, the company has decided to sell its software unit as a going concern by way of slump sale for ₹ 385 lacs to a new company called S Limited, in which it holds 74% equity shares.

The balance sheet of PQR limited as on 31st March 2020, being the date on which software unit has been transferred, is given hereunder –

Balance Sheet as on 31.3.2020

Liabilities	₹ (in lacs)	Assets	₹ (in lacs)
Paid up Share Capital	300	Fixed Assets

Following additional information are furnished by the management:

- (i) The Software unit is in existence since May, 2015.
- (ii) Fixed assets of software unit includes land which was purchased at ₹ 40 lacs in the year 2008 and revalued at ₹ 60 lacs as on March 31, 2020.
- (iii) Fixed assets of software unit mirrored at ₹ 140 lacs (₹ 200 lacs minus land value ₹ 60 lacs) is written down value of depreciable assets as per books of account. However, the written down value of these assets under section 43(6) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 is ₹ 90 lacs.
  - (a) Ascertain the tax liability, which would arise from slump sale to PQR Limited.
  - (b) What would be your advice as a tax-consultant to make the restructuring plan of the company more tax-savvy, without changing the amount of sale consideration?

Answer

- (a) As per section 50B, any profits and gains arising from the slump sale effected in the previous year shall be chargeable to income-tax as capital gains arising from the transfer of capital assets and shall be deemed to be the income of the previous year in which the transfer took place.

If the assessee owned and held the undertaking transferred under slump sale for more than 36 months before slump sale, the capital gain shall be deemed to be long-term capital gain. Indexation benefit is not available in case of slump sale as per section 50B(2).

(b) Tax advice

- (i) Transfer of any capital asset by a holding company to its 100% Indian subsidiary company is exempt from capital gains under section 47(iv). Hence, PQR Limited should try to acquire the remaining 26% equity shares in S Limited then make the slump sale in the above said manner, in which case the slump sale shall be exempt from tax. For this exemption, PQR Limited will have to keep such 100% holding in S Limited for a period of 8 years from the date of slump sale, otherwise the amount exempt would be deemed to be income chargeable under the head "Capital Gains" of the previous year in which such transfer took place.
- (ii) Alternatively, if acquisition of 26% share is not feasible, PQR Limited may think about demerger plan of Software Unit to get benefit of section 47(vib) of the Income-tax Act, 1961.

SIGNIFICANT SELECT CASES

1. Can the amount incurred by the assessee towards perfecting title of property acquired through will, for making further sale, be included in the cost of acquisition for computing capital gains?

CIT v. Aditya Kumar Jajodia [2018] 407 ITR 107 (Cal)

Facts of the Case: The assessee obtained a leasehold property under a will which gave some interest to a trust and, thus, the assessee's acquisition of the perpetual lease was subject to rights of the trust as flowing from the will. The testator of the trust had also entered into an agreement to sell with a third party. The assessee had to, thus, perfect the ownership title before he transferred the property. For this purpose, he made payment to the Delhi Development Authority (DDA) for conversion of leasehold rights to freehold rights. He also made payments to the trust and to the third party to give up his right under the agreement.

Issue: The issue under consideration is whether the amount incurred by the assessee towards perfecting title of property acquired through will, for making further sale, can be included in the cost of acquisition for computing capital gains.

Assessee's contention vis-à-vis Assessing Officer's contention: The assessee contended that his interest in the property was clouded by the rights conferred to the trust by the will as well as the rights of the third party with whom agreement for sale was entered into by the trust. He could not have transferred the property without taking care of these claims and hence, the payments made to the trust, the third party and the DDA should count towards cost of acquisition. The Assessing Officer, on the other hand, contended that such payments cannot be included in cost of acquisition. The Commissioner (Appeals) and the Tribunal, however, held in favour of the assessee.

High Court's Observations: The High Court observed that the assessee had inherited the immovable property under a will and the costs incurred by him for perfection of the title from perpetual leasehold rights to the complete ownership had to be regarded as a cost of acquisition within the meaning of sections 48 and 55, as the assessee was transferring the complete ownership rights to the transferee, and not the leasehold rights. Further, the High Court took note of the Supreme Court's ruling in RM. Arunachalam v. CIT [1997] 227 ITR 222 holding that the amount incurred in discharging the mortgage created by the predecessor-in-interest of the assessee has to be regarded as cost of acquisition of the assessee.

The High Court, accordingly, observed that, in this case, the encumbrances were got rid of by the assessee by making certain payment, consequent to which a better title to the property was acquired by the assessee and transferred to the assessee's transferee. The cost of getting rid of such encumbrances in any immovable property had to be accepted as a part of the cost of acquisition of the property, subject, however, to the assessment as to the genuineness and validity of such encumbrances.

High Court's Decision: The High Court, accordingly, held that, the assessee is entitled to deduction of amount incurred towards perfecting title of property acquired under will and the amount incurred towards making payments to the trust and the third party in whose favour rights were created, as cost of acquisition under section 55.

2. Whether receipt of higher compensation after notification of compulsory acquisition would change the character of transaction into a voluntary sale?

Balakrishnan v. Union of India & Others (2017) 391 ITR 178 (SC)

Facts of the case: The assessee owned vast area of agricultural land. The State Government acquired the property for development of a techno park. The assessee was awarded compensation of ₹14.37 lakhs. Aggrieved by the amount, the assessee initiated negotiations with the Collector, further to which compensation was increased to ₹38.42 lakhs. The assessee claimed exemption from capital gains under section 10(37)(iii) stating that the transfer of agricultural land was on account of compulsory acquisition. The Revenue authorities contended that the exemption should be denied as it was not a compulsory acquisition but a voluntary sale.

Issue: Whether receipt of higher compensation on account of negotiations transforms the character of compulsory acquisition into a voluntary sale, so as to deny exemption under section 10(37)(iii)?

Supreme Court's Observations: The Supreme Court observed that the acquisition process was initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894. The assessee entered into negotiations only for securing the market value of the land without having to go to the Court. Merely because the compensation amount is agreed upon, the character of acquisition will not change from compulsory acquisition to a voluntary sale. The Court also drew attention to a recently enacted legislation titled, Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013, which empowers the Collector to pass an award with the consent of the parties. Despite the provision for consent, the acquisition would continue to be compulsory.

Supreme Court's Decision: The Supreme Court held that when proceedings were initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, even if the compensation is negotiated and fixed, it would continue to remain as compulsory acquisition. The claim of exemption from capital gains under section 10(37)(iii) is, therefore, tenable in law.

3. Whether the Assessing Officer is bound to consider the report of Departmental Valuation Officer (DVO) when it is available on record?

Principal CIT v. Ravjibhai Nagjibhai Thesia (2016) 388 ITR 358 (Guj)

Facts of the case: The assessee sold his property for ₹16 lakhs. The State stamp valuation authority valued the property at ₹233.71 lakhs. During the course of assessment proceedings, at the request of the assessee, the Assessing Officer referred the matter of valuation to the DVO who valued the property at ₹24.15 lakhs. The Assessing Officer passed the order before the receipt of the report of the DVO by treating ₹217.71 lakhs (difference between ₹233.71 lakhs and ₹16 lakhs) as undisclosed income. The report of the DVO was received by the Assessing Officer after the date of assessment order but before the order was received by the assessee.

Appellate Authorities' Views: The Commissioner (Appeals) directed the Assessing Officer to compute the capital gain by taking the value given by the DVO. The Revenue carried the matter before Tribunal. The Tribunal agreed with the view of the CIT (Appeals) and dismissed the appeal. The Tribunal relied on CIT v. Dr. Indra Swaroop Bhatnagar (2012) 349 ITR 210 (All) which held that the DVO's valuation under section 50C(2) is binding on the Assessing Officer.

Issue: Whether the Assessing Officer having made reference to the DVO must consider the report of the DVO for the purpose of assessment?

High Court's Observations: The High Court observed that when the Assessing Officer has referred the matter to DVO, the assessment has to be completed in conformity with the estimate given by the DVO. As the DVO has estimated the value of the capital asset at an amount lower than the value assessed by the stamp valuation authority, as per 50C(2), it is such valuation which is required to be taken into consideration for the purposes of assessment.

High Court's Decision: The High Court held that capital gains has to be computed in conformity with the value so determined by the DVO.

4. Whether indexation benefit in respect of the gifted asset shall apply from the year in which the asset was first held by the assessee or from the year in which the same was first acquired by the previous owner?

CIT v. Manjula J. Shah (2013) 355 ITR 474 (Bom.)

As per Explanation 1 to section 2(42A), in case the capital asset becomes the property of the assessee in the circumstances mentioned in section 49(1), inter alia, by way of gift by the previous owner, then for determining the nature of the capital asset, the aggregate period for which the capital asset is held by the assessee and the previous owner shall be considered.

As per the provisions of section 48, the profit and gains arising on transfer of a long-term capital asset shall be computed by reducing the indexed cost of acquisition from the net sale consideration. The indexed cost of acquisition meant the amount which bears to the cost of acquisition the same proportion as Cost Inflation Index (CII) for the year in which the asset is transferred bears to the CII for the year in which the asset was first held by the assessee transferring it i.e., the year in which the asset was gifted to the assessee in case of transfer by the previous owner by way of gift.

Facts of the case: In the present case, the assessee had acquired a capital asset by way of gift from the previous owner. The said asset when transferred was a long-term capital asset considering the period of holding by the assessee as well as the previous owner. The assessee computed the long-term capital gain considering the CII of the year in which the asset was first held by the previous owner. The Assessing Officer raised an objection mentioning that as per meaning assigned to the Indexed cost of acquisition, the CII of the year in which the asset is first held by the assessee need to be considered and not the CII of the year in which the asset was first held by the previous owner.

High Court's Observations: In the present case, the Bombay High Court observed that by way of 'deemed holding period fiction' created by the statute, the assessee is deemed to have held the capital asset from the year the asset was held by the previous owner and accordingly the asset is a long term capital asset in the hands of the assessee. Therefore, for determining the indexed cost of acquisition under Section 48, the assessee must be treated to have held the asset from the year the asset was first held by the previous owner and accordingly the CII for the year the asset was first held by the previous owner would be considered for determining the indexed cost of acquisition.

High Court's Decision: Hence, the indexed cost of acquisition in case of gifted asset has to be computed with reference to the year in which the previous owner first held the asset and not the year in which the assessee became the owner of the asset.

Note - The Delhi High Court, in the case of Arun Shungloo Trust v. CIT (2012) 205 Taxman 456 (Delhi) has also given the similar view on the said issue. The Court observed that as per Explanation (iii) to section 48, the expression 'asset held by the assessee' is not defined and therefore, in the absence of any intention to the contrary, it has to be construed in consonance with the meaning given in section 2(42A). However, the Assessing Officer contended that in cases covered under section 49, the benefit of indexed cost of acquisition will be available only from the date the capital asset was transferred and not from the date on which the asset was held by the previous owner.

The High Court observed that this will result in inconsistency because as per the provisions of Explanation to section 48, the holding of predecessor has to be accounted for the purpose of computing the cost of acquisition, the cost of improvement and indexed cost of improvement, but not for the purpose of indexed cost of acquisition.

In the present case, the Bombay High Court held that by way of 'deemed holding period fiction' created by the Statute, the assessee is deemed to have held the capital asset from the year the asset was held by the previous owner and accordingly, the asset is a long term capital asset in the hands of the assessee. Therefore, for determining the indexed cost of acquisition under section 48, the assessee must be treated to have held the asset from the year in which the asset was first held by the previous owner and accordingly the cost inflation index for the year the asset was first held by the previous owner would be considered for determining the indexed cost of acquisition.

5. Would the cost of purchase of land and cost of construction of residential house thereon incurred by the assessee prior to transfer of previously owned residential house property, qualify for exemption under section 54?

C Aryama Sundaram v. CIT [2018] 407 ITR 1 (Mad)

Facts of the Case: The assessee sold a residential house property for a consideration of ₹12.5 crores on January 15th, 2010. Long-term capital gains arising to the assessee on sale of such property was ₹10.48 crore. In May, 2007, the assessee had purchased a property with a superstructure thereon for a total consideration of ₹15.96 crores and after demolishing the existing superstructure, the assessee constructed a residential house at a cost of ₹18.74 crores. For the A.Y.2010-11, the assessee had claimed exemption of the entire long-term capital gains of ₹10.48 crore under section 54, since it was lower than the cost of construction of ₹34.70 crores.

Assessing Officer's view: The Assessing Officer opined that only that part of the construction expenditure incurred after the sale of the original asset was eligible for exemption under section 54. Based on records, the Assessing Officer calculated the cost of construction incurred after the sale of the original asset, amounting to ₹1.15 crores and accordingly, allowed exemption only to that extent. The Commissioner (Appeals) upheld the view of the Assessing Officer.

Appellate Tribunal's view: The Tribunal held that section 54 was a beneficial provision and had to be construed liberally on compliance with the conditions stipulated thereunder. The Tribunal observed that the assessee had complied with the following conditions stipulated under section 54 for claim of exemption:

- (a) The assessee should have purchased one residential house in India either one year before or two years after the date of transfer of a residential house which resulted in capital gains or alternatively, constructed a new residential house in India within a period of three years from the date of the transfer of the residential property which resulted in the capital gains.
- (b) If the amount of capital gains is greater than the cost of the residential house so purchased or constructed, the difference between the amount of the capital gains and the cost of the new asset is to be charged under section 45 as the income of the previous year.

- (c) If the amount of the capital gains is equal to or less than the cost of the new residential house, the capital gains shall not be charged under section 45.

Issue: The issue under consideration is whether the cost of purchase of land and cost of construction of residential house thereon incurred by the assessee prior to transfer of previously owned residential house property would qualify for exemption under section 54.

High Court's Observations: The High Court opined that statutory provisions should, to the extent feasible, be construed in accordance with the plain meaning of the language used in those provisions.

According to section 54, capital gains exemption is available in respect of the cost of new residential house purchased or constructed. Section 54(1) is specific and clear in that it mentions cost of new residential house and not just the cost of construction of the new residential house. The cost of the new residential house would necessarily include the cost of the land, materials used in the construction, labour and any other cost relatable to the acquisition or construction of the residential house. Also, in this case, the assessee's construction of new house is within the timeline stipulated in section 54(1).

Section 54 does not lay down that construction could not have commenced prior to the date of transfer of the asset that resulted in capital gains. Also, section 54(1) does not contemplate that the same money received from the sale of a residential house should be used in the acquisition of new residential house. This is apparent as section 54 also provides exemption in respect of property purchased one year prior to the transfer of residential house property, which gave rise to the capital gains.

High Court's Decision: The High Court, accordingly, held that, in this case, the cost of land and cost of construction incurred thereon prior to transfer of residential house property also have to be considered for the purpose of capital gains exemption under section 54. As capital gains arising on transfer of previously owned house property of the assessee is less than the cost of the new residential house in this case, the entire capital gains would be exempt under section 54.

6. Where a building, comprising of several floors, has been developed and re-constructed, would exemption under section 54/ 54F be available in respect of the cost of construction of -
- (i) the new residential house (i.e., all independent floors handed over to the assessee); or
  - (ii) a single residential unit (i.e., only one independent floor)?

CIT v. Gita Duggal (2013) 357 ITR 153 (Delhi)

Facts of the case: In the present case, the assessee was the owner of property comprising the basement, ground floor, first floor and second floor. In the year 2006, she entered into a collaboration agreement with a builder for developing the property. According to the terms of the agreement, the builder was to demolish the existing structure on the plot of land and develop, construct, and/or put up a building consisting of basement, ground floor, first floor, second floor and third floor with terrace at its own costs and expenses. The assessee handed over to the builder, the physical possession of the entire property, along with 22.5% undivided interest over the land. The handing over of the entire property was, however, only for the limited purpose of development. The builder was to get the third floor plus the undivided interest in the land to the extent of 22.5% for his exclusive enjoyment. In addition to the cost of construction incurred by the builder on development of the property, a further amount of ₹ 4 crores was payable by the builder to the assessee as consideration against the rights of the assessee.

Assessee's contention vis-à-vis Assessing Officer's contention: The assessee, in her return of income, showed only ₹ 4 crores as sales consideration. The Assessing Officer, however, took the view that the sale consideration for the transfer should include not only the amount of ₹ 4 crores received by the assessee in cash, but also the cost of construction amounting to ₹ 3.44 crore incurred by the developer in respect of the other floors, which were handed over to the assessee.

The assessee contended that if the cost of construction incurred by the builder is to be added to the sale price, then, the same should also correspondingly be considered as re-investment in the residential house for exemption under section 54.

However, the Assessing Officer rejected the claim for exemption under section 54 on the ground that the floors obtained by the assessee contained separate residential units having separate entrances and cannot qualify as a single residential unit. He contended that deduction under section 54F was allowable, and that too only in respect of cost of construction incurred in respect of one unit i.e., one floor.

Appellate Authorities' views: The Commissioner (Appeals), on the basis of the judgment in CIT v. D. Ananda Basappa [2009] 309 ITR 0329 (Kar.), took a contrary view. The Tribunal concurred with the view of the Commissioner (Appeals).

High Court's Observations: The High Court observed that sections 54 and 54F use the expression "residential house" and not "residential unit" and it is the Assessing Officer who has introduced a new concept of "residential unit" into these sections. Sections 54 and 54F require the assessee to acquire a "residential house" and so long as the assessee acquires a building, which may be constructed, for the sake of convenience, in such a manner as to consist of several units which can, if the need arises, be conveniently and independently used as an independent residence, the requirement of the section should be taken to have been satisfied. There is nothing in these sections which requires the residential house to be constructed in a particular manner. The only requirement is that it should be for residential use and not for commercial use. The physical structuring of the new building, whether lateral or vertical, should not come in the way of considering the building as a residential house.

High Court's Decision: The High Court held that the fact that the residential house consists of several independent units cannot be permitted to act as an impediment to the allowance of the deduction under section 54 or section 54F. It is neither expressly nor by necessary implication prohibited. Therefore, the assessee is entitled to exemption of capital gains in respect of investment in the residential house, comprising of independent residential units handed over to the assessee.

Notes :

- (i) The Department's Special Leave Petition against the Delhi High Court's judgment was dismissed on 29th August, 2014.
- (ii) Section 54 has been amended by the Finance Act, 2019 to permit claim of deduction in respect of two residential houses purchased/constructed, where long-term capital gains on sale of the old residential house does not exceed ₹ 2 crores. However, this case law will still hold good since the exemption for investment in two residential houses cannot be availed -
- where long term capital gains > ₹ 2 crores; and
  - more than once where long term capital gains ≤ ₹ 2 crores

Even in these cases, the benefit of treating individual residential units purchased in a residential complex as one residential house for claiming exemption under section 54 can be availed as per this High Court ruling.

7. Would an assessee be entitled to exemption under section 54 in respect of purchase of two flats, adjacent to each other and having a common meeting point?

CIT v. Syed Ali Adil (2013) 352 ITR 0418 (A.P.)

Facts of the case: The assessee-individual had inherited an ancestral house property, which he sold during the relevant previous year. Out of the sale consideration, he purchased two adjacent residential flats. The assessee claimed exemption under section 54 in respect of investment in both the residential flats, in view of the decision of the Karnataka High Court in CIT v. Ananda Basappa (2009) 309 ITR 329, wherein investment in two adjacent flats were considered eligible for exemption under section 54.

Assessing Officer's contention: The Assessing Officer, however, restricted the exemption under section 54 only in respect of investment in one residential flat (including stamp duty paid for registration of the flat), contending that –

- (i) the two residential units were separated by a strong wall;
- (ii) the two flats were purchased from two different vendors under two separate sale deeds.

Appellate Authorities' views: The Commissioner (Appeals), however, observed that the assessee was entitled to exemption under section 54 in respect of investment in both the flats, since the two flats had adjacent kitchens and toilets and also had a common meeting point. The Tribunal concurred with the view of the Commissioner (Appeals).

High Court's Observations: On appeal by the Revenue, the High Court referred to the Karnataka High Court decision in CIT v. Ananda Basappa (2009) 309 ITR 329, wherein it was observed that where the flats are situated side by side and the builder had effected the necessary modification to make it as one unit, the assessee would be entitled to exemption under section 54 in respect of investment in both the flats, despite the fact that they were purchased by separate sale deeds.

The above ruling was also followed by the Karnataka High Court in CIT v. K.G. Rukminiamma (2011) 331 ITR 211, wherein it was held that where a residential house was transferred and four flats in a single residential complex were purchased by the assessee, all the four residential flats constituted "a residential house" for the purpose of section 54.

High Court's Decision: The Andhra Pradesh High Court, on the basis of the above rulings of the Karnataka High Court, held that in this case, the assessee was entitled to investment in both the flats purchased by him, since they were adjacent to each other and had a common meeting point, thus, making it a single residential unit.

Note – Section 54 has been amended by the Finance Act, 2019 to permit claim of deduction in respect of two residential houses purchased/constructed, where long-term capital gains on sale of residential house does not exceed ₹2 crores.

However, this case law will still hold good since the exemption for investment in two residential houses cannot be availed -

- where long term capital gains > ₹2 crores; and
- more than once where long term capital gains ≤ ₹2 crores

Even in these cases, the benefit of treating adjacent flats as one residential house for the purpose of exemption under section 54 would be available as per this High Court ruling.

8. Can exemption under section 54B be denied solely on the ground that the new agricultural land purchased is not wholly owned by the assessee, as the assessee's son is a co-owner as per the sale deed?

CIT v. Gurnam Singh (2010) 327 ITR 278 (P&H)

Facts of the case: The assessee claimed deduction under section 54B in respect of the land purchased by him along with his son out of the sale proceeds of the agricultural land. However, the same was denied by the Assessing Officer on the ground that the land was registered in the name of the assessee's son.

Tribunal's Observation: The Tribunal observed that the agricultural land sold belonged to the assessee and the sale proceeds were also used for purchasing agricultural land. The possession of the said land was also taken by the assessee. It is not the case that the sale proceeds were used for other purposes or beyond the stipulated period. The only objection raised by the Revenue was that the land was registered in the name of his son. Therefore, it cannot be said that the capital gains were in any way misused for any other purpose contrary to the provisions of law.

High Court's Decision: In this case, the High Court concurred with the Tribunal's view that merely because the assessee's son was shown in the sale deed as co-owner, it did not make any difference. It was not the case of the Revenue that the land in question was exclusively used by the son. Therefore, the assessee was entitled to deduction under section 54B.

9. Can exemption under section 54F be denied solely on the ground that the new residential house is purchased by the assessee exclusively in the name of his wife?

CIT v. Kamal Wahal (2013) 351 ITR 4 (Delhi)

Facts of the case: The assessee sold a capital asset and invested the sale proceeds in purchase of a new house in the name of his wife. He claimed deduction under section 54F in respect of the new residential house purchased by him in the name of his wife. However, the same was denied by the Assessing Officer on the ground that, in order to avail the benefit under section 54F, the investment in the residential house should be made by the assessee in his own name.

The Tribunal, however, accepted the assessee's contention observing that since section 54F is a beneficial provision enacted for encouraging investment in residential houses, the said provision has to be interpreted liberally.

High Court's Observations: The Delhi High Court concurred with the Tribunal's view and observed that, for the purpose of section 54F, a new residential house need not necessarily be purchased by the assessee in his own name nor is it necessary that it should be purchased exclusively in his name. A similar view was upheld by this Court in CIT v. Ravinder Kumar Arora (2012) 342 ITR 38, where the new residential house was acquired in the joint names of the assessee and his wife and the Court had held that the assessee was entitled for 100% exemption under section 54F. In that case, it was further observed that section 54F does not require purchase of new residential house property in the name of the assessee himself. It only requires the assessee to purchase or construct a residential house.

Further, in this case, the Delhi High Court observed that the assessee had not purchased the new house in the name of a stranger or somebody who is unconnected with him, but had purchased it in the name of his wife. The entire investment for purchase of new residential house had come out of the sale proceeds of the capital asset (of the assessee) and there was no contribution from his wife.

High Court's Decision: Hence, the Delhi High Court, having regard to the rule of purposive construction and the object of enactment of section 54F, held that the assessee is entitled to claim exemption under section 54F in respect of utilization of sale proceeds of capital asset for investment in residential house property in the name of his wife.

10. In case of a house property registered in joint names, whether the exemption under section 54F can be allowed fully to the co-owner who has paid whole of the purchase consideration of the house property or will it be restricted to his share in the house property?

CIT v. Ravinder Kumar Arora (2012) 342 ITR 38 (Delhi)

Facts of the case: In the present case, the assessee filed the return of income showing long-term capital gain on sale of plot of land. The assessee claimed exemption under section 54F from such long-term capital gain on account of purchase of new residential house property within the stipulated time period as mentioned in the aforesaid section. He claimed exemption under section 54F taking into consideration the whole of purchase price of the residential house property. However, after going through the purchase deed of the house property, the Assessing Officer found that the said house property was purchased in joint names of assessee and his wife. Therefore, the Assessing Officer allowed 50% of the exemption claimed under section 54F, being the share of the assessee in the property purchased in joint names.

The assessee submitted that the inclusion of his wife's name in the sale deed was just to avoid any litigation after his death. He further explained that all the funds invested in the said house were provided by him, including the stamp duty and corporation tax paid at the time of the registration of the sale deed of the said house. This fact was also clearly evident from the bank statement of the assessee. The assessee claimed that the exemption under section 54F is to be allowed with reference to the full amount of purchase consideration paid by him for the aforesaid residential house and is not to be restricted to 50%. The Assessing Officer did not deny the fact that the whole amount of purchases of the house was contributed by the assessee and nothing was contributed by his wife. However, the Assessing Officer opined that exemption under section 54F shall be allowed only to the extent of assessee's right in the new residential house property purchased jointly with his wife, i.e. 50%.

High Court's Decision: Considering the above mentioned facts, the Delhi High Court held that the assessee was the real owner of the residential house in question and mere inclusion of his wife's name in the sale deed would not make any difference. The High Court also observed that section 54F mandates that the house should be purchased by the assessee but it does not stipulate that the house should be purchased only in the name of the assessee. In this case, the house was purchased by the assessee in his name and his wife's name was also included additionally. Therefore, the conditions stipulated in section 54F stand fulfilled and the entire exemption claimed in respect of the purchase price of the house property shall be allowed to the assessee.

Note - A similar view was taken by the Karnataka High Court in the case of DIT (IT) v. Mrs. Jennifer Bhide (2011) 203 Taxman 208, in the context of deductions under section 54 and 54EC, wherein the assessee had sold a residential house property. The assessee, in order to claim exemption of the long-term capital gain, made the investment in the residential house property and bonds jointly in her name and in the name of her husband. The Karnataka High Court, in this case, observed that it was clear from the facts of this case that the entire investment was done by the assessee and no contribution was made by her husband. Therefore, in the present case, it was held that section 54 and 54EC only stipulate that the capital gain arising on a sale of property is to be invested in a residential house property or in the long-term specified asset i.e., bonds. It is not mandatory in those sections that the investment is to be made in the name of the assessee only. The name of the assessee's husband is shown in the sale deed as well as in the bonds, as a joint owner. However, since the consideration for acquisition flows entirely from the assessee's funds, the assessee is entitled to claim deduction under section 54 and 54EC in respect of the full amount invested. Therefore, in the present case, the exemption under section 54 and 54EC shall not be restricted to 50%, being the share of the assessee in the ownership of the house property and the bonds. The assessee is entitled to 100% exemption of the long-term capital gain so invested in the residential house property and in the bonds.

11. Can exemption under section 54F be denied to an assessee in respect of investment made in construction of a residential house, on the ground that the construction was not completed within three years after the date on which transfer took place, on account of pendency of certain finishing work like flooring, electrical fittings, fittings of door shutter, etc?

CIT v. Sambandam Udaykumar (2012) 345 ITR 389 (Kar.)

Facts of the case: In this case, the assessee has claimed benefit of exemption under section 54F in respect of capital gain arising on sale of shares of a company by investing the amount in construction of a house property. However, the Assessing Officer contended that no exemption under section 54F would be available in this case, as the construction of a residential house was not completed on account of pendency of certain work like flooring, electrical fittings, fittings of door shutter, etc., even after lapse of three years from the date of transfer of the shares.

High Court's Observations: The Karnataka High Court observed that the condition precedent for claiming the benefit under section 54F is that capital gains realized from sale of capital asset should have been invested either in purchasing a residential house or in constructing a residential house within the stipulated period. If he has invested the money in the construction of a residential house, merely because the construction was not completed in all respects and possession could not be taken within the stipulated period, would not disentitle the assessee from claiming exemption under section 54F. In fact, in this case, the assessee has taken the possession of the residential building and is living in the said premises despite the pendency of flooring work, electricity work, fitting of door and window shutters.

High Court's Decision: The Court held that in this case the assessee would be entitled to exemption under section 54F in respect of the amount invested in construction within the prescribed period.

12. In a case where a depreciable asset held for more than 36 months is transferred, can benefit of exemption under section 54EC be claimed, if the capital gains on sale of such asset are reinvested in long-term specified assets within the specified time?

CIT v. V.S. Dempo Company Ltd (2016) 387 ITR 354 (SC)

Facts of the case: The assessee sold its loading platform (a depreciable asset, held for 17 years) for ₹137.25 lakhs and re-invested the resultant capital gain in long-term specified assets under section 54EC and claimed exemption thereunder. The Assessing Officer, however, rejected the claim for exemption under section 54EC on the ground that assessee had claimed depreciation on such asset and therefore, the provisions of section 50 were applicable. The Commissioner (Appeals) upheld the order of Assessing Officer.

The Appellate Tribunal, however, allowed the appeal of the assessee, holding that the asset, though a depreciable asset, was held for more than 36 months before its sale and, hence, the reinvestment of capital gains in long-term specified assets is eligible for exemption under section 54EC.

High Court's Observations: The High Court observed that section 50 is a special provision for computation of capital gains in the case of depreciable asset, and has limited application in the context of computation of capital gains to the extent that the provisions of sections 48 and 49 would apply with the modifications stated thereunder. It does not deal with exemption which is provided in a totally different provision i.e. section 54EC.

The High Court referred the decision of the Bombay High Court in the case of CIT v. ACE Builders (P) Ltd (2006) 281 ITR 210 (Bom), wherein it was analysed that the assessee cannot be denied exemption under section 54EC, because firstly, there is nothing in section 50 to suggest that the fiction created therein is not restricted to only sections 48 and 49. Secondly, fiction created by the legislature has to be confined for the purpose for which is created. Thirdly, section 54EC does not make any distinction between depreciable and non-depreciable asset for the purpose of re-investment of capital gains in long term specified assets for availing the exemption thereunder. Further, section 54EC specifically provides that when the capital gain arising on the transfer a long-term capital asset is invested or deposited in long-term specified assets, the assessee shall not be subject to capital gains to that extent. Therefore, the exemption under section 54EC cannot be denied to the assessee on account of the fiction created in section 50.

Supreme Court's Decision: The Apex Court, concurred with the view of the High Court holding that since the depreciable asset is held for more than 36 months and the capital gains are re-invested in long-term specified assets within the specified period, exemption under section 54EC cannot be denied.

Note: The case in respect of which decision is rendered pertained to the assessment year 1989-90, and the above decision was in relation to exemption contained in section 54E. The rationale of the above decision can also be applied in the current context in relation to the exemption allowable under section 54EC on re-investment of capital gains arising on transfer of depreciable asset, being building, in long-term specified assets being bonds issued by NHA/RECL or other notified bonds within six months from the date of transfer.

13. Where the stamp duty value under section 50C has been adopted as the full value of consideration, can the reinvestment made in acquiring a residential property, which is in excess of the actual net sale consideration, be considered for the purpose of computation of exemption under section 54F, irrespective of the source of funds for such reinvestment?

Gouli Mahadevappa v. ITO (2013) 356 ITR 90 (Kar.)

Facts of the case: In the present case, the assessee sold a plot of land for ₹ 20 lakhs and reinvested the sale consideration of ₹ 20 lakhs together with agricultural income of ₹ 4 lakhs, in construction of a residential house. The assessee claimed capital gains exemption under section 54F, taking into consideration the entire investment of ₹ 24 lakhs. The Assessing Officer, applying the provisions of section 50C, deemed the stamp duty value of ₹ 36 lakhs as the full value of consideration since the consideration received or accruing as a result of transfer of capital asset (i.e. ₹ 20 lakhs) was less than the value adopted by the stamp valuation authority (i.e., ₹ 36 lakhs). The same was not disputed by the assessee before the Assessing Officer.

Assessing Officer's contention vis-a-vis Assessee's contention: The Assessing Officer allowed exemption under section 54F, taking into consideration investment in construction of residential house, to the extent of actual net consideration of ₹ 20 lakhs. He did not consider the balance amount of ₹ 4 lakhs, invested in the construction of residential house, out of agricultural income, for computation of exemption under section 54F, even though the sale consideration adopted for the purpose of computation of capital gains i.e., stamp duty value of ₹ 36 lakhs, was more than the amount of ₹ 24 lakhs invested in the new house.

The assessee contended that the entire investment of ₹ 24 lakhs made in construction of the residential house should be considered for computation of exemption under section 54F, irrespective of the source of funds for such reinvestment. Further, the assessee also contended before the High Court that the registration value adopted under section 50C was excessive and disproportionate to the market value of the property.

High Court's Observations: On the issue of applicability of section 50C, the Karnataka High Court observed that section 50C(2) allows an opportunity to the assessee to contend, before the Assessing Officer, the correctness of the registration value fixed by the State Government. Had he done so, the assessing authority would have invoked the power of appointing a Valuation Officer for assessing the fair market value of the property. The High Court held that when the assessee had not disputed the registration value at that point of time, it is not permissible for the assessee to now contend, at this stage, that the registration value does not correspond to the market value. Hence, the value of ₹ 36 lakhs adopted under section 50C has to be deemed as the full value of consideration.

High Court's Decision: On the issue of exemption under section 54F, the High Court held that when capital gain is assessed on notional basis as per the provisions of section 50C, and the higher value i.e., the stamp duty value of ₹ 36 lakhs under section 50C has been adopted as the full value of consideration, the entire amount of ₹ 24 lakhs reinvested in the residential house within the prescribed period should be considered for the purpose of exemption under section 54F, irrespective of the source of funds for such reinvestment.

14. Can exemption under section 54EC be denied on account of the bonds being issued after six months of the date of transfer even though the payment for the bonds was made by the assessee within the six month period?

Hindustan Unilever Ltd. v. DCIT (2010) 325 ITR 102 (Bom.)

High Court's Observations: In this case, the Bombay High Court observed that in order to avail the exemption under section 54EC, the capital gains have to be invested in a long-term specified asset within a period of six months from the date of transfer. Where the assessee has made the payment within the six month period, and the same is reflected in the bank account and a receipt has been issued as on that date, the exemption under section 54EC cannot be denied merely because the bond was issued after the expiry of the six month period or the date of allotment specified therein was after the expiry of the six month period.

High Court's Decision: For the purpose of the provisions of section 54EC, the date of investment by the assessee must be regarded as the date on which payment is made. The High Court, therefore, held that if such payment is within a period of six months from the date of transfer, the assessee would be eligible to claim exemption under section 54EC.

15. Can advance given for purchase of land, building, plant and machinery tantamount to utilization of capital gain for purchase and acquisition of new machinery or plant and building or land, for claim of exemption under section 54G?

Fibre Boards (P) Ltd v. CIT (2015) 376 ITR 596 (SC)

Facts of the case: The assessee-company had an industrial unit in Thane, which had been declared a notified urban area by notification dated September 22, 1967, issued under section 280Y(d) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 vide Notification dated 22.09.1967. The assessee, in order to shift its industrial undertaking from an urban area to a non-urban area, sold its land, building and plant and machinery situated at Thane and out of the capital gains so earned, paid advances of various amounts to different persons for purchase of land, plant and machinery, construction of factory and building in the year 1991-92. The assessee claimed exemption under section 54G of the Income-tax Act, 1961, on the capital gains earned from the sale proceeds of its erstwhile industrial undertaking situated in Thane in view of the advances so made, which was more than the capital gains earned by it. The Assessing Officer refused to grant exemption to the assessee under section 54G on the ground that the non-urban area had not been declared to be so by any general or special order of the Central Government and that giving advances did not amount to utilisation of capital gains for acquiring the assets.

Appellate Authorities' views: The CIT (Appeals) dismissed the case of the assessee while the Appellate Tribunal allowed the appeal by stating that even an agreement to purchase is good enough and that Explanation to section 54G is declaratory in nature and would be retrospectively applicable.

High Court's Decision: The High Court reversed the order of the Appellate Tribunal and denied the exemption on the reasoning that the notification declaring Thane to be an urban area stood repealed with the repeal of the section under which it was made. Further the expression "purchase" in the section 54G cannot be equated with the expression "towards purchase" and accordingly the advance for purchase of land, plant and machinery would not entitle the assessee to claim exemption under section 54G.

Supreme Court's Observations: The Apex Court observed that, on a conjoint reading of the Speech of the Finance Minister introducing the Finance Bill, 1987, and the Notes on Clauses and Memorandum explaining the provisions of the Finance Bill of 1987, it becomes clear that the idea of omitting section 280ZA of the Income-tax Act, 1961 and introducing section 54G on the same date was to do away with the tax credit certificates scheme together with the prior approval required by the Board and to substitute the repealed provision with the new scheme contained in section 54G. Once section 280ZA was omitted from the statute book, section 280Y(d) having no independent existence would for all practical purposes also cease to exist. Section 280Y(d) which was a definition section defining “urban area” for the purpose of section 280ZA alone was also omitted subsequently by the Finance Act, 1990. Apart from this, section 54G(1) by its Explanation introduces the very definition contained in section 280Y(d) in the same terms. It is obvious that both provisions are not expected to be applied simultaneously and it is clear that the Explanation to section 54G(1) repeals, by implication, section 280Y(d).

Unlike section 6 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 which saves certain rights, section 24 merely continues notifications, orders, schemes, rules, etc., that are made under a Central Act which is repealed and re-enacted with or without modification. The idea of section 24 of the 1897 Act is, as its marginal note shows, to continue uninterrupted subordinate legislation that may be made under a Central Act that is repealed and re-enacted with or without modification.

Section 54G gives a time limit of 3 years after the date of transfer of capital asset in the case of shifting of industrial undertaking from urban area to any area other than urban area. The expression used in section 54G(2) is that the amount “which is not utilized by him for all or any of the purposes aforesaid has to be deposited in the capital gain account scheme”.

For the purpose of availing exemption, all that was required for the assessee is to “utilise” the amount of capital gain for purchase and acquisition of new machinery or plant and building or land. Since the entire amount of capital gain, in this case, was utilized by the assessee by way of advance for acquisition of land, building, plant and machinery, the assessee was entitled to avail exemption/deduction under section 54G.

Supreme Court’s Decision: To avail exemption under section 54G in respect of capital gain arising from transfer of capital assets in the case of shifting of industrial undertaking from urban area to non-urban area, the requirement is satisfied if the capital gain is given as advance for acquisition of capital assets such as land, building and / or plant and machinery.

Note – In this case, two issues have been touched upon, namely, whether notification of an area as an urban area under a repealed provision would hold good under the re-enacted provision and whether advance given for purchase of an eligible asset would tantamount to utilisation of capital gains for purchase of the said asset for availing exemption under section 54G. The former issue was decided taking support from section 24 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, which provides for uninterrupted subordinate legislation in case of repeal and re-enactment, with or without modification. The latter issue was also decided in favour of the assessee by holding that payment of advance for purchase of eligible asset would tantamount to utilisation of capital gains for purchase of the said asset.

16. Would sale of fertilizer bonds (issued in lieu of government subsidy) at loss be treated as a business loss or a loss under the head “Capital gains”?

Principal CIT v. Gujarat State Fertilizers and Chemicals Limited [2018] 409 ITR 378 (Guj)

Facts of the Case: The assessee is engaged in manufacturing of fertilizers. The sale price of fertilizers is fixed by the Government of India and many a times, such price is even lower than the cost of production. Therefore, to compensate the manufacturer for the difference between the retention price of individual unit and sale price, fertilizer subsidy is given by the Government. Due to cash crunch, sometimes the Government of India discharges its dues of paying the subsidy by issue of fertilizer bonds. These bonds are saleable in the open market and the prices of such bonds are varying.

In this case, when such bonds were sold in the open market, the assessee incurred a loss of ₹ 91,45,000 which it treated as a business loss. The Assessing Officer disallowed the same treating it as a loss under the head “Capital Gains”. The Tribunal, however, allowed the same.

Issue: The issue under consideration is whether sale of fertilizer bonds (issued in lieu of government subsidy) at a loss should be treated as a business loss or a loss under the head “Capital gains”.

High Court’s Observations: The High Court observed that there is no dispute that fertilizer subsidy given to an assessee to compensate the loss on sale of fertilisers should be treated as business income of the assessee. Due to cash crunch, the Government of India had discharged its dues of paying the subsidy by issue of fertilizer bonds. These bonds are saleable in the open market and the prices of such bonds are varying. In this case also, the assessee received fertilizer bonds (in lieu of subsidy) which were sold at a loss in the open market.

High Court’s Decision: The High Court, accordingly, held that since the subsidy would have been treated as business income, loss on sale of fertilizer bonds issued is to be allowed as business loss.

INCOME FROM OTHER SOURCES

LEARNING OUTCOMES

After studying this chapter, you would be able to -

- ❑ identify the income which are chargeable to tax under the head “Income from other sources”;
- ❑ identify the admissible/ inadmissible deductions while computing income under this head;
- ❑ examine the circumstance(s) when amount paid or payable by a closely held company to the shareholder, being a beneficial owner or the concern in which such shareholder has the substantial interest would be deemed as dividend;
- ❑ examine the circumstances when any sum of money or property transferred without consideration or for inadequate consideration would be taxable in the hands of recipient and the exceptions thereto;
- ❑ examine the taxability in case of bond washing transactions and dividend stripping;
- ❑ compute the income under the head “Income from Other Sources” after allowing the deductions available thereunder.

8.1 INTRODUCTION

Any income, profits or gains includible in the total income of an assessee, which cannot be included under any of the preceding heads of income, is chargeable under the head 'Income from other sources'. Thus, this head is the residuary head of income and brings within its scope all the taxable income, profits or gains of an assessee which fall outside the scope of any other head. Therefore, when any income, profit or gain does not fall precisely under any of the other specific heads but is chargeable under the provisions of the Act, it would be charged under this head.

8.2 INCOMES CHARGEABLE UNDER THIS HEAD [SECTION 56]

(1) Income chargeable only under the head 'Income from other sources':

(i) Dividend income [Section 56(2)(i)]

The term 'dividend' as used in the Act has a wider scope and meaning than under the general law.

Dividend [covered by sections 2(22)(a) to (e)]:

According to section 2(22), the following receipts are deemed to be dividend:

- (a) Distribution of accumulated profits, entailing the release of company's assets - Any distribution of accumulated profits, whether capitalised or not, by a company to its shareholders is dividend if it entails the release of all or any part of its assets.

Example

If accumulated profits are distributed in cash, it is dividend in the hands of the shareholders. Where accumulated profits are distributed in kind, for example by delivery of shares etc. entailing the release of company's assets, the market value of such shares on the date of such distribution is deemed dividend in the hands of the shareholder.

- (b) Distribution of debentures, deposit certificates to shareholders and bonus shares to preference shareholders - Any distribution to its shareholders by a company of debenture, debenture stock or deposit certificate in any form, whether with or without interest, and any distribution of bonus shares to preference shareholders to the extent to which the company possesses accumulated profits, whether capitalised or not, will be deemed as dividend.

The market value of such bonus shares is deemed as dividend in the hands of the preference shareholder.

In the case of debentures, debenture stock etc., their value is to be taken at the market rate and if there is no market rate they should be valued according to accepted principles of valuation.

Note: Bonus shares given to equity shareholders are not treated as dividend.

- (c) Distribution on liquidation - Any distribution made to the shareholders of a company on its liquidation, to the extent to which the distribution is attributable to the accumulated profits of the company immediately before its liquidation, whether capitalised or not, is deemed to be dividend income.

Note: Any distribution made out of the profits of the company after the date of the liquidation cannot amount to dividend. It is a repayment towards capital.

- (d) Distribution on reduction of capital - Any distribution to its shareholders by a company on the reduction of its capital, to the extent to which the company possessed accumulated profits, whether capitalised or not, shall be deemed to be dividend.
- (e) Advance or loan by a closely held company to its shareholder - Any payment by a company in which the public are not substantially interested of any sum by way of advance or loan to any shareholder who is the beneficial owner of 10% or more of the voting power of the company will be deemed to be dividend to the extent of the accumulated profits. If the loan is not covered by the accumulated profits, it is not deemed to be dividend.

Advance or loan by a closely held company to a specified concern - Any payment by a company in which the public are not substantially interested to any concern (i.e. HUF/ Firm/ AOP/ BOI/ Company) in which a shareholder, having the beneficial ownership of at least 10% of the voting power is a member or a partner and in which he has a substantial interest (i.e. at least 20% share of the income of the concern) will be deemed to be dividend.

Also, any payments by such a closely held company on behalf of, or for the individual benefit of any such shareholder will also deemed to be dividend. However, in both cases the ceiling limit of dividend is the extent of accumulated profits.

Exceptions: The following payments or loan given would not be deemed as dividend:

- (i) Loan granted in the ordinary course of business - If the loan is granted in the ordinary course of its business and lending of money is a substantial part of the company's business, the loan or advance to a shareholder or to the specified concern is not deemed to be dividend.
- (ii) Dividend paid is set off against the deemed dividend - Where a loan had been treated as dividend and subsequently the company declares and distributes dividend to all its shareholders including the borrowing shareholder, and the dividend so paid is set off by the company against the previous borrowing, the adjusted amount will not be again treated as a dividend.

Other exceptions

Apart from the exceptions cited above, the following also do not constitute "dividend" -

- (i) Distribution in respect of non-participating shares issued for full cash consideration - Any distribution made in accordance with (c) or (d) in respect of any share issued for full cash consideration and the holder of such share is not entitled to participate in the surplus asset in the event of liquidation.

- (ii) Payment on buy back of shares - Any payment made by a company on purchase of its own shares from a shareholder in accordance with the provisions of section 77A of the Companies Act, 1956<sup>1</sup>;
- (iii) Distribution of shares to the shareholders on demerger by the resulting company - Any distribution of shares on demerger by the resulting company to the shareholders of the demerged company (whether or not there is a reduction of capital in the demerged company).

Meaning of “accumulated profits”

Accumulated profits in point (a), (b), (d) and (e) above include all profits of the company up to the date of distribution or payment of dividend.

Accumulated profits include in point (c) all profits of the company up to the date of liquidation whether capitalised or not. But where liquidation is consequent to the compulsory acquisition of an undertaking by the Government or by any corporation owned or controlled by the Government, the accumulated profits do not include any profits of the company prior to the 3 successive previous years immediately preceding the previous year in which such acquisition took place.

In the case of an amalgamated company, the accumulated profits, whether capitalized or not, of the amalgamating company on the date of amalgamation shall be included in the accumulated profits, whether capitalized or not or loss, as the case may be, of the amalgamated company.

Clarification regarding trade advance not to be treated as deemed dividend under section 2(22)(e) – [Circular No. 19/2017, dated 12.06.2017]

Section 2(22)(e) provides that "dividend" includes any payment by a company in which public are not substantially interested, of any sum by way of advance or loan to a shareholder who is the beneficial owner of shares holding not less than 10% of the voting power, or to any concern in which such shareholder is a member or a partner and in which he has a substantial interest or any payment by any such company on behalf, or for the individual benefit, of any such shareholder, to the extent to which the company in either case possesses accumulated profits.

The CBDT observed that some Courts in the recent past have held that trade advances in the nature of commercial transactions would not fall within the ambit of the provisions of section 2(22)(e) and such views have attained finality. Some illustrations /examples of trade advances/commercial transactions held to be not covered under section 2(22)(e) are as follows:

- (i) Advances were made by a company to a sister concern and adjusted against the dues for job work done by the sister concern. It was held that amounts advanced for business transactions do not to fall within the definition of deemed dividend under section 2(22)(e) [CIT

vs. Creative Dyeing & Printing Pvt. Ltd. [NJRS] 2009-LL-0922-2, ITA No. 250 of 2009, Delhi High Court].

- (ii) Advance was made by a company to its shareholder to install plant and machinery at the shareholder's premises to enable him to do job work for the company so that the company could fulfil an export order. It was held that as the assessee proved business expediency, the advance was not covered by section 2(22)(e) [CIT vs Amrik Singh, [NJRS] 2015-LL-0429-5, ITA No. 347 of 2013, P & H High Court]
- (iii) A floating security deposit was given by a company to its sister concern against the use of electricity generators belonging to the sister concern. The company utilised gas available to it from GAIL to generate electricity and supplied it to the sister concern at concessional rates. It was held that the security deposit made by the company to its sister concern was a business transaction arising in the normal course of business between two concerns and the transaction did not attract section 2(22)(e) [CIT, Agra vs Atul Engineering Udyog, [NJRS] 2014-LL-0926-121, ITA No. 223 of 2011, Allahabad High Court]

In view of the above, the CBDT has, vide this circular, clarified that it is a settled position that trade advances, which are in the nature of commercial transactions, would not fall within the ambit of the word 'advance' in section 2(22)(e) and therefore, the same would not be treated as deemed dividend.

Taxability of dividend

Section 8 provides that deemed dividend under section 2(22) declared by a company or distributed or paid by it shall be deemed to be the income of the previous year in which it is declared, distributed or paid, as the case may be. Any interim dividend shall be deemed to be the income of the previous year in which the amount is unconditionally made available to the member who is entitled to it.

Basis of charge of dividend

Any income by way of dividends, referred to under section 115-O, is excluded from the total income of the shareholder [Section 10(34)].

Under section 115-O, any dividend declared, distributed or paid by a domestic company, whether out of current or accumulated profits, shall be charged to additional income-tax at a flat rate of 15% in addition to normal income-tax chargeable on the income of the company. This is known as corporate dividend tax. However, Corporate dividend tax @30% is leviable on deemed dividend under section 2(22)(e).

Dividends received from a company, other than a domestic company, is still liable to tax in the hands of the shareholder. For example, dividend received from a foreign company is liable to tax in the hands of the shareholder.

It may, however, be noted that the exemption available under section 10(34) would not be allowable in respect of dividend income chargeable to tax in accordance with the provisions of section 115BBDA, even if the dividend distribution tax is paid by the domestic company on such amount of dividend.

Tax on certain dividends received from domestic companies [Section 115BBDA]

- (i) Any income by way of aggregate dividend in excess of ₹ 10 lakh shall be chargeable to tax in the case of specified assessee who is resident in India, at the rate of 10% [further, increased by surcharge, if applicable and health and education cess @4%].
- (ii) Meaning of certain terms

Term	Meaning
Specified assessee	A person, resident in India, other than <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>➤ domestic company</li> <li>➤ a fund or institution or trust or any university or other educational institution or any hospital or other medical institution referred to in section 10(23C)(iv)/(v)/(vi)/(via)</li> <li>➤ a trust or institution registered under section 12A or 12AA</li> </ul>
Dividend	Includes dividend referred under section 2(22)(a) to (d) but shall not include sub-clause (e) thereof.

- (iii) Further, the taxation of dividend income in excess ₹ 10 lakh shall be on gross basis i.e., no deduction in respect of any expenditure or allowance or set-off of loss shall be allowed to the assessee in computing the income by way of dividends.
- (iv) Accordingly, exemption available under section 10(34), in respect of dividend received by a shareholder from a domestic company would not apply to income by way of dividend chargeable to tax under section 115BBDA.

A Ltd., a domestic company, declared dividend of ₹ 170 lakh for the year F.Y.2018-19 and distributed the same on 10.7.2019. Mr. X, holding 10% shares in A Ltd., receives dividend of ₹ 17 lakh in July, 2019. Mr. Y, holding 5% shares in A Ltd., receives dividend of ₹ 8.50 lakh. Discuss the tax implications in the hands of A Ltd., Mr. X and Mr. Y, assuming that Mr. X and Mr. Y have not received dividend from any other domestic company during the year.

SOLUTION

- (i) The dividend of ₹ 170 lakh declared and distributed in the P.Y.2019-20 is subject to dividend distribution tax under section 115-O in the hands of A Ltd. First of all, the dividend received has to be grossed up by applying the rate of 15%. The gross dividend is ₹ 200 lakhs [₹ 170 lakhs x 100/85]. Dividend distribution tax @17.472% is ₹ 34.944 lakhs.
- (ii) In the hands of Mr. X, dividend received upto ₹ 10 lakh would be exempt under section 10(34). ₹ 7 lakh, being dividend received in excess of ₹ 10 lakh, would be taxable @10% as per section 115BBDA. Such dividend would not be exempt under section 10(34).

Therefore, tax payable by Mr. X on dividend of ₹ 7 lakh under section 115BBDA would be ₹ 72,800 [i.e., 10% of ₹ 7 lakh + health and education cess @4%].

- (iii) In the hands of Mr. Y, the entire dividend of ₹ 8.50 lakh received would be exempt under section 10(34), since only dividend received in excess of ₹ 10 lakh would be taxable under section 115BBDA.

Dhaval is in business of manufacturing customized kitchen equipments. He is also the Managing Director and held nearly 65% of the paid-up share capital of Aarav (P) Ltd. A substantial part of the business of Dhaval is obtained through Aarav (P) Ltd. For this purpose, Aarav (P) Ltd. passed on the advance received from its customers to Dhaval to execute the job work entrusted to him.

The Assessing Officer held that the advance money received by Dhaval is in the nature of loan given by Aarav (P) Ltd. to him and accordingly is deemed dividend within the meaning of provisions of section 2(22)(e) of the Income-tax Act, 1961. The Assessing Officer, therefore made the addition by treating advance money as deemed dividend.

Examine whether the action of the Assessing Officer is tenable in law.

SOLUTION

As per section 2(22)(e), in case a company, not being a company in which the public are substantially interested, makes payment of any sum by way of advance or loan to a shareholder holding not less than 10% of voting power/share capital of the company, then, the payment so made shall be deemed to be dividend in the hands of such shareholder to the extent to which the company possesses accumulated profits.

In the present case, Dhaval is holding 65% of the paid-up capital of Aarav (P) Ltd. Aarav (P) Ltd. has passed on advance received from its customers to Dhaval for execution of job work entrusted to Dhaval.

Since Aarav (P) Ltd. is not a company in which public are substantially interested, the applicability of the provisions of section 2(22)(e) in respect of such transaction has to be examined. In CIT v. Rajkumar (2009) 318 ITR 462 (Del.), it was held that trade advance given to the shareholder which is in the nature of money transacted to give effect to a commercial transaction, would not amount to deemed dividend under section 2(22)(e). The Delhi High Court ruling in CIT v. Ambassador Travels (P) Ltd. (2009) 318 ITR 376 also supports the above view.

In the present case, the payment is made to Dhaval by Aarav (P) Ltd. for execution of work is in the course of commercial business transaction and therefore, it cannot be treated as deemed dividend under section 2(22)(e). Hence, the action of the Assessing Officer is not tenable in law.

Note – This can also be answered on the basis of Circular No. 19/2017, dated 12.06.2017. The CBDT has, in its circular clarified that it is a settled position that trade advances, which are in the nature of commercial transactions, would not fall within the ambit of the word 'advance' in section 2(22)(e) and therefore, the same would not to be treated as deemed dividend. Since, the payment is made to Dhaval by Aarav (P) Ltd. for execution of work is in the course of commercial business transaction and therefore, the advance cannot be treated as deemed dividend under section 2(22)(e). Hence, the action of the Assessing Officer is not tenable in law.

The accumulated profits of the company as on 1.10.2019 amounted to ₹ 10,00,000. The company lent ₹ 1,00,000 to K by an account payee bank draft on 1.10.2019. The loan was not connected with the business of the company. K repaid the loan to the company by an account payee bank draft on 30.3.2020. Examine the effect of the* borrowal and repayment of the loan by K on the computation of his total income for the assessment year 2020-21.

SOLUTION

As per section 2(22)(e), any payment by a company, in which the public are not substantially interested, by way of advance or loan to a shareholder, being a person who is the beneficial owner of shares holding not less than 10% of the voting power, shall be treated as dividend to the extent to which the company possesses accumulated profits.

In the instant case, MNO (P) Ltd. is a company in which the public are not substantially interested. The company has accumulated profits of ₹ 10,00,000 on 1.10.2019. The loan given by the company to K was not in the course of its business. K holds more than 10% of the equity shares in the company. Therefore, assuming that K has voting power equivalent to his shareholding, section 2(22)(e) comes into play and MNO (P) Ltd. has to pay dividend distribution tax under section 115-O @ 34.944% (30% plus surcharge @12% plus health and education cess @4%) on ₹ 1,00,000, representing the amount lent by the company to K. Deemed dividend of ₹ 1,00,000 under section 2(22)(e) would be exempt under section 10(34) in the hands of Mr. K.

Under section 2(22)(e), the liability arises the moment the loan is borrowed by the shareholder and it is immaterial whether the loan is repaid before the end of the accounting year or not. Therefore, the repayment of loan by K to the company on 30.3.2020 will not affect the taxability of the sum of ₹ 1,00,000 as deemed dividend.

(ii) Casual Income [Section 56(2)(ib)]

Casual income means income in the nature of winning from lotteries, crossword puzzles, races including horse races, card games and other games of any sort, gambling, betting etc. Such winnings are chargeable to tax at a flat rate of 30% under section 115BB.

(iii) Consideration received in excess of FMV of shares issued by a closely held company to be treated as income of such company, where shares are issued at a premium [Section 56(2)(viib)]

- (a) Section 56(2)(viib) brings to tax the consideration received from a resident person by a company, other than a company in which public are substantially interested, which is in excess of the fair market value (FMV) of shares.
- (b) Such excess is to be treated as the income of a closely held company taxable under section 56(2) under the head "Income from Other Sources", in cases where consideration received for issue of shares exceeds the face value of shares i.e. where shares are issued at a premium.
- (c) However, these provisions would not be attracted where consideration for issue of shares is received:
  - (1) by a Venture Capital Undertaking (VCU) from a Venture Capital Fund (VCF) or Venture Capital Company (VCC) or a specified fund;

“Specified Fund” means a fund established or incorporated in India in the form of a trust or a company or a limited liability partnership or a body corporate which has been granted a certificate of registration as a Category I or a Category II Alternative Investment Fund and is regulated under the Securities and Exchange Board of India (Alternative Investment Fund) Regulations, 2012 made under the Securities and Exchange Board of India Act, 1992.

“Trust” means a trust established under the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 or under any other law for the time being in force;

- (2) by a company from a class or classes of persons as notified by the Central Government for this purpose.

Accordingly, the Central Government has, vide Notification No. 13/2019, dated 5-03-2019, notified that the provisions of section 56(2)(viib) shall not apply to consideration received by a company for issue of shares that exceeds the face value of such shares, if the said consideration received from a person, being a resident, by a company which fulfills the conditions specified by the Ministry of Commerce and Industry in the Department for Promotion of Industry and Internal Trade and files the declaration referred to in the said notification. In effect, vide this notification, the Central Government has notified the conditions to be fulfilled by a company which issues shares rather than the class or classes of persons to whom such shares are issued.

The Ministry of Commerce and Industry in the Department for Promotion of Industry and Internal Trade has, vide Notification No. G.S.R. 127(E) dated 19.2.2019, specified in para 4 thereunder, that a startup shall be eligible for exemption under clause (ii) of the proviso to section 56(2)(viib), if it fulfills the following conditions:

- (i) It has been recognized by the Department for Promotion of Industry and Internal Trade as start up as per this notification or any earlier notification on the subject.
- (ii) Aggregate amount of paid up capital and share premium of the startup after issue or proposed issue of shares, if any, does not exceed, twenty five crore rupees.

However, in computing the aggregate amount of paid up share capital, the amount of paid up share capital and share premium of twenty five crore rupees in respect of shares issued to any of the following persons shall not be included:

- (a) a non-resident
- (b) a venture capital company or a venture capital fund

Further, consideration received by such startup for shares issued or proposed to be issued to a specified company shall also be exempt and shall not be included in computing the aggregate amount of paid up share capital and share premium of twenty five crore rupees. For this purpose, a specified company means a company whose shares are frequently traded within the meaning of SEBI (Substantial Acquisition of Shares and Takeovers) Regulations, 2011 and whose net worth on the last date of financial year preceding the year in which shares are issued exceeds one hundred crore rupees or turnover for the financial year preceding the year in which shares are issued exceeds two hundred fifty crore rupees.

- (iii) It has not invested in any of the following assets –
- (a) building or land appurtenant thereto, being a residential house, other than that used by the Startup for the purposes of renting or held by it as stock-in-trade, in the ordinary course of business;
  - (b) land or building, or both, not being a residential house, other than that occupied by the Startup for its business or used by it for purposes of renting or held by it as stock-in trade, in the ordinary course of business;
  - (c) loans and advances, other than loans or advances extended in the ordinary course of business by the Startup where the lending of money is substantial part of its business;
  - (d) capital contribution made to any other entity;
  - (e) shares and securities;
  - (f) a motor vehicle, aircraft, yacht or any other mode of transport, the actual cost of which exceeds ten lakh rupees, other than that held by the Startup for the purpose of plying, hiring, leasing or as stock-in-trade, in the ordinary course of business;
  - (g) jewellery other than that held by the Startup as stock-in-trade in the ordinary course of business;
  - (h) any other asset, whether in the nature of capital asset or otherwise, of the nature specified in section 56(2)(vii)(d)(iv) to (ix) i.e., archaeological collections, drawings, paintings, sculptures, any work of art or bullion.

However, the Startup should not invest in any of the assets mentioned above for the period of seven years from the end of the latest financial year in which shares are issued at premium;

Meaning of Startup:

A company would be considered as Startup if the following conditions are satisfied:

- (a) Period – It would be considered as a Startup upto a period of ten years from the date of incorporation/ registration, if it is incorporated as a private limited company (as defined in the Companies Act, 2013) in India.
- (b) Turnover limit - Turnover of the company for any of the financial years since incorporation/registration has not exceeded one hundred crore rupees.
- (c) Object and Purposes - The company is working towards innovation, development or improvement of products or processes or services, or if it is a scalable business model with a high potential of employment generation or wealth creation.

However, a private limited company shall not be considered a “Startup”, if it formed by splitting up or reconstruction of an existing business.

Note: It may, however, be noted that where the provisions of section 56(2)(viib) have not been applied to a company on account of fulfilment of conditions specified in the above notification and such company fails to comply with any of those conditions, then, any consideration received for issue of share that exceeds the fair market value of such share shall be deemed to be the income of that company chargeable to income-tax for the previous year in which such failure has taken place. Further, it shall also be deemed that the company has under-reported the income in consequence of the misreporting referred to in section 270A(8) and 270A(9) for the said previous year. Consequently, penalty @200% of tax payable on under-reported income would be leviable.

- (d) Fair market value of the shares shall be the higher of, the value as may be –
  - (1) determined in accordance with the prescribed method<sup>2</sup>; or
  - (2) substantiated by the company to the satisfaction of the Assessing Officer, based on the value of its assets on the date of issue of shares.

For the purpose of computation of FMV, the value of assets would include the value of intangible assets being goodwill, know-how, patents, copyrights, trademarks, licences, franchises or any other business or commercial rights of similar nature.

Examples:

Co.	No. of shares	Face value of shares (₹)	FMV of shares (₹)	Issue price of shares (₹)	Applicability of section 56(2)(viib)
A (P) Ltd.	10,000	100	120	130	The provisions of section 56(2)(viib) are attracted in this case since the shares are issued at a premium (i.e., issue price exceeds the face value of shares). The excess of the issue price of the shares over the FMV would be taxable under section 56(2)(viib). ₹ 1,00,000 [10,000 × ₹ 10 (₹ 130 - ₹ 120)] shall be treated as income in the hands of A (P) Ltd.
B (P) Ltd.	20,000	100	120	110	The provisions of section 56(2)(viib) are attracted since the shares are issued at a premium. However, no sum shall be chargeable to tax in the hands of B (P) Ltd. under the said section as the shares are issued at a price less than the FMV of shares.
C (P) Ltd.	30,000	100	90	98	Section 56(2)(viib) is not attracted since the shares are issued at a discount, though the issue price is greater than the FMV.
D (P) Ltd.	40,000	100	90	110	The provisions of section 56(2)(viib) are attracted in this case since the shares are issued at a premium. The excess of the issue price of the shares over the FMV would be taxable under section 56(2)(viib). Therefore, ₹ 8,00,000 [40,000 × ₹ 20 (₹ 110 - ₹ 90)] shall be treated as income in the hands of D (P) Ltd.

(iv) Interest received on compensation/ enhanced compensation deemed to be income in the year of receipt and taxable under the head “Income from Other Sources” [Section 56(2)(viii)]

- (a) As per section 145(1), income chargeable under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” or “Income from other sources”, shall be computed in accordance with either cash or mercantile system of accounting regularly employed by the assessee.

- (b) Section 145B(1) provides that notwithstanding anything contained in section 145(1), the interest received by an assessee on compensation or on enhanced compensation shall be deemed to be his income of the previous year in which it is received.
- (c) Section 56(2)(viii) provides that income by way of interest received on compensation or on enhanced compensation referred to in section 145B(1) shall be assessed as "Income from other sources" in the year in which it is received.
- (v) Advance forfeited due to failure of negotiations for transfer of a capital asset to be taxable as "Income from other sources" [Section 56(2)(ix)]
  - (a) Prior to A.Y.2015-16, any advance retained or received in respect of a negotiation for transfer which failed to materialise is reduced from the cost of acquisition of the asset or the written down value or the fair market value of the asset, at the time of its transfer to compute the capital gains arising therefrom as per section 51. In case the asset transferred is a long-term capital asset, indexation benefit would be on the cost so reduced.
  - (b) With effect from A.Y.2015-16, section 56(2)(ix) provides for the taxability of any sum of money, received as an advance or otherwise in the course of negotiations for transfer of a capital asset. Such sum shall be chargeable to income-tax under the head 'Income from other sources', if such sum is forfeited and the negotiations do not result in transfer of such capital asset.
  - (c) In order to avoid double taxation of the advance received and retained, section 51 has been amended to provide that where any sum of money received as an advance or otherwise in the course of negotiations for transfer of a capital asset, has been included in the total income of the assessee for any previous year, in accordance with section 56(2)(ix), such amount shall not be deducted from the cost for which the asset was acquired or the written down value or the fair market value, as the case may be, in computing the cost of acquisition.
  - (d) It may be noted that advance received and forfeited upto 31.3.2014 has to be reduced from cost of acquisition while computing capital gains, since such advance would not have been subject to tax under section 56(2)(ix). Only the advance received and forfeited on or after 1.4.2014 would be subject to tax under section 56(2)(ix). Hence, such advance would not be reduced from the cost of acquisition for computing capital gains.
- (vi) Any sum of money or value of property received without consideration or for inadequate consideration to be subject to tax in the hands of the recipient [Section 56(2)(x)]
  - (a) In order to prevent the practice of receiving sum of money or the property without consideration or for inadequate consideration, section 56(2)(x) brings to tax any sum of money or the value of any property received by any person without consideration or the value of any property received for inadequate consideration.

- (b) Sum of Money: If any sum of money is received without consideration and the aggregate value of which exceeds ₹ 50,000, the whole of the aggregate value of such sum is chargeable to tax.
- (c) Immovable property [Land or building or both]:
- I. If an immovable property is received
- (a) Without consideration, the stamp duty value of such property would be taxed as the income of the recipient, if it exceeds ₹ 50,000.
- (b) For Inadequate consideration: If consideration is less than the stamp duty value of the property and the difference between the stamp duty value and consideration is more than the higher of –
- (i) ₹ 50,000 and
- (ii) 5% of consideration,
- the difference between the stamp duty value and the consideration shall be chargeable to tax in the hands of the assessee as “Income from other sources”.
- II. Value of property to be considered where the date of agreement is different from date of registration: Taking into consideration the possible time gap between the date of agreement and the date of registration, the stamp duty value may be taken as on the date of agreement instead of the date of registration, if the date of the agreement fixing the amount of consideration for the transfer of the immovable property and the date of registration are not the same, provided whole or part of the consideration has been paid by way of an account payee cheque or an account payee bank draft or by use of electronic clearing system (ECS) through a bank account or through such other prescribed electronic mode on or before the date of agreement.
- III. If the stamp duty value of immovable property is disputed by the assessee, the Assessing Officer may refer the valuation of such property to a Valuation Officer. In such a case, the provisions of section 50C and section 155(15) shall, as far as may be, apply for determining the value of such property. As per section 50C, if such value is less than the stamp duty value, the same would be taken for determining the value of such property, for computation of income under this head in the hands of the buyer.
- (d) Movable Property [Property other than immovable property]:
- If movable property is received
- (i) Without consideration: The aggregate fair market value of such property on the date of receipt would be taxed as the income of the recipient, if it exceeds ₹ 50,000.

- (ii) For inadequate consideration: If the difference between the aggregate fair market value and such consideration exceeds ₹ 50,000, such difference would be taxed as the income of the recipient.
- (e) Applicability of section 56(2)(x): The provisions of section 56(2)(x) would apply only to the specified property which is the nature of a capital asset of the recipient and not stock-in-trade, raw material or consumable stores of any business of the recipient. Therefore, only transfer of a specified capital asset, without consideration or for inadequate consideration would attract the provisions of section 56(2)(x).
- (f) The table below summarizes the scheme of taxability of gifts –

	Nature of asset	Taxable value
1	Money	The whole amount if the same exceeds ₹ 50,000.
2	Movable property	(i) Without consideration: The aggregate fair market value of the property, if it exceeds ₹ 50,000. (ii) Inadequate consideration: The difference between the aggregate fair market value and the consideration, if such difference exceeds ₹ 50,000.
3	Immovable property	(i) Without consideration: The stamp value of the property, if it exceeds ₹ 50,000. (ii) Inadequate consideration: The difference between the stamp duty value and the consideration, if such difference is more than the higher of ₹ 50,000 and 5% of consideration.

- (g) Non-applicability of section 56(2)(x): However, any sum of money or value of property received in the following circumstances would be outside the ambit of section 56(2)(x) -
- (i) from any relative; or
  - (ii) on the occasion of the marriage of the individual; or
  - (iii) under a will or by way of inheritance; or
  - (iv) in contemplation of death of the payer or donor, as the case may be; or
  - (v) from any local authority as defined in the Explanation to section 10(20); or
  - (vi) from any fund or foundation or university or other educational institution or hospital or other medical institution or any trust or institution referred to in section 10(23C); or
  - (vii) from or by any trust or institution registered under section 12A or section 12AA; or

- (viii) by any fund or trust or institution or any university or other educational institution or any hospital or other medical institution referred to in Section 10(23C)(iv)/(v)/(vi)/(via).
- (ix) by way of transaction not regarded as transfer under section 47(i)/ (iv)/ (v)/ (vi)/ (via)/ (viaa)/ (vib)/ (vic)/ (vica)/ (vicb)/ (vid)/ (vii).

Mr. A, a dealer in shares, received the following without consideration during the P.Y.2019-20 from his friend Mr. B, -

- (1) Cash gift of ₹ 75,000 on his anniversary, 15th April, 2019.
- (2) Bullion, the fair market value of which was ₹ 60,000, on his birthday, 19th June, 2019.
- (3) A plot of land at Faridabad on 1st July, 2019, the stamp value of which is ₹ 5 lakh on that date. Mr. B had purchased the land in April, 2009.

Mr. A purchased from his friend Mr. C, who is also a dealer in shares, 1000 shares of X Ltd. @ ₹ 400 each on 19th June, 2019, the fair market value of which was ₹ 600 each on that date. Mr. A sold these shares in the course of his business on 23rd June, 2019.

Further, on 1st November, 2019, Mr. A took possession of property (building) booked by him two years back at ₹ 20 lakh. The stamp duty value of the property as on 1st November, 2019 was ₹ 32 lakh and on the date of booking was ₹ 23 lakh. He had paid ₹ 1 lakh by account payee cheque as down payment on the date of booking.

On 1st March, 2020, he sold the plot of land at Faridabad for ₹ 7 lakh.

Compute the income of Mr. A chargeable under the head "Income from other sources" and "Capital Gains" for A.Y.2020-21.

SOLUTION*Computation of "Income from other sources" of Mr. A for the A.Y.2020-21

	Particulars	₹
(1)	Cash gift is taxable under section 56(2)(x), since it exceeds ₹ 50,000	75,000
(2)	Since bullion is included in the definition of property, therefore, when bullion is received without consideration, the same is taxable, since the aggregate fair market value exceeds ₹ 50,000	60,000
(3)	Stamp value of plot of land at Faridabad, received without consideration, is taxable under section 56(2)(x)	5,00,000
(4)	Difference of ₹ 2 lakh in the value of shares of X Ltd. purchased from Mr. C, a dealer in shares, is not taxable as it represents the stock-in-trade of Mr. A. Since Mr. A is a dealer in shares and it has been mentioned that the shares were subsequently sold in the course of his business, such shares represent the stock-in-trade of Mr. A.	-
(5)	Difference between the stamp duty value of ₹ 23 lakh on the date of booking and the actual consideration of ₹ 20 lakh paid is taxable under section 56(2)(x) since the difference exceeds ₹ 1 lakh being, the higher of ₹ 50,000 and 5% of consideration.	3,00,000
Income from Other Sources		9,35,000

Computation of "Capital Gains" of Mr. A for the A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	₹
Sale Consideration	7,00,000
Less: Cost of acquisition [deemed to be the stamp value charged to tax under section 56(2)(x) as per section 49(4)]	5,00,000
Short-term capital gains	2,00,000

Note – The resultant capital gains will be short-term capital gains since for calculating the period of holding, the period of holding of previous owner is not to be considered.

ILLUSTRATION 5

Discuss the taxability or otherwise of the following in the hands of the recipient under section 56(2)(x) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 -

- (i) Akhil HUF received ₹ 75,000 in cash from niece of Akhil (i.e., daughter of Akhil's sister). Akhil is the Karta of the HUF.
- (ii) Nitisha, a member of her father's HUF, transferred a house property to the HUF without consideration. The stamp duty value of the house property is ₹ 9,00,000.
- (iii) Mr. Akshat received 100 shares of A Ltd. from his friend as a gift on occasion of his 25th marriage anniversary. The fair market value on that date was ₹ 100 per share. He also received jewellery worth ₹ 45,000 (FMV) from his nephew on the same day.
- (iv) Kishan HUF gifted a car to son of Karta for achieving good marks in XII board examination. The fair market value of the car is ₹ 5,25,000.

SOLUTION

	Taxable/ Non-taxable	Amount liable to tax (₹)	Reason
(i)	Taxable	75,000	Sum of money exceeding ₹ 50,000 received without consideration from a non-relative is taxable under section 56(2)(x). Daughter of Mr. Akhil's sister is not a relative of Akhil HUF, since she is not a member of Akhil HUF.
(ii)	Non-taxable	Nil	Immovable property received without consideration by a HUF from its relative is not taxable under section 56(2)(x). Since Nitisha is a member of the HUF, she is a relative of the HUF. However, income from such asset would be included in the hands of Nitisha under 64(2).
(iii)	Taxable	55,000	As per provisions of section 56(2)(x), in case the aggregate fair market value of property, other than immovable property, received without consideration exceeds ₹ 50,000, the whole of the aggregate value shall be taxable. In this case, the aggregate fair market value of shares (₹ 10,000) and jewellery (₹ 45,000) exceeds ₹ 50,000. Hence, the entire amount of ₹ 55,000 shall be taxable.

(iv)	Non-taxable	Nil	Car is not included in the definition of property for the purpose of section 56(2)(x), therefore, the same shall not be taxable.

ILLUSTRATION 6

Mr. Hari, a property dealer, sold a building in the course of his business to his friend Mr. Rajesh, who is a dealer in automobile spare parts, for ₹ 90 lakh on 1.1.2020, when the stamp duty value was ₹ 150 lakh. The agreement was, however, entered into on 1.9.2019 when the stamp duty value was ₹ 140 lakh. Mr. Hari had received a down payment of ₹ 15 lakh by a crossed cheque from Mr. Rajesh on the date of agreement. Discuss the tax implications in the hands of Mr. Hari and Mr. Rajesh, assuming that Mr. Hari has purchased the building for ₹ 75 lakh on 12th July, 2018.

Would your answer be different if Hari was a share broker instead of a property dealer?

SOLUTION*Case 1: Tax implications if Mr. Hari is a property dealer

In the hands of Mr. Hari	In the hands of Mr. Rajesh
In the hands of Hari, the provisions of section 43CA would be attracted, since the building represents his stock-in-trade and he has transferred the same for a consideration less than the stamp duty value and the stamp duty value exceeds 105% of consideration. Under section 43CA, the option to adopt the stamp duty value on the date of agreement can be exercised only if whole or part of the consideration has been received on or before the date of agreement by way of account payee cheque or draft or by use of ECS through a bank account or through such other prescribed electronic mode on or before the date of agreement. In this case, since the down payment of ₹ 15 lakhs is received on the date of agreement by crossed cheque and not account payee cheque, the option cannot be exercised. Therefore, ₹ 75 lakh, being the difference between the stamp duty value on the date of transfer (i.e., ₹ 150 lakh) and the purchase price (i.e., ₹ 75 lakh), would be chargeable as business income in the hands of Mr. Hari, since stamp duty value exceeds 105% of the consideration.	Since Mr. Rajesh is a dealer in automobile spare parts, the building purchased would be a capital asset in his hands. The provisions of section 56(2)(x) would be attracted in the hands of Mr. Rajesh who has received immovable property, being a capital asset, for inadequate consideration and the difference between the consideration and stamp duty value exceeds ₹ 4,50,000, being the higher of ₹ 50,000 and 5% of consideration. Therefore, ₹ 60 lakh, being the difference between the stamp duty value of the property on the date of registration (i.e., ₹ 150 lakh) and the actual consideration (i.e., ₹ 90 lakh) would be taxable under section 56(2)(x) in the hands of Mr. Rajesh, since the payment on the date of agreement is made by crossed cheque and not account payee cheque/draft or ECS or through such other prescribed electronic mode.

Case 2: Tax implications if Mr. Hari is a stock broker

In the hands of Mr. Hari	In the hands of Mr. Rajesh
In case Mr. Hari is a stock broker and not a property dealer, the building would represent his capital asset and not stock-in-trade. In such a case, the provisions of section 50C would be attracted in the hands of Mr. Hari since building is transferred for a consideration less than the stamp duty value; and the stamp duty value exceeds 105% of consideration. Thus, ₹ 75 lakh, being the difference between the stamp duty value on the date of registration (i.e., ₹ 150 lakh) and the purchase price (i.e., ₹ 75 lakh) would be chargeable as short-term capital gains. It may be noted that under section 50C, the option to adopt the stamp duty value on the date of agreement can be exercised only if whole or part of the consideration has been received on or before the date of agreement by way of account payee cheque or draft or by use of ECS through a bank account or through such other prescribed electronic mode on or before the date of agreement. In this case, since the down payment of ₹15 lakhs has been received on the date of agreement by crossed cheque and not account payee cheque, the option cannot be exercised.	There would be no difference in the taxability in the hands of Mr. Rajesh, whether Mr. Hari is a property dealer or a stock broker. Therefore, the provisions of section 56(2)(x) would be attracted in the hands of Mr. Rajesh who has received immovable property, being a capital asset, for inadequate consideration and the difference between the consideration and stamp duty value exceeds ₹ 4,50,000, being the higher of ₹ 50,000 and 5% of consideration. Therefore, ₹ 60 lakh, being the difference between the stamp duty value of the property on the date of registration (i.e., ₹ 150 lakh) and the actual consideration (i.e., ₹ 90 lakh) would be taxable under section 56(2)(x) in the hands of Mr. Rajesh since the payment on the date of agreement is made by crossed cheque and not account payee cheque/draft or ECS or through such other prescribed electronic mode.

(vii) Compensation or any other payment received in connection with termination of his employment [Section 56(2)(xi)]

Any compensation or any other payment, due to or received by any person, by whatever name called, in connection with the termination of his employment or the modification of the terms and conditions relating thereto shall be chargeable to tax under this head.

(2) Income chargeable under the head "Income from other sources" only if not chargeable under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" -

- (i) Any sum received by an employer-assessee from his employees as contributions to any provident fund, superannuation fund or any other fund for the welfare of the employees.

- (ii) Income from letting out on hire, machinery, plant or furniture.
- (iii) Where letting out of buildings is inseparable from the letting out of machinery, plant or furniture, the income from such letting.
- (iv) Interest on securities

However, the following Interest income arising to certain persons would be exempt under section 10(15):

- (a) Income by way of interest, premium on redemption or other payment on notified securities, bonds, annuity certificates or other savings certificates is exempt subject to such conditions and limits as may be specified in the notification.

Interest on Post Office Savings Bank Account would be exempt from tax to the extent of:

- (1) ₹ 3,500 in case of an individual account.
- (2) ₹ 7,000 in case of a joint account.

- (b) Interest payable —

- (1) by public sector companies on certain specified bonds and debentures subject to the conditions which the Central Government may specify by notification, including the condition that the holder of such bonds or debentures registers his name and holding with that company;

Accordingly, the Central Government has specified tax free bonds issued by India Infrastructure Company Ltd. and tax free, secured, redeemable, non-convertible Bonds of the Indian Railway Finance Corporation Ltd. (IRFCL), National Highways Authority of India (NHAI), Rural Electrification Corporation Ltd. (RECL), Housing and Urban Development Corporation Ltd. (HUDCL), Power Finance Corporation (PFC), Jawaharlal Nehru Port Trust, Dredging Corporation of India Limited, Ennore Port Limited and The Indian Renewable Energy Development Agency Limited, the interest from which would be exempt under this section.

- (2) by Government of India on deposit made by an employee of the Central or State Government or a public sector company in accordance with the scheme as may be notified of the moneys due to him on account of his retirement while on superannuation or otherwise. It is significant that this scheme is not applicable to non-Government employees.

The term 'industrial undertaking' means any undertaking which is engaged in:

- (i) the manufacture or processing of goods; or
- (ii) the manufacture of computer software or recording of programmes on

- any disc, tape, perforated media or other information device; or
- (iii) the business of generation or generation and distribution of electricity or any other form of power; or
  - (iv) the business of providing telecommunication services; or
  - (v) mining; or
  - (vi) construction of ships, or
  - (vii) the business of ship-breaking; or
  - (viii) the operation of ships or aircrafts or construction or operation of rail systems.

For the purposes of the clause, “interest” shall not include interest paid on delayed payment of loan or default if which is more than 2% p.a. over the rate of interest payable in terms of such loan. Interest would include hedging transaction charges on account of currency fluctuation.

- (c) Bhopal Gas Victims - Section 10(15)(v) provides exemption in respect of interest on securities held by the Welfare Commissioner, Bhopal Gas Victims, Bhopal, in the Reserve Bank’s Account No. SL/DH 048. Recently, in terms of an order of the Supreme Court to finance the construction of a hospital at Bhopal to serve the victims of the gas leak, the shares of the Union Carbide Indian Ltd., have been sold. The scope of the above exemption has been extended to interest on deposits for the benefit of the victims of the Bhopal Gas Leak disaster. Such deposits can be held in such account with the RBI or with a public sector bank as the Central Government may notify in the Official Gazette.
- (d) Interest on Gold Deposit Bond issued under the Gold Deposit Scheme, 1999 or deposit certificates issued under the Gold Monetization Scheme, 2015 notified by the Central Government.
- (e) Interest on bonds, issued by –
  - (1) a local authority; or
  - (2) a State Pooled Finance Entity and specified by the Central Government by notification in the Official Gazette.

“State Pooled Finance Entity” means such entity which is set up in accordance with the guidelines for the Pooled Finance Development Scheme notified by the Central Government in the Ministry of Urban Development.

Accordingly, the Central Government has specified the “Tax-free Pooled Finance Development Bonds” under Pooled Finance Development Fund Scheme of Government of India, interest from which would be exempt under section 10(15).

(3) Keyman Insurance Policy

Any sum received under a Keyman insurance policy including the sum allocated by way of bonus on such policy is chargeable under the head “Income from other sources” if such income is not chargeable under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” or under the head “Salaries” i.e. if such sum is received by any person other than the employer who took the policy and the employee in whose name the policy was taken.

(4) Residual Income

Any income chargeable to tax under the Act, but not falling under any other head of income shall be chargeable to tax under the head “Income from other sources” e.g. Salary received by an MPs/MLAs will not be chargeable to income-tax under the head ‘Salary’ but will be chargeable as “Income from other sources” under section 56.

Interest from non-SLR Securities of Banks: Whether chargeable under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” or “Income from other sources”? [Circular No. 18, dated 2.11.2015]

The issue addressed by this circular is whether in the case of banks, expenses relating to investment in non-SLR securities need to be disallowed under section 57(i), by considering interest on non-SLR securities as “Income from other sources.”

Section 56(1)(id) provides that income by way of interest on securities shall be chargeable to income-tax under the head “Income from Other Sources”, if the income is not chargeable to income-tax under the head “Profits and Gains of Business and Profession”.

The CBDT clarified that the investments made by a banking concern are part of the business of banking. Therefore, the income arising from such investments is attributable to the business of banking falling under the head “Profits and Gains of Business and Profession”.

8.3 BOND WASHING TRANSACTIONS AND DIVIDEND STRIPPING [SECTION 94]

- (1) A bond-washing transaction is a transaction where securities are sold some time before the due date of interest and reacquired after the due date is over. This practice is adopted by persons in the higher income group to avoid tax by transferring the securities to their relatives/friends in the lower income group just before the due date of payment of interest. In such a case, interest would be taxable in the hands of the transferee, who is the legal owner of securities. In order to discourage such practice, section 94(1) provides that where the owner of a security transfers the security just before the due date of interest and buys back the same immediately after the due date and interest is received by the transferee, such interest income will be deemed to be the income of the transferor and would be taxable in his hands.

- (2) In order to prevent the practice of sale of securities-cum-interest, section 94(2) provides that if an assessee who has beneficial interest in securities sells such securities in such a manner that either no income is received or income received is less than the sum he would have received if such interest had accrued from day to day, then income from such securities for the whole year would be deemed to be the income of the assessee.
- (3) Section 94(7) provides that where
  - (i) any person buys or acquires any securities or unit within a period of three months prior to the record date and
  - (ii) such person sells or transfers –
    - (a) such securities within a period of three months after such date, or
    - (b) such unit within a period of nine months after such date and
  - (iii) the dividend or income on such securities or unit received or receivable by such person is exempted, then, the loss, if any, arising therefrom shall be ignored for the purposes of computing his income chargeable to tax. Such loss should not exceed the amount of dividend or income received or receivable on such securities or unit.

8.4 APPLICABLE RATE OF TAX IN RESPECT OF CASUAL INCOME [SECTION 115BB]

- (1) This section provides that income by way of winnings from lotteries, crossword puzzles, races including horse races or card games and other games of any sort or from gambling or betting of any form would be taxed at a flat rate of 30% plus surcharge, if applicable, plus health and education cess @4%.
- (2) No expenditure or allowance can be allowed from such income.
- (3) Deduction under Chapter VI-A is not allowable from such income.
- (4) Adjustment of unexhausted basic exemption limit is also not permitted against such income.

8.5 DEDUCTIONS ALLOWABLE [SECTION 57]

The income chargeable under the head “Income from other sources” shall be computed after making the following deductions:

- (1) In the case of dividends (other than dividends referred to in section 115-O) or interest on securities: Any reasonable sum paid by way of commission or remuneration to a banker or any other person for the purpose of realising such dividend or interest on behalf of the assessee.

- (2) Income consists of recovery from employees as contribution to any provident fund etc. in terms of section 2(24)(x): A deduction will be allowed in accordance with the provisions of section 36(1)(va) i.e. to the extent the contribution is remitted before the due date under the respective Acts.
- (3) Where the income to be charged under this head is from letting on hire of machinery, plant and furniture, with or without building: The following items of deductions are allowable in the computation of such income:
- (i) the amount paid on account of any current repairs to the machinery, plant or furniture.
  - (ii) the amount of any premium paid in respect of insurance against risk of damage or destruction of the machinery or plant or furniture.
  - (iii) the normal depreciation allowance in respect of the machinery, plant or furniture, due thereon.
- (4) In the case of income in the nature of family pension: A deduction of a sum equal to 33-1/3 percent of such income or ₹ 15,000, whichever is less, is allowable.

For the purposes of this deduction "family pension" means a regular monthly amount payable by the employer to a person belonging to the family of an employee in the event of his death.

Exemption in respect of family pension

1. The family pension received by the widow or children or nominated heirs, of a member of the armed forces (including para-military forces) of the Union, where the death of such member has occurred in the course of operational duties, in specified circumstances would, however, be exempt under section 10(19).
2. The family pension received by any member of the family of an individual who had been in the service of Central or State Government and had been awarded "Param Vir Chakra" or "Vir Chakra" or "Vir Chakra" or other notified gallantry awards would be exempt under section 10(18)(ii).

- (5) Any other expenditure not being in the nature of capital expenditure laid out or expended wholly and exclusively for the purpose of making or earning such income.
- (6) In case of income by way of compensation/ enhanced compensation received chargeable to tax under section 56(2)(viii): Deduction of 50% of such income. No deduction would be allowable under any other clause of section 57 in respect of such income.

Note - The Supreme Court held in CIT v. Rajendra Prasad Moody [1978] 115 ITR 519, that in order to claim deduction under section 57 in respect of any expenditure, it is not necessary that income should in fact have been earned as a result of the expenditure. In this view of the matter, the Court held that the interest on money borrowed for investment in shares which had not yielded any taxable dividend was admissible as a deduction under section 57 under the head, "Income from other sources".

ILLUSTRATION 7

Interest on enhanced compensation received by Mr. G during the previous year 2019-20 is ₹ 5,00,000. Out of this interest, ₹ 1,50,000 relates to the previous year 2016-17, ₹ 1,65,000 relates to previous year 2017-18 and ₹ 1,85,000 relates to previous year 2018-19. Discuss the tax implication, if any, of such interest income for A.Y.2020-21.

SOLUTION

The entire interest of ₹ 5,00,000 would be taxable in the year of receipt, namely, P.Y.2019-20.

Particulars	₹
Interest on enhanced compensation taxable u/s 56(2)(viii)	5,00,000
Less: Deduction under section 57(iv) @50%	2,50,000
Interest chargeable under the head "Income from other sources"	2,50,000

8.6 DEDUCTIONS NOT ALLOWABLE [SECTION 58]

No deduction shall be made in computing the "Income from other sources" of an assessee in respect of the following items of expenses:

(1) In the case of any assessee:

- (i) any personal expense of the assessee;
- (ii) any interest chargeable to tax under the Act which is payable outside India on which tax has not been paid or deducted at source.
- (iii) any payment taxable in India as salaries, if it is payable outside India unless tax has been paid thereon or deducted at source.

- (2) Any expenditure in respect of which a payment is made to a related person or made in cash in excess of ₹ 10,000: In addition to these disallowances, section 58(2) specifically provides that the disallowance of any expenditure in respect of which a payment is made to a related person, to the extent the same is considered excessive or unreasonable by the Assessing Officer, having regard to the FMV. and disallowance of payment or aggregate of payments exceeding ₹10,000 made to a person during a day otherwise than by account payee cheque or draft or ECS through bank account or through such other prescribed electronic mode covered by section 40A will be applicable to the computation of income under the head 'Income from other sources' as well

- (3) Disallowance of 30% of expenditure: 30% of expenditure shall not be allowed, in respect of a sum which is payable to a resident and on which tax is deductible at source, if
- such tax has not been deducted or;
  - such tax after deduction has not been paid on or before the due date of return specified in section 139(1).
- (4) No deduction in respect of any expenditure incurred in connection with casual income: No deduction in respect of any expenditure or allowance in connection with income by way of earnings from lotteries, cross word puzzles, races including horse races, card games and other games of any sort or from gambling or betting of any form or nature whatsoever shall be allowed in computing the said income.

The prohibition will not, however, apply in respect of the income of an assessee, being the owner of race horses, from the activity of owning and maintaining such horses. In respect of the activity of owning and maintaining race horses, expenses incurred shall be allowed even in the absence of any stake money earned. Such loss shall be allowed to be carried forward in accordance with the provisions of section 74A.

8.7 DEEMED INCOME CHARGEABLE TO TAX [SECTION 59]

The provisions of section 41(1) are made applicable, so far as may be, to the computation of income under this head. Accordingly, where a deduction has been made in respect of a loss, expenditure or liability and subsequently any amount is received or benefit is derived in respect of such expenditure incurred or loss or trading liability allowed as deduction, then it shall be deemed as income in the year in which the amount is received or the benefit is accrued.

8.8 METHOD OF ACCOUNTING [SECTION 145]

Income chargeable under the head "Income from other sources" has to be computed in accordance with the cash or mercantile system of accounting regularly employed by the assessee.

Under section 145(2), the Central Government is empowered to notify in Gazette from time to time, income computation and disclosure standards to be followed by any class of assesses or in respect of any class of income.

Accordingly, Central Government has notified ten ICDSs to be followed by all assesseees (other than an individual or a HUF who is not required to get his accounts of the previous year audited in accordance with the provisions of section 44AB) following the mercantile system of accounting, for the purpose of computation of income chargeable to income-tax under the head "Profits and gains from business or profession" or "Income from other sources".

Text of notified ICDSs is given as an Annexure at the end of this module.

EXERCISE*Question 1

Parimal, Managing Director of Heavens Engg. Pvt. Ltd. holds 70% of its paid up capital of ₹ 20 Lacs. The balance as at 31.03.2019 in General Reserve was ₹ 6 Lacs. The company on 1.04.2019 gave an interest-free loan of ₹ 5 lacs to its Supervisor having salary of ₹ 4,000 p.m., who in turn on 15.4.2019 advanced the said amount of loan so taken from the company to Shri Parimal. The Assessing Officer had treated the amount of advance as deemed dividend. Is the action of Assessing Officer correct?

Answer

The company had advanced a loan to an employee who in turn had advanced the same to the Managing Director of the company holding 70% of its capital. By virtue of the provisions of section 2(22)(e), the same shall be treated as the payment by a company in which public are not substantially interested, on behalf of, or for individual benefit of any such share holder (who holds not less than 10% of the voting power), to the extent to which the company possesses accumulated profits.

In this case, the company has reserves of ₹ 6 Lacs on 31st March of the preceding year and the amount of loan advanced on 1st April is ₹ 5 Lacs. Therefore, the payment is to be treated as deemed dividend. The amount of interest-free loan of ₹ 5 Lacs given by the company to the supervisor who in turn had given the same to Mr. Parimal, shall be construed as the amount given for the benefit of Mr. Parimal and would be treated as deemed dividend. On such amount the Heavens Engg. Pvt. Ltd. is liable to pay dividend distribution tax @30% plus surcharge @12% plus Health and education cess @4%. This has been held by the Supreme Court in the case of L. Alagusundaram Chettiar v. CIT (2001) 252 ITR 893.

Question 2

Mr. Santhanam holding 25% voting power in VKS Manufacturing Private Limited permitted his own land to be mortgaged to a bank for enabling the company to obtain a loan. Mr. Santhanam requested the company to release the property from the mortgage. The company failed to do so, but for retaining the benefit of bank loan it gave an advance of ₹ 10 lakhs to Mr. Santhanam, which was authorized by a resolution passed by the Board of Directors. The company's accumulated profit on the date of payment of advance was ₹ 50 lakhs. The Assessing Officer proposes to treat the amount of ₹ 10 lakhs as deemed dividend by invoking the provision of section 2(22)(e).

Is the proposition of the Assessing Officer correct in law?

Answer

The issue under consideration is whether loan or advance given to a shareholder by the company, in return of an advantage or benefit conferred on the company by the shareholder, can be deemed as dividend under section 2(22)(e) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 in the hands of the shareholder

The facts of the case are similar to the facts in Pradip Kumar Malhotra v. CIT (2011) 338 ITR 538, wherein the above issue came up before the Calcutta High Court.

The High Court observed that the phrase "by way of advance or loan" appearing in section 2(22)(e) must be construed to mean those advances or loans which a shareholder enjoys simply on account of being a person who is the beneficial owner of shares (not being shares entitled to a fixed rate of dividend whether with or without a right to participate in profits) holding not less than 10% of the voting power.

In case such loan or advance is given to such shareholder as a consequence of any further consideration received from such a shareholder which is beneficial to the company, such advance or loan cannot be a deemed dividend within the meaning of the Act.

Thus, gratuitous loan or advance given by a company to a shareholder, who is the beneficial owner of shares holding not less than 10% of the voting power, would come within the purview of section 2(22)(e) to the extent of accumulated profits of the company but not the cases where the loan or advance is given in return for an advantage conferred upon the company by such shareholder.

In this case, advance of ₹ 10 lakhs was given by VKS Manufacturing (P) Ltd. to Mr. Santhanam holding 25% of voting power in lieu of non-release of his personal property from mortgage thereby enabling the company to retain the benefit of loan obtained from bank. Therefore, applying the rationale of the Calcutta High Court ruling in Pradip Kumar Malhotra's case, such advance cannot be brought within the purview of section 2(22)(e), since it was not in the nature of gratuitous advance but was given to protect the interest of the company.

The proposition of the Assessing Officer to treat the amount of ₹ 10 lakhs as deemed dividend by invoking the provisions of section 2(22)(e) in this case is, therefore, not correct.

Question 3

An enterprise engaged in manufacturing of steel balls discontinued its activities and decided to lease out its factory building, plant and machinery and furniture from 1.4.2019 on a consolidated lease rent of ₹ 50,000 per month. Compute the income for Assessment Year 2020-21 of the assessee from following information:

(i) Interest received on deposits	1,00,000
(ii) Brokerage paid on hundi loan taken	2,000

(iii)	Interest paid on hundi and other loans which were given as deposits on interest to others	75,000
(iv)	Expenses incurred on repairs of building, plant and machinery	15,000
(v)	Fire insurance premium of plant and machinery and furniture	12,000
(vi)	Depreciation for the year	1,47,500
(vii)	Legal fees paid to an advocate for drafting and registering the lease agreement	1,500
(viii)	Factory licence fees paid for the year	1,000
(ix)	There is unabsorbed depreciation of ₹2,75,000 of the Assessment Years 2018-19 and 2019-20.
(x)	Interest paid in (iii) above includes an amount of ₹ 25,000 remitted to a non-resident outside India on which tax was not deducted at source.

Answer

The income derived from leased assets shall be chargeable to tax as 'Income from other sources' under section 56(2)(iii) but the computation thereof shall be made after allowing deductions specified under sections 30, 31 and 32 subject to section 38. This is as per the provisions of section 57(ii) and 57(iii).

Computation of income under the head "Income from other sources"

Particulars	₹	₹
(A) Lease Rent for 12 months @ ₹ 50,000 p.m.		6,00,000
Less: Expenses and deductions allowable under section 57(ii) & 57(iii):
Repairs	15,000
Fire Insurance Premium	12,000
Legal expenses for drafting of lease agreement	1,500
Factory Licence fee	1,000
Depreciation for the year	1,47,500
Unabsorbed depreciation of earlier assessment years – eligible for deduction ( Note 1 )	2,75,000	4,52,000
		1,48,000
(B) Interest on Deposits	1,00,000
Less: Expenses allowable under section 57(i)
Brokerage	₹ 2,000
Interest on hundi loans ( Note 2 )	₹ 50,000	48,000
Total Income		1,96,000

Notes:

1. Unabsorbed depreciation of ₹ 2,75,000 pertains to earlier assessment years. The unabsorbed depreciation shall form part of the current year depreciation and can be set off against any other head of income. Accordingly, the amount of ₹ 2,75,000 is adjustable/ allowed to be set off against 'Income from other sources'.
2. Since deposits are made by investing amount received on hundi and other loans, the interest on hundi and other loans would be eligible for deduction from the income arising on such deposits.

However, interest paid to non-resident is not eligible for deduction as the tax has not been deducted at source.

Question 4

In July 2019, Mr. Pervez employed as Marketing Manager in a Pharma company, received a Maruti car as gift from a distributor of the company. The value of the gifted car is estimated at ₹ 2,60,000. Is the value of car taxable as income? If so, under what head it is taxable?

Answer

Mr. Pervez, an employee of a Pharma company, has received a car as a gift from a distributor of the company. Since there is no employer-employee relationship in this case between the distributor and Mr. Pervez, the value of gift is not a perquisite chargeable to tax under the head "Salaries".

Section 56(2)(x), brings within its scope the value of any property received by any person. For this purpose, "property" means immovable property being land or building or both, shares and securities, jewellery, archaeological collections, drawings, paintings, sculptures, any work of art or bullion.

Therefore, for the purpose of attracting the provisions of section 56(2)(x) for chargeability under the head "Income from Other Sources", an individual should be in receipt of property as defined therein. Since, car is not included in the definition of "property", the provisions of section 56(2)(x) would not be attracted in the hands of Mr. Pervez.

SIGNIFICANT SELECT CASES

1. Is interest income from share application money deposited in bank eligible for set-off against public issue expenses or should such interest be subject to tax under the head 'Income from Other Sources'?

CIT v. Sree Rama Multi Tech Ltd. [2018] 403 ITR 426 (SC)

Facts of the Case: The assessee-company is engaged in the manufacture of multi-layer tubes and other speciality packaging and plastic products. It came out with an initial public issue of shares during the relevant assessment years and deposited the share application money received in banks. The interest of ₹ 1,71,30,202 earned on the deposits was shown in the return of income originally filed under the head 'Income from Other Sources'. Subsequently, the assessee-company raised an additional ground before the Tribunal for allowing the set off of such interest against the public issue expenses.

Issue: The issue under consideration is whether the interest income from share application money is taxable under the head 'Income from Other Sources', or can the same be set-off against public issue expenses.

Supreme Court's Observations: The Supreme Court observed that the assessee-company was statutorily required to keep share application money in a separate account till the allotment of shares was completed. Part of the share application money would normally have to be returned to unsuccessful applicants, and therefore, the entire share application money would not ultimately be appropriated by the company. The interest earned was inextricably linked with the requirement of raising share capital.

Any surplus money deposited in the bank for the purpose of earning interest is liable to be taxed as "Income from Other Sources". Here, the share application money was deposited with the bank not to make additional income but to comply with the statute. The interest accrued on such deposit is merely incidental. Moreover, the issue of shares relates to capital structure of the company and hence, expenses incurred in connection with the issue of shares are to be capitalized. Accordingly, the accrued interest is not liable to be taxed as "Income from Other Sources"; the same is eligible to be set-off against public issue expenses.

Supreme Court's Decision: The Supreme Court concurred with the High Court's view that the interest accrued on deposit of share application money with bank is eligible for set off against the public issue expenses; such interest is, hence, not taxable as "Income from Other Sources".

2. Is loan to HUF who is a shareholder in a closely held company chargeable to tax as deemed dividend?

Gopal & Sons (HUF) v. CIT (2017) 391 ITR 1 (SC)

Facts of the case: The assessee is a HUF which holds 37.12% shares in M/s. G.S. Fertilizers (P.) Ltd., a closely held company. During the relevant previous year, it received loans and advances from the company. Its return was scrutinized by the Assessing Officer who treated the loans and advances as deemed dividend under section 2(22)(e). The company declared in its annual return that the advances were given to the HUF but the share certificates were issued in the name of the HUF's Karta, Shri Gopal Kumar Sanei.

Appellate Authorities' views: The CIT (Appeals) confirmed the order of the Assessing Officer. The Tribunal, however, observed that since a HUF cannot be a registered or beneficial shareholder of a company, the amount cannot be taxed as deemed dividend. The High Court restored the order of the Assessing Officer by observing that the assessee did not dispute that the karta is a member of HUF which has taken the loan from the company and, therefore, the case is covered by section 2(22)(e).

Issue: Whether loan given by a closely held company to a HUF is chargeable to tax as deemed dividend under section 2(22)(e) despite the stated position of law being that a HUF cannot be a shareholder in a company?

Supreme Court's Observations: When a loan is given by a closely held company, it is chargeable to tax as deemed dividend if the loan was given to a shareholder (having more than 10% shares in the company) or to a concern in which the shareholder has substantial interest (having more than 20% share in the concern). 'Concern' includes HUF.

In the instant case, loans were given to the HUF. There was some dispute as to who was the shareholder - the Karta or the HUF as share certificates were issued in the name of the former but the annual return mentioned the latter. The Court observed that in either scenario, section 2(22)(e) would be attracted. If the HUF was the shareholder, as it held more than 10% shares, situation was covered. If the Karta was the shareholder, the HUF would be the concern in which the Karta has substantial interest.

Further, on the issue whether a HUF can be a shareholder or not, it was observed that on account of Explanation 3 to section 2(22)(e), a concern includes a HUF.

Supreme Court's Decision: The Supreme Court, accordingly, held that the loan amount is to be assessed as deemed dividend under section 2(22)(e).

3. Is interest on enhanced compensation under section 28 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 assessable as capital gains or as income from other sources?

Movaliyi Bhikhubhai Balabhai v. ITO (TDS) (2016) 388 ITR 343 (Guj)

Facts of the case: The petitioner's agricultural lands were compulsorily acquired for undertaking an irrigation project. The petitioner challenged the compensation awarded by the Collector which led to award of additional compensation of ₹5,01,846 and interest amounting to ₹ 20.74 lakhs under section 28 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894. The petitioner filed an application in the prescribed form to the Assessing Officer for issuance of a certificate with 'nil' tax deduction at source.

The application was rejected by the Assessing Officer on the ground that the interest amount is taxable at source as per section 57(iv) read with sections 56(2)(viii) and 145B(1). Aggrieved with the rejection of application, the assessee filed a writ before the High Court.

High Court's Observations: The High Court observed that the assessee has received interest under section 28 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 which represents enhanced value of land and thus, partakes the character of compensation and not interest. Hence, the interest under section 28 is liable to be taxed under the head of 'Capital Gains' and not under 'Income from Other Sources'. On the other hand, interest under section 34 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 is for the delay in making payment after the compensation amount is determined. Such amount is liable to be taxed under the head 'Income from Other Sources'.

High Court's Decision: The High Court held that the interest awarded under section 28 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 was not liable to tax under the head of 'Income from other sources' and thus, was not deductible at source. The Revenue authority had erred in refusing to grant a certificate under section 197 to the petitioner for non-deduction of tax at source.

Note: The Land Acquisition Act, 1894 has now been repealed and replaced by the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013. Section 72 and Section 80 of the new legislation have similar provisions regarding award of interest.

4. What are the tests for determining "substantial part of business" of lending company for the purpose of application of exclusion provision under section 2(22)?

CIT v. Parle Plastics Ltd. (2011) 332 ITR 63 (Bom.)

High Court's Observations: Under section 2(22), "dividend" does not include, inter alia, any advance or loan made to a shareholder by a company in the ordinary course of its business, where the lending of money is a substantial part of the business of the company. The expression used in the exclusion provision of section 2(22) is "substantial part of the business". Sometimes a portion which contributes a substantial part of the turnover, though it contributes a relatively small portion of the profit, would be termed as a substantial part of the business. Similarly, a portion which is relatively small as compared to the total turnover, but generates a large portion, say, more than 50% of the total profit of the company would also be a substantial part of its business. Percentage of turnover in relation to the whole as also the percentage of the profit in relation to the whole and sometimes even percentage of manpower used for a particular part of the business in relation to the total manpower or work force of the company would be required to be taken into consideration for determining the substantial part of business. The capital employed for a specific division of a company in comparison to total capital employed would also be relevant to determine whether the part of the business constitutes a substantial part.

In this case, 42% of the total assets of the lending company were deployed by it by way of loans and advances. Further, if the income earned by way of interest is excluded, the other business had resulted in a net loss. These factors were considered in concluding that lending of money was a substantial part of the business of the company.

High Court's Decision: Since lending of money was a substantial part of the business of the lending company, the money given by it by way of advance or loan to the assessee could not be regarded as a dividend, as it had to be excluded from the definition of "dividend" by virtue of the specific exclusion in section 2(22).

5. Can repair and renovation expenses incurred by a company in respect of premises leased out by a shareholder having substantial interest in the company, be treated as deemed dividend?

CIT v. Vir Vikram Vaid (2014) 367 ITR 365 (Bom)

Facts of the case: The assessee holds more than 75% of equity shares in a company and is the executive director of the company. In his personal capacity, he is the owner of certain premises in which he was carrying on a proprietary business. Subsequently, the assessee ceased to carry on the business of proprietary concern and hence, let out the premises to the company. The company incurred ₹ 2.51 crores towards construction and improvement of factory premises, which it continued to use otherwise than as the owner of the premises. The Assessing Officer held that the amounts spent by the company towards repair and renovation is taxable as deemed dividend. In the alternative, the said amount was to be treated as a perquisite taxable in the hands of the assessee.

Appellate Authorities' Views: The Commissioner (Appeals) noted the assessee's submission that he had leased out the said premises for a rent lower than the prevailing market rate with an understanding that all expenditure for its upkeep and maintenance would be spent by the company on account of the assessee having stopped business activities. According to the Commissioner (Appeals), the assessee failed to substantiate his claim. The Commissioner (Appeals) was of the view that all the conditions provided under section 2(22)(e) for deemed dividend were satisfied. On the other hand, the Tribunal concluded that the payment was neither a deemed dividend nor a perquisite chargeable to tax.

High Court's Observations: The challenge before the High Court by the Revenue was only with regard to applicability of section 2(22)(e) in this case. The High Court observed that no money had been paid by way of advance or loan to the shareholder who has substantial interest in the company. Further, the amount spent was towards repairs and renovation of the premises owned by the assessee but occupied by the company as lessee. There is no dispute that the company had taken on rent the aforesaid premises.

The High Court observed that the expenditure incurred by virtue of repairs and renovation on the premises cannot be brought within the definition of advance or loan given to the shareholder having substantial interest in the company, though he is the owner of the premises. It cannot be treated as payment by the company on behalf of the shareholder or for the individual benefit of such shareholder. If held in such manner, it is a mere assumption not tenable in law.

High Court's Decision: The High Court, accordingly, held that the repair and renovation expenses in respect of premises owned by the assessee and occupied by the company cannot be treated as deemed dividend.

6. Can the loan or advance given to a shareholder by the company, in return for an advantage conferred on the company by the shareholder, be deemed as dividend under section 2(22)(e)?

Pradip Kumar Malhotra v. CIT (2011) 338 ITR 538 (Cal.)

Facts of the case: In the present case, the assessee, a shareholder holding substantial voting power in the company, permitted his property to be mortgaged to the bank for enabling the company to take the benefit of loan. The shareholder requested the company to release the property from the mortgage. On failing to do so and for retaining the benefit of loan availed from bank, the company gave advance to the assessee, which was authorized by a resolution passed by its Board of Directors.

Issue: The issue under consideration is whether the advance given by the company to the assessee-shareholder by way of security deposit for keeping his property as mortgage on behalf of company to reap the benefit of loan, can be treated as deemed dividend within the meaning of section 2(22)(e).

High Court's Observations: In the above case, the Calcutta High Court observed that, the phrase "by way of advance or loan" appearing in section 2(22)(e) must be construed to mean those advances or loans which a shareholder enjoys simply on account of being a person who is the beneficial owner of shares (not being shares entitled to a fixed rate of dividend whether with or without a right to participate in profits) holding not less than 10% of the voting power. In case such loan or advance is given to such shareholder as a consequence of any further consideration which is beneficial to the company received from such a shareholder, such advance or loan cannot be said to a deemed dividend within the meaning of the Act. Thus, gratuitous loan or advance given by a company to a shareholder, who is the beneficial owner of shares holding not less than 10% of the voting power, would come within the purview of section 2(22)(e) but not to the cases where the loan or advance is given in return to an advantage conferred upon the company by such shareholder.

High Court's Decision: In the present case, the advance given to the assessee by the company was not in the nature of a gratuitous advance; instead it was given to protect the interest of the company. Therefore, the said advance cannot be treated as deemed dividend under section 2(22)(e).

7. Would the provisions of deemed dividend under section 2(22)(e) be attracted in respect of financial transactions entered into in the normal course of business?

CIT v. Ambassador Travels (P) Ltd. (2009) 318 ITR 376 (Del.)

Under section 2(22)(e), loans and advances made out of accumulated profits of a company in which public are not substantially interested to a beneficial owner of shares holding not less than 10% of the voting power or to a concern in which such shareholder has substantial interest is deemed as dividend. However, this provision would not apply in the case of advance made in the course of the assessee's business as a trading transaction.

The assessee, a travel agency, has regular business dealings with two concerns in the tourism industry dealing with holiday resorts.

High Court's Observations & Decision: The High Court observed that the assessee was involved in booking of resorts for the customers of these companies and entered into normal business transactions as a part of its day-to-day business activities.

The High Court, therefore, held that such financial transactions cannot under any circumstances be treated as loans or advances received by the assessee from these concerns for the purpose of application of section 2(22)(e).

Note: The cases [No.1, 4, 5 and 6] primarily decide whether or not certain payments/transactions/expenses can be treated as loan or advance given to a shareholder for the purposes of section 2(22)(e). Though these cases were decided by the courts on the basis of the erstwhile provisions wherein such dividend was subject to tax in the hands of the shareholders, the rationale of the said cases would hold good in the current context also wherein such dividend is subject to distribution tax in the hands of the company.

8. Can winnings of prize money on unsold lottery tickets held by the distributor of lottery tickets be assessed as business income and be subject to normal rates of tax instead of the rates prescribed under section 115BB?

CIT v. Manjoo and Co. (2011) 335 ITR 527 (Kerala)

High Court's Observations: On the above issue, the Kerala High Court observed that winnings from lottery is included in the definition of income by virtue of section 2(24)(ix). Further, in practice, all prizes from unsold tickets of the lotteries shall be the property of the organising agent. Similarly, all unclaimed prizes shall also be the property of the organising agent and shall be refunded to the organising agent.

The High Court contended that the receipt of winnings from lottery by the distributor was not on account of any physical or intellectual effort made by him and therefore cannot be said to be "income earned" by him in business. The said view was taken on the basis that the unsold lottery tickets cease to be stock-in-trade of the distributor because, after the draw, those tickets are unsaleable and have no value except waste paper value and the distributor will get nothing on sale of the same except any prize winning ticket if held by him, which, if produced will entitle him for the prize money. Hence, the receipt of the prize money is not in his capacity as a lottery distributor but as a holder of the lottery ticket which won the prize. The Lottery Department also does not treat it as business income received by the distributor but instead treats it as prize money paid on which tax is deducted at source.

Further, winnings from lotteries are assessable under the special provisions of section 115BB, irrespective of the head under which such income falls. Therefore, even if the argument of the assessee is accepted and the winnings from lottery is taken to be received by him in the course of his business and as such assessable as business income, the specific provision contained in section 115BB, namely, the special rate of tax i.e. 30% would apply.

High Court's Decision: The High Court, therefore, held that the rate of 30% prescribed under section 115BB is applicable in respect of winnings from lottery received by the distributor.

Annexure

A. Income Computation and Disclosure Standard I relating to accounting policies

Preamble

This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard is applicable for computation of income chargeable under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” or “Income from other sources” and not for the purpose of maintenance of books of accounts.

In the case of conflict between the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 (‘the Act’) and this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard, the provisions of the Act shall prevail to that extent.

Scope

1. This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard deals with significant accounting policies.

Fundamental Accounting Assumptions

2. The following are fundamental accounting assumptions, namely:—

(a) Going Concern

“Going concern” refers to the assumption that the person has neither the intention nor the necessity of liquidation or of curtailing materially the scale of the business, profession or vocation and intends to continue his business, profession or vocation for the foreseeable future.

(b) Consistency

“Consistency” refers to the assumption that accounting policies are consistent from one period to another;

(c) Accrual

“Accrual” refers to the assumption that revenues and costs are accrued, that is, recognised as they are earned or incurred (and not as money is received or paid) and recorded in the previous year to which they relate.

Accounting Policies

3. The accounting policies refer to the specific accounting principles and the methods of applying those principles adopted by a person.

Considerations in the Selection and Change of Accounting Policies

4. Accounting policies adopted by a person shall be such so as to represent a true and fair

2 DIRECT TAX LAWS

view of the state of affairs and income of the business, profession or vocation. For this purpose,

(i) the treatment and presentation of transactions and events shall be governed by their substance and not merely by the legal form; and

(ii) marked to market loss or an expected loss shall not be recognised unless the recognition of such loss is in accordance with the provisions of any other Income Computation and Disclosure Standard.

5. An accounting policy shall not be changed without reasonable cause.

Disclosure of Accounting Policies

6. All significant accounting policies adopted by a person shall be disclosed.

7. Any change in an accounting policy which has a material effect shall be disclosed. The amount by which any item is affected by such change shall also be disclosed to the extent ascertainable. Where such amount is not ascertainable, wholly or in part, the fact shall be indicated. If a change is made in the accounting policies which has no material effect for the current previous year but which is reasonably expected to have a material effect in later previous years, the fact of such change shall be appropriately disclosed in the previous year in which the change is adopted and also in the previous year in which such change has material effect for the first time.

8. Disclosure of accounting policies or of changes therein cannot remedy a wrong or inappropriate treatment of the item.

9. If the fundamental accounting assumptions of Going Concern, Consistency and Accrual are followed, specific disclosure is not required. If a fundamental accounting assumption is not followed, the fact shall be disclosed.

Transitional Provisions

10. All contract or transaction existing on the 1st day of April, 2016 or entered into on or after the 1st day of April, 2016 shall be dealt with in accordance with the provisions of this standard after taking into account the income, expense or loss, if any, recognised in respect of the said contract or transaction for the previous year ending on or before the 31st March, 2016.

B. Income Computation and Disclosure Standard II relating to valuation of inventories

Preamble

This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard is applicable for computation of income chargeable under the head "Profits and gains of Business or profession" or "Income from other sources” and not for the purpose of maintenance of books of accounts.

In the case of conflict between the provisions of Income Tax Act, 1961 (‘the Act’) and this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard, the provisions of the Act shall prevail to that extent.

Scope

1. This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard shall be applied for valuation of inventories, except :

- (a) Work-in-progress arising under ‘construction contract’ including directly related service contract which is dealt with by the Income Computation and Disclosure Standard on construction contracts;
- (b) Work-in-progress which is dealt with by other Income Computation and Disclosure Standard;
- (c) Shares, debentures and other financial instruments held as stock-in-trade which are dealt with by the Income Computation and Disclosure Standard on securities;
- (d) Producers’ inventories of livestock, agriculture and forest products, mineral oils, ores and gases to the extent that they are measured at net realisable value;
- (e) Machinery spares, which can be used only in connection with a tangible fixed asset and their use is expected to be irregular, shall be dealt with in accordance with the Income Computation and Disclosure Standard on tangible fixed assets.

Definitions

2(1) The following terms are used in this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard with the meanings specified:

- (a) “Inventories” are assets:
  - (i) held for sale in the ordinary course of business;
  - (ii) in the process of production for such sale;
  - (iii) in the form of materials or supplies to be consumed in the production process or in the rendering of services.
- (b) “Net realisable value” is the estimated selling price in the ordinary course of business less the estimated costs of completion and the estimated costs necessary to make the sale.

2(2) Words and expressions used and not defined in this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard but defined in the Act shall have the meanings assigned to them in that Act.

Measurement

3. Inventories shall be valued at cost, or net realisable value, whichever is lower.

Cost of Inventories

4. Cost of inventories shall comprise of all costs of purchase, costs of services, costs of conversion and other costs incurred in bringing the inventories to their present location and condition.

Costs of Purchase

5. The costs of purchase shall consist of purchase price including duties and taxes, freight inwards and other expenditure directly attributable to the acquisition. Trade discounts, rebates and other similar items shall be deducted in determining the costs of purchase.

Costs of Services

6. The costs of services shall consist of labour and other costs of personnel directly engaged in providing the service including supervisory personnel and attributable overheads.

Costs of Conversion

7. The costs of conversion of inventories shall include costs directly related to the units of production and a systematic allocation of fixed and variable production overheads that are incurred in converting materials into finished goods. Fixed production overheads shall be those indirect costs of production that remain relatively constant regardless of the volume of production. Variable production overheads shall be those indirect costs of production that vary directly or nearly directly, with the volume of production.

8. The allocation of fixed production overheads for the purpose of their inclusion in the costs of conversion shall be based on the normal capacity of the production facilities. Normal capacity shall be the production expected to be achieved on an average over a number of periods or seasons under normal circumstances, taking into account the loss of capacity resulting from planned maintenance. The actual level of production shall be used when it approximates to normal capacity. The amount of fixed production overheads allocated to each unit of production shall not be increased as a consequence of low production or idle plant. Unallocated overheads shall be recognised as an expense in the period in which they are incurred. In periods of abnormally high production, the amount of fixed production overheads allocated to each unit of production is decreased so that inventories are not measured above the cost. Variable production overheads shall be assigned to each unit of production on the basis of the actual use of the production facilities.

9. Where a production process results in more than one product being produced simultaneously and the costs of conversion of each product are not separately identifiable, the costs shall be allocated between the products on a rational and consistent basis. Where by-products, scrap or waste material are immaterial, they shall be measured at net realisable value and this value shall be deducted from the cost of the main product.

Other Costs

10. Other costs shall be included in the cost of inventories only to the extent that they are incurred in bringing the inventories to their present location and condition

11. Interest and other borrowing costs shall not be included in the costs of inventories, unless they meet the criteria for recognition of interest as a component of the cost as specified in the Income Computation and Disclosure Standard on borrowing costs.

Exclusions from the Cost of Inventories

12. In determining the cost of inventories in accordance with paragraphs 4 to paragraphs 11, the following costs shall be excluded and recognised as expenses of the period in which they are incurred, namely:—

- (a) Abnormal amounts of wasted materials, labour, or other production costs;
- (b) Storage costs, unless those costs are necessary in the production process prior to a further production stage;
- (c) Administrative overheads that do not contribute to bringing the inventories to their present location and condition ;
- (d) Selling costs.

Cost Formulae

13. The Cost of inventories of items

- (i) that are not ordinarily interchangeable; and
- (ii) goods or services produced and segregated for specific projects shall be assigned by specific identification of their individual costs.

14. 'Specific identification of cost' means specific costs are attributed to identified items of inventory.

15. Where there are a large numbers of items of inventory which are ordinarily interchangeable, specific identification of costs shall not be made.

First-in First-out and Weighted Average Cost Formula

16. Cost of inventories, other than the inventory dealt with in paragraph 13, shall be assigned by using the First-in First-out (FIFO), or weighted average cost formula. The formula used shall reflect the fairest possible approximation to the cost incurred in bringing the items of inventory to their present location and condition.

17. The FIFO formula assumes that the items of inventory which were purchased or produced first are consumed or sold first, and consequently the items remaining in inventory at the end of the period are those most recently purchased or produced. Under the weighted average cost formula, the cost of each item is determined from the weighted average of the cost of similar items at the beginning of a period and the cost of similar items purchased or produced during the period. The average shall be calculated on a periodic basis, or as each additional shipment is received, depending upon the circumstances.

Techniques for the Measurement of Cost

18(1) Techniques for the measurement of the cost of inventories, such as the standard cost method or the retail method, may be used for convenience if the results approximate the actual cost. Standard costs take into account normal levels of consumption of materials and supplies, labour, efficiency and capacity utilisation. They are regularly reviewed and, if necessary, revised in the light of the current conditions.

18(2) The retail method can be used in the retail trade for measuring inventories of large number of rapidly changing items that have similar margins and for which it is impracticable to use other costing methods. The cost of the inventory is determined by reducing from the sales value of the inventory, the appropriate percentage gross margin. The percentage used takes into consideration inventory, which has been marked down to below its original selling price. An average percentage for each retail department is to be used.

Net Realisable Value

19. Inventories shall be written down to net realisable value on an item-by-item basis. Where 'items of inventory' relating to the same product line having similar purposes or end uses and are produced and marketed in the same geographical area and cannot be practicably evaluated separately from other items in that product line, such inventories shall be grouped together and written down to net realisable value on an aggregate basis.

20. Net realisable value shall be based on the most reliable evidence available at the time of valuation. The estimates of net realisable value shall also take into consideration the purpose for which the inventory is held. The estimates shall take into consideration fluctuations of price or cost directly relating to events occurring after the end of previous year to the extent that such events confirm the conditions existing on the last day of the previous year.

21. Materials and other supplies held for use in the production of inventories shall not be written down below the cost, where the finished products in which they shall be incorporated are expected to be sold at or above the cost. Where there has been a decline in the price of materials and it is estimated that the cost of finished products will exceed the net realisable value, the value of materials shall be written down to net realisable value which shall be the replacement cost of such materials.

Value of Opening Inventory

22. The value of the inventory as on the beginning of the previous year shall be
- (i) the cost of inventory available, if any, on the day of the commencement of the business when the business has commenced during the previous year; and
  - (ii) the value of the inventory as on the close of the immediately preceding previous year, in any other case.

Change of Method of Valuation of Inventory

23. The method of valuation of inventories once adopted by a person in any previous year shall not be changed without reasonable cause.

Valuation of Inventory in Case of Certain Dissolutions

24. In case of dissolution of a partnership firm or association of person or body of individuals, notwithstanding whether business is discontinued or not, the inventory on the date of dissolution shall be valued at the net realisable value.

Transitional Provisions

25. Interest and other borrowing costs, which do not meet the criteria for recognition of interest as a component of the cost as per para 11, but included in the cost of the opening inventory as on the 1st day of April, 2016, shall be taken into account for determining cost of such inventory for valuation as on the close of the previous year beginning on or after 1st day of April, 2016 if such inventory continue to remain part of inventory as on the close of the previous year beginning on or after 1st day of April, 2016.

Disclosure

26. The following aspects shall be disclosed, namely:—
- (a) the accounting policies adopted in measuring inventories including the cost formulae used. Where Standard Costing has been used as a measurement of cost, details of such inventories and a confirmation of the fact that standard cost approximates the actual cost; and

- (b) the total carrying amount of inventories and its classification appropriate to a person.

C. Income Computation and Disclosure Standard III relating to construction contracts

Preamble

This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard is applicable for computation of income chargeable under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” or “Income from other sources” and not for the purpose of maintenance of books of accounts.

In the case of conflict between the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961(‘the Act’) and this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard, the provisions of the Act shall prevail to that extent.

Scope

1. This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard should be applied in determination of income for a construction contract of a contractor.

Definitions

- 2 (1) The following terms are used in this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard with the meanings specified:

- (a) “Construction contract” is a contract specifically negotiated for the construction of an asset or a combination of assets that are closely interrelated or interdependent in terms of their design, technology and function or their ultimate purpose or use and includes :
  - (i) contract for the rendering of services which are directly related to the construction of the asset, for example, those for the services of project managers and architects;
  - (ii) contract for destruction or restoration of assets, and the restoration of the environment following the demolition of assets.
- (b) “Fixed price contract” is a construction contract in which the contractor agrees to a fixed contract price, or a fixed rate per unit of output, which may be subject to cost escalation clauses.
- (c) “Cost plus contract” is a construction contract in which the contractor is reimbursed for allowable or otherwise defined costs, plus a mark up on these costs or a fixed fee.

- (d) "Retentions" are amounts of progress billings which are not paid until the satisfaction of conditions specified in the contract for the payment of such amounts or until defects have been rectified.
- (e) "Progress billings" are amounts billed for work performed on a contract whether or not they have been paid by the customer.
- (f) "Advances" are amounts received by the contractor before the related work is performed.

- 2(2) Words and expressions used and not defined in this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard but defined in the Act shall have the meaning respectively assigned to them in the Act.
3. A construction contract may be negotiated for the construction of a single asset. A construction contract may also deal with the construction of a number of assets which are closely interrelated or interdependent in terms of their design, technology and function or their ultimate purpose or use.
4. Construction contracts are formulated in a number of ways which, for the purposes of this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard, are classified as fixed price contracts and cost plus contracts. Some construction contracts may contain characteristics of both a fixed price contract and a cost plus contract, for example, in the case of a cost plus contract with an agreed maximum price.

Combining and Segmenting Construction Contracts

5. The requirements of this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard shall be applied separately to each construction contract except as provided for in paragraphs 6, 7 and 8 herein. For reflecting the substance of a contract or a group of contracts, where it is necessary, the Income Computation and Disclosure Standard should be applied to the separately identifiable components of a single contract or to a group of contracts together.
6. Where a contract covers a number of assets, the construction of each asset should be treated as a separate construction contract when:
- (a) separate proposals have been submitted for each asset;
  - (b) each asset has been subject to separate negotiation and the contractor and customer have been able to accept or reject that part of the contract

- relating to each asset; and
  - (c) the costs and revenues of each asset can be identified.
7. A group of contracts, whether with a single customer or with several customers, should be treated as a single construction contract when:
- (a) the group of contracts is negotiated as a single package;
  - (b) the contracts are so closely interrelated that they are, in effect, part of a single project with an overall profit margin; and
  - (c) the contracts are performed concurrently or in a continuous sequence.
8. Where a contract provides for the construction of an additional asset at the option of the customer or is amended to include the construction of an additional asset, the construction of the additional asset should be treated as a separate construction contract when:
- (a) the asset differs significantly in design, technology or function from the asset or assets covered by the original contract; or
  - (b) the price of the asset is negotiated without having regard to the original contract price.

Contract Revenue

9. Contract revenue shall be recognised when there is reasonable certainty of its ultimate collection.
10. Contract revenue shall comprise of:
- (a) the initial amount of revenue agreed in the contract, including retentions; and
  - (b) variations in contract work, claims and incentive payments:
    - (i) to the extent that it is probable that they will result in revenue; and
    - (ii) they are capable of being reliably measured.
11. Where contract revenue already recognised as income is subsequently written off in the books of accounts as uncollectible, the same shall be recognised as an expense and not as an adjustment of the amount of contract revenue.

Contract Costs

12. Contract costs shall comprise of :
- (a) costs that relate directly to the specific contract;

- (b) costs that are attributable to contract activity in general and can be allocated to the contract;
- (c) such other costs as are specifically chargeable to the customer under the terms of the contract; and
- (d) allocated borrowing costs in accordance with the Income Computation and Disclosure Standard on Borrowing Costs.

These costs shall be reduced by any incidental income, not being in the nature of interest, dividends or capital gains, that is not included in contract revenue.

13. Costs that cannot be attributed to any contract activity or cannot be allocated to a contract shall be excluded from the costs of a construction contract.
14. Contract costs include the costs attributable to a contract for the period from the date of securing the contract to the final completion of the contract. Costs that are incurred in securing the contract are also included as part of the contract costs, provided
  - (a) they can be separately identified; and
  - (b) it is probable that the contract shall be obtained.

When costs incurred in securing a contract are recognised as an expense in the period in which they are incurred, they are not included in contract costs when the contract is obtained in a subsequent period.

15. Contract costs that relate to future activity on the contract are recognised as an asset. Such costs represent an amount due from the customer and are classified as contract work in progress.

Recognition of Contract Revenue and Expenses

16. Contract revenue and contract costs associated with the construction contract should be recognised as revenue and expenses respectively by reference to the stage of completion of the contract activity at the reporting date.
17. The recognition of revenue and expenses by reference to the stage of completion of a contract is referred to as the percentage of completion method. Under this method, contract revenue is matched with the contract costs incurred in reaching the stage of completion, resulting in the reporting of revenue, expenses and profit which can be attributed to the proportion of work completed.
18. The stage of completion of a contract shall be determined with reference to:
  - (a) the proportion that contract costs incurred for work performed upto the reporting date bear to the estimated total contract costs; or

- (b) surveys of work performed; or
- (c) completion of a physical proportion of the contract work.

Progress payments and advances received from customers are not determinative of the stage of completion of a contract.

19. When the stage of completion is determined by reference to the contract costs incurred upto the reporting date, only those contract costs that reflect work performed are included in costs incurred upto the reporting date. Contract costs which are excluded are:
- (a) contract costs that relate to future activity on the contract; and
  - (b) payments made to subcontractors in advance of work performed under the subcontract.
20. During the early stages of a contract, where the outcome of the contract cannot be estimated reliably contract revenue is recognised only to the extent of costs incurred. The early stage of a contract shall not extend beyond 25 % of the stage of completion.

Changes in Estimates

21. The percentage of completion method is applied on a cumulative basis in each previous year to the current estimates of contract revenue and contract costs. Where there is change in estimates, the changed estimates shall be used in determination of the amount of revenue and expenses in the period in which the change is made and in subsequent periods.

Transitional Provisions

22.1 Contract revenue and contract costs associated with the construction contract, which commenced on or after 1st day of April, 2016 shall be recognised in accordance with the provisions of this standard.

22.2 Contract revenue and contract costs associated with the construction contract, which commenced on or before the 31st day of March, 2016 but not completed by the said date, shall be recognised based on the method regularly followed by the person prior to the previous year beginning on the 1st day of April, 2016.

Disclosure

23. A person shall disclose:
- (a) the amount of contract revenue recognised as revenue in the period; and

- (b) the methods used to determine the stage of completion of contracts in progress.
24. A person shall disclose the following for contracts in progress at the reporting date, namely:—
- (a) amount of costs incurred and recognised profits (less recognised losses) upto the reporting date;
  - (b) the amount of advances received; and
  - (c) the amount of retentions.

D. Income Computation and Disclosure Standard IV relating to revenue recognition

Preamble

This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard is applicable for computation of income chargeable under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” or “Income from other sources” and not for the purpose of maintenance of books of accounts.

In the case of conflict between the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 (‘the Act’) and this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard, the provisions of the Act shall prevail to that extent.

Scope

- 1(1) This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard deals with the bases for recognition of revenue arising in the course of the ordinary activities of a person from
- (i) the sale of goods;
  - (ii) the rendering of services;
  - (iii) the use by others of the person’s resources yielding interest, royalties or dividends.
- 1(2) This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard does not deal with the aspects of revenue recognition which are dealt with by other Income Computation and Disclosure Standards.

Definitions

- 2(1) The following term is used in this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard with the meanings specified:
- (a) “Revenue” is the gross inflow of cash, receivables or other consideration arising in the course of the ordinary activities of a person from the sale of goods, from the rendering of services, or from the use by others of the person's resources yielding interest, royalties or dividends. In an agency relationship, the revenue is the amount of commission and not the gross inflow of cash, receivables or other consideration.

- 2(2) Words and expressions used and not defined in this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard but defined in the Act shall have the meanings assigned to them in that Act.

Sale of Goods

3. In a transaction involving the sale of goods, the revenue shall be recognised when the seller of goods has transferred to the buyer the property in the goods for a price or all significant risks and rewards of ownership have been transferred to the buyer and the seller retains no effective control of the goods transferred to a degree usually associated with ownership. In a situation, where transfer of property in goods does not coincide with the transfer of significant risks and rewards of ownership, revenue in such a situation shall be recognised at the time of transfer of significant risks and rewards of ownership to the buyer.

4. Revenue shall be recognised when there is reasonable certainty of its ultimate collection.

5. Where the ability to assess the ultimate collection with reasonable certainty is lacking at the time of raising any claim for escalation of price and export incentives, revenue recognition in respect of such claim shall be postponed to the extent of uncertainty involved.

Rendering of Services

6. Subject to Para 7, revenue from service transactions shall be recognised by the percentage completion method. Under this method, revenue from service transactions is matched with the service transaction costs incurred in reaching the stage of completion, resulting in the determination of revenue, expenses and profit which can be attributed to the proportion of work completed. Income Computation and Disclosure Standard on construction contract also requires the recognition of revenue on this basis. The requirements of that Standard shall mutatis mutandis apply to the recognition of revenue and the associated expenses for a service transaction. However, when services are provided by an indeterminate number of acts over a specific period of time, revenue may be recognised on a straight line basis over the specific period.

7. Revenue from service contracts with duration of not more than ninety days may be recognised when the rendering of services under that contract is completed or substantially completed.

The Use of Resources by Others Yielding Interest, Royalties or Dividends

8. (1) Subject to sub paragraph (2), interest shall accrue on the time basis determined by the amount outstanding and the rate applicable.

(2) Interest on refund of any tax, duty or cess shall be deemed to be the income of the previous year in which such interest is received.

(3) Discount or premium on debt securities held is treated as though it were accruing over the period to maturity.

9. Royalties shall accrue in accordance with the terms of the relevant agreement and shall be recognised on that basis unless, having regard to the substance of the transaction, it is more appropriate to recognise revenue on some other systematic and rational basis.

10. Dividends are recognised in accordance with the provisions of the Act.

Transitional Provisions

11. The transitional provisions of Income Computation and Disclosure Standard on construction contract shall mutatis mutandis apply to the recognition of revenue and the associated costs for a service transaction undertaken on or before the 31st day of March, 2016 but not completed by the said date.

12. Revenue for a transaction, other than a service transaction referred to in Para 10, undertaken on or before the 31st day of March, 2016 but not completed by the said date shall be recognised in accordance with the provisions of this standard for the previous year commencing on the 1st day of April, 2016 and subsequent previous year. The amount of revenue, if any, recognised for the said transaction for any previous year commencing on or before the 1st day of April, 2015 shall be taken into account for recognising revenue for the said transaction for the previous year commencing on the 1st day of April, 2016 and subsequent previous years.

Disclosure

13. Following disclosures shall be made in respect of revenue recognition, namely:—

- (a) in a transaction involving sale of good, total amount not recognised as revenue during the previous year due to lack of reasonably certainty of its ultimate collection along with nature of uncertainty;
- (b) the amount of revenue from service transactions recognised as revenue during the previous year;
- (c) the method used to determine the stage of completion of service transactions in progress; and
- (d) for service transactions in progress at the end of previous year:
  - (i) amount of costs incurred and recognised profits (less recognised losses) upto end of previous year;

- (ii) the amount of advances received; and
- (iii) the amount of retentions.

E. Income Computation and Disclosure Standard V relating to tangible fixed assets

Preamble

This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard is applicable for computation of income chargeable under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” or “Income from other sources” and not for the purpose of maintenance of books of accounts.

In the case of conflict between the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 (“the Act”) and this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard, the provisions of the Act shall prevail to that extent.

Scope

1. This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard deals with the treatment of tangible fixed assets.

Definitions

2(1) The following terms are used in this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard with the meanings specified:

- (a) “Tangible fixed asset” is an asset being land, building, machinery, plant or furniture held with the intention of being used for the purpose of producing or providing goods or services and is not held for sale in the normal course of business.
  - (b) “Fair value” of an asset is the amount for which that asset could be exchanged between knowledgeable, willing parties in an arm’s length transaction.
- (2) Words and expressions used and not defined in this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard but defined in the Act shall have the meanings assigned to them in that Act.

Identification of Tangible Fixed Assets

3. The definition in clause (a) of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 2 provides criteria for determining whether an item is to be classified as a tangible fixed asset.
4. Stand-by equipment and servicing equipment are to be capitalised. Machinery spares shall be charged to the revenue as and when consumed. When such spares can be used only in connection with an item of tangible fixed asset and their use is expected to be irregular, they shall be capitalised.

Components of Actual Cost

5. The actual cost of an acquired tangible fixed asset shall comprise its purchase price, import duties and other taxes, excluding those subsequently recoverable, and any directly attributable expenditure on making the asset ready for its intended use. Any trade discounts and rebates shall be deducted in arriving at the actual cost.
6. The cost of a tangible fixed asset may undergo changes subsequent to its acquisition or construction on account of
  - (i) price adjustment, changes in duties or similar factors; or
  - (ii) exchange fluctuation as specified in Income Computation and Disclosure Standard on the effects of changes in foreign exchange rates.
7. Administration and other general overhead expenses are to be excluded from the cost of tangible fixed assets if they do not relate to a specific tangible fixed asset. Expenses which are specifically attributable to construction of a project or to the acquisition of a tangible fixed asset or bringing it to its working condition, shall be included as a part of the cost of the project or as a part of the cost of the tangible fixed asset.
8. The expenditure incurred on start-up and commissioning of the project, including the expenditure incurred on test runs and experimental production, shall be capitalised. The expenditure incurred after the plant has begun commercial production, that is, production intended for sale or captive consumption, shall be treated as revenue expenditure.

Self-constructed Tangible Fixed Assets

9. In arriving at the actual cost of self-constructed tangible fixed assets, the same principles shall apply as those described in paragraphs 5 to 8. Cost of construction that relate directly to the specific tangible fixed asset and costs that are attributable to the construction activity in general and can be allocated to the specific tangible fixed asset shall be included in actual cost. Any internal profits shall be eliminated in arriving at such costs.

Non- monetary Consideration

10. When a tangible fixed asset is acquired in exchange for another asset, the fair value of the tangible fixed asset so acquired shall be its actual cost.

11. When a tangible fixed asset is acquired in exchange for shares or other securities, the fair value of the tangible fixed asset so acquired shall be its actual cost.

Improvements and Repairs

12. An Expenditure that increases the future benefits from the existing asset beyond its previously assessed standard of performance is added to the actual cost.

13. The cost of an addition or extension to an existing tangible fixed asset which is of a capital nature and which becomes an integral part of the existing tangible fixed asset is to be added to its actual cost. Any addition or extension, which has a separate identity and is capable of being used after the existing tangible fixed asset is disposed of, shall be treated as separate asset.

Valuation of Tangible Fixed Assets in Special Cases

14. Where a person owns tangible fixed assets jointly with others, the proportion in the actual cost, accumulated depreciation and written down value is grouped together with similar fully owned tangible fixed assets.

15. Where several assets are purchased for a consolidated price, the consideration shall be apportioned to the various assets on a fair basis.

Transitional Provisions

16. The actual cost of tangible fixed assets, acquisition or construction of which commenced on or before the 31st day of March, 2016 but not completed by the said date, shall be recognised in accordance with the provisions of this standard. The amount of actual cost, if any, recognised for the said assets for any previous year commencing on or before the 1st day of April, 2015 shall be taken into account for recognising actual cost of the said assets for the previous year commencing on the 1st day of April, 2016 and subsequent previous years.

Depreciation

17. Depreciation on a tangible fixed asset shall be computed in accordance with the provisions of the Act.

Transfers

18. Income arising on transfer of a tangible fixed asset shall be computed in accordance with the provisions of the Act.

Disclosures

19. Following disclosure shall be made in respect of tangible fixed assets, namely:—
(a) description of asset or block of assets;

- (b) rate of depreciation;
- (c) actual cost or written down value, as the case may be;
- (d) additions or deductions during the year with dates; in the case of any addition of an asset, date put to use; including adjustments on account of—
  - (i) Central Value Added Tax credit claimed and allowed under the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004;
  - (ii) change in rate of exchange of currency;
  - (iii) subsidy or grant or reimbursement, by whatever name called;
- (e) depreciation Allowable; and
- (f) written down value at the end of year.

F. Income Computation and Disclosure Standard VI relating to the effects of changes in foreign exchange rates

Preamble

This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard is applicable for computation of income chargeable under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” or “Income from other sources” and not for the purpose of maintenance of books of accounts.

In the case of conflict between the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 (‘the Act’) and this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard, the provisions of the Act shall prevail to that extent.

Scope

1. This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard deals with:
  - (a) treatment of transactions in foreign currencies;
  - (b) translating the financial statements of foreign operations;
  - (c) treatment of foreign currency transactions in the nature of forward exchange contracts.

Definitions

2. (1) The following terms are used in this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard with the meanings specified:
  - (a) “Average rate” is the mean of the exchange rates in force during a period.

- (b) "Closing rate" is the exchange rate at the last day of the previous year.
- (c) "Exchange difference" is the difference resulting from reporting the same number of units of a foreign currency in the reporting currency of a person at different exchange rates.
- (d) "Exchange rate" is the ratio for exchange of two currencies.
- (e) "Foreign currency" is a currency other than the reporting currency of a person.
- (f) "Foreign operations of a person" is a branch, by whatever name called, of that person, the activities of which are based or conducted in a country other than India.
- (g) "Foreign currency transaction" is a transaction which is denominated in or requires settlement in a foreign currency, including transactions arising when a person:—
  - (i) buys or sells goods or services whose price is denominated in a foreign currency; or
  - (ii) borrows or lends funds when the amounts payable or receivable are denominated in a foreign currency; or
  - (iii) becomes a party to an unperformed forward exchange contract; or
  - (iv) otherwise acquires or disposes of assets, or incurs or settles liabilities, denominated in a foreign currency.
- (h) "Forward exchange contract" means an agreement to exchange different currencies at a forward rate, and includes a foreign currency option contract or another financial instrument of a similar nature;
- (i) "Forward rate" is the specified exchange rate for exchange of two Currencies at a specified future date;
- (j) "Indian currency" shall have the meaning as assigned to it in section 2 of the Foreign Exchange Management Act, 1999 (42 of 1999);
- (k) "Monetary items" are money held and assets to be received or liabilities to be paid in fixed or determinable amounts of money. Cash, receivables, and payables are examples of monetary items;
- (l) "Non-monetary items" are assets and liabilities other than monetary items. Fixed assets, inventories, and investments in equity shares are examples of non-monetary items;
- (m) "Reporting currency" means Indian currency except for foreign operations where it shall mean currency of the country where the operations are carried out.

- (2) Words and expressions used and not defined in this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard but defined in the Act shall have the meaning assigned to them in the Act.

Foreign Currency Transactions

Initial Recognition

- 3(1) A foreign currency transaction shall be recorded, on initial recognition in the reporting currency, by applying to the foreign currency amount the exchange rate between the reporting currency and the foreign currency at the date of the transaction.
- (2) An average rate for a week or a month that approximates the actual rate at the date of the transaction may be used for all transaction in each foreign currency occurring during that period. If the exchange rate fluctuates significantly, the actual rate at the date of the transaction shall be used.

Conversion at Last Date of Previous Year

4. At last day of each previous year:—
- (a) foreign currency monetary items shall be converted into reporting currency by applying the closing rate;
  - (b) where the closing rate does not reflect with reasonable accuracy, the amount in reporting currency that is likely to be realised from or required to disburse, a foreign currency monetary item owing to restriction on remittances or the closing rate being unrealistic and it is not possible to effect an exchange of currencies at that rate, then the relevant monetary item shall be reported in the reporting currency at the amount which is likely to be realised from or required to disburse such item at the last date of the previous year; and
  - (c) non-monetary items in a foreign currency shall be converted into reporting currency by using the exchange rate at the date of the transaction.
  - (d) non-monetary item being inventory which is carried at net realisable value denominated in a foreign currency shall be reported using the exchange rate that existed when such value was determined.

Recognition of Exchange Differences

5. (i) In respect of monetary items, exchange differences arising on the settlement thereof or on conversion thereof at last day of the previous year shall be recognised as income or as expense in that previous year.
- (ii) In respect of non-monetary items, exchange differences arising on conversion thereof at the last day of the previous year shall not be recognised as income or as expense in that previous year.

Exceptions to Paragraphs 3, 4 and 5

6. Notwithstanding anything contained in paragraph 3, 4 and 5; initial recognition, conversion and recognition of exchange difference shall be subject to provisions of section 43A of the Act or Rule 115 of Income-tax Rules, 1962, as the case may be.

Financial Statements of Foreign Operations

7. The financial statements of a foreign operation shall be translated using the principles and procedures in paragraphs 3 to 6 as if the transactions of the foreign operation had been those of the person himself.

Forward Exchange Contracts

8. (1) Any premium or discount arising at the inception of a forward exchange contract shall be amortised as expense or income over the life of the contract. Exchange differences on such a contract shall be recognised as income or as expense in the previous year in which the exchange rates change. Any profit or loss arising on cancellation or renewal shall be recognised as income or as expense for the previous year.
  - (2) The provisions of sub-para (1) shall apply provided that the contract:
    - (a) is not intended for trading or speculation purposes; and
    - (b) is entered into to establish the amount of the reporting currency required or available at the settlement date of the transaction.
  - (3) The provisions of sub-para (1) shall not apply to the contract that is entered into to hedge the foreign currency risk of a firm commitment or a highly probable forecast transaction. For this purpose, firm commitment, shall not include assets and liabilities existing at the end of the previous year.
  - (4) The premium or discount that arises on the contract is measured by the difference between the exchange rate at the date of the inception of the contract and the forward rate specified in the contract. Exchange difference on the contract is the difference between:
    - (a) the foreign currency amount of the contract translated at the exchange rate at the last day of the previous year, or the settlement date where the transaction is settled during the previous year; and

- (b) the same foreign currency amount translated at the date of inception of the contract or the last day of the immediately preceding previous year, whichever is later.
- (5) Premium, discount or exchange difference on contracts that are intended for trading or speculation purposes, or that are entered into to hedge the foreign currency risk of a firm commitment or a highly probable forecast transaction shall be recognised at the time of settlement.

Transitional Provisions

- 9. (1) All foreign currency transactions undertaken on or after 1st day of April, 2016 shall be recognised in accordance with the provisions of this standard.
- (2) Exchange differences arising in respect of monetary items or non-monetary items, on the settlement thereof during the previous year commencing on the 1st day of April, 2016 or on conversion thereof at the last day of the previous year commencing on the 1st day of April, 2016 , shall be recognised in accordance with the provisions of this standard after taking into account the amount recognised on the last day of the previous year ending on the 31st March, 2016 for an item, if any, which is carried forward from said previous year.
- (3) The financial statements of foreign operations for the previous year commencing on the 1st day of April, 2016 shall be translated using the principles and procedures specified in this standard after taking into account the amount recognised on the last day of the previous year ending on the 31st March, 2016 for an item, if any, which is carried forward from said previous year.
- (4) All forward exchange contracts existing on the 1st day of April, 2016 or entered on or after 1st day of April, 2016 shall be dealt with in accordance with the provisions of this standard after taking into account the income or expenses, if any, recognised in respect of said contracts for the previous year ending on or before the 31st March, 2016.

G. Income Computation and Disclosure Standard VII relating to government grants

Preamble

This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard is applicable for computation of income chargeable under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" or "Income from other sources" and not for the purpose of maintenance of books of account.

In case of conflict between the provisions of the Income Tax Act, 1961 ('the Act') and this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard, the provisions of the Act shall prevail to that extent.

Scope

1. This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard deals with the treatment of Government grants. The Government grants are sometimes called by other names such as subsidies, cash incentives, duty drawbacks, waiver, concessions, reimbursements, etc.
2. This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard does not deal with:—
  - (a) Government assistance other than in the form of Government grants; and
  - (b) Government participation in the ownership of the enterprise.

Definitions

3(1) The following terms are used in the Income Computation and Disclosure Standard with the meanings specified:

- (a) “Government” refers to the Central Government, State Governments, agencies and similar bodies, whether local, national or international.
- (b) “Government grants” are assistance by Government in cash or kind to a person for past or future compliance with certain conditions. They exclude those forms of Government assistance which cannot have a value placed upon them and the transactions with Government which cannot be distinguished from the normal trading transactions of the person.

3(2) Words and expressions used and not defined in this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard but defined in the Act shall have the meaning assigned to them in the Act.

Recognition of Government Grants

4(1) Government grants should not be recognised until there is reasonable assurance that (i) the person shall comply with the conditions attached to them, and (ii) the grants shall be received.

4(2) Recognition of Government grant shall not be postponed beyond the date of actual receipt.

Treatment of Government Grants

5. Where the Government grant relates to a depreciable fixed asset or assets of a person, the grant shall be deducted from the actual cost of the asset or assets concerned or from the written down value of block of assets to which concerned asset or assets belonged to.
6. Where the Government grant relates to a non-depreciable asset or assets of a person requiring fulfillment of certain obligations, the grant shall be recognised as income over the same period over which the cost of meeting such obligations is charged to income.
7. Where the Government grant is of such a nature that it cannot be directly relatable to the asset acquired, so much of the amount which bears to the total Government grant, the same proportion as such asset bears to all the assets in respect of or with reference to which the Government grant is so received, shall be deducted from the actual cost of the asset or shall be reduced from the written down value of block of assets to which the asset or assets belonged to.
8. The Government grant that is receivable as compensation for expenses or losses incurred in a previous financial year or for the purpose of giving immediate financial support to the person with no further related costs, shall be recognised as income of the period in which it is receivable.
9. The Government grants other than covered by paragraph 5, 6, 7, and 8 shall be recognised as income over the periods necessary to match them with the related costs which they are intended to compensate.
10. The Government grants in the form of non-monetary assets, given at a concessional rate, shall be accounted for on the basis of their acquisition cost.

Refund of Government Grants

11. The amount refundable in respect of a Government grant referred to in paragraphs 6, 8 and 9 shall be applied first against any unamortised deferred credit remaining in respect of the Government grant. To the extent that the amount refundable exceeds any such deferred credit, or where no deferred credit exists, the amount shall be charged to profit and loss statement.
12. The amount refundable in respect of a Government grant related to a depreciable fixed asset or assets shall be recorded by increasing the actual cost or written down value of block of assets by the amount refundable. Where the actual cost of the asset is increased, depreciation on the revised actual cost or written down value shall be provided prospectively at the prescribed rate.

Transitional Provisions

13. All the Government grants which meet the recognition criteria of para 4 on or after 1st day of April, 2016 shall be recognised for the previous year commencing on or after 1st day of April, 2016 in accordance with the provisions of this standard after taking into account the amount, if any, of the said Government grant recognised for any previous year ending on or before 31st day of March, 2016.

Disclosures

14. Following disclosure shall be made in respect of Government grants, namely:—
- (a) nature and extent of Government grants recognised during the previous year by way of deduction from the actual cost of the asset or assets or from the written down value of block of assets during the previous year;
  - (b) nature and extent of Government grants recognised during the previous year as income;
  - (c) nature and extent of Government grants not recognised during the previous year by way of deduction from the actual cost of the asset or assets or from the written down value of block of assets and reasons thereof; and
  - (d) nature and extent of Government grants not recognised during the previous year as income and reasons thereof.

H. Income Computation and Disclosure Standard VIII relating to securities Preamble

This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard is applicable for computation of income chargeable under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” or “Income from other sources” and not for the purpose of maintenance of books of account.

In the case of conflict between the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 (‘the Act’) and this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard, the provisions of the Act shall prevail to that extent.

Part A

Scope

1. This part of Income Computation and Disclosure Standard deals with securities held as stock-in-trade.
2. This part of Income Computation and Disclosure Standard does not deal with:
  - (a) the bases for recognition of interest and dividends on securities which are covered by the Income Computation and Disclosure Standard on revenue recognition;
  - (b) securities held by a person engaged in the business of insurance;
  - (c) securities held by mutual funds, venture capital funds, banks and public financial institutions formed under a Central or a State Act or so declared under the Companies Act, 1956 (1 of 1956) or the Companies Act, 2013 (18 of 2013).

Definitions

- 3(1) The following terms are used in this part of Income Computation and Disclosure Standard with the meanings specified:
- (a) "Fair value" is the amount for which an asset could be exchanged between a knowledgeable, willing buyer and a knowledgeable, willing seller in an arm's length transaction.
  - (b) "Securities" shall have the meaning assigned to it in clause (h) of Section 2 of the Securities Contracts (Regulation) Act, 1956 (42 of 1956) and shall include share of a company in which public are not substantially interested but shall not include derivatives referred to in sub-clause (ia) of that clause (h).
- 3(2) Words and expressions used and not defined in this part of Income Computation and Disclosure Standard but defined in the Act shall have the meaning respectively assigned to them in the Act.

Recognition and Initial Measurement of Securities

4. A security on acquisition shall be recognised at actual cost.
5. The actual cost of a security shall comprise of its purchase price and include acquisition charges such as brokerage, fees, tax, duty or cess.
6. Where a security is acquired in exchange for other securities, the fair value of the security so acquired shall be its actual cost.

7. Where a security is acquired in exchange for another asset, the fair value of the security so acquired shall be its actual cost.

8. Where unpaid interest has accrued before the acquisition of an interest-bearing security and is included in the price paid for the security, the subsequent receipt of interest is allocated between pre-acquisition and post-acquisition periods; the pre-acquisition portion of the interest is deducted from the actual cost.

Subsequent Measurement of Securities

9. At the end of any previous year, securities held as stock-in-trade shall be valued at actual cost initially recognised or net realisable value at the end of that previous year, whichever is lower.

10. For the purpose of para 9, the comparison of actual cost initially recognised and net realisable value shall be done categorywise and not for each individual security. For this purpose, securities shall be classified into the following categories, namely:-

- (a) shares;*
- (b) debt securities;*
- (c) convertible securities; and*
- (d) any other securities not covered above.*

11. The value of securities held as stock-in-trade of a business as on the beginning of the previous year shall be:

- (a) the cost of securities available, if any, on the day of the commencement of the business when the business has commenced during the previous year; and*
- (b) the value of the securities of the business as on the close of the immediately preceding previous year, in any other case.*

12. Notwithstanding anything contained in para 9, 10 and 11, at the end of any previous year, securities not listed on a recognised stock exchange; or listed but not quoted on a recognised stock exchange with regularity from time to time, shall be valued at actual cost initially recognised.

13. For the purposes of para 9, 10 and 11 where the actual cost initially recognised cannot be ascertained by reference to specific identification, the cost of such security shall be determined on the basis of first-in-first-out method or weighted average cost formula.

Part B

Scope

1. This part of Income Computation and Disclosure Standard deals with securities held by a scheduled bank or public financial institutions formed under a Central or a State Act or so declared under the Companies Act, 1956 (1 of 1956) or the Companies Act, 2013 (18 of 2013).

Definitions

2(1) The following terms are used in this part of Income Computation and Disclosure Standard with the meanings specified:

(a) "Scheduled Bank" shall have the meaning assigned to it in clause (ii) of the Explanation to clause (vii) of sub-section (1) of section 36 of the Act.

(b) "Securities" shall have the meaning assigned to it in clause (h) of Section 2 of the Securities Contract (Regulation) Act, 1956 (42 of 1956) and shall include share of a company in which public are not substantially interested;

2(2) Words and expressions used and not defined in this part of Income Computation and Disclosure Standard but defined in the Act shall have the meaning respectively assigned to them in the Act.

Classification, Recognition and Measurement of Securities

3. Securities shall be classified, recognised and measured in accordance with the extant guidelines issued by the Reserve Bank of India in this regard and any claim for deduction in excess of the said guidelines shall not be taken into account. To this extent, the provisions of Income Computation and Disclosure Standard VI on the effect of changes in foreign exchange rates relating to forward exchange contracts shall not apply."

I. Income Computation and Disclosure Standard IX relating to borrowing costs

Preamble

This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard is applicable for computation of income chargeable under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" or "Income from other sources" and not for the purpose of maintenance of books of account.

In the case of conflict between the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 ('the Act') and this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard, the provisions of the Act shall prevail to that extent.

Scope

1. (1) This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard deals with treatment of borrowing costs.

- (2) This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard does not deal with the actual or imputed cost of owners' equity and preference share capital.

Definitions

2. (1) The following terms are used in this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard with the meanings specified:
- (a) "Borrowing costs" are interest and other costs incurred by a person in connection with the borrowing of funds and include:
    - (i) commitment charges on borrowings;
    - (ii) amortised amount of discounts or premiums relating to borrowings;
    - (iii) amortised amount of ancillary costs incurred in connection with the arrangement of borrowings;
    - (iv) finance charges in respect of assets acquired under finance leases or under other similar arrangements.
  - (b) "Qualifying asset" means:
    - (i) land, building, machinery, plant or furniture, being tangible assets;
    - (ii) know-how, patents, copyrights, trade marks, licences, franchises or any other business or commercial rights of similar nature, being intangible assets;
    - (iii) inventories that require a period of twelve months or more to bring them to a saleable condition.
- (2) Words and expressions used and not defined in this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard but defined in the Act shall have the meaning assigned to them in the Act.

Recognition

3. Borrowing costs that are directly attributable to the acquisition, construction or production of a qualifying asset shall be capitalised as part of the cost of that asset. The amount of borrowing costs eligible for capitalisation shall be determined in accordance with this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard. Other borrowing costs shall be recognised in accordance with the provisions of the Act.
4. For the purposes of this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard, "capitalisation" in the context of inventory referred to in item (iii) of clause (b) of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 2 means addition of borrowing cost to the cost of inventory.

Borrowing Costs Eligible for Capitalisation

5. Subject to paragraph 8, the extent to which funds are borrowed specifically for the purposes of acquisition, construction or production of a qualifying asset, the amount of borrowing costs to be capitalised on that asset shall be the actual borrowing costs incurred during the period on the funds so borrowed.

“6. Subject to Para 8, in respect of borrowing other than those referred to in Para 5, if any, the amount of borrowing costs to be capitalised shall be computed in accordance with the following formula namely :—

$$A \times \frac{B}{C}$$

Where

A = borrowing costs incurred during the previous year except on borrowings referred to in Para 5 above;

B = (i) the average of costs of qualifying asset as appearing in the balance sheet of a person on the first day and the last day of the previous year;

(ii) in case the qualifying asset does not appear in the balance sheet of a person on the first day, half of the cost of qualifying asset; or

(iii) in case the qualifying asset does not appear in the balance sheet of a person on the last day of the previous year, the average of the costs of qualifying asset as appearing in the balance sheet of a person on the first day of the previous year and on the date of put to use or completion, as the case may be, excluding the extent to which the qualifying assets are directly funded out of specific borrowings;

C = the average of the amount of total assets as appearing in the balance sheet of a person on the first day and the last day of the previous year, other than assets to the extent they are directly funded out of specific borrowings;

Explanation — For the purpose of this paragraph, a qualifying asset shall be such asset that necessarily require a period of twelve months or more for its acquisition, construction or production.

Commencement of Capitalisation

7. The capitalisation of borrowing costs shall commence:
- (a) in a case referred to in paragraph 5, from the date on which funds were borrowed;
  - (b) in a case referred to in paragraph 6, from the date on which funds were utilised.

Cessation of Capitalisation

8. Capitalisation of borrowing costs shall cease:
- (a) in case of a qualifying asset referred to in item (i) and (ii) of clause (b) of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 2, when such asset is first put to use;
  - (b) in case of inventory referred to in item (iii) of clause (b) of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 2, when substantially all the activities necessary to prepare such inventory for its intended sale are complete.
9. When the construction of a qualifying asset is completed in parts and a completed part is capable of being used while construction continues for the other parts, capitalisation of borrowing costs in relation to a part shall cease:—
- (a) in case of part of a qualifying asset referred to in item (i) and (ii) of clause (b) of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 2, when such part of a qualifying asset is first put to use;
  - (b) in case of part of inventory referred to in item (iii) of clause (b) of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 2, when substantially all the activities necessary to prepare such part of inventory for its intended sale are complete.

Transitional Provisions

10. All the borrowing costs incurred on or after 1st day of April, 2016 shall be capitalised for the previous year commencing on or after 1st day of April, 2016 in accordance with the provisions of this standard after taking into account the amount of borrowing costs capitalised, if any, for the same borrowing for any previous year ending on or before 31st day of March, 2016.

Disclosure

11. The following disclosure shall be made in respect of borrowing costs, namely:—
- (a) the accounting policy adopted for borrowing costs; and
  - (b) the amount of borrowing costs capitalised during the previous year.

J. Income Computation and Disclosure Standard X relating to provisions, contingent liabilities and contingent assets

Preamble

This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard is applicable for computation of income chargeable under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” or “Income from other sources” and not for the purpose of maintenance of books of accounts.

In the case of conflict between the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 (‘the Act’) and this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard, the provisions of the Act shall prevail to that extent.

Scope

1. This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard deals with provisions, contingent liabilities and contingent assets, except those:

- (a) resulting from financial instruments;
- (b) resulting from executory contracts;
- (c) arising in insurance business from contracts with policyholders; and
- (d) covered by another Income Computation and Disclosure Standard.

2. This Income Computation and Disclosure Standard does not deal with the recognition of revenue which is dealt with by Income Computation and Disclosure Standard - Revenue Recognition.

3. The term ‘provision’ is also used in the context of items such as depreciation, impairment of assets and doubtful debts which are adjustments to the carrying amounts of assets and are not addressed in this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard.

Definitions

4(1) The following terms are used in this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard with the meanings specified:

- (a) “Provision” is a liability which can be measured only by using a substantial degree of estimation.
- (b) “Liability” is a present obligation of the person arising from past events, the settlement of which is expected to result in an outflow from the person of resources embodying economic benefits.
- (c) “Obligating event” is an event that creates an obligation that results in a person having no realistic alternative to settling that obligation.

- (d) "Contingent liability" is:
  - (i) a possible obligation that arises from past events and the existence of which will be confirmed only by the occurrence or nonoccurrence of one or more uncertain future events not wholly within the control of the person; or
  - (ii) a present obligation that arises from past events but is not recognised because:
    - (A) it is not reasonably certain that an outflow of resources embodying economic benefits will be required to settle the obligation; or
    - (B) a reliable estimate of the amount of the obligation cannot be made.
- (e) "Contingent asset" is a possible asset that arises from past events the existence of which will be confirmed only by the occurrence or nonoccurrence of one or more uncertain future events not wholly within the control of the person.
- (f) "Executory contracts" are contracts under which neither party has performed any of its obligations or both parties have partially performed their obligations to an equal extent.
- (g) "Present obligation" is an obligation if, based on the evidence available, its existence at the end of the previous year is considered reasonably certain.

4(2) Words and expressions used and not defined in this Income Computation and Disclosure Standard but defined in the Act shall have the meaning respectively assigned to them in the Act.

Recognition

Provisions

5. A provision shall be recognised when:
- (a) a person has a present obligation as a result of a past event;
  - (b) it is reasonably certain that an outflow of resources embodying economic benefits will be required to settle the obligation; and
  - (c) a reliable estimate can be made of the amount of the obligation.

If these conditions are not met, no provision shall be recognised.

6. No provision shall be recognised for costs that need to be incurred to operate in the future.

7. It is only those obligations arising from past events existing independently of a person's future actions, that is the future conduct of its business, that are recognised as provisions

8. Where details of a proposed new law have yet to be finalised, an obligation arises only when the legislation is enacted.

Contingent Liabilities

9. A person shall not recognise a contingent liability.

Contingent Assets

10. A person shall not recognise a contingent asset.

11. Contingent assets are assessed continually and when it becomes reasonably certain that inflow of economic benefit will arise, the asset and related income are recognised in the previous year in which the change occurs.

Measurement

Best Estimate

12. The amount recognised as a provision shall be the best estimate of the expenditure required to settle the present obligation at the end of the previous year. The amount of a provision shall not be discounted to its present value.

13. The amount recognised as asset and related income shall be the best estimate of the value of economic benefit arising at the end of the previous year. The amount and related income shall not be discounted to its present value.

Reimbursements

14. Where some or all of the expenditure required to settle a provision is expected to be reimbursed by another party, the reimbursement shall be recognised when it is reasonably certain that reimbursement will be received if the person settles the obligation. The amount recognised for the reimbursement shall not exceed the amount of the provision.

15. Where a person is not liable for payment of costs in case the third party fails to pay, no provision shall be made for those costs.

16. An obligation, for which a person is jointly and severally liable, is a contingent liability to the extent that it is expected that the obligation will be settled by the other parties.

Review

17. Provisions shall be reviewed at the end of each previous year and adjusted to reflect the current best estimate. If it is no longer reasonably certain that an outflow of resources embodying economic benefits will be required to settle the obligation, the provision should be reversed.

18. An asset and related income recognised as provided in para 11 shall be reviewed at the end of each previous year and adjusted to reflect the current best estimate. If it is no longer reasonably certain that an inflow of economic benefits will arise, the asset and related income shall be reversed.

Use of Provisions

19. A provision shall be used only for expenditures for which the provision was originally recognised.

Transitional Provisions

20. All the provisions or assets and related income shall be recognised for the previous year commencing on or after 1st day of April, 2016 in accordance with the provisions of this standard after taking into account the amount recognised, if any, for the same for any previous year ending on or before 31st day of March, 2016.

Disclosure

21(1) Following disclosure shall be made in respect of each class of provision, namely:-

- (a) a brief description of the nature of the obligation;
- (b) the carrying amount at the beginning and end of the previous year;
- (c) additional provisions made during the previous year, including increases to existing provisions;
- (d) amounts used, that is incurred and charged against the provision, during the previous year;
- (e) unused amounts reversed during the previous year; and
- (f) the amount of any expected reimbursement, stating the amount of any asset that has been recognised for that expected reimbursement.

21(2) Following disclosure shall be made in respect of each class of asset and related income recognised as provided in para 11, namely:—

- (a) a brief description of the nature of the asset and related income;
- (b) the carrying amount of asset at the beginning and end of the previous year;

- (c) additional amount of asset and related income recognised during the year, including increases to assets and related income already recognised; and
- (d) amount of asset and related income reversed during the previous year.

INCOME OF OTHER PERSONS INCLUDED IN ASSESSEE'S TOTAL INCOME

LEARNING OUTCOMES

After studying this chapter, you would be able to -

- ❑ examine the cases where clubbing provisions would be attracted;
- ❑ examine the circumstances when income of minor child, has to be included in the hands of parent and exemption available in respect of such included income;
- ❑ examine the circumstances when the income of HUF has to be included in the hands of its member(s);
- ❑ apply the clubbing provisions to determine the amount of income which need to be included in the hands of another person;
- ❑ examine the cases of cross transfers to determine the person in whose hands the income arising from assets transferred has to be included and the portion of income that has to be included;
- ❑ compute the income under different heads of income after applying the clubbing provisions.

9.1 CLUBBING OF INCOME – AN INTRODUCTION

Under the Income-tax Act, 1961, an assessee is generally taxed in respect of his own income. However, there are certain cases where an assessee has to pay tax in respect of income of another person. The provisions for the same are contained in sections 60 to 65 of the Act. These provisions have been enacted to counteract the tendency on the part of the tax-payers to dispose of their property or transfer their income in such a way that their tax liability can be avoided or reduced.

Example:

In the case of individuals, income-tax is levied on a slab system on the total income. The tax system is progressive i.e. as the income increases, the applicable rate of tax increases. Some taxpayers in the higher income bracket have a tendency to divert some portion of their income to their spouse, minor child etc. to minimize their tax burden. In order to prevent such tax avoidance, clubbing provisions have been incorporated in the Act, under which income arising to certain persons (like spouse, minor child etc.) have to be included in the income of the person who has diverted his income for the purpose of computing tax liability.

9.2 INCOME OF OTHER PERSON'S INCLUDIBLE IN ASSESSEE'S TOTAL INCOME

(1) Transfer of income without transfer of asset [Section 60]

- (i) If any person transfers the income from any asset without transferring the asset itself, such income is to be included in the total income of the transferor.
- (ii) It is immaterial whether the transfer is revocable or irrevocable and whether it was made before the commencement of this Act or after its commencement.

Example:

Mr. A confers the right to receive rent in respect of his house property on his wife, Mrs. A, without transferring the house itself to her. In this case, the rent received by Mrs. A will be clubbed with the income of Mr. A.

(2) Income arising from revocable transfer of assets [Section 61]

All income arising to any person by virtue of a revocable transfer of assets is to be included in the total income of the transferor.

Meaning of revocable transfer [Section 63]

Transfer is deemed to be revocable if—

- (i) it contains any provision for the retransfer, directly or indirectly, of the whole or any part of the income or assets to the transferor, or

- (ii) it gives, in any way to the transferor, a right to reassume power, directly or indirectly, over the whole or any part of the income or the assets.

This clubbing provision will operate even if only part of income of the transferred asset had been applied for the benefit of the transferor. Once the transfer is revocable, the entire income from the transferred asset is includible in the total income of the transferor.

Exceptions where clubbing provisions are not attracted even in case of revocable transfer [section 62]

Section 61 will not apply to any income arising to any person in the following two cases -

- (i) Transfer not revocable during the life time of the beneficiary or the transferee – If there is a transfer of asset which is not revocable during the life time of the transferee, the income from the transferred asset is not includible in the total income of the transferor provided the transferor derives no direct or indirect benefit from such income.

If the transferor receives direct or indirect benefit from such income, such income is to be included in his total income even though the transfer may not be revocable during the life time of the transferee.

- (ii) Transfer made before April 1, 1961 and not revocable for a period exceeding six years - Income arising from the transfer of an asset before 1.4.61, which was not revocable for a period exceeding six years, is not includible in the total income of the transferor provided the transferor does not derive direct or indirect benefit from such income.

In both the above cases, as and when the power to revoke the transfer arises, the income arising by virtue of such transfer will be included in the total income of the transferor.

9.3 INCOME OF OTHER PERSON'S INCLUDIBLE IN INDIVIDUAL'S TOTAL INCOME

(1) Clubbing of income arising to spouse

- (i) Income by way of remuneration from a concern in which the individual has substantial interest [Section 64(1)(ii)]
- (i) Remuneration in cash or kind to spouse from a concern in which the individual has substantial interest to be clubbed: In computing the total income of any individual, all such income which arises, directly or indirectly, to the spouse of such individual by way of salary, commission, fees or any other form of remuneration, whether in cash or in kind, from a concern in which such individual has a substantial interest shall be included.

The term 'relative' in relation to an individual means the husband, wife, brother or sister or any lineal ascendant or descendant of that individual [Section 2(41)].

- (ii) Clubbing provisions will not apply where remuneration is received on account of technical or professional qualifications: Clubbing provisions, however, does not apply where the spouse of the said individual possesses technical or professional qualifications and the income to the spouse is solely attributable to the application of his/her technical or professional knowledge or experiences. In such an event, the income arising to such spouse is to be assessed in his/her hands.
- (iii) Both husband and wife have substantial interest in a concern: Where both husband and wife have substantial interest in a concern and both are in receipt of income by way of salary etc. from the said concern, such income will be includible in the hands of that spouse, whose total income, excluding such income is higher.

Where any such income is once included in the total income of either spouse, income arising in the succeeding year shall not be included in the total income of the other spouse unless the Assessing Officer is satisfied, after giving that spouse an opportunity of being heard, that it is necessary to do so.

ILLUSTRATION 1

SOLUTION

Mr. A holds shares carrying 25% voting power in X Ltd i.e. a substantial interest in the company. His wife is working in the same company without any professional qualifications for the same. Thus, by virtue of the clubbing provisions of the Act, the salary received by Mrs. A from X Ltd. will be clubbed in the hands of Mr. A.

(II) Income arising to the spouse from an asset transferred without adequate consideration [Section 64(1)(iv)]

- (i) Transfer of asset (other than house property): Where there is a transfer of an asset (other than house property), directly or indirectly, from one spouse to the other, otherwise than for adequate consideration or in connection with an agreement to live apart, any income arising to the transferee-spouse from the transferred asset, either directly or indirectly, shall be included in the total income of the transferor-spouse.
- (ii) Transfer of house property: In the case of transfer of house property, the provisions are contained in section 27. If an individual transfers a house property to his spouse, without adequate consideration or otherwise than in connection with an agreement to live apart, the transferor shall be deemed to be the owner of the house property and its annual value will be taxed in his hands.
- (iii) Income from accretion of the transferred asset: It may be noted that any income from the accretion of the transferred asset is not to be clubbed with the income of the transferor.
The income arising on transferred assets alone have to be clubbed. However, income earned by investing such income (arising from transferred asset) cannot be clubbed.
- (iv) Meaning of adequate consideration: It is also to be noted that natural love and affection do not constitute adequate consideration. Therefore, where an asset is transferred without adequate consideration, the income from such asset will be clubbed in the hands of the transferor.
- (v) Transferred asset invested in business: Where the assets transferred, directly or indirectly, by an individual to his spouse are invested by the transferee in the business, proportionate income arising from such investment is to be included in the total income of the transferor. If the investment is in the nature of contribution of capital, proportionate interest on capital will be clubbed with the income of the transferor.

Such proportion has to be computed by taking into account the value of the aforesaid investment as on the first day of the previous year to the total investment in the business or by way of capital contribution in a firm as a partner, as the case may be, by the transferee as on that day.

ILLUSTRATION 4

Mr. Vaibhav started a proprietary business on 01.04.2018 with a capital of ₹ 5,00,000. He incurred a loss of ₹ 2,00,000 during the year 2018-19. To overcome the financial position, his wife Mrs. Vaishaly, a software engineer, gave a gift of ₹ 5,00,000 on 01.04.2019, which was immediately invested in the business by Mr. Vaibhav. He earned a profit of ₹ 4,00,000 during the year 2019-20. Compute the amount to be clubbed in the hands of Mrs. Vaishaly for the Assessment Year 2020-21. If Mrs. Vaishaly gave the said amount as loan, what would be the amount to be clubbed?

SOLUTION

Section 64(1)(iv) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 provides for the clubbing of income in the hands of the individual, if the income earned is from the assets (other than house property) transferred directly or indirectly to the spouse of the individual, otherwise than for adequate consideration or in connection with an agreement to live apart.

In this case, Mr. Vaibhav received a gift of ₹ 5,00,000 on 1.4.2019 from his wife Mrs. Vaishaly, which he invested in his business immediately. The income to be clubbed in the hands of Mrs. Vaishaly for the A.Y. 2020-21 is computed as under:

Particulars	Mr. Vaibhav's capital contribution (₹)	Capital contribution out of gift from Mrs. Vaishaly (₹)	Total (₹)
Capital as on 1.4.2019	3,00,000 (5,00,000 – 2,00,000)	5,00,000	8,00,000
Profit for P.Y.2019-20 to be apportioned on the basis of capital employed on the first day of the previous year i.e. as on 1.4.2019 (3:5)	1,50,000 $\left(4,00,000 \times \frac{3}{8}\right)$	2,50,000 $\left(4,00,000 \times \frac{5}{8}\right)$	4,00,000

Therefore, the income to be clubbed in the hands of Mrs. Vaishaly for the A.Y.2020-21 is ₹ 2,50,000.

In case Mrs. Vaishaly gave the said amount of ₹ 5,00,000 as a bona fide loan, then, clubbing provisions would not be attracted.

Note: The provisions of section 56(2)(x) would not be attracted in the hands of Mr. Vaibhav, since he has received a sum of money exceeding ₹ 50,000 without consideration from a relative i.e., his wife.

(III) Transfer of assets for the benefit of spouse [Section 64(1)(vii)]

All income arising directly or indirectly to any persons or association of persons, from the assets transferred, directly or indirectly, to such person or association of persons by an individual without adequate consideration is includible in the income of the transferor to the extent such income is used by the transferee for the immediate or deferred benefit of the transferor's spouse.

(2) Clubbing of income arising to son's wife

(I) Income arising to son's wife from the assets transferred without adequate consideration by the father-in-law or mother-in-law [Section 64(1)(vi)]

- (i) Asset transferred without adequate consideration: Where an asset is transferred, directly or indirectly, by an individual to his or her son's wife without adequate consideration, the income from such asset is to be included in the total income of the transferor.
- (ii) Asset transferred invested in the business: For this purpose, where the assets transferred directly or indirectly by an individual to his or her son's wife are invested by the transferee in the business, proportionate income arising from such investment is to be included in the total income of the transferor. If the investment is in the nature of contribution of capital, the proportionate interest on capital will be clubbed with the income of the transferor.

Such proportion has to be computed by taking into account the value of the aforesaid investment as on the first day of the previous year to the total investment in the business or by way of capital contribution in a firm as a partner, as the case may be, by the transferee as on that day.

(II) Transfer of assets for the benefit of son's wife [Section 64(1)(viii)]

All income arising directly or indirectly, to any person or association of persons from the assets transferred, directly or indirectly, without adequate consideration, to such person or association of persons by an individual will be included in the total income of the individual to the extent such income is used by the transferee for the immediate or deferred benefit of the transferor's son's wife.

Note: Where any asset is transferred by any person to any person without consideration or for inadequate consideration, the provisions of 56(2)(x) would get attracted in the hands of transferee, if conditions specified thereunder are satisfied.

ILLUSTRATION 5

Mrs. Kasturi transferred her immovable property to ABC Co. Ltd. subject to a condition that out of the rental income, a sum of ₹ 36,000 per annum shall be utilized for the benefit of her son's wife.

Mrs. Kasturi claims that the amount of ₹ 36,000 (utilized by her son's wife) should not be included in her total income as she no longer owned the property.

Examine with reasons whether the contention of Mrs. Kasturi is valid in law.

SOLUTION

The clubbing provisions under section 64(1)(viii) are attracted in case of transfer of any asset, directly or indirectly, otherwise than for adequate consideration, to any person to the extent to which the income from such asset is for the immediate or deferred benefit of son's wife. Such income shall be included in computing the total income of the transferor-individual.

Therefore, income of ₹ 36,000 meant for the benefit of daughter-in-law is chargeable to tax in the hands of transferor i.e., Mrs. Kasturi in this case.

The contention of Mrs. Kasturi is, hence, not valid in law.

Note - In order to attract the clubbing provisions under section 64(1)(viii), the transfer should be otherwise than for adequate consideration. In this case, it is presumed that the transfer is otherwise than for adequate consideration and therefore, the clubbing provisions are attracted. In such case, the provisions of section 56(2)(x) will also get attracted in the hands of ABC Co Ltd., if stamp duty value exceeds ₹ 50,000 and the other conditions specified thereunder are satisfied.

If it is presumed that the transfer was for adequate consideration, the provisions of section 64(1)(viii) would not be attracted.

(3) Clubbing of minor's income

- (i) All income of a minor is to be included in the income of his parent.
- (ii) However, the income derived by the minor from manual work or from any activity involving his skill, talent or specialised knowledge or experience will not be included in the income of his parent.
- (iii) The income of the minor will be included in the income of that parent, whose total income is greater.
- (iv) Once clubbing of minor's income is done with that of one parent, it will continue to be clubbed with that parent only, in subsequent years. The Assessing Officer, may, however, club the minor's income with that of the other parent, if, after giving the other parent an opportunity to be heard, he is satisfied that it is necessary to do so.
- (v) Where the marriage of the parents does not subsist, the income of the minor will be includible in the income of that parent who maintains the minor child in the relevant previous year.
- (vi) However, the income of a minor child suffering from any disability of the nature specified in section 80U shall not be included in the hands of the parent but shall be assessed in the hands of the child.

- (vii) It may be noted that the clubbing provisions are attracted even in respect of income of minor married daughter.

Child in relation to an individual includes a step-child and an adopted child of that individual. [Section 2(15B)]

Exemption in respect of clubbed income of minor [Section 10(32)]

In case the income of an individual (i.e. the parent) includes the income of his/her minor child in terms of section 64(1A), such parent shall be entitled to exemption of ₹ 1,500 in respect of each minor child. However, if income of any minor so includible is less than ₹ 1,500, then the entire income shall be exempt.

ILLUSTRATION 6

Mr. A has three minor children – two twin daughters and one son. Income of the twin daughters is ₹ 2,000 p.a. each and that of the son is ₹ 1,200 p.a. Compute the income, in respect of minor children, to be clubbed in the hands of Mr. A.

SOLUTION

Taxable income, in respect of minor children, in the hands of Mr. A is

Particulars	₹	₹
Twin minor daughters [₹ 2,000 × 2]	4,000
Less: Exempt under section 10(32) [₹ 1,500 × 2]	3,000	1,000
Minor son	1,200
Less: Exempt under section 10(32)	1,200	Nil
Income to be clubbed in the hands of Mr. A		1,000

9.4 CROSS TRANSFERS

In the case of cross transfers also (e.g., A making gift of ₹ 50,000 to the wife of his brother B for the purchase of a house by her and a simultaneous gift by B to A's minor son of shares in a foreign company worth ₹ 50,000 owned by him), the income from the assets transferred would be assessed in the hands of the deemed transferor if the transfers are so intimately connected as to form part of a single transaction, and each transfer constitutes consideration for the other by being mutual or otherwise. Thus, in the instant case, the transfers have been made by A and B to persons who are not their spouse or minor child so as to circumvent the provisions of this section, showing that such transfers constituted consideration for each other.

The Supreme Court, in case of CIT v. Keshavji Morarji [1967] 66 ITR 142, observed that if two transactions are inter-connected and are parts of the same transaction in such a way that it can be said that the circuitous method was adopted as a device to evade tax, the implication of clubbing provisions would be attracted. Accordingly, the income arising to Mrs. B from the house property should be included in the total income of B and the dividend from shares transferred to A's minor son would be taxable in the hands of A. This is because A and B are the indirect transferors to their minor child and spouse, respectively, of income-yielding assets, so as to reduce their burden of taxation.

ILLUSTRATION 7

Mr. Vasudevan gifted a sum of ₹ 6 lakhs to his brother's wife on 14-6-2019. On 12-7-2019, his brother gifted a sum of ₹ 5 lakhs to Mr. Vasudevan's wife. The gifted amounts were invested as fixed deposits in banks by Mrs. Vasudevan and wife of Mr. Vasudevan's brother on 01-8-2019 at 9% interest. Discuss the consequences of the above under the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 in the hands of Mr. Vasudevan and his brother.

SOLUTION

In the given case, Mr. Vasudevan gifted a sum of ₹ 6 lakhs to his brother's wife on 14.06.2019 and simultaneously, his brother gifted a sum of ₹ 5 lakhs to Mr. Vasudevan's wife on 12.07.2019. The gifted amounts were invested as fixed deposits in banks by Mrs. Vasudevan and his brother's wife. These transfers are in the nature of cross transfers. Accordingly, the income from the assets transferred would be assessed in the hands of the deemed transferor because the transfers are so intimately connected to form part of a single transaction and each transfer constitutes consideration for the other by being mutual or otherwise.

If two transactions are inter-connected and are part of the same transaction in such a way that it can be said that the circuitous method was adopted as a device to evade tax, the implication of clubbing provisions would be attracted. It was so held by the Apex Court in CIT vs. Keshavji Morarji (1967) 66 ITR 142.

Accordingly, the interest income arising to Mrs. Vasudevan in the form of interest on fixed deposits would be included in the total income of Mr. Vasudevan and interest income arising in the hands of his brother's wife would be taxable in the hands of Mr. Vasudevan's brother as per section 64(1), to the extent of amount of cross transfers i.e., ₹ 5 lakhs.

This is because both Mr. Vasudevan and his brother are the indirect transferors of the income to their respective spouses with an intention to reduce their burden of taxation.

However, the interest income earned by his spouse on fixed deposit of ₹ 5 lakhs alone would be included in the hands of Mr. Vasudevan's brother and not the interest income on the entire fixed deposit of ₹ 6 lakhs, since the cross transfer is only to the extent of ₹ 5 lakhs.

9.5 CONVERSION OF SELF-ACQUIRED PROPERTY INTO THE PROPERTY OF A HINDU UNDIVIDED FAMILY [SECTION 64(2)]

Section 64(2) deals with the case of conversion of self-acquired property into property of a Hindu undivided family.

- (1) Where an individual, who is a member of the HUF, converts at any time after 31-12-1969, his individual property into property of the HUF of which he is a member or throws such property into the common stock of the family or otherwise transfers such individual property, directly or indirectly, to the family otherwise than for adequate consideration, the income from such property shall continue to be included in the total income of the individual.
- (2) Where the converted property has been partitioned, either by way of total or partial partition, the income derived from such converted property as is received by the spouse on partition will be deemed to arise to the spouse from assets transferred indirectly by the individual to the spouse and consequently, such income shall also be included in the total income of the individual who effected the conversion of such property.
- (3) Where income from the converted property is included in the total income of an individual under section 64(2), it will be excluded from the total income of the family or, as the case may be, of the spouse of the individual.

9.6 INCOME INCLUDES LOSS

It is significant to note that as per the Explanation 2 to section 64, 'income' would include 'loss'. Accordingly, where the specified income to be included in the total income of the individual is a loss, such loss will be taken into account while computing the total income of the individual. It is significant to note that this Explanation applies to clubbing provisions under both sections 64(1) and 64(2).

9.7 DISTINCTION BETWEEN SECTION 61 AND SECTION 64

It may be noted that the main distinction between the two sections is that section 61 applies only to a revocable transfer made by any person while section 64 applies to revocable as well as irrevocable transfers made only by individuals.

9.8 LIABILITY OF PERSON IN RESPECT OF INCOME INCLUDED IN THE INCOME OF ANOTHER PERSON [SECTION 65]

Sections 61 to 64 provide for clubbing of income of one person in the hands of the other in circumstances specified therein. However, service of notice of demand (in respect of tax on such income) may be made upon the person to whom such asset is transferred (i.e. the transferee). In such a case, the transferee is liable to pay that portion of tax levied on the transferor which is attributable to the income so clubbed.

Similar provision will be applicable in case of deemed ownership of house property under section 27 i.e., transfer of house property otherwise than for adequate consideration to spouse, not being in connection with agreement to live apart or to minor child not being a minor married daughter.

ILLUSTRATION 8

Mr. Ravi has gifted his only house property to his wife, Mrs. Ravi, and his married daughter, Mrs. Divya. The Assessing Officer has served a notice of demand on Mr. Ravi for payment of tax for the income derived from the said house property. Examine the validity of the Assessing Officer's action.

Answer

As per section 27(i), an individual who transfers otherwise than for adequate consideration any house property to his spouse, not being a transfer in connection with an agreement to live apart, or to a minor child not being a married daughter shall be deemed to be the owner of the house property so transferred.

Mr. Ravi, in this case, would be the deemed owner only in respect of the share of house property transferred to his wife Mrs. Ravi without consideration and not for the share of the house property transferred to his married daughter Mrs. Divya.

Since Mr. Ravi is the deemed owner of the share of house property transferred to his wife without consideration, the income derived from the house property, to the extent attributable to the share of property transferred to his wife without consideration, would be taxable in his hands under the head "Income from house property".

As per section 65, the notice of demand can, however, be served on Mrs. Ravi for payment of that portion of tax levied on Mr. Ravi attributable to the income derived [by virtue of section 27(i)], from the share of house property transferred to Mrs. Ravi, and standing in her name.

However, the income derived from house property, attributable to the share of property transferred to his married daughter without consideration, would be taxable in the hands of his daughter. Such income would not be taxable in the hands of Mr. Ravi. Mr. Ravi will not be responsible for the payment of tax attributable to aforesaid share of income of daughter from house property.

Thus, the action of the Assessing Officer in serving notice of demand on Mr. Ravi for payment of tax for the entire income derived from the said house property is not valid.

EXERCISE

Question 1

Mrs. E, wife of Mr. F, is a partner in a firm. Her capital contribution to the firm as on 01-04-2019 was ₹ 5 lacs, out of which ₹ 3 lacs was contributed out of her own sources and ₹ 2 lacs was contributed out of gift from her husband.

As further capital was needed by the firm, she further invested ₹ 2 lacs on 01.05.2019 out of the funds gifted by her husband. The firm paid interest on capital of ₹ 80,000 and share of profit of ₹ 60,000 for the financial year 2019-20.

Advise Mr. F as to the applicability of the provisions of section 64(1)(iv) and the manner thereof in respect of the above referred transactions.

Answer

As per section 64(1)(iv), in computing the total income of any individual, there shall be included all such income as arises, directly or indirectly, subject to the provisions of section 27(i), to the spouse of such individual from assets transferred directly or indirectly to the spouse by such individual otherwise than for adequate consideration or in connection with an agreement to live apart.

In this instant case, Mr. F has gifted money to his wife, Mrs. E. Mrs. E, in turn, invested such gifted money in the capital of a partnership firm, of which she is a partner. Mrs. E has also contributed a sum of ₹ 3 lacs out of her own resources to the capital of the firm.

As per Explanation 3 to section 64(1), for the purpose of clubbing under section 64(1)(iv), where the assets transferred, directly or indirectly, by an individual to his spouse are invested by the transferee in the nature of contribution of capital as a partner in a firm, proportionate interest on capital will be clubbed with the income of the transferor. Such proportion has to be computed by taking into account the value of the aforesaid investment as on the first day of the previous year to the total investment by way of capital contribution as a partner in the firm as on that day.

In view of the above provision, interest received by Mrs. E from the firm shall be included in total income of Mr. F to the extent of ₹ 32,000 i.e.,  $₹ 80,000 \times \frac{₹ 2,00,000}{₹ 5,00,000}$ .

Share of profit amounting to ₹ 60,000 is exempt from income-tax under the provisions of section 10(2A). The provisions of section 64 will not apply, if the income from the transferred asset itself is exempt from tax.

Note: It is assumed that rate of interest on capital contributed by Mrs. E does not exceed 12% p.a.

Question 2

Mr. A has gifted a house property valued at ₹ 50 lakhs to his wife, Mrs. B, who in turn has gifted the same to Mrs. C, their daughter-in-law. The house was let out at ₹ 25,000 per month throughout the year. Compute the total income of Mr. A and Mrs. C.

Will your answer be different if the said property was gifted to his son, husband of Mrs. C?

Answer

As per section 27(i), an individual who transfers otherwise than for adequate consideration any house property to his spouse, not being a transfer in connection with an agreement to live apart, shall be deemed to be the owner of the house property so transferred.

Therefore, in this case, Mr. A would be the deemed owner of the house property transferred to his wife Mrs. B without consideration.

As per section 64(1)(vi), income arising to the son's wife from assets transferred, directly or indirectly, to her by an individual otherwise than for adequate consideration would be included in the total income of such individual.

Income from let-out property is ₹ 2,10,000 [i.e., ₹ 3,00,000, being the actual rent calculated at ₹ 25,000 per month less ₹ 90,000, being deduction under section 24 @30% of ₹ 3,00,000]

In this case, income of ₹ 2,10,000 from let-out property arising to Mrs. C, being Mr. A's son's wife, would be included in the income of Mr. A, applying the provisions of section 27(i) and section 64(1)(vi). Such income would, therefore, not be taxable in the hands of Mrs. C.

In case the property was gifted to Mr. A's son, the clubbing provisions under section 64 would not apply, since the son is not a minor child. Therefore, the income of ₹ 2,10,000 from letting out of property gifted to the son would be taxable in the hands of the son.

It may be noted that the provisions of section 56(2)(x) would not be attracted in the hands of the recipient of house property, since the receipt of property in each case was from a "relative" of such individual. Therefore, the stamp duty value of house property would not be chargeable to tax in the hands of the recipient of immovable property, even though the house property was received by her or him without consideration.

Note - The first part of the question can also be answered by applying the provisions of section 64(1)(vi) directly to include the income of ₹ 2,10,000 arising to Mrs. C in the hands of Mr. A. [without first applying the provisions of section 27(i) to deem Mr. A as the owner of the house property transferred to his wife Mrs. B without consideration], since section 64(1)(vi) speaks of clubbing of income arising to son's wife from indirect transfer of assets to her by her husband's parent, without consideration. Gift of house property by Mr. A to Mrs. C, via Mrs. B, can be viewed as an indirect transfer by Mr. A to Mrs. C.

Question 3

Mr. Korani transferred 2,000 debentures of ₹ 100 each of Wild Fox Ltd. to his wife Mrs. Rekha Korani on 3.10.2018 without consideration. The company paid interest of ₹ 30,000 in September, 2019 which was deposited by Mrs. Korani with Kartar Finance Co. in October, 2019. Kartar Finance Co. paid interest of ₹ 3,000 upto March, 2020. How would both the interest income be charged to tax in A.Y. 2020-21?

Answer

As per section 64(1)(iv), income arising from assets transferred without adequate consideration by an individual to his spouse is liable to be clubbed in the hands of the individual. It may be noted that income on the asset transferred has to be clubbed but if there is accretion to the asset, any further income derived on such accretion should not be clubbed.

Therefore, applying the provisions of section 64(1)(iv), ₹ 30,000, being the interest on debentures received by Mrs. Rekha Korani in September, 2019 will be clubbed with the income of Mr. Korani, since he had transferred the debentures of the company without consideration to her in October, 2018.

However, the interest of ₹ 3,000 upto March, 2020 earned by Mrs. Rekha Korani on the interest on the debentures deposited by her with Kartar Finance Company shall be taxable in her individual capacity and will not be clubbed with the income of Mr. Korani.

Question 4

Mr. Rose, out of his own funds, had taken an FDR for ₹ 10,00,000 bearing interest @10% p.a. payable half-yearly in the name of his wife Lilly. The interest earned during the financial year 2019-20 of ₹ 1,00,000 was invested by Mrs. Lilly in the business of packed spices which resulted in a net profit of ₹ 55,000 for the year ended 31.03.2020. How shall the interest on FDR and income from business be taxed for the Assessment Year 2020-21?

Answer

Section 64(1)(iv) specifies that the income derived by the spouse of an assessee from the assets transferred directly or indirectly without adequate consideration or intention to live apart shall be clubbed with the income of the transferor. Therefore, the interest income of ₹ 1 lac on the FDR of ₹ 10 lacs for the F.Y.2019-20 shall be clubbed with the income of Mr. Rose.

When Mrs. Lilly invested the interest income in a business and earned profits therefrom, such profits shall not be clubbed with the income of her husband but shall be taxable in her individual capacity. This is so because the income from the accretion of the transferred assets is not to be clubbed with the income of the transferor [CIT v. M. S. S. Rajan (2001) 252 ITR 126 (Mad)].

Question 5

Naresh is a fashion designer having lucrative business. His wife is a model. Naresh pays her monthly salary of ₹ 10,000. The Assessing Officer while admitting that the salary is an admissible deduction, in computing the total income of Naresh had applied the provisions of section 64(1), and had clubbed the income (salary) of his wife in Naresh hands.

Discuss the correctness of the action of the Assessing Officer.

Answer

This question is based on the principles laid down by Madras High Court in the case of CIT v. Smt. R. Bharati (1999) 240 ITR 697 where the interpretation of the terms “professional qualifications” and “knowledge” came up for consideration as per proviso to section 64(1).

These words do not necessarily connote a qualification conferred by a recognized university after examining the candidate who has undergone a course of study in a technical subject or course of study preparing him for a profession of law, accountancy etc. Accordingly, the term “qualification” must be given a wide meaning as referring to the qualities which are required to be possessed by a person performing the work that he does, so long as that work is capable of being regarded as technical or professional.

The word “professional” is a term capable of very broad meaning and would encompass a variety of occupations. A large number of occupations are being practiced which form a source of livelihood and are capable of being regarded, as professions as long as they require certain degree of skill. A person having skill, experience and competence in a line of work can be regarded as professionally qualified for the purpose of section 64(1)(ii).

Applying the rationale of the Madras High Court ruling, a model, having skill, competence and experience in her line can be considered as a professional. Hence, the action of the Assessing Officer is not correct.

AGGREGATION OF INCOME, SET OFF OR CARRY FORWARD OF LOSSES

LEARNING OUTCOMES

After studying this chapter, you would be able to -

- ❑ identify the permissible inter-source and inter-head adjustments for set-off of losses and the restrictions in inter-source and inter-head set-off of losses;
- ❑ determine the unabsorbed losses which can be carried forward to the subsequent assessment year for set-off against income of that year and the maximum period of carry forward of such losses;
- ❑ appreciate the provisions regarding carry forward and set-off of losses in case of closely held companies and eligible start-ups as also in case of change in constitution of firms;
- ❑ appreciate the conditions which are required to be satisfied by the amalgamating company and the amalgamated company for carry forward and set-off of loss of the amalgamating company by the amalgamated company;
- ❑ appreciate the special provisions for carry forward and set-off of losses of a banking company against the profits of a banking institution under a scheme of amalgamation;
- ❑ compute the gross total income of an assessee after applying the provisions relating to set-off and carry forward and set-off of losses.

10.1 AGGREGATION OF INCOME

In certain cases, some amounts are deemed as income in the hands of the assessee though they are actually not in the nature of income. These cases are contained in sections 68, 69, 69A, 69B, 69C and 69D. These are discussed in detail in Chapter 1. The Assessing Officer may require the assessee to furnish explanation in such cases. If the assessee does not offer any explanation or the explanation offered by the assessee is not satisfactory, the amounts referred to in these sections would be deemed to be the income of the assessee. Such amounts have to be aggregated with the assessee's income.

10.2 CONCEPT OF SET OFF AND CARRY FORWARD OF LOSSES

Specific provisions have been made in the Income-tax Act, 1961 for the set-off and carry forward of losses. In simple words, "Set-off" means adjustment of losses against the profits from another source/head of income in the same assessment year. If losses cannot be set-off in the same year due to inadequacy of eligible profits, then such losses are carried forward to the next assessment year for adjustment against the eligible profits of that year. The maximum period for which different losses can be carried forward for set-off has been provided in the Act.

10.3 INTER SOURCE ADJUSTMENTS [SECTION 70]

(1) Inter-source set-off of losses

Under this section, the losses incurred by the assessee in respect of one source shall be set-off against income from any other source under the same head of income, since the income under each head is to be computed by grouping together the net result of the activities of all the sources covered by that head. In simpler terms, loss from one source of income can be adjusted against income from another source, both the sources being under the same head.

Examples:

1. Loss from one house property can be set off against the income from another house property.
2. Loss from one business, say textiles, can be set off against income from any other business, say printing, in the same year as both these sources of income fall under one head of income. Therefore, the loss in one business may be set-off against the profits from another business in the same year.

(2) Impermissible inter-source set-off

Inter-source set-off, however, is not permissible in the following cases -

(i) Long-term capital loss [Section 70(3)]

Short-term capital loss is allowed to be set off against both short-term capital gain and long-term capital gain. However, long-term capital loss can be set-off only against long-term capital gain and not short-term capital gain.

(ii) Speculation loss [Section 73(1)]

A loss in speculation business can be set-off only against the profits of any other speculation business and not against any other business or professional income.

However, losses from other business can be adjusted against profits from speculation business.

(iii) Loss from the activity of owning and maintaining race horses [Section 74A(3)]

Such loss can be set-off only against income from the activity of owning and maintaining race horses.

(iv) Losses from specified business [Section 73A(1)]

A loss in any specified business referred in section 35AD can be set-off only against any other specified business.

However, losses from other business can be set-off against profits from specified business.

It must be noted that loss from an exempt source cannot be set-off against profits from a taxable source of income. For example, share of loss from a partnership firm cannot be set-off against business income, since share of income of the firm is exempt under section 10(2A).

10.4 INTER HEAD ADJUSTMENTS [SECTION 71]

Loss under one head of income can be adjusted or set off against income under another head. However, the following points should be considered:

- (1) Loss under any head other than capital gains: Where the net result of the computation under any head of income (other than 'Capital Gains') is a loss, the assessee can set-off such loss against his income assessable for that assessment year under any other head, including 'Capital Gains'.
- (2) Loss under the head "Profits and gains from business or profession: Where the net result of the computation under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" is a loss, such loss cannot be set off against income under the head "Salaries".
- (3) Loss under the head "Capital Gains": Where the net result of computation under the head 'Capital Gains' is a loss, such capital loss cannot be set-off against income under any other head.

- (4) Loss under the head “Income from house property”: Where the net result of the computation under the head “Income from house property” is a loss and the assessee has income assessable under any other head of income, the amount of such loss exceeding ₹ 2 lakhs would not be allowable to be set-off against income under the other head. In other words, the maximum loss from house property which can be set-off against income from any other head is ₹ 2 lakhs.
- (5) Speculation loss, loss from the activity of owning and maintaining race horses and losses from specified business referred to in section 35AD cannot be set off against income under any other head.

ILLUSTRATION 1

Mr. A (aged 35 years) submits the following particulars pertaining to the A.Y.2020-21:

Particulars	₹
Income from salary (computed)	4,00,000
Loss from self-occupied property	(-)70,000
Loss from let-out property	(-) 1,50,000
Business loss	(-)1,00,000
Bank interest (FD) received	80,000

Compute the total income of Mr. A for the A.Y.2020-21.

SOLUTION

Computation of total income of Mr. A for the A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	Amount (₹)	Amount (₹)
Income from salary	4,00,000
Less: Loss from house property of ₹ 2,20,000 to be restricted to ₹ 2 lakhs by virtue of section 71(3A)	(-) 2,00,000	2,00,000
Balance loss of ₹ 20,000 from house property to be carried forward to next assessment year
Income from other sources (interest on fixed deposit with bank)	80,000
Business loss set-off (Business loss of ₹ 20,000 to be carried forward for set-off against business income of the next assessment year)	(-) 1,00,000	-
Gross total income [See Note below]		2,00,000
Less: Deduction under Chapter VI-A		Nil
Total income		2,00,000

Note: Gross Total Income includes salary income of ₹ 2,00,000 after adjusting loss of ₹ 2,00,000 from house property. The balance loss of ₹ 20,000 from house property to be carried forward to next assessment year for set-off against income from house property of that year.

Business loss of ₹ 1,00,000 is set off against bank interest of ₹ 80,000 and remaining business loss of ₹ 20,000 will be carried forward as it cannot be set off against salary income.

10.5 CARRY FORWARD AND SET OFF OF LOSS FROM HOUSE PROPERTY [SECTION 71B]

- (1) Set-off and Carry Forward & Set-off of losses: In any assessment year, if there is a loss under the head 'Income from house property', such loss will first be set-off against income from any other head to the extent of ₹ 2,00,000 during the same year. The unabsorbed loss will be carried forward to the following assessment year to be set-off against income under the head 'Income from house property'.
- (2) Maximum period for carry forward & set-off of losses: The loss under this head is allowed to be carried forward upto 8 assessment years immediately succeeding the assessment year in which the loss was first computed.

Example:

Loss from one house property can be adjusted against the profits from another house property in the same assessment year. Any loss under the head 'Income from house property' can be set off against any income under any other head to the extent of ₹ 2,00,000 in the same assessment year. However, if after such set off, there is still any loss under the head "Income from house property", then, the same shall be carried forward to the next year.

Note - It is to be remembered that once a particular loss is carried forward, it can be set off only against the income from the same head in the forthcoming assessment years.

10.6 CARRY FORWARD AND SET OFF OF BUSINESS LOSSES [SECTION 72]

Under the Act, the assessee has the right to carry forward the losses under the business and profession in cases where such loss cannot be set-off due to the absence or inadequacy of income under any other head in the same year. The loss so carried forward can be set-off against the profits of subsequent previous years.

Section 72 covers the carry forward and set-off of losses arising from a business or profession.

Conditions

The assessee's right to carry forward business losses under this section is, however, subject to the following conditions:-

- (1) The loss should have been incurred in business, profession or vocation.
- (2) The loss should not be in the nature of a loss in the business of speculation.
- (3) Loss from one business can be carried forward & set-off against the income from any other business: The loss may be carried forward and set-off against the income from business or profession though not necessarily against the profits and gains of the same business or profession in which the loss was incurred.

However, a loss carried forward cannot, under any circumstances, be set-off against the income from any head other than "Profits and gains of business or profession".

- (4) Person who incurred the loss alone is entitled to carry forward & set-off the loss: The loss can be carried forward and set off only against the profits of the assessee who incurred the loss. That is, only the person who has incurred the loss is entitled to carry forward or set off the same. Consequently, the successor of a business cannot carry forward or set off the losses of his predecessor except in the case of succession by inheritance.
- (5) Maximum period for carry forward & set-off of losses: A business loss can be carried forward for a maximum period of 8 assessment years immediately succeeding the assessment year in which the loss was incurred.
- (6) Rehabilitation of business [Proviso to section 72(1)]

If there is a loss sustained in a business which is discontinued in the circumstances mentioned under section 33B and such business is re-established, reconstructed or revived by the assessee within 3 years from the end of previous year of discontinuation, the loss attributable to such business

- (i) shall be allowed to be set off against the profits and gains, if any, of that business or any other business carried on by him and assessable for that assessment year, and
- (ii) if the loss cannot be wholly so set off, the amount of balance loss to be carried to the following assessment year and so on for 7 assessment years immediately succeeding provided such re-established business is continued to be carried by the assessee.

Note: Circumstances referred to in section 33B

The business is formed as re-establishment, reconstruction or revival by the assessee of the business of such industrial undertaking which is discontinued by reason of extensive damage to or destruction of, any building, machinery, plant or furniture owned by the assessee and used for the purpose of such business.

Such damage or destruction should be affected as a direct result of flood, typhoon, hurricane, cyclone, earthquake or other convulsion of nature or riot or civil disturbance or accidental fire or explosion or action by an enemy or action taken in combating an enemy.

ILLUSTRATION 2

Mr. B, a resident individual, furnishes the following particulars for the P.Y.2019-20:

Particulars	₹
Income from salary (computed)	45,000
Income from house property	(24,000)
Income from business – non-speculative	(22,000)
Income from speculative business	(4,000)
Short-term capital losses	25,000
Long-term capital gains u/s 112	19,000

What is the total income chargeable to tax for the A.Y.2020-21?

SOLUTION*Total income of Mr. B for the A.Y. 2020-21

Particulars	Amount (₹)	Amount (₹)
Income from salaries	45,000	21,000
Income from house property	(24,000)
Profits and gains of business and profession
Business loss to be carried forward [Note 1]	(22,000)
Speculative loss to be carried forward [Note 2]	(4,000)
Capital Gains
Long term capital gain	19,000
Short term capital loss	(25,000)
Short term capital loss to be carried forward [Note 3]	(6,000)	-
Taxable income		21,000

Note 1: Business loss cannot be set-off against salary income. Therefore, loss of ₹ 22,000 from the non-speculative business cannot be set off against the income from salaries. Hence, such loss has to be carried forward to the next year for set-off against business profits, if any.

Note 2: Loss of ₹ 4,000 from the speculative business can be set off only against the income from the speculative business. Hence, such loss has to be carried forward.

Note 3: Short term capital loss can be set off against both short term capital gain and long term capital gain. Therefore, short term capital loss of ₹ 25,000 can be set-off against long-term capital gains to the extent of ₹ 19,000. The balance short term capital loss of ₹ 6,000 cannot be set-off against any other income and has to be carried forward to the next year for set-off against capital gains, if any.

10.7 CARRY FORWARD AND SET OFF OF ACCUMULATED BUSINESS LOSSES AND UNABSORBED DEPRECIATION IN CERTAIN CASES OF AMALGAMATION/ DEMERGER, ETC. [SECTION 72A]

(1) Amalgamation

Applicability: This section applies where there has been an amalgamation of –

- (i) a company owning an industrial undertaking or a ship or a hotel with another company; or
- (ii) an amalgamation of a banking company with a specified bank; or
- (iii) public sector companies engaged in the business of operation of aircrafts.

Allowability of carry forward and set-off of accumulated loss and unabsorbed loss by amalgamated company in case of amalgamation: It provides that the accumulated loss and unabsorbed depreciation of the amalgamating company shall be deemed to be the loss or depreciation, as the case may be, of the amalgamated company for the previous year in which the amalgamation took place. Other provisions of the Act relating to set off and carry forward shall also apply accordingly.

Conditions for availing benefit under this section

(i) Conditions to be fulfilled by the amalgamating company

- (a) The amalgamating company should have been engaged in the business, in which the accumulated loss occurred or depreciation remains unabsorbed, for 3 or more years.
- (b) The amalgamating company has held continuously as on the date of amalgamation, at least  $\frac{3}{4}$ th of the book value of the fixed assets held by it, 2 years prior to the date of amalgamation.

(ii) Conditions to be fulfilled by the amalgamated company

- (a) The amalgamated company should hold at least  $\frac{3}{4}$ th in the book value of fixed assets of the amalgamating company acquired as a result of amalgamation for a minimum period of 5 years from the effective date of amalgamation.
- (b) The amalgamated company continues the business of the amalgamating company for at least 5 years.

- (c) The amalgamated company must also fulfill such other conditions prescribed under Rule 9C for the revival of the business of the amalgamating company or to ensure that the amalgamation is for genuine business purpose -
- (1) The amalgamated company shall achieve the level of production of at least 50% of the installed capacity (capacity of production as on the date of amalgamation) of the said undertaking before the end of 4 years from the date of amalgamation and continue to maintain the said minimum level of production till the end of 5 years from the date of amalgamation. Central Government has the power to modify this requirement on an application made by the amalgamated company.
  - (2) The amalgamated company shall furnish to the Assessing Officer a certificate in the prescribed form verified by a Chartered Accountant in this regard.

Consequences of non-fulfillment of specified conditions: In case the above specified conditions are not fulfilled, that part of carry forward of loss and unabsorbed depreciation remaining to be utilized by the amalgamated company shall lapse and such loss or depreciation as has been set-off shall be treated as the income in the year in which there is a failure to fulfill the conditions.

(2) Demerger

Allowability of carry forward and set-off of accumulated loss and unabsorbed loss by resulting company in case of demerger: Where there has been a demerger of an undertaking,

- the accumulated loss and the unabsorbed depreciation directly relatable to the undertaking transferred by the demerged company to the resulting company shall be allowed to be carried forward and set off in the hands of the resulting company.
- if the accumulated loss or unabsorbed depreciation is not directly relatable to the undertaking, the same will be apportioned between the demerged company and the resulting company in the same proportion in which the value of the assets retained by the demerged company and have been transferred to the resulting company.

Conditions for availing benefit under this section: The Central Government is empowered to notify such conditions as it considers necessary to ensure that the demerger is for genuine business purpose.

(3) Re-organisation of business

Allowability of carry forward and set-off of accumulated loss and unabsorbed loss by company in case of succession: In case of re-organisation of business, whereby a firm is succeeded by a company as per the provisions of section 47(xiii), or a sole proprietary concern is succeeded by a company as per the provisions of section 47(xiv), then the accumulated business loss and the unabsorbed depreciation of the firm / proprietary concern, as the case may be, shall be deemed to be the loss or depreciation allowance of the successor company for the previous year in which the business re-organisation took place. Other provisions of the Act relating to set-off and carry forward will apply accordingly.

Consequences of non-fulfillment of specified conditions: If it is found that any of the conditions laid down in the corresponding sub-sections (xiii) or (xiv) of section 47 have not been complied with, the set-off of loss or allowance of depreciation made in any previous year in the hands of the successor company shall be deemed to be the income of the company chargeable to tax in the year in which the conditions have been violated.

(4) Conversion of a company into LLP [Section 72A(6A)]

Allowability of carry forward and set-off of accumulated loss and unabsorbed loss by LLP in case of conversion: In case of re-organisation of business, whereby a private company or unlisted company is succeeded by a LLP as per the provisions of section 47(xiii b), then the successor LLP would be allowed to carry forward and set-off the business loss and unabsorbed depreciation of the predecessor company.

Consequences of non-fulfillment of specified conditions: If the entity fails to fulfill the conditions specified in section 47(xiii b), the benefit of set-off of business loss/unabsorbed depreciation availed by the LLP would be deemed to be the profits and gains of the LLP chargeable to tax in the previous year in which the LLP fails to fulfill any of the conditions.

(5) Meanings of certain terms

Term	Particulars
Accumulated loss	It means so much of the loss of <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- the predecessor firm or</li> <li>- the proprietary concern or</li> <li>- the private company or unlisted company or</li> <li>- the amalgamating company or</li> <li>- the demerged company, as the case may be,</li> </ul> under the head "Profit and gains of business or profession" (not being a loss sustained in a speculation business) which such predecessor firm or the proprietary concern or the company or amalgamating company or demerged company, would have been entitled to carry forward and set off under the provisions of section 72, if the re-organisation of business or amalgamation or demerger had not taken place.

10.8 CARRY FORWARD AND SET OFF OF ACCUMULATED BUSINESS LOSSES AND UNABSORBED DEPRECIATION OF A BANKING COMPANY AGAINST THE PROFIT OF A BANKING INSTITUTION UNDER A SCHEME OF AMALGAMATION [SECTION 72AA]

- (1) Applicability: This section provides for carry forward and set off of accumulated loss and unabsorbed depreciation allowance of a banking company against the profits of a banking institution under a scheme of amalgamation sanctioned by the Central Government.
- (2) Allowability of carry forward and set-off of accumulated loss and unabsorbed loss by banking institution in case of amalgamation: Where a banking company has been amalgamated with a banking institution under a scheme sanctioned and brought into force by the Central Government under section 45(7) of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949, the accumulated loss and unabsorbed depreciation of the amalgamating banking company shall be deemed to be the loss or the allowance for depreciation of the banking institution for the previous year in which the scheme of amalgamation is brought into force, and all the provisions contained in the Income-tax Act, 1961, relating to set off and carry forward of loss and unabsorbed depreciation shall apply accordingly.

(3) Meaning of certain terms:

Term	Particulars
Accumulated loss	It means so much of the loss of the amalgamating banking company under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" (not being a loss sustained in a speculation business) which such amalgamating banking company, would have been entitled to carry forward and set-off under the provisions of section 72 if the amalgamation had not taken place.
Banking company	It has the same meaning assigned to it in section 5(c) of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949
Banking institution	It has the same meaning assigned to it in section 45(15) of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949.
Unabsorbed depreciation	It means so much of the allowance for depreciation of the amalgamating banking company which remains to be allowed and which would have been allowed to such banking company if the amalgamation had not taken place.

10.9 CARRY FORWARD AND SET OFF OF ACCUMULATED LOSS AND UNABSORBED DEPRECIATION IN BUSINESS REORGANISATION OF CO-OPERATIVE BANKS [SECTION 72AB]

- (1) Allowability of carry forward and set-off of accumulated loss and unabsorbed loss by a co-operative bank in case of reorganisation: Under this section, in a case where the amalgamation has taken place during the previous year, set-off of accumulated loss and the unabsorbed depreciation of the predecessor co-operative bank will be allowed in the hands of the successor co-operative bank as if the amalgamation had not taken place. All the other provisions of this Act relating to set off and carry forward of loss and allowance for depreciation would apply accordingly.
- (2) Conditions for availing benefit under this section
- (i) Conditions to be fulfilled by the predecessor co-operative bank
- (a) It should have been engaged in the business of banking for three or more years; and

- (b) It has held at least 3/4th of the book value of fixed assets as on the date of the business reorganisation, continuously for 2 years prior to the date of business reorganisation;
- (ii) Conditions to be fulfilled by the successor co-operative bank
- (a) It should hold at least 3/4th of the book value of fixed assets of the predecessor co-operative bank acquired through business reorganisation, continuously for a minimum period of 5 years immediately succeeding the date of business reorganisation;
- (b) It continues the business of the predecessor co-operative bank for a minimum period of 5 years from the date of business reorganisation; and
- (c) It fulfils such other conditions as may be prescribed to ensure the revival of the business of the predecessor co-operative bank or to ensure that the business reorganisation is for genuine business purpose.
- (3) Quantum allowed of accumulated loss and unabsorbed depreciation: The amount of set-off of the accumulated loss and unabsorbed depreciation allowable to the resulting co-operative bank has to be calculated in the following manner -
- (i) In a case where the whole of the amount of such loss or unabsorbed depreciation is directly relatable to the undertakings transferred to the resulting co-operative bank - the entire accumulated loss or unabsorbed depreciation of the demerged co-operative bank is allowed to be set-off.
- (ii) In a case where the accumulated loss or unabsorbed depreciation is not directly relatable to the undertakings transferred to the resulting co-operative bank - the amount which bears the same proportion to the accumulated loss or unabsorbed depreciation of the demerged co-operative bank as the assets of the undertaking transferred to the resulting co-operative bank bears to the assets of the demerged co-operative bank.

Example:

If A Co-op Bank is the demerged co-operative bank and B Co-op Bank is the resulting co-operative bank, the amount of set-off of the accumulated loss and unabsorbed depreciation allowable to B Co-op. bank would be –

$$\text{Unabsorbed business loss/depreciation of A Co-op bank} \times \frac{\text{Assets of the undertaking transferred to B Co-op bank}}{\text{Assets of A Co-op bank}}$$

- (4) Additional conditions for availing benefit under this section: The Central Government may specify other conditions by notification in the Official Gazette as it considers necessary, to ensure that the business reorganisation is for genuine business purposes.

- (5) Period before and after business reorganization to constitute two different previous years: The period commencing from the beginning of the previous year and ending on the date immediately preceding the date of business reorganisation, and the period commencing from the date of such business reorganisation and ending with the previous year shall be deemed to be two different previous years for the purposes of set off and carry forward of loss and allowance for depreciation.

Example:

If the date on which business re-organisation took place is 1.11.2019, then the period between 1.4.2019 and 31.10.2019 and the period between 1.11.2019 and 31.3.2020 would be deemed to be two different previous years for the purposes of set-off and carry forward of unabsorbed business losses and depreciation.

- (6) Consequences of non-fulfillment of specified conditions: In a case where the conditions specified in (2) above or notified under (4) above are not complied with, the set-off of accumulated loss or unabsorbed depreciation allowed in any previous year to the successor co-operative bank shall be deemed to be the income of the successor co-operative bank chargeable to tax for the year in which the conditions are not complied with.
- (7) Meaning of certain terms

Term	Particulars
Accumulated loss	It means so much of loss of the amalgamating co-operative bank or the demerged co-operative bank, as the case may be, under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" (not being a loss sustained in a speculation business) which such amalgamating co-operative bank or the demerged co-operative bank, would have been entitled to carry forward and set-off under the provisions of section 72 as if the business reorganisation had not taken place.
Unabsorbed depreciation	It means so much of the allowance for depreciation of the amalgamating co-operative bank or the demerged co-operative bank, as the case may be, which remains to be allowed and which would have been allowed to such bank as if the business reorganisation had not taken place.

10.10 LOSSES IN SPECULATION BUSINESS [SECTION 73]

The meaning of the expression 'speculative transaction' as defined in section 43(5) and the treatment of income from speculation business has already been discussed under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession".

- (1) Set-off and Carry forward & set-off of loss from speculation business: Since speculation is deemed to be a business distinct and separate from any other business carried on by the assessee, the losses incurred in speculation can be neither set off in the same year against any other non-speculation income nor be carried forward and set off against other income in the subsequent years.

Therefore, if the losses sustained by an assessee in a speculation business cannot be set-off in the same year against any other speculation profit, they can be carried forward to subsequent years and set-off only against income from any speculation business carried on by the assessee.

- (2) Maximum period for carry forward & set-off of losses: The loss in speculation business can be carried forward only for a maximum period of 4 years from the end of the relevant assessment year in respect of which the loss was computed. Loss from the activity of trading in derivatives, however, is not to be treated as speculative loss.
- (3) When a business of a company deemed to be carrying on a speculation business: The Explanation to this section provides that where any part of the business of a company consists in the purchase and sale of the shares of other companies, such a company shall be deemed to be carrying on speculation business to the extent to which the business consists of the purchase and sale of such shares.

However, this deeming provision does not apply to the following companies –

- (i) A company whose gross total income consists of mainly income chargeable under the heads “Income from house property”, “Capital gains” and “Income from other sources”;
- (ii) A company, the principal business of which is –
- (a) the business of trading in shares; or
  - (b) the business of banking; or
  - (c) the granting of loans and advances.

Thus, these companies would be exempted from the operation of this Explanation. Accordingly, if these companies carry on the business of purchase and sale of shares of other companies, they would not be deemed to be carrying on speculation business.

10.11 CARRY FORWARD & SET OFF OF LOSSES BY SPECIFIED BUSINESSES [SECTION 73A]

- (1) Set-off and Carry forward & set-off of losses of specified business: Any loss computed in respect of the specified business referred to in section 35AD shall be set off only against profits and gains, if any, of any other specified business. The unabsorbed loss, if any, will be carried forward for set off against profits and gains of any specified business in the following assessment year and so on.

- (2) Loss can be set-off indefinitely: There is no time limit specified for carry forward and set-off and therefore, such loss can be carried forward indefinitely for set-off against income from specified business.

Note - The loss of an assessee claiming deduction under section 35AD in respect of a specified business can be set-off against the profit of another specified business under section 73A, irrespective of whether the latter is eligible for deduction under section 35AD. An assessee can, therefore, set-off the losses of a hospital or hotel which begins to operate after 1st April, 2010 and which is eligible for deduction under section 35AD, against the profits of the existing business of operating a hospital (with atleast 100 beds for patients) or a hotel (of two-star or above category), even if the latter is not eligible for deduction under section 35AD.

10.12 LOSSES UNDER THE HEAD 'CAPITAL GAINS' [SECTION 74]

Carry forward & set-off of losses: Section 74 provides that where for any assessment year, the net result under the head 'Capital gains' is short term capital loss or long term capital loss, the loss shall be carried forward to the following assessment year to be set off in the following manner:

- (1) Short-term capital loss: Where the loss so carried forward is a short-term capital loss, it shall be set off against any capital gains, short term or long term, arising in that year.
- (2) Long-term capital loss: Where the loss so carried forward is a long-term capital loss, it shall be set off only against long term capital gain arising in that year.
- (3) Loss under head capital gains: Net loss under the head capital gains cannot be set off against income under any other head.
- (4) Maximum period for carry forward & set-off of loss: Any unabsorbed loss shall be carried forward to the following assessment year up to a maximum of 8 assessment years immediately succeeding the assessment year for which the loss was first computed.

Note - With effect from 1st April 2018, the long-term capital gain exceeding ₹ 1,00,000 arising on sale of equity shares or units of equity oriented fund or unit of business trust on which STT is paid

- in respect of equity shares, both at the time of acquisition and sale and
- in respect of units of equity oriented fund or unit of business trust, at the time of sale is taxable under section 112A @10%. Long-term capital loss on sale of such shares/units can, therefore, be set-off and carried forward for set-off against long-term capital gains by virtue of section 70(3) and section 74.

ILLUSTRATION 3

During the P.Y. 2019-20, Mr. C has the following income and the brought forward losses:

Particulars	₹
Short term capital gains on sale of shares	1,50,000

Short term capital loss of A.Y.2019-20	(37,000)
Long term capital gain	75,000

What is the capital gain taxable in the hands of Mr. C for the A.Y.2020-21?

SOLUTION

Taxable capital gains of Mr. C for the A.Y. 2020-21

Particulars	₹	₹
Short term capital gains on sale of shares	1,50,000	1,13,000
Less: Brought forward short term capital loss of the A.Y.2019-20	(37,000)
Long term capital gain	75,000	Nil
Less: Brought forward long term capital loss of A.Y.2018-19	(75,000)
[See Note below]
Taxable short-term capital gains		1,13,000

Note: Long-term capital loss cannot be set off against short-term capital gain. Hence, the unadjusted long term capital loss of A.Y.2018-19 of ₹ 21,000 (i.e. ₹ 96,000 – ₹ 75,000) has to be carried forward to the next year to be set-off against long-term capital gains of that year.

10.13 LOSSES FROM THE ACTIVITY OF OWNING AND MAINTAINING RACE HORSES [SECTION 74A(3)]

- (1) Set-off and Carry forward & set-off of loss: According to provisions of section 74A(3), the losses incurred by an assessee from the activity of owning and maintaining race horses cannot be set-off against the income from any other source other than the activity of owning and maintaining race horses.
- (2) Maximum period for carry forward & set-off of losses: Such loss can be carried forward for a maximum period of 4 assessment years immediately succeeding the assessment year for which the loss was first computed, for being set-off against the income from the activity of owning and maintaining race horses.

(3) Meaning of certain terms

Term	Meaning
Amount of loss incurred by the assessee in the activity of owning and maintaining race horses	(i) In case assessee has no income by way of stake money – amount of revenue expenditure incurred by the assessee wholly & exclusively for the purpose of maintaining race horses. (ii) In case assessee has income by way of stake money - The amount by which such income by way of stake money falls short of the amount of revenue expenditure incurred by the assessee wholly & exclusively for the purpose of maintaining race horses. i.e. Loss = Stake money – revenue expenditure for the purpose of maintaining race horses.
Horse race	A horse race upon which wagering or betting may be lawfully made.
Income by way of stake money	The gross amount of prize money received on a race horse or race horses by the owner thereof on account of the horse or horses or any one or more of the horses winning or being placed second or in any lower position in horse races.

10.14 CARRY FORWARD AND SET OFF OF LOSSES IN CASE OF CHANGE IN CONSTITUTION OF FIRM OR SUCCESSION [SECTION 78]

- (1) Change in constitution of firm: Where there is a change in the constitution of a firm, so much of the loss proportionate to the share of a retired or deceased partner remaining unabsorbed, shall not be allowed to be carried forward by the firm. However, unabsorbed depreciation can be carried forward.
- (2) Succession otherwise by inheritance: Where any person carrying on any business or profession has been succeeded in such capacity by another person otherwise than by inheritance, such other person shall not be allowed to carry forward and set off against his income, any loss incurred by the predecessor.
- (3) Succession by inheritance: Where there is a succession by inheritance, the legal heirs are entitled to set-off the business loss of the predecessor. Such carry forward and set-off is possible even if the legal heirs constitute themselves as a partnership firm. In such a case, the firm can carry forward and set-off the business loss of the predecessor.

10.15 CARRY FORWARD AND SET OFF OF LOSSES IN CASE OF CLOSELY HELD COMPANIES [SECTION 79]

- (1) Carry forward and set-off of losses in case of closely held company not being an eligible start-up referred to in section 80-IAC

In the case of a company in which the public are not substantially interested and not being an eligible start-up referred to in section 80-IAC, no loss incurred in any year prior to the previous year shall be carried forward and set-off against the income of the previous year, unless

- on the last day of the previous year, the shares of the company carrying not less than 51% of the voting power were beneficially held by persons
- who beneficially held shares of the company carrying not less than 51% of the voting power on the last day of the year or years in which the loss was incurred.

- (2) Carry forward and set-off of losses in case of closely held company being an eligible start-up referred to in section 80-IAC

In case of a company in which the public are not substantially interested but being an eligible start-up as referred to in section 80-IAC, any unabsorbed loss of the company shall be allowed to be carried forward and set off against the income of the previous year if either of the conditions are satisfied –

- (a) on the last day of the previous year, the shares of the company carrying not less than 51% of the voting power were beneficially held by persons who beneficially held shares of the company carrying not less than 51% of the voting power on the last day of the year or years in which the loss was incurred; or

- (b) all the shareholders of such company who held shares carrying voting power on the last day of the previous year or years in which the loss was incurred continue to hold those shares on the last day of such previous year in which the loss is to be set-off and such loss has been incurred during the period of 7 years beginning from the year of incorporation of such company.

(3) Non-applicability of restriction

This restriction shall, however, not apply :

- (i) where a change in the voting power and shareholding takes place in a previous year consequent upon the death of a shareholder or on account of transfer of shares by way of gift to any relative of the shareholder making such gift;
- (ii) where any change in shareholding takes place in an Indian company, being a subsidiary of a foreign company, as a result of amalgamation or demerger of the foreign company. However, this is subject to the condition that 51% of the shareholders of the amalgamating/ demerged company continue to be shareholders of the amalgamated/ resulting foreign company.
- (iii) where a change in shareholding takes place in a previous year pursuant to a resolution plan approved under the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code, 2016, after affording a reasonable opportunity of being heard to the jurisdictional Principal Commissioner or Commissioner.
- (iv) to a company, and its subsidiary and the subsidiary of such subsidiary, where
- (a) the Tribunal, on an application moved by the Central Government under section 241 of the Companies Act, 2013, has suspended the Board of Directors of such company and has appointed new directors nominated by the Central Government, under section 242 of the said Act; and
- (b) a change in shareholding of a company, and its subsidiary and the subsidiary of such subsidiary, has taken place in a previous year pursuant to a resolution plan approved by the Tribunal under section 242 of the Companies Act, 2013 after affording a reasonable opportunity of being heard to the jurisdictional Principal Commissioner or Commissioner.

(4) Meaning of eligible start-up:

(5) Meaning of eligible business:

A business carried out by an eligible start-up engaged in –

- Innovation, development or improvement of products or processes or services or
- a scalable business model with a high potential of employment generation or wealth creation

(6) A company shall be a subsidiary of another company, if such other company holds more than half in nominal value of the equity share capital of the company.

10.16 ORDER OF SET OFF OF LOSSES

As per the provisions of section 72(2), brought forward business loss is to be set-off before setting off unabsorbed depreciation. Therefore, the order in which set-off will be effected is as follows -

- (1) Current year depreciation/ Current year capital expenditure on scientific research and current year expenditure on family planning, to the extent allowed.
- (2) Brought forward loss from business/profession [Section 72(1)]
- (3) Unabsorbed depreciation [Section 32(2)]
- (4) Unabsorbed capital expenditure on scientific research [Section 35(4)].
- (5) Unabsorbed expenditure on family planning [Section 36(1)(ix)]

Loss from non-speculation business	(40,000)
Short term capital gain	80,000
Long term capital loss of A.Y.2018-19	(30,000)
Winning from lotteries	20,000

What is the taxable income of Mr. E for the A.Y.2020-21?

SOLUTION*Computation of taxable income of Mr. E for the A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	₹	₹
Income from salaries		1,50,000
Income from speculation business	60,000

Less: Loss from non-speculation business	(40,000)	20,000
Short-term capital gain		80,000
Winnings from lotteries		20,000
Taxable income		2,70,000

Note: Long term capital loss can be set off only against long term capital gain. Therefore, long term capital loss of ₹ 30,000 has to be carried forward to the next assessment year.

Compute the gross total income of Mr. F for the A.Y.2020-21 from the information given below –

Particulars	₹
Income from house property (computed)	1,25,000
Income from business (before providing for depreciation)	1,35,000
Short term capital gains on sale of shares	56,000
Long term capital loss from sale of property (brought forward from A.Y.2017-18)	(90,000)
Income from tea business	1,20,000
Dividends from Indian companies carrying on agricultural operations	80,000
Current year depreciation	26,000
Brought forward business loss (loss incurred six years ago)	(45,000)

SOLUTION

Gross Total Income of Mr. F for the A.Y. 2020-21

Particulars	₹	₹
Income from house property		1,25,000
Income from business
Profits before depreciation	1,35,000
Less: Current year depreciation	26,000
Less: Brought forward business loss	45,000
	64,000
Income from tea business (40% is business income)	48,000	1,12,000
Income from the capital gains
Short term capital gains		56,000
Gross Total Income		2,93,000

Notes:

- (1) Dividend from Indian companies of ₹ 80,000 is exempt from tax under section 10(34).

- (2) 60% of the income from tea business is treated as agricultural income and therefore, exempt from tax;
- (3) Long-term capital loss can be set-off only against long-term capital gains. Therefore, long-term capital loss of ₹ 90,000 brought forward from A.Y.2017-18 cannot be set-off in the A.Y.2020-21. It has to be carried forward for set-off against long-term capital gains, if any, during A.Y.2021-22.

10.17 SUBMISSION OF RETURN FOR LOSSES [SECTION 80]

As per section 80, the assessee must have filed a return of loss under section 139(3) in order to carry forward and set off of:

- business loss to be carried forward under section 72(1)
- speculation business loss to be carried forward under section 73(2)
- loss from specified business to carried forward under section 73A(2)
- loss under the head "Capital Gains" to be carried forward under section 74(1) and
- loss incurred in the activity of owning and maintaining race horses to be carried forward under section 74A(3).

In other words, the non-filing of a return of loss disentitles the assessee from carrying forward the above specified losses sustained by him. Such a return should be filed within the time allowed under section 139(1).

However, this condition does not apply to a loss from house property to be carried forward under section 71B and unabsorbed depreciation can be carried forward even if return of loss has not been filed as required under section 139(3).

EXERCISE

Question 1

X carrying on a business as sole proprietor, died on 31st March, 2019. On his death, the same business was continued by his legal heirs, by forming a firm. As on 31st March 2019, a determined business loss of ₹ 5 lacs is to be carried forward under the Income-tax Act, 1961.

Does the firm consisting of all legal heirs of Mr. X, get a right to have this loss adjusted against its current income?

Answer

Section 78(2) provides that where a person carrying on any business or profession has been succeeded in such capacity by another person, otherwise than by inheritance, then, the successor is not entitled to carry forward and set-off the loss of the predecessor against his income. This implies that generally, set-off of business losses should be claimed by the same person who suffered the loss and the only exception to this provision is when the business passes on to another person by inheritance.

The facts of case given in the question are similar to the case CIT v. Madhukant M. Mehta (2001) 247 ITR 805, where the Supreme Court has held that if the business is succeeded by inheritance, the legal heirs are entitled to the benefit of carry forward of the loss of the predecessor. Even if the legal heirs constitute themselves as a partnership firm, the benefit of carry forward and set off of the loss of the predecessor would be available to the firm.

In this case, the business of X was continued by his legal heirs after his death by constituting a firm. Hence, the exception contained in section 78(2) along with the decision of the Apex Court discussed above, would apply in this case. Therefore, the firm is entitled to carry forward the business loss of ₹ 5 lacs of X.

Question 2

ABC Limited was amalgamated with XYZ Limited on 01.04.2019. All the conditions of section 2(1B) were satisfied.

ABC Limited has the following carried forward losses as assessed till the Assessment Year 2019-20:

	Particulars	₹ (in lacs)
(i)	Speculative Loss	4
(ii)	Unabsorbed Depreciation	18
(iii)	Unabsorbed expenditure of capital nature on scientific research	2
(iv)	Business Loss	120

XYZ Limited has computed a profit of ₹ 140 lacs for the financial year 2019-20 before setting off the eligible losses of ABC Limited but after providing depreciation at 15% per annum on ₹ 150 lacs, being the consideration at which plant and machinery were transferred to XYZ Limited. The written down value as per Income-tax record of ABC Limited as on 1st April, 2019 was ₹ 100 lacs.

The above profit of XYZ Limited includes speculative profit of ₹ 10 lacs.

Compute the total income of XYZ Limited for Assessment Year 2020-21 and indicate the losses/ other allowances to be carried forward by it.

Answer

Set-off of unabsorbed capital expenditure under section 35(1)(iv) read with section 35(4) ( See Note 5 )		(2.00)
Business income		7.50

Notes:

- It is presumed that the amalgamation is within the meaning of section 72A of the Income-tax Act, 1961.
- In the case of amalgamation of companies, the unabsorbed losses and unabsorbed depreciation of the amalgamating company shall be deemed to be the loss or unabsorbed depreciation of the amalgamated company for the previous year in which the amalgamation was effected and such business loss and unabsorbed depreciation shall be carried forward and set-off by the amalgamated company for a period of 8 years and indefinitely, respectively.

3. As per section 72A(7), the accumulated loss to be carried forward specifically excludes loss sustained in a speculative business. Therefore, speculative loss of ₹ 4 lacs of ABC Ltd. cannot be carried forward by XYZ Ltd.
4. Section 72(2) provides that where any allowance or part thereof unabsorbed under section 32(2) (i.e., unabsorbed depreciation) or section 35(4) (i.e., unabsorbed scientific research capital expenditure) is to be carried forward, effect has to be first given to brought forward business losses under section 72.
5. Section 35(4) provides that the provisions of section 32(2) relating to unabsorbed depreciation shall apply in relation to deduction allowable under section 35(1)(iv) in respect of capital expenditure on scientific research related to the business carried on by the assessee. Therefore, unabsorbed capital expenditure on scientific research can be set-off and carried forward in the same manner as unabsorbed depreciation.
6. The restriction contained in section 73 is only regarding set-off of loss computed in respect of speculative business. Such a loss can be set-off only against profits of another speculation business and not non-speculation business. However, there is no restriction under the Income-tax Act, 1961 regarding set-off of normal business losses against speculative income. Therefore, normal business losses can be set-off against profits of a speculative business.

Consequently, there is no loss or allowance to be carried forward by XYZ Ltd. to the F.Y. 2020-21.

Question 3

Examine in brief about the treatment to be given in the following case under the Income-tax Act, 1961, for A.Y.2020-21:

A loss of ₹ 85,000 was sustained by Simran in the activity of owning and maintaining camels for races.

Answer

Section 74A(3) lays down the provisions for set-off and carry forward of loss from the activity of owning and maintaining race horses. According to provisions of section 74A(3), the losses incurred by an assessee from the activity of owning and maintaining race horses cannot be set-off against the income from any other source other than the activity of owning and maintaining race horses. Since the scope of this section is confined to the activity of owning and maintaining race horses only, therefore, set-off and carry forward of loss from the activity of owning and maintaining camels is not covered under section 74A(3).

It is possible to take a view that the loss from the activity of owning and maintaining camels for races may be governed by section 72 provided such activity amounts to business. Accordingly, the loss from the activity of owning and maintaining of camels for races can be set-off against any income (other than income from salary) of current year and unadjusted amount shall be carried forward for set off against any business income for a maximum period of 8 assessment years immediately succeeding the assessment year in which the loss was incurred.

Question 4

M/s. JKLM, a firm, consists of four partners namely, J, K, L and M. They shared profits and losses equally during the year ended 31.3.2019. The assessed business loss of the firm for the assessment year 2019-20 which it is entitled to carry forward amounts to ₹ 3,60,000. A new deed of partnership was executed among J, K, L and M on 1.4.2019 in terms of which they agreed to share profits and losses in the ratio of 15:15:20:50 respectively.

Compute the amount of business loss relating to the assessment year 2019-20, which the firm is entitled to set off against its business income for the assessment year 2020-21. The business income of the firm for the assessment year 2020-21 is ₹ 3,30,000. Your answer should be supported by reasons.

Answer

The firm is entitled to set off its brought forward business loss amounting to ₹ 3,60,000 relating to the assessment year 2019-20 to the extent of ₹ 3,30,000 against its business income of ₹ 3,30,000 for the assessment year 2020-21, as per the provisions of section 72(1).

The balance unabsorbed business loss of ₹ 30,000 relating to the assessment year 2019-20 will be carried forward to assessment year 2021-22.

Section 78(1) which deals with carry forward and set-off of losses in the case of change in constitution of firm is applicable only where there is retirement or death of a partner. It is not applicable to a case where there is a change in the ratio of sharing profits and losses amongst the existing partners. Therefore, section 78(1) is not applicable to the case of M/s. JKLM.

Question 5

An assessee sustained a loss under the head "Income from house property" in the previous year relevant to the assessment year 2019-20, which could not be set off against income from any other head in that assessment year. The assessee did not furnish the return of loss within the time allowed under section 139(1) in respect of the relevant assessment year. However, the assessee filed the return within the time allowed under section 139(4). Can the assessee carry forward such loss for set off against income from house property of the assessment year 2020-21?

Answer

Section 139(3) stipulates that an assessee claiming carry forward of loss under the heads “Profits and gains of business or profession” or “Capital gains” should furnish the return of loss within the time stipulated under section 139(1). There is no reference to loss under the head “Income from house property” in section 139(3). The assessee, in the instant case, has filed the return showing loss from property within the time prescribed under section 139(4). The assessee is, therefore, entitled to carry forward such loss for set off against the income from house property of the subsequent assessment year.

SIGNIFICANT SELECT CASES

Can the loss suffered by an erstwhile partnership firm, which was dissolved, be carried forward for set-off by the individual partner who took over the business of the firm as a sole proprietor, considering the succession as a succession by inheritance?

Pramod Mittal v. CIT (2013) 356 ITR 456 (Delhi)

Facts of the case: In the present case, the assessee was previously a partner in a firm. As per the dissolution deed of the partnership firm, with effect from 18th September, 2004, he took over the entire business of the partnership firm in his individual capacity including fixed assets, current assets and liabilities and the other partner was paid his dues. He then ran the business as a sole proprietor with effect from that date. The assessee, relying upon section 78(2) and the decisions of the Supreme Court in CIT v. Madhukant M. Mehta (2001) 247 ITR 805 (SC) and Saroj Aggarwal v. CIT (1985) 156 ITR 497 (SC), claimed the set-off of the losses suffered by the erstwhile partnership firm against his income earned as an individual proprietor, considering the case as inheritance of business.

However, considering that only the person who has suffered the loss is entitled to carry forward and set-off the same, the claim of the assessee was disallowed by the Assessing Officer. The Tribunal concurred with the Assessing Officer's view.

High Court's Observations: The High Court observed that upon dissolution, the partnership firm ceased to exist. Also, the partnership firm and the proprietorship concern are two separate and distinct units for the purpose of assessment. As per section 170(1), the partnership firm shall be assessed as such from 1st April of the previous year till the date of dissolution (i.e., 18th September, 2004). Thereafter, the income of the sole-proprietorship shall be taxable in the hands of the assessee as an individual. Thus, section 170(1) provides as to who will be assessable in respect of the income of the previous year from business, when there is a change in the person carrying on business by succession.

Section 78(2), however, deals with carry forward of losses in case of succession of business. It provides that only the person who has incurred the losses, and no one else, would be entitled to carry forward the same and set it off. An exception provided thereunder is in the case of succession by inheritance.

Therefore, section 170(1) providing the person in whose hands income is assessable in case of succession and section 78(2) providing for carry forward of losses in case of succession of business, deal with different situations and resultantly, there is no contradiction between these sections.

The income earned by the sole proprietor would include his share of loss as an individual but not the loss suffered by the erstwhile partnership firm in which he was a partner. The exception given in section 78(2), permitting carry forward of losses by the successor in case of inheritance, is not applicable in the present case since the partnership firm was dissolved and ceased to continue.

Taking over of business by a partner cannot be considered as a case of inheritance due to death as per the law of succession. The High Court opined that the decision in Madhukant M. Mehta's case and Saroj Aggarwal's case cannot be applied since this is not a case of succession by inheritance.

High Court's Decision: Therefore, the loss suffered by the erstwhile partnership firm before dissolution of the firm cannot be carried forward by the successor sole-proprietor, since it is not a case of succession by inheritance. The assessee sole-proprietor is, therefore, not entitled to set-off the loss of the erstwhile partnership firm against his income.

Note - In Madhukant M. Mehta's case, the sole proprietor had expired and after his death the heirs succeeded the business as a partnership concern. Therefore, the losses suffered by the deceased proprietor was allowed to be set-off by the partnership firm since the case falls within the exception mentioned under section 78(2), i.e., a case of succession by inheritance.

Also, in Saroj Aggarwal's case, upon death of a partner, his legal heirs were inducted as partners in the partnership firm. The partnership firm was not dissolved on the death of the partner. The partnership firm which suffered the losses continued with induction of the legal heirs of the deceased partner. This, being a case of succession by inheritance, the benefit of carry forward of losses was given to the re-constituted partnership firm.

In the present case, however, the partnership firm was dissolved and the take over of the running business of the firm by the erstwhile partner as a sole proprietor was not a case of succession by inheritance. Hence, the carry forward of losses of the firm by the sole proprietor was not allowed in this case.

DEDUCTIONS FROM GROSS TOTAL INCOME

LEARNING OUTCOMES

After studying this chapter, you would be able to:

- ❑ appreciate the general provisions contained in “A – General” of Chapter VI-A relating to deductions to be made in computing total income;
- ❑ analyse and apply the provisions of Chapter VI-A contained in “B – Deductions in respect of certain payments” in problem solving and addressing related issues;
- ❑ appreciate the provisions of Chapter VI-A contained in “C – Deductions in respect of certain incomes” and “CA – Deductions in respect of other incomes”, and analyse and apply the provisions in problem solving and addressing related issues;
- ❑ compute the deduction allowable in the case of a person with disability under section 80U;
- ❑ compute the aggregate deduction available under Chapter VI-A to an assessee, and thereafter, arrive at the total income of the assessee.

11.1 GENERAL PROVISIONS

As we have seen earlier, section 10 exempts certain incomes. Such income are excluded from total income and do not enter into the computation process at all. On the other hand, Chapter VI-A contains deductions from gross total income. The important point to be noted here is that if there is no gross total income, then no deductions will be permissible.

This Chapter contains deductions in respect of certain payments, deductions in respect of certain incomes, deductions in respect of other income and other deductions.

Section 80A

- (1) Section 80A(1) provides that in computing the total income of an assessee, there shall be allowed from his gross total income, the deductions specified in sections 80C to 80U.
- (2) According to section 80A(2), the aggregate amount of the deductions under this chapter shall not, in any case, exceed the gross total income of the assessee.

Thus, an assessee cannot have a loss as a result of the deduction under Chapter VI-A and claim to carry forward the same for the purpose of set-off against his income in the subsequent year.

- (3) Section 80A(3) provides that in the case of AOP/BOI, if any deduction is admissible under section 80G/80GGA/80GGC/80-IA/80-IB/80-IC/80-ID/80-IE, no deduction under the same section shall be made in computing the total income of a member of the AOP or BOI in relation to the share of such member in the income of the AOP or BOI.
- (4) The profits and gains allowed as deduction under section 10AA or under any provision of Chapter VI-A under the heading "C.-Deductions in respect of certain incomes" in any assessment year, shall not be allowed as deduction under any other provision of the Act for such assessment year [Section 80A(4)];
- (5) The deduction, referred to in (4) above, shall not exceed the profits and gains of the undertaking or unit or enterprise or eligible business, as the case may be [Section 80A(4)];
- (6) No deduction under any of the provisions referred to in (4) above, shall be allowed if the deduction has not been claimed in the return of income [Section 80A(5)];
- (7) The transfer price of goods and services between such undertaking or unit or enterprise or eligible business and any other business of the assessee shall be determined at the market value of such goods or services as on the date of transfer. This is notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in section 10AA or in any provision of Chapter VI-A under the heading "C- Deductions in respect of certain incomes" [Section 80A(6)].
- (8) For this purpose, the expression "market value" has been defined to mean,-
  - (a) in relation to any goods or services sold or supplied, the price that such goods or services would fetch if these were sold by the undertaking or unit or enterprise or eligible business in the open market, subject to statutory or regulatory restrictions, if any;

- (b) in relation to any goods or services acquired, the price that such goods or services would cost if these were acquired by the undertaking or unit or enterprise or eligible business from the open market, subject to statutory or regulatory restrictions, if any;
  - (c) if it is a specified domestic transaction referred to in section 92BA, - in relation to any goods or services sold, supplied or acquired means the arm's length price as defined in section 92F(ii) of such goods or services.
- (9) Where a deduction under any provision of this Chapter under the heading "C – Deductions in respect of certain incomes" is claimed and allowed in respect of the profits of such specified business for any assessment year, no deduction under section 35AD is permissible in relation to such specified business for the same or any other assessment year.

In short, once the assessee has claimed the benefit of deduction under section 35AD for a particular year in respect of a specified business, he cannot claim benefit under Chapter VI-A under the heading "C.-Deductions in respect of certain incomes" for the same or any other year and vice versa.

Section 80AB

This section provides that for the purpose of calculation of deductions specified in Chapter VI-A under the heading "C - Deductions in respect of certain incomes", the income computed in accordance with the provisions of the Act (before making any deduction under Chapter VI-A) shall alone be regarded as income received by the assessee and which is included in his gross total income. Accordingly, the deductions specified in the aforesaid sections will be calculated with reference to the net income as computed in accordance with the provisions of the Act (before making deduction under Chapter VI-A) and not with reference to the gross amount of such income. This is notwithstanding anything contained in the respective sections of Chapter VI-A.

Section 80AC: Furnishing return of income on or before due date mandatory for claiming deduction under Chapter VI-A under the heading "C.- Deductions in respect of certain incomes"

- (1) Section 80AC stipulates compulsory filing of return of income on or before the due date specified under section 139(1), as a pre-condition for availing benefit of deductions under any provision of Chapter VI-A under the heading "C. – Deductions in respect of certain incomes".

Table showing the deductions contained in Chapter VI-A under the heading “C. – Deductions in respect of certain income”

Section	Deduction
80-IA	Deductions in respect of profits and gains from undertakings or enterprises engaged in infrastructure development/ operation/ maintenance, generation/ transmission/ distribution of power etc.
80-IAB	Deduction in respect of profits and gains derived by an undertaking or enterprise engaged in development of SEZ
80-IAC	Deduction in respect of profits and gains derived by an eligible start-up from an eligible business
80-IB	Deduction in respect of profits and gains from certain industrial undertakings other than infrastructure development undertakings
80-IBA	Deduction in respect of profits and gains from housing projects
80-IC	Deduction in respect of profits and gains from certain undertakings or enterprises in certain special category States [Himachal Pradesh and Uttaranchal]
80-IE	Deduction in respect of profits and gains from manufacture or production of eligible article or thing, substantial expansion to manufacture or produce any eligible article or thing or carrying on of eligible business in North-Eastern States
80JJA	Deduction in respect of profits and gains from business of collecting and processing of bio-degradable waste
80JJAA	Deduction in respect of employment of new employees
80LA	Deduction in respect of certain income of Offshore Banking Units and International Financial Services Centre
80P	Deduction in respect of income of co-operative societies
80PA	Deduction in respect of certain income of Producer Companies
80QQB	Deduction in respect of royalty income, etc., of authors of certain books other than text books
80RRB	Deduction in respect of royalty on patents

- (2) The effect of this provision is that in case of failure to file return of income on or before the stipulated due date, the undertakings would lose the benefit of deduction under these sections.

ILLUSTRATION 1

Examine the following statements with regard to the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961:

- (a) For grant of deduction u/s 80-IB, filing of audit report in prescribed form is must for a corporate assessee; filing of return within the due date laid down in section 139(1) is not required.

- (b) Filing of belated return under section 139(4) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 will debar an assessee from claiming deduction under section 80-IE.

SOLUTION

- (a) The statement is not correct. Section 80AC stipulates compulsory filing of return of income on or before the due date specified under section 139(1), as a pre-condition for availing the benefit of deduction, inter alia, under section 80-IB.
- (b) The statement is correct. As per section 80AC, the assessee has to furnish his return of income on or before the due date specified under section 139(1), to be eligible to claim deduction under, inter alia, section 80-IE.

Section 80B(5)

“Gross total income” means the total income computed in accordance with the provisions of the Act without making any deduction under Chapter VI-A. “Computed in accordance with the provisions of the Act” implies—

- (1) that deductions under appropriate computation section have already been given effect to;
- (2) that income of other persons, if includible under sections 60 to 64, has been included;
- (3) the intra head and/or inter head losses have been adjusted; and
- (4) that unabsorbed business losses, unabsorbed depreciation etc., have been set-off.

Let us first consider the deductions allowable in respect of certain payments.

11.2 DEDUCTIONS IN RESPECT OF PAYMENTS

(1) Deduction in respect of investment in specified assets [Section 80C]

Section 80C provides for a deduction from the Gross Total Income, of savings in specified modes of investments. The deduction under section 80C is available only to an individual or HUF. The maximum permissible deduction under section 80C is ₹ 1,50,000.

Deduction in respect of investment/contributions

The following are the investments/ contributions eligible for deduction –

(i) Premium paid in respect of Life Insurance policy

Premium paid on insurance on the life of the individual, spouse or any child (minor or major) and in the case of HUF, any member thereof. This will include a life policy and an endowment policy.

Exemption on receipts from Life insurance policy (LIC) [Section 10(10D)]: Any sum received under a life insurance policy, including the sum allocated by way of bonus on such policy shall not be included in the total income of a person.

The following is a tabular summary of the exemption available under section 10(10D) and deduction allowable under section 80C vis-à-vis the date of issue of such policies –

	Exemption u/s 10(10D)	Deduction u/s 80C
In respect of policies issued before 1.4.2003	Any sum received under a LIP including the sum allocated by way of bonus is exempt.	Premium paid to the extent of 20% of “actual capital sum assured”
In respect of policies issued between 1.4.2003 and 31.3.2012	Any sum received under a LIP including the sum allocated by way of bonus is exempt. However, exemption would not be available if the premium payable for any of the years during the term of the policy exceeds 20% of “actual capital sum assured”.
In respect of policies issued on or after 1.4.2012 but before 1.4.2013	Any sum received under a LIP including the sum allocated by way of bonus is exempt. However, exemption would not be available if the premium payable for any of the years during the term of the policy exceeds 10% of “minimum capital sum assured” under the policy on the happening of the insured event at any time during the term of the policy.	Premium paid to the extent of 10% of “minimum capital sum assured”
In respect of policies issued on or after 1.4.2013	(a) Where the insurance is on the life of a person with disability or severe disability as referred to in section 80U or a person suffering from disease or ailment as specified under section 80DDB.
	Any sum received under a LIP including the sum allocated by way of bonus is exempt. However, exemption would not be available if the premium payable for any of the years during the term of the policy exceeds 15% of “actual capital sum assured” under the policy on the happening of the insured event at any time during the term of the policy.	Premium paid to the extent of 15% of “actual capital sum assured”
	(b) Where the insurance is on the life of any person, other than mentioned in (a) above
	Any sum received under a LIP including the sum allocated by way of bonus is exempt. However, exemption	Premium paid to the extent of 10% of “actual would not be available if the premium payable for any of the years during the term of the policy exceeds 10% of "actual capital sum assured" under the policy on the happening of the insured event at any time during the term of the policy.	capital sum assured".

--	--	-----------------------

Notes:

- (a) Amounts not to be considered while computing actual capital sum assured: For the purpose of calculating the actual capital sum assured,
- (1) the value of any premiums agreed to be returned or
  - (2) the value of any benefit by way of bonus or otherwise, over and above the sum actually assured,
- shall not be taken into account.
- (b) Meaning of actual capital sum assured: In respect of the life insurance policies to be issued on or after 1st April, 2012, the actual capital sum assured shall mean the minimum amount assured under the policy on happening of the insured event at any time during the term of the policy, not taking into account -
- (1) the value of any premium agreed to be returned; or
  - (2) any benefit by way of bonus or otherwise over and above the sum actually assured which is to be or may be received under the policy by any person.
- In effect, in case the insurance policy has varied sum assured during the term of policy then the minimum of the sum assured during the life time of the policy shall be taken into consideration for calculation of the "actual capital sum assured", in respect of life insurance policies to be issued on or after 1st April, 2012.
- (c) Sum received on death of a person - Any sum received under a LIP including the sum allocated by way of bonus on death of a person is exempt.
- (d) Exemption is not available in respect of amount received from an insurance policy taken for disabled person under section 80DD: Any sum received under section 80DD(3) shall not be exempt under section 10(10D). Accordingly, if the dependent disabled, in respect of whom an individual has paid or deposited any amount in any scheme of LIC or any other insurer, predeceases the individual, the amount so paid or deposited shall be deemed to be the income of the individual of the previous year in which such amount is received. Such amount would not be exempt under 10(10D).

- (e) Exemption is not available in respect of the sum received under a Keyman insurance policy: Explanation 1 to section 10(10D) defines “Keyman insurance policy” as a life insurance policy taken by one person on the life of another person who is or was the employee of the first-mentioned person or is or was connected in any manner whatsoever with the business of the first-mentioned person. The term includes within its scope a keyman insurance policy which has been assigned to any person during its term, with or without consideration. Therefore, such policies shall continue to be treated as a keyman insurance policy even after the same is assigned to the keyman. Consequently, the sum received by the keyman on such policies, being “keyman insurance policies”, would not be exempt under section 10(10D).

(ii) Premium paid in respect of a contract for deferred annuity

Premium paid to effect and keep in force a contract for a deferred annuity on the life of the individual and/or his or her spouse or any child, provided such contract does not contain any provision for the exercise by the insured of an option to receive cash payments in lieu of the payment of the annuity.

It is pertinent to note here that a contract for a deferred annuity need not necessarily be with an insurance company. It follows therefore that such a contract can be entered into with any person.

(iii) Any sum deducted from the salary payable of a Government employee for securing a deferred annuity

Amount deducted by or on behalf of the Government from the salary of a Government employee in accordance with the conditions of his service for securing a deferred annuity or making provisions for his spouse or children. The excess, if any, over one-fifth of the salary is to be ignored.

(iv) Contribution to SPF/PPF/RPF

Contributions to any provident fund to which the Provident Funds Act, 1925 applies and recognized provident fund qualifies for deduction under section 80C.

Contribution made to any Provident Fund set up by the Central Government and notified in his behalf (i.e., the Public Provident Fund established under the Public Provident Fund Scheme, 1968) also qualifies for deduction under section 80C. Such contribution can be made in the name of the individual, his spouse and any child of the individual; and any member of the family, in case of a HUF. The maximum limit for deposit in PPF is ₹ 1,50,000 in a year.

accommodation or for the purpose of planning, development or improvement of cities, towns and villages or for both.

The deposit scheme should be notified by the Central Government, for example, public deposit scheme of HUDCO.

(xv) *Payment of tuition fees to any university, college, school or other educational institutions within India for full-time education for maximum 2 children

Payment of tuition fees by an individual assessee at the time of admission or thereafter to any university, college, school or other educational institutions within India for the purpose of full-time education of any two children of the individual. This benefit is only for the amount of tuition fees for full-time education and shall not include any payment towards development fees or donation or payment of similar nature and payment made for education to any institution situated outside India.

(xvi) *Repayment of housing loan including stamp duty, registration fee and other expenses

Any payment made towards the cost of purchase or construction of a new residential house property. The income from such property –

- (1) should be chargeable to tax under the head “Income from house property”;
- (2) would have been chargeable to tax under the head “Income from house property” had it not been used for the assessee’s own residence.

The approved types of payments are as follows:

- (1) Any instalment or part payment of the amount due under any self-financing or other schemes of any development authority, Housing Board or other authority engaged in the construction and sale of house property on ownership basis; or
- (2) Any instalment or part payment of the amount due to any company or a cooperative society of which the assessee is a shareholder or member towards the cost of house allotted to him; or
- (3) Repayment of amount borrowed by the assessee from:
  - (a) The Central Government or any State Government;
  - (b) Any bank including a co-operative bank;
  - (c) The Life Insurance Corporation;
  - (d) The National Housing Bank;
  - (e) Any public company formed and registered in India with the main object of carrying on the business of providing long-term finance for construction or purchase of houses in India for residential purposes which is eligible for deduction under section 36(1)(viii);

- (f) Any company in which the public are substantially interested or any cooperative society engaged in the business of financing the construction of houses;
  - (g) The assessee's employer, where such employer is an authority or a board or a corporation or any other body established or constituted under a Central or State Act;
  - (h) The assessee's employer where such employer is a public company or public sector company or a university established by law or a college affiliated to such university or a local authority or a co-operative society.
- (4) Stamp duty, registration fee and other expenses for the purposes of transfer of such house property to the assessee.

Inadmissible payments: However, the following amounts do not qualify for rebate:

- (1) admission fee, cost of share and initial deposit which a shareholder of a company or a member of a co-operative society has to pay for becoming a shareholder or member; or
- (2) the cost of any addition or alteration or renovation or repair of the house property after the completion of the house or after the house has been occupied by the assessee or any person on his behalf or after it has been let out; or
- (3) any expenditure in respect of which deduction is allowable under section 24.

(xvii) Subscription to certain equity shares or debentures

Subscription to equity shares or debentures forming part of any eligible issue of capital approved by the Board on an application made by a public company or as subscription to any eligible issue of capital by any public financial institution in the prescribed form.

A lock-in period of three years is provided in respect of such equity shares or debentures. In case of any sale or transfer of shares or debentures within three years of the date of acquisition, the aggregate amount of deductions allowed in respect of such equity shares or debentures in the previous year or years preceding the previous year in which such sale or transfer has taken place shall be deemed to be the income of the assessee of such previous year and shall be liable to tax in the assessment year relevant to such previous year.

A person shall be treated as having acquired any shares or debentures on the date on which his name is entered in relation to those shares or debentures in the register of members or of debenture-holders, as the case may be, of the public company.

(xviii) Subscription to certain units of mutual fund

Subscription to any units of any mutual fund referred to in section 10(23D) and approved by the Board on an application made by such mutual fund in the prescribed form.

It is necessary that such units should be subscribed only in the eligible issue of capital of any company.

Eligible issue of capital for (xvii) and (xviii) means an issue made by a public company formed and registered in India or a public financial institution and the entire proceeds of the issue are utilised wholly and exclusively for the purposes of any business referred to in section 80-IA(4).

(xix) Investment in five year Term Deposit

Investment in term deposit -

- (1) for a period of not less than five years with a scheduled bank; and
- (2) which is in accordance with a scheme framed and notified by the Central Government in the Official Gazette qualifies as an eligible investment for availing deduction under section 80C.

The maximum limit for investment in term deposit is ₹ 1,50,000.

Scheduled bank means -

- (1) the State Bank of India constituted under the State Bank of India Act, 1955, or
- (2) a subsidiary bank as defined in the State Bank of India (Subsidiary Banks) Act, 1959, or
- (3) a corresponding new bank constituted under section 3 of the -
  - (a) Banking Companies (Acquisition and Transfer of Undertakings) Act, 1970, or
  - (b) Banking Companies (Acquisition and Transfer of Undertakings) Act, 1980, or
- (4) any other bank, being a bank included in the Second Schedule to the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934.

(xx) Subscription to notified bonds issued by NABARD

Subscription to such bonds issued by NABARD (as the Central Government may notify in the Official Gazette) qualifies for deduction under section 80C.

(xxi) Deposit in Senior Citizens Savings Scheme Rules, 2004

Deposit in an account under the Senior Citizens Savings Scheme Rules, 2004 qualifies for deduction under section 80C.

(xxii) Investment in five year Post Office time deposit

Investment in five year time deposit in an account under Post Office Time Deposit Rules, 1981 qualifies for deduction under section 80C.

(xxiii) Contribution to additional account under NPS

Contribution by a Central Government employee to additional account under NPS (specified account) referred to in section 80CCD for a fixed period of not less than 3 years and which is in accordance with the scheme notified by the Central Government for this purpose qualifies for deduction under section 80C. It may be noted that only the contribution to the additional account under NPS will qualify for deduction under section 80C.

There are two types of NPS account i.e., Tier I and Tier II, to which an individual can contribute. Section 80CCD provides deduction in respect of contribution to individual pension account [Tier I account] under the NPS [referred to in section 20(2)(a) of the Pension Fund Regulatory and Development Authority Act, 2013 (PFRDA)] whereas deduction under section 80C is allowable in respect of contribution by Central Government employee to additional account [Tier II account] of NPS [referred to in section 20(3) of the PFRDA], which does not qualify for deduction under section 80CCD. Thus, Tier II account is the additional account under NPS, contribution to which would qualify for deduction under section 80C only in the hands of a Central Government employee.

Termination of Insurance Policy or Unit Linked Insurance Plan or transfer of House Property or withdrawal of deposit:

Where, in any previous year, an assessee:

- (1) terminates his contract of insurance referred to in (i) above, by notice to that effect or where the contract ceases to be in force by reason of not paying the premium, by not reviving the contract of insurance, -
  - (a) in case of any single premium policy, within two years after the date of commencement of insurance; or
  - (b) in any other case, before premiums have been paid for two years; or
- (2) terminates his participation in any Unit Linked Insurance Plan referred to in (viii) or (ix) above, by notice to that effect or where he ceases to participate by reason of failure to pay any contribution, by not reviving his participation, before contributions in respect of such participation have been paid for five years, or
- (3) transfers the house property referred to in (xvi) above, before the expiry of five years from the end of the financial year in which possession of such property is obtained by him, or receives back, whether by way of refund or otherwise, any sum specified in (xvi) above, then, no deduction will be allowed to the assessee in respect of sums paid during such previous year and the total amount of deductions of income allowed in respect of the previous year or years preceding such previous year, shall be deemed to be income of the assessee of such previous year and shall be liable to tax in the assessment year relevant to such previous year.

Further, where any amount is withdrawn by the assessee from his account under the Senior Citizens Savings Scheme or under the Post Office Time Deposit Rules before the expiry of a period of 5 years from the date of its deposit, the amount so withdrawn shall be deemed to be the income of the assessee of the previous year in which the amount is withdrawn. Accordingly, the amount so withdrawn would be chargeable to tax in the assessment year relevant to such previous year. The amount chargeable to tax would also include that part of the amount withdrawn which represents interest accrued on the deposit.

However, if any part of the amount relating to interest so received or withdrawn has been subject to tax in any of the earlier years, such amount shall not be taxed again.

If any amount has been received by the nominee or legal heir of the assessee, on the death of such assessee, the amount would not be chargeable to tax. But if the amount relating to interest on deposit was not included in the total income of the assessee in any of any earlier years, then such interest would be chargeable to tax.

ILLUSTRATION 4

Mr. A, aged about 40 years, has earned a lottery income of ₹ 1,20,000 (gross) during the P.Y. 2019-20. He also has interest on Fixed Deposit of ₹ 30,000. He invested an amount of ₹ 10,000 in Public Provident Fund account and ₹ 24,000 in National Savings Certificate. What is the total income of Mr. A for the A.Y.2020-21?

SOLUTION

Computation of total income of Mr. A for A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	₹	₹
Income from Other Sources
- Interest on Fixed Deposit		30,000
- Lottery income		1,20,000
Gross Total Income		1,50,000
Less: Deductions under Chapter VIA [See Note below]
Under section 80C
- Deposit in Public Provident Fund	10,000
- Investment in National Savings Certificate	24,000
	34,000
Restricted to		30,000
Total Income		1,20,000

Note: Though the value of eligible investments is ₹ 34,000, however, deduction under Chapter VIA cannot exceed the gross total income exclusive of long term capital gains, short-term capital gains covered under section 111A, winnings of lotteries etc. of the assessee.

Therefore, the maximum permissible deduction u/s 80C = ₹ 1,50,000 – ₹ 1,20,000 = ₹ 30,000.

(2) Deduction in respect of contribution to certain pension funds [Section 80CCC]

- (i) Eligible assessee - Where an assessee, being an individual, has in the previous year paid or deposited any amount out of his income chargeable to tax to effect or keep in force a contract for any annuity plan of LIC of India or any other insurer for receiving pension from the fund set up by LIC or such other insurer, he shall be allowed a deduction in the computation of his total income.

For this purpose, the interest or bonus accrued or credited to the assessee's account shall not be reckoned as contribution.

Note: Where any amount paid or deposited by the assessee has been taken into account for the purposes of this section, a deduction under section 80C shall not be allowed with reference to such amount.

- (ii) Maximum Deduction: The maximum permissible deduction is ₹ 1,50,000 (Further, the overall limit of ₹ 1,50,000 prescribed in section 80CCE will continue to be applicable i.e. the maximum permissible deduction under sections 80C, 80CCC and 80CCD(1) put together is ₹ 1,50,000).
- (iii) Deemed Income: Where any amount standing to the credit of the assessee in the fund in respect of which a deduction has been allowed, together with interest or bonus accrued or credited to the assessee's account is received by the assessee or his nominee on account of the surrender of the annuity plan in any previous year or as pension received from the annuity plan, such amount will be deemed to be the income of the assessee or the nominee in that previous year in which such withdrawal is made or pension is received. It will be chargeable to tax as income of that previous year.

(3) Deduction in respect of contribution to pension scheme notified by the Central Government [Section 80CCD]

- (i) Pension Scheme of Central Government: As per the "Restructured Defined Contribution Pension System" applicable to new entrants to Government service, it is mandatory for persons entering the service of the Central Government on or after 1st January, 2004, to contribute 10% of their salary every month towards their pension account. A matching contribution is required to be made by the Government to the said account. The benefit of this scheme is also available to individuals employed by any other employer as well as to self-employed individuals.

- (ii) Deduction: Section 80CCD provides deduction in respect of contribution made to the pension scheme notified by the Central Government.

Accordingly, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 80CCD(1), the Central Government has notified the 'Atal Pension Yojana (APY)' as a pension scheme, contribution to which would qualify for deduction under section 80CCD in the hands of the individual.

(iii) Quantum of deduction

- (a) Section 80CCD(1) provides a deduction for the amount paid or deposited by an employee in his pension account subject to a maximum of 10% of his salary. The deduction in the case of a self-employed individual would be restricted to 20% of his gross total income in the previous year.

- (b) Section 80CCD(1B) provides for an additional deduction of up to ₹ 50,000 in respect of the whole of the amount paid or deposited by an individual assessee under NPS in the previous year, whether or not any deduction is allowed under section 80CCD(1).
- (c) Whereas the deduction under section 80CCD(1) is subject to the overall limit of ₹ 1.50 lakh under section 80CCE, the deduction of upto ₹ 50,000 under section 80CCD(1B) is in addition to the overall limit of ₹ 1.50 lakh provided under section 80CCE.
- (d) Under section 80CCD(2), contribution made by the Central Government or any other employer in the previous year to the said account of an employee, is allowed as a deduction in computation of the total income of the assessee.
- (e) The entire employer's contribution would be included in the salary of the employee. However, deduction under section 80CCD(2) would be restricted to 14% of salary, in case of contribution made by the Central Government, and to 10% of salary, in case of contribution made by any other employer.

Notes:

1. The limit of ₹ 1,50,000 under section 80CCE does not apply to employer's contribution to pension scheme of Central Government which is allowable as deduction under section 80CCD(2).
2. No deduction will be allowed u/s 80C in respect of amounts paid or deposited by the assessee, for which deduction has been allowed u/s 80CCD(1) or 80CCD(1B).
3. For computation of limit under section 80CCD(1) and (2), salary includes dearness allowance, if the terms of employment so provide, but excludes all other allowances and perquisites.

(iv) Deemed income: The amount standing to the credit of the assessee in the pension account (for which deduction has already been claimed by him under this section) and accretions to such account, shall be taxed as income in the year in which such amounts are received by the assessee or his nominee on -

- (a) closure of the account or
- (b) his opting out of the said scheme or
- (c) receipt of pension from the annuity plan purchased or taken on such closure or opting out.

However, the amount received by the nominee on the death of the assessee under the circumstances referred to in (a) and (b) above, shall not be deemed to be the income of the nominee.

Further, the assessee shall be deemed not to have received any amount in the previous year if such amount is used for purchasing an annuity plan in the same previous year.

Notes:

1. Exemption on payment from NPS Trust to an assessee on closure of his account or on his opting out of the pension scheme [Section 10(12A)]

- (i) As per section 80CCD, any payment from National Pension System Trust to an employee on account of closure or his opting out of the pension scheme is chargeable to tax.
- (ii) Section 10(12A) provides that any payment from National Pension System Trust to an assessee on account of closure or his opting out of the pension scheme referred to in section 80CCD, to the extent it does not exceed 60% of the total amount payable to him at the time of closure or his opting out of the scheme, shall be exempt from tax.

2. Exemption on payment from NPS Trust to an employee on partial withdrawal [Section 10(12B)]

To provide relief to an employee subscriber of NPS, section 10(12B) provides that any payment from National Pension System Trust to an employee under the pension scheme referred to in section 80CCD, on partial withdrawn made out of his account in accordance with the terms and conditions specified under the Pension Fund Regulatory and Development Authority Act, 2013 and the regulations made there under, shall be exempt from tax to the extent it does not exceed 25% of amount of contributions made by him.

(4) Limit on deductions under sections 80C, 80CCC & 80CCD(1) [Section 80CCE]

This section restricts the aggregate amount of deduction under section 80C, 80CCC and 80CCD(1) to ₹ 1,50,000. It may be noted that the deduction of upto ₹ 50,000 under section 80CCD(1B) and employer's contribution to pension scheme, allowable as deduction under section 80CCD(2) in the hands of the employee, would be outside the overall limit of ₹ 1,50,000 stipulated under section 80CCE.

The following table summarizes the ceiling limit under these sections –

Section	Particulars	Ceiling limit (₹)
80C	Investment in LIP, Deposit in PPF/SPF/RPF etc.	1,50,000
80CCC	Contribution to certain pension funds	1,50,000
80CCD(1)	Contribution to NPS of Government	10% of salary or 20% of GTI, as the case may be.
80CCE	Aggregate deduction under sections 80C, 80CCC & 80CCD(1)	1,50,000
80CCD(1B)	Contribution to NPS notified by the Central Government (outside the limit of ₹ 1,50,000 under section 80CCE)	50,000
80CCD(2)	Contribution by the Central Government to NPS A/c of its employees (outside the limit of ₹ 1,50,000 under section 80CCE)	14% of salary
	Contribution by any other employer to NPS A/c of its employees (outside the limit of ₹ 1,50,000 under section 80CCE)	10% of salary

ILLUSTRATION 5

The basic salary of Mr. A is ₹ 1,00,000 p.m. He is entitled to dearness allowance, which is 40% of basic salary. 50% of dearness allowance forms part of pay for retirement benefits. Both Mr. A and his employer contribute 15% of basic salary to the pension scheme referred to in section 80CCD. Examine the tax treatment in respect of such contribution in the hands of Mr. A.

SOLUTION

Tax treatment in the hands of Mr. A in respect of employer's and own contribution to pension scheme referred to in section 80CCD

- (a) Employer's contribution to such pension scheme would be treated as salary since it is specifically included in the definition of "salary" under section 17(1)(viii). Therefore, ₹ 1,80,000, being 15% of basic salary of ₹ 12,00,000, will be included in Mr. A's salary.
- (b) Mr. A's contribution to pension scheme is allowable as deduction under section 80CCD(1). However, the deduction is restricted to 10% of salary. Salary, for this purpose, means basic pay plus dearness allowance, if it forms part of pay.

Therefore, deduction under section 80CCD for Mr. A would be –

Particulars	₹
Basic salary = ₹ 1,00,000 × 12 =	12,00,000
Dearness allowance = 40% of ₹ 12,00,000 = ₹ 4,80,000
50% of Dearness Allowance forms part of pay = 50% of ₹ 4,80,000	2,40,000
Salary for the purpose of deduction under section 80CCD	14,40,000
Deduction under section 80CCD(1) is restricted to 10% of ₹ 14,40,000 (as against actual contribution of ₹ 1,80,000, being 15% of basic salary of ₹ 12,00,000)	1,44,000
As per section 80CCD(1B), a further deduction of upto ₹ 50,000 is allowable. Therefore, deduction under section 80CCD(1B) is ₹ 36,000 (₹ 1,80,000 - ₹ 1,44,000).	36,000

₹ 1,44,000 is allowable as deduction under section 80CCD(1). This would be taken into consideration and be subject to the overall limit of ₹ 1,50,000 under section 80CCE. ₹ 36,000 allowable as deduction under section 80CCD(1B) is outside the overall limit of ₹ 1,50,000 under section 80CCE.

In the alternative, ₹ 50,000 can be claimed as deduction under section 80CCD(1B). The balance ₹ 1,30,000 (₹ 1,80,000 - ₹ 50,000) can be claimed as deduction under section 80CCD(1).

- (c) Employer's contribution to pension scheme would be allowable as deduction under section 80CCD(2), subject to a maximum of 10% of salary. Therefore, deduction under section 80CCD(2), would also be restricted to ₹ 1,44,000, even though the entire employer's contribution of ₹ 1,80,000 is included in salary under section 17(1)(viii). However, this deduction of employer's contribution of ₹ 1,44,000 to pension scheme would be outside the overall limit of ₹ 1,50,000 under section 80CCE i.e., this deduction would be over and above the other deductions which are subject to the limit of ₹ 1,50,000.

The gross total income of Mr. X for the A.Y.2020-21 is ₹ 8,00,000. He has made the following investments/ payments during the F.Y.2019-20 –

Particulars	₹
(1) Contribution to PPF	1,10,000
(2) Payment of tuition fees to Apeejay School, New Delhi, for education of his son studying in Class XI	45,000
(3) Repayment of housing loan taken from Standard Chartered Bank	25,000
(4) Contribution to approved pension fund of LIC	1,05,000

Compute the eligible deduction under Chapter VI-A for the A.Y.2020-21.

SOLUTION

Computation of deduction under Chapter VI-A for the A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	₹
Deduction under section 80C
- Contribution to PPF	1,10,000
- Payment of tuition fees to Apeejay School, New Delhi, for education of his son studying in Class XI	45,000
- Repayment of housing loan	25,000
	1,80,000
Restricted to ₹ 1,50,000, being the maximum permissible deduction u/s 80C	1,50,000
Deduction under section 80CCC
- Contribution to approved pension fund of LIC	1,05,000
	2,55,000
As per section 80CCE, the aggregate deduction under section 80C, 80CCC and 80CCD(1) has to be restricted to ₹ 1,50,000
Deduction allowable under Chapter VIA for the A.Y.2020-21	1,50,000

(5) Deduction in respect of medical insurance premium [Section 80D]*(i) In case of an Individual

- (a) Deduction in respect of insurance premium paid for family: A deduction to the extent of ₹ 25,000 is allowed in respect of the following payments—
- (1) premium paid to effect or keep in force an insurance on the health of self, spouse and dependant children or
  - (2) any contribution made to the Central Government Health Scheme or
  - (3) such other health scheme as may be notified by the Central Government. Contributory Health Service Scheme of the Department of Atomic Energy has been notified by the Central Government.
- (b) Deduction in respect of insurance premium for parents: A further deduction up to ₹ 25,000 is allowable to effect or to keep in force an insurance on the health of parents of the assessee.

Quantum of deduction in case of senior citizen: An increased deduction of ₹ 50,000 (instead of ₹ 25,000) shall be allowed in case any of the persons mentioned above is a senior citizen i.e., an individual resident in India of the age of 60 years or more at any time during the relevant previous year.

- (c) Deduction in respect of payment towards preventive health check-up: Section 80D provides that deduction to the extent of ₹ 5,000 shall be allowed in respect payment made on account of preventive health check-up of self, spouse, dependant children or parents made during the previous year. However, the said deduction of ₹ 5,000 is within the overall limit of ₹ 25,000 or ₹ 50,000, specified in (a) and (b) above.
- (d) Mode of payment: For claiming such deduction under section 80D, the payment can be made:
- (1) by any mode, including cash, in respect of any sum paid on account of preventive health check-up;
  - (2) by any mode other than cash, in all other cases.
- (e) Deduction for medical expenditure incurred on senior citizens: As a welfare measure towards senior citizens i.e., person of the age of 60 years or more and resident in India, who are unable to get health insurance coverage, deduction of upto ₹ 50,000 would be allowed in respect of any payment made on account of medical expenditure in respect of a such person(s), if no payment has been made to keep in force an insurance on the health of such person(s).

‘Senior citizen’ means an individual resident in India who is of the age of 60 years or more at any time during the relevant previous year.

(ii) In case of a HUF

Deduction under section 80D is allowable in respect of premium paid to insure the health of any member of the family. The maximum deduction available to a HUF would be ₹ 25,000 and in case any member is a senior citizen, ₹ 50,000.

Further, the amount paid on account of medical expenditure incurred on the health of any member(s) of a family who is a senior citizen would qualify for deduction subject to a maximum of ₹ 50,000 provided no amount has been paid to effect or keep in force any insurance on the health of such person(s).

(iii) Other conditions

The other conditions to be fulfilled are that such premium should be paid by any mode, other than cash, in the previous year out of his income chargeable to tax. Further, the medical insurance should be in accordance with a scheme made in this behalf by -

- (a) the General Insurance Corporation of India and approved by the Central Government in this behalf; or
- (b) any other insurer and approved by the Insurance Regulatory and Development Authority.

The following table summarizes the provisions of section 80D –

S. No.	Nature of payment/ expenditure	Expenditure on behalf of		Deduction
I	(i) Any premium paid, otherwise than by way of cash, to keep in force an insurance on the health	In case of individual	Self, spouse and dependent children	₹ 25,000
		In case of HUF	Family member
	(ii) Contribution to Central Government Health Scheme (CGHS) (iii) Preventive health check up expenditure	In case any of the above persons is of the age of 60 years or more + resident in India		₹ 50,000

II	(i) Any premium paid, otherwise than by way of cash, to keep in force an insurance on the health	Parents	₹ 25,000
	(ii) Preventive health check up	In case either or both the parents is of the age of 60 years or more + Resident in India	₹ 50,000
Maximum ₹ 5,000 allowed as deduction for aggregate of preventive health check up expenditure, by any mode including cash, mentioned in I and II (Subject to overall limit of ₹ 25,000 or ₹ 50,000, as the case may be)
III	Amount paid on account of medical expenditure	For self/ spouse/ parents + who is of the age of 60 years or more + Resident in India + no payment has been made to keep in force an insurance on the health of such person	₹ 50,000

Note: In case the individual or any of his family members is a senior citizen, the aggregate of deduction, in respect of payment of premium, contribution to CGHS and medical expenditure incurred, as specified in (I) & (III) above, cannot exceed ₹ 50,000.

In case one of the parents is a senior citizen who is covered under mediclaim policy and another is also a senior citizen but not covered under mediclaim policy, the aggregate of deduction, in respect of payment of medical insurance premium and medical expenditure incurred, as specified in (II) & (III) above, cannot exceed ₹ 50,000.

(iv) Deduction where premium for health insurance is paid in lump sum [Section 80D(4A)]

(a) Appropriate fraction of lump sum premium allowable as deduction: In a case where mediclaim premium is paid in lumpsum for more than one year by:

- (1) an individual, to effect or keep in force an insurance on his health or health of his spouse, dependent children or parents; or
- (2) a HUF, to effect or keep in force an insurance on the health of any member of the family, then, the deduction allowable under this section for each of the relevant previous year would be equal to the appropriate fraction of such lump sum payment.

(b) Meaning of certain terms

Term	Meaning
Appropriate fraction	$1 \div$ Total number of relevant previous years
Relevant previous year	The previous year in which such lump sum amount is paid; and the subsequent previous year(s) during which the insurance would be in force.

ILLUSTRATION 7

Mr. A, aged 40 years, paid medical insurance premium of ₹ 20,000 during the P.Y.2019-20 to insure his health as well as the health of his spouse. He also paid medical insurance premium of ₹ 47,000 during the year to insure the health of his father, aged 63 years, who is not dependant on him. He contributed ₹ 3,600 to Central Government Health Scheme during the year. He has incurred ₹ 3,000 in cash on preventive health check-up of himself and his spouse and ₹ 4,000 by cheque on preventive health check-up of his father. Compute the deduction allowable under section 80D for the A.Y. 2020-21.

SOLUTION*Deduction allowable under section 80D for the A.Y.2020-21

	Particulars	Actual Payment ₹	Maximum deduction allowable ₹
A.	Premium paid and medical expenditure incurred for self and spouse
(i)	Medical insurance premium paid for self and spouse	20,000	20,000
(ii)	Contribution to CGHS	3,600	3,600
(iii)	Exp. on preventive health check-up of self & spouse	3,000	1,400
		26,600	25,000
B.	Premium paid and medical expenditure incurred for father, who is a senior citizen
(i)	Mediclaime premium paid for father, who is over 60 years of age	47,000	47,000
(ii)	Expenditure on preventive health check-up of father	4,000	3,000
		51,000	50,000
	Total deduction under section 80D (₹ 25,000 + ₹ 50,000)		75,000

Notes:

- (1) The total deduction under A.(i), (ii) and (iii) above should not exceed ₹ 25,000. Therefore, the expenditure on preventive health check-up for self and spouse would be restricted to ₹ 1,400, being (₹ 25,000 – ₹ 20,000 – ₹ 3,600).
- (2) The total deduction under B. (i) and (ii) above should not exceed ₹ 50,000. Therefore, the expenditure on preventive health check-up for father would be restricted to ₹ 3,000, being (₹ 50,000 – ₹ 47,000).
- (3) In this case, the total deduction allowed on account of expenditure on preventive health check-up of self, spouse and father is ₹ 4,400 (i.e., ₹ 1,400 + ₹ 3,000), which is less than the maximum permissible limit of ₹ 5,000.

(6) Deduction in respect of maintenance including medical treatment of a dependant disabled [Section 80DD]

- (i) Eligible assessee: Section 80DD provides deduction to an assessee, who is a resident in India, being an individual or Hindu undivided family.
- (ii) Payment qualifying for deduction:
- (a) Any amount –
- incurred for the medical treatment (including nursing), training and rehabilitation of a dependant, being a person with disability, or
  - paid or deposited under a scheme framed in this behalf by the Life Insurance Corporation or any other insurer or the Administrator or the Specified

Company as referred to in section 2(h) of the Unit Trust of India (Transfer of Undertaking and Repeal) Act, 2002, for the maintenance of a dependant, being a person with disability qualifies for deduction.

- (b) The scheme should provide for payment of annuity or a lump sum amount for the benefit of a dependant, being a person with disability, in the event of the death of the individual or member of the HUF, in whose name subscription was made and the assessee must nominate either the dependant, being a person with disability or any other person or a trust to receive the payment on his behalf, for the benefit of the dependant, being a person with disability.
- (c) The benefit of deduction under this section is also available to assessee incurring expenditure on maintenance including medical treatment of persons suffering from autism, cerebral palsy and multiple disabilities
- (iii) Quantum of deduction: The quantum of deduction is ₹ 75,000 and in case of severe disability (i.e. person with 80% or more disability) the deduction shall be ₹ 1,25,000.
- (iv) Conditions:
- (a) For claiming the deduction, the assessee shall have to furnish a copy of the certificate issued by the medical authority under the Persons with Disability (Equal Opportunities, Protection of Rights and Full Participation) Act, 1995 along with the return of income under section 139.
- (b) Where the condition of disability requires reassessment, a fresh certificate from the medical authority shall have to be obtained after the expiry of the period mentioned in the original certificate in order to continue to claim the deduction.
- (c) If the dependant, being a person with disability, predeceases the individual or the member of HUF, in whose name subscription was made, then the amount paid or deposited under the said scheme would be chargeable to tax in the hands of the assessee in the previous year in which such amount is received by the assessee.
- (v) Meaning of “Dependant”:

	Assessee	Dependant
(1)	Individual	the spouse, children, parents, brother or sister of the individual who is wholly or mainly dependant on such individual and not claimed deduction under section 80U in the computation of his income
(2)	HUF	a member of the HUF, wholly or mainly dependant on such HUF and not claimed deduction under section 80U in the computation of his income

ILLUSTRATION 9

Mr. X is a resident individual. He deposits a sum of ₹ 50,000 with Life Insurance Corporation every year for the maintenance of his handicapped grandfather who is wholly dependant upon him. The disability is one which comes under the Persons with Disabilities (Equal Opportunities, Protection of Rights and Full Participation) Act, 1995. A copy of the certificate from the medical authority is submitted. Compute the amount of deduction available under section 80DD for the A. Y. 2020-21.

SOLUTION

Since the amount deposited by Mr. X was for his grandfather, he will not be allowed any deduction under section 80DD. The deduction is available if the individual assessee incurs any expense for a dependant disabled relative. Grandfather does not come within the definition of dependant.

ILLUSTRATION 10

What will be the deduction if Mr. X had made this deposit for his dependant father?

SOLUTION

Since the expense was incurred for a dependant disabled relative, Mr. X will be entitled to claim a deduction of ₹ 75,000 under section 80DD, irrespective of the amount deposited. In case his father has severe disability, the deduction would be ₹ 1,25,000.

(7) Deduction in respect of medical treatment etc. [Section 80DDB]

(i) Eligible assessee: This section provides deduction to an assessee, who is resident in India, being an individual and Hindu undivided family. The deduction is available to an individual for medical expenditure incurred on himself or a dependant. It is also available to a Hindu undivided family (HUF) for such expenditure incurred on any of its members.

(ii) Meaning of “Dependant”:

	Assessee	Dependant
(1)	Individual	the spouse, children, parents, brother or sister of the individual or any of them, wholly or mainly dependant on such individual for his support and maintenance.
(2)	HUF	a member of the HUF, wholly or mainly dependant on such HUF for his support and maintenance.

(iii) Payment qualifying for deduction: Any amount actually paid for the medical treatment of such disease or ailment as may be specified in the rules made in this behalf by the Board for himself or a dependant, in case the assessee is an individual or for any member of a HUF, in case the assessee is a HUF will qualify for deduction.

(iv) Quantum of deduction: The amount of deduction under this section shall be equal to the amount actually paid or ₹ 40,000, whichever is less, in respect of that previous year in which such amount was actually paid.

In case the amount is paid in respect of a senior citizen, i.e., a resident individual of the age of 60 years or more at any time during the relevant previous year, then the deduction would be the amount actually paid or ₹ 1,00,000, whichever is less.

The deduction under this section shall be reduced by the amount received, if any, under insurance from an insurer, or reimbursed by an employer, for the medical treatment of the assessee or the dependant.

- (v) Maximum deduction: The maximum limit of deduction under section 80DDB for the various categories of dependant are summarized hereunder:

	Dependant	Maximum limit (₹)
(1)	A senior citizen, being a resident individual	1,00,000
(2)	Other than a senior citizen	40,000

- (vi) Condition: No such deduction shall be allowed unless the assessee obtains the prescription for such medical treatment from a neurologist, an oncologist, a urologist, a hematologist, an immunologist or such other specialist, as may be prescribed.

(8) Deduction in respect of interest loan taken for higher education [Section 80E]

- (i) Eligible assessee: Section 80E provides deduction to an individual-assessee in respect of any interest on loan paid by him in the previous year out of his income chargeable to tax.
- (ii) Conditions: The loan must have been taken for the purpose of pursuing his higher education or for the purpose of higher education of his or her relative. The loan must have been taken from any financial institution or approved charitable institution.
- (iii) Meaning of certain terms:

	Term	Meaning
(a)	Relative	Spouse and children of the individual or the student for whom the individual is the legal guardian
(b)	Higher education	It means any course of study (including vocational studies) pursued after passing the Senior Secondary Examination or its equivalent from any school, board or university recognised by the Central Government or State Government or local authority or by any other authority authorized by the Central Government or State Government or local authority to do so. Therefore, interest on loan taken for pursuing any course after Class XII or its equivalent, will qualify for deduction under section 80E.

(c)	Period of deduction	The deduction is allowed in computing the total income in respect of the initial assessment year (i.e. the assessment year relevant to the previous year, in which the assessee starts paying the interest on the loan) and seven assessment years immediately succeeding the initial assessment year or until the interest is paid in full by the assessee, whichever is earlier.
(d)	Approved charitable institution	It means an institution established for charitable purposes and approved by the prescribed authority under section 10(23C) or an institution referred to in section 80G(2)(a).
(e)	Financial institution	It means – (a) a banking company to which the Banking Regulation Act, 1949 applies (including a bank or banking institution referred to in section 51 of the Act); or (b) any other financial institution which the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, specify in this behalf

Mr. B has taken three education loans on April 1, 2019, the details of which are given below:

	Loan 1	Loan 2	Loan 3
For whose education loan was taken	B	Son of B	Daughter of B
Purpose of loan	MBA	B. Sc.	B.A.
Amount of loan (₹)	5,00,000	2,00,000	4,00,000
Annual repayment of loan (₹)	1,00,000	40,000	80,000
Annual repayment of interest (₹)	20,000	10,000	18,000

Compute the amount deductible under section 80E for the A.Y. 2020-21.

SOLUTION

Deduction under section 80E is available to an individual assessee in respect of any interest paid by him in the previous year in respect of loan taken for pursuing his higher education or higher education of his spouse or children. Higher education means any course of study pursued after senior secondary examination.

Therefore, interest repayment in respect of all the above loans would be eligible for deduction.

Deduction under section 80E = ₹ 20,000 + ₹ 10,000 + ₹ 18,000 = ₹ 48,000.

(9) Deduction for interest on loan borrowed for acquisition of self-occupied house property by an individual [Section 80EE]

- (i) Eligible assessee: Section 80EE provides additional deduction in respect of interest on loan taken by an individual for acquisition of residential house property from any financial institution.
- (ii) Conditions: The conditions to be satisfied for availing this deduction are as follows –

- (iii) Period of benefit: The benefit of deduction under this section would be available till the repayment of loan continues.
- (iv) Quantum of deduction: The maximum deduction allowable is ₹ 50,000. The deduction of upto ₹ 50,000 under section 80EE is over and above the deduction of upto ₹ 2,00,000 available under section 24 for interest paid in respect of loan borrowed for acquisition of a self-occupied property.
- (v) Meaning of certain terms:

(10) Deduction in respect of interest payable on loan taken for acquisition of residential house property [Section 80EEA]

- (i) Eligible assessee: An individual who has taken a loan for acquisition of residential house property from any financial institution. Interest payable on such loan would qualify for deduction under this section.
- (ii) Conditions: The conditions to be satisfied for availing this deduction are as follows –

(iii) Period of benefit: The benefit of deduction under this section would be available from A.Y.2020-21 and subsequent assessment years till the repayment of loan continues.

(iv) Quantum of deduction: The maximum deduction allowable is ₹ 1,50,000. The deduction of upto ₹ 1,50,000 under section 80EEA is over and above the deduction available under section 24(b) in respect of interest payable on loan borrowed for acquisition of a residential house property.

In respect of self-occupied house property, interest deduction under section 24(b) is restricted to ₹ 2,00,000. In case of let out or deemed to be let out property, even though there is no limit under section 24(b), section 71(3A) restricts the amount of loss from house property to be set-off against any other head of income to ₹ 2,00,000. Accordingly, if interest payable in respect of acquisition of eligible house property is more than ₹ 2,00,000, the excess can be claimed as deduction under section 80EEA, subject to fulfilment of conditions.

(v) No deduction under any other provision: The interest allowed as deduction under section 80EEA will not be allowed as deduction under any other provision of the Act for the same or any other assessment year.

(vi) Meaning of certain terms:

	Term	Meaning

(b)	Housing finance company	A public company formed or registered in India with the main object of carrying on the business of providing long-term finance for construction or purchase of houses in India for residential purposes.

(11) Deduction in respect of interest payable on loan taken for purchase of electric vehicle [Section 80EEB]

(i) Eligible Assessee: An individual who has taken a loan for purchase of an electric vehicle from any financial institution. Interest payable on such loan would qualify for deduction under this section.

(ii) Conditions: The conditions to be satisfied for availing this deduction are as follows –

- (iii) Period of benefit: The benefit of deduction under this section would be available from A.Y.2020-21 and subsequent assessment years till the repayment of loan continues.
- (iv) Quantum of deduction: Interest payable, subject to a maximum of ₹ 1,50,000.
- (v) No deduction under any other provision: The interest allowed as deduction u/s 80EEB will not be allowed as deduction under any other provision of the Act for the same or any other assessment year.
- (v) Meaning of certain terms:

IV	Donation qualifying for 50% deduction, subject to qualifying limit
(1)	Any Institution or Fund established in India for charitable purposes fulfilling prescribed conditions under section 80G(5).
(2)	The Government or any local authority for utilisation for any charitable purpose other than the purpose of promoting family planning.
(3)	An authority constituted in India by or under any other law enacted either for the purpose - of dealing with and satisfying the need for housing accommodation or - of planning, development or improvement of cities, towns and villages, or both.
(4)	Any Corporation established by the Central Government or any State Government for promoting the interests of the members of a minority community as referred in section 10(26BB).
(5)	for renovation or repair of any such temple, mosque, gurdwara, church or other place as notified by the Central Government to be of historic, archaeological or artistic importance or to be a place of public worship of renown throughout any State or States.

(iii) Qualifying limit: The eligible donations referred to in III and IV should be aggregated and the sum total should be limited to 10% of the adjusted gross total income. This would be the maximum permissible deduction.

The donations qualifying for 100% deduction would be first adjusted from the maximum permissible deduction and thereafter 50% deduction of the balance would be allowed.

Steps for computation of qualifying limit

Step 1:	Compute adjusted total income i.e., the GTI as reduced by the following: (i) Deductions under Chapter VI-A, except under section 80G (ii) Short-term capital gain taxable under section 111A (iii) Long-term capital gains taxable under sections 112 & 112A (iv) Any income on which income-tax is not payable (v) Income referred to in section 115A(1)(a), 115AB, 115AC, 115AD and 115D
Step 2:	Calculate 10% of adjusted total income
Step 3:	Calculate the actual donation, which is subject to qualifying limit (Total of Category III and IV donations, shown in the table above)
Step 4:	Lower of Step 2 or Step 3 is the maximum permissible deduction.
Step 5:	The said deduction is adjusted first against donations qualifying for 100% deduction (i.e., Category III donations). Thereafter, 50% of balance qualifies for deduction under section 80G.

(iv) Conditions: Donation to any institution or fund referred in point no. (1) of (IV) above, shall be eligible for deduction if it is established in India for charitable purposes and fulfill the following conditions:

- (1) The institution or fund is:
  - (a) constituted as a public charitable trust, or
  - (b) registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860 or under any corresponding law or under section 25 of the Companies Act, 1956<sup>2</sup>, or
  - (c) a University established by law or
  - (d) any other educational institution recognized by the Government or by a university established by law or affiliated to any university established by law
  - (e) an institution financed wholly or in part by the Government or a local authority.
- (2) Where such institution or fund derives any income, such income should not be liable to inclusion in its total income under the provisions of section 10(23AA), 10(23C) or 11 or 12.

However, in respect of profits and gains of business, the condition of such income should not be liable to inclusion in its total income under the provisions of section 11 shall not be applicable if –

- The institution or fund maintains separate books of account in respect of such business;
- The donation made to it are not used by it, directly or indirectly, for the purpose of such business; and
- The institution or fund issues certificate to the donor in respect of the above compliance.

Further, it may be noted that the assessee will not lose the benefit of deduction if:

- (a) subsequent to the donation, any part of the income of the Institution has become chargeable to tax due to non-compliance with any of the provisions of section 11 or section 12 or section 12A.
  - (b) as a result of the operation of section 13(1)(c), exemption under section 11 or section 12 is denied to the institution in relation to any income arising to it from any investment made in a concern in which the person specified under section 13(3) has substantial interest and aggregate of fund so invested does not exceed 5% of the capital of that concern. [Explanation 2]
- (3) No part of the income or assets of the Institution or Fund is transferable or applicable at any time for any purposes other than charitable purpose.

Such charitable purpose however does not include any purpose the whole or substantially the whole of which is of a religious nature. [Explanation 3]

However, where an institution or fund incurs expenditure of a religious nature for an amount not exceeding 5% of its total income in that previous year, such institution or fund shall be deemed to be a fund or institution to which the provisions of this section apply.

- (4) For the purposes of this section, an association or institution having as its object the control, supervision, regulation or encouragement in India of such games or sports as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, specify in this behalf, shall be deemed to be an institution established in India for a charitable purpose. [Explanation 4]
- (5) The Institution or Fund is not expressed to be for the benefit of any particular religious community or caste.

An institution or fund established for the benefit of women and children or of Scheduled Castes, Backward classes or Scheduled Tribes is not however to be treated as an institution or fund for the benefit of a religious community or caste. [Explanation 1]

- (6) The Institution or Fund maintains regular accounts of its receipt and expenditure.

- (7) Such institution or fund must be approved by the Commissioner in accordance with the rules made in this behalf.

(v) Other points:

- (a) Where an assessee has claimed and has been allowed any deduction under this section in respect of any amount of donation, the same amount will not qualify for deduction under any other provision of the Act for the same or any other assessment year.
- (b) Donations in kind shall not qualify for deduction.
- (c) No deduction shall be allowed in respect of donation of any sum exceeding ₹ 2,000 unless such sum is paid by any mode other than cash.
- (d) The deduction under section 80G can be claimed whether it has any nexus with the business of the assessee or not.
- (e) As per Circular No.2/2005 dated 12.1.2005, in cases where employees make donations to the Prime Minister's National Relief Fund, the Chief Minister's Relief Fund or the Lieutenant Governor's Relief Fund through their respective employers, it is not possible for such funds to issue separate certificate to every such employee in respect of donations made to such funds as contributions made to these funds are in the form of a consolidated cheque. An employee who makes donations towards these funds is eligible to claim deduction under section 80G. It is, hereby, clarified that the claim in respect of such donations as indicated above will be admissible under section 80G on the basis of the certificate issued by the Drawing and Disbursing Officer (DDO)/ Employer in this behalf.

- (ii) Medical Insurance premium for self – ₹ 12,000; Spouse – ₹ 14,000
- (iii) Donation to a public charitable institution registered under 80G ₹ 50,000 by way of cheque
- (iv) LIC Pension Fund – ₹ 60,000
- (v) Donation to National Children's Fund - ₹ 25,000 by way of cheque
- (vi) Donation to Jawaharlal Nehru Memorial Fund - ₹ 25,000 by way of cheque

(vii) Donation to approved institution for promotion of family planning - ₹ 40,000 by way of cheque

(viii) Deposit in PPF - ₹ 1,00,000

Compute the total income of Mr. Shiva for A.Y. 2020-21.

SOLUTION

Computation of Total Income of Mr. Shiva for A.Y. 2020-21

Particulars	₹	₹
Gross Total Income		7,75,000
Less: Deduction under section 80C
Deposit in PPF	1,00,000
Life insurance premium paid for insurance of major daughter (Maximum 10% of the assured value ₹ 1,80,000, as the policy is taken after 31.3.2012)	18,000
	1,18,000
Deduction u/s 80CCC in respect of LIC pension fund	60,000
	1,78,000
As per section 80CCE, deduction u/s 80C & 80CCC is restricted to		1,50,000
Deduction under section 80D
Medical Insurance premium in respect of self and spouse	26,000
Restricted to		25,000
Deduction under section 80G (See Working Note below)		87,500
Total income		5,12,500

Working Note: Computation of deduction under section 80G

	Particulars of donation	Amount donated (₹)	% of deduction	Deduction u/s 80G (₹)
(i)	National Children's Fund	25,000	100%	25,000
(ii)	Jawaharlal Nehru Memorial Fund	25,000	50%	12,500
(iii)	Approved institution for promotion of family planning	40,000	100%, subject to qualifying limit	40,000
(iv)	Public Charitable Trust	1,50,000	50% subject to qualifying limit (See Note below)	10,000
				87,500

Note - Adjusted total income = Gross Total Income – Amount of deductions under section 80C to 80U except section 80G i.e., ₹ 6,00,000, in this case.

₹ 60,000, being 10% of adjusted total income is the qualifying limit, in this case.

Firstly, donation of ₹ 40,000 to approved institution for family planning qualifying for 100% deduction subject to qualifying limit, has to be adjusted against this amount. Thereafter, donation to public charitable trust qualifying for 50% deduction, subject to qualifying limit is adjusted. Hence, the contribution of ₹ 50,000 to public charitable trust is restricted to ₹ 20,000 (being, ₹ 60,000 - ₹ 40,000), 50% of which would be the deduction under section 80G. Therefore, the deduction under section 80G in respect of donation to public charitable trust would be ₹10,000, which is 50% of ₹ 20,000.

(13) Deduction in respect of rent paid [Section 80GG]

- (i) Eligible assessee: Assessee, who is not in receipt of HRA qualifying for exemption under section 10(13A) from employer and who pays rent for accommodation occupied by him for residential purposes.
- (ii) Conditions: The following conditions have to be satisfied for claiming deduction under section 80GG -
  - (a) The assessee should not be receiving any house rent allowance exempt under section 10(13A).
  - (b) The expenditure incurred by him on rent of any furnished or unfurnished accommodation should exceed 10% of his total income arrived at after all deductions under Chapter VI A except section 80GG.
  - (c) The accommodation should be occupied by the assessee for the purposes of his own residence.
  - (d) The assessee should fulfill such other conditions or limitations as may be prescribed, having regard to the area or place in which such accommodation is situated and other relevant considerations.
  - (e) The assessee or his spouse or his minor child or an HUF of which he is a member should not own any accommodation at the place where he ordinarily resides or perform duties of his office or employment or carries on his business or profession; or
  - (f) If the assessee owns any accommodation at any place other than that referred to above, such accommodation should not be in the occupation of the assessee and its annual value is not required to be determined under section 23(2)(a) or section 23(4)(a).

(g) The assessee should file a declaration in the prescribed form, confirming the details of rent paid and fulfillment of other conditions, with the return of income.

(iii) Quantum of deduction: The deduction admissible will be the least of the following:

- (a) Actual rent paid minus 10% of the total income of the assessee before allowing the deduction, or
- (b) 25% of such total income (arrived at after making all deductions under Chapter VI-A but before making any deduction under this section), or
- (c) Amount calculated at ₹ 5,000 p.m.

ILLUSTRATION 15

Mr. Ganesh, a businessman, whose total income (before allowing deduction under section 80GG) for A.Y.2020-21 is ₹ 4,60,000, paid house rent at ₹ 12,000 p.m. in respect of residential accommodation occupied by him at Mumbai. Compute the deduction allowable to him under section 80GG for A.Y.2020-21.

SOLUTION

The deduction under section 80GG will be computed as follows:

(i) Actual rent paid less 10% of total income

$$₹ 1,44,000 (-) \frac{(10 \times 4,60,000)}{100} = ₹ 98,000 (A)$$

(ii) 25% of total income

$$\frac{25 \times 4,60,000}{100} = ₹ 1,15,000 (B)$$

(iii) Amount calculated at ₹ 5,000 p.m. = ₹ 60,000 (C)

Deduction allowable (least of A, B and C) = ₹ 60,000

(14) Deduction in respect of donations for scientific research or rural development [Section 80GGA]

(i) Eligible assessee: Section 80GGA grants deduction in respect of the donations made for scientific research or rural development by any assessee not having income chargeable under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession".

(ii) Donations qualifying for deduction:

- (a) Any sum paid by the assessee in the previous year to a research association which has, as its object, the undertaking of scientific research or to a University, college or other institution to be used for scientific research; and

Such research association, University, college or institution must be approved under section 35(1)(ii).

- (b) Any sum paid to a research Association which has as its object the undertaking of research in social science or statistical research, University, College or other institution to be used for research in social science or statistical research.

Such Research Association, University, College or institution must be approved under section 35(1)(iii).

Further, it has been clarified that the deduction to which an assessee (i.e. donor) is entitled on account of payment of any sum to a research association or university or college or other institution for scientific research or research in a social science or statistical research, shall not be denied merely on the ground that subsequent to payment of such sum by the assessee, the approval granted to any of the aforesaid entities is withdrawn

- (c) Any sum paid by the assessee in the previous year
- to an association or institution which has as its object the undertaking of any programme of rural development to be used for carrying out any programme of rural development approved by the prescribed authority for purposes of section 35CCA or
  - to an institution or association which has as its object the training of persons for implementing programmes of rural development.

It is, however, essential that assessee furnishes the certificate from such institution or association as referred to in section 35CCA(2) & (2A).

Further, it has been clarified that the deduction to which an assessee (i.e. donor) is entitled on account of payment of any sum to an association or institution for carrying out the programme of rural development shall not be denied merely on the ground that subsequent to payment of such sum by the assessee, the approval granted to such programme is withdrawn

- (d) Any sum paid to a public sector company or a local authority or to an association or institution approved by the National Committee for carrying out any eligible project or scheme.
- (e) Any sum paid to a rural development fund set up and notified under section 35CCA.
- (f) Any sum paid by the assessee in the previous year to National Urban Poverty Eradication Fund (NUPEF).

(iii) Restrictions on deduction:

- (a) Where a deduction under this section is claimed and allowed for any assessment year, deduction shall not be allowed in respect of such payment under any provision of this Act for the same or any other assessment year.

- (b) No deduction shall be allowed in respect of donation of any sum exceeding ₹ 10,000 unless such sum is paid by any mode other than cash.

(15) Deduction in respect of contributions given by companies to political parties [Section 80GGB]

- (i) Deduction & Conditions: This section provides for deduction of any sum contributed in the previous year by an Indian company to any political party or an electoral trust. However, no deduction shall be allowed in respect of any sum contributed by way of cash.
- (ii) Meaning of “contribute”: For the purposes of this section, the word “contribute” has the same meaning assigned to it under section 293A of the Companies Act, 1956<sup>3</sup>, which provides that -
- (a) a donation or subscription or payment given by a company to a person for carrying on any activity which is likely to effect public support for a political party shall also be deemed to be contribution for a political purpose;
- (b) the expenditure incurred, directly or indirectly, by a company on advertisement in any publication (being a publication in the nature of a souvenir, brochure, tract, pamphlet or the like) by or on behalf of a political party or for its advantage shall also be deemed to be a contribution to such political party or a contribution for a political purpose to the person publishing it.
- (iii) Meaning of “Political party”: It means a political party registered under section 29A of the Representation of the People Act, 1951.

ILLUSTRATION 16

During the P.Y.2019-20, ABC Ltd., an Indian company,

- (1) contributed a sum of ₹ 2 lakh to an electoral trust; and
- (2) incurred expenditure of ₹ 25,000 on advertisement in a brochure of a political party.

Is the company eligible for deduction in respect of such contribution/expenditure, assuming that the contribution was made by cheque? If so, what is the quantum of deduction?

SOLUTION

An Indian company is eligible for deduction under section 80GGB in respect of any sum contributed by it in the previous year to any political party or an electoral trust. Further, the word “contribute” in section 80GGB has the meaning assigned to it in section 293A of the Companies

Act, 1956, and accordingly, it includes the amount of expenditure incurred on advertisement in a brochure of a political party.

Therefore, ABC Ltd. is eligible for a deduction of ₹ 2,25,000 under section 80GGB in respect of sum of ₹ 2 lakh contributed to an electoral trust and ₹ 25,000 incurred by it on advertisement in a brochure of a political party.

It may be noted that there is a specific disallowance under section 37(2B) in respect of expenditure incurred on advertisement in a brochure of a political party. Therefore, the expenditure of ₹ 25,000 would be disallowed while computing business income/ gross total income. However, the said expenditure incurred by an Indian company is allowable as a deduction from gross total income under section 80GGB.

(16) Deduction in respect of contributions given by any person to political parties [Section 80GGC]

- (i) Deduction & Conditions: This section provides for deduction of any sum contributed in the previous year by any person to a political party or an electoral trust. However, no deduction shall be allowed in respect of any sum contributed by way of cash.
- (ii) Persons not eligible for deduction: This deduction will, however, not be available to a local authority and an artificial juridical person, wholly or partly funded by the Government.
- (iii) Meaning of “Political party”: It means a political party registered under section 29A of the Representation of the People Act, 1951.

11.3 DEDUCTIONS IN RESPECT OF CERTAIN INCOMES

(1) Deductions in respect of profits and gains from undertakings or enterprises engaged in infrastructure development, etc. [Section 80-IA]

Applicability

Section 80-IA(1) provides a 10 year tax holiday to an assessee, whose gross total income includes any profits and gains derived by an undertaking or enterprise from an eligible business i.e., business referred to in sub-section (4), namely :

- (i) Infrastructure facility - Any enterprise carrying on the business of:
  - (a) developing; or
  - (b) operating and maintaining; or
  - (c) developing, operating and maintaining any infrastructure facility.

Conditions: However, such enterprise must fulfill the following conditions:

- (1) It must be owned by a company registered in India or by a consortium of such companies or by an authority or a board or a corporation or any other body established or constituted under any Central or State Act.
- (2) It has entered into an agreement with the Central or a State Government or a local authority or statutory body for (i) developing or (ii) operating and maintaining, or (iii) developing, operating and maintaining a new infrastructure facility.
- (3) It starts operating and maintaining such infrastructure facility on or after 1-4-1995.
- (4) However, where an enterprise which developed such infrastructure facility transfers it to another enterprise on or after 1-4-1999, and such transferee enterprise operates and maintains it according to the agreement drawn up with the Government, etc., this section will apply to the transferee enterprise for the unexpired period of deduction (which was available to the first enterprise).

Meaning of “infrastructure facility”:

Note:

1. Structures at the ports for storage, loading and unloading etc. will be included in the definition of port for the purpose of section 80-IA, if the concerned port authority has issued a certificate that the said structures form part of the port.
2. Effluent treatment and conveyance system is a part of water treatment system and would accordingly, qualify as an infrastructure facility for the purpose of section 80-IA.
3. The CBDT has, vide Circular No. 4/2010 dated 18.5.2010, clarified that widening of an existing road by constructing additional lanes as a part of a highway project by an undertaking would be regarded as a new infrastructure facility for the purpose of section 80-IA(4)(i). However, simply relaying of an existing road would not be classifiable as a new infrastructure facility for this purpose.

Note – Any enterprise which starts the development or operation and maintenance of the infrastructure facility on or after 1.4.2017 will not be eligible for deduction under section 80-IA. Instead they would be eligible for investment-linked tax deduction under section 35AD.

(ii) Industrial parks : Any undertaking which

- develops,
- develops and operates, or
- maintains and operates an industrial park.

Conditions:

- (1) The undertaking begins to operate an industrial park in accordance with the scheme framed and notified by the Central Government.
- (2) The scheme is notified by the Government for the period beginning on 1-4-1997 and ending on 31-3-2011 for industrial parks
- (3) However, where an undertaking develops an industrial park on or after 1.4.1999 and transfers the operation and maintenance to another undertaking (transferee undertaking), the deduction to the transferee undertaking shall be available for the remaining period in the ten consecutive assessment years, in such a manner as would have been available to the transferor undertaking, as if the operation and maintenance were not so transferred to the transferee undertaking.

Rule 18C lays down the following eligibility criteria for Industrial Parks to claim benefit under section 80-IA (4)(iii) -

- (1) The undertaking should begin to develop, develop and operate or maintain and operate an industrial park any time during the period from 1.4.2006 to 31.3.2011.

- (2) The undertaking and the Industrial Park should be notified by the Central Government under the Industrial Park Scheme, 2008.
- (3) The undertaking should continue to fulfill the conditions envisaged in the Industrial Park Scheme, 2008.

(iii) Power undertakings: Any undertaking which is set up in any part of India for the generation or generation and distribution of power. However, such undertaking must begin to generate power at any time during the period between 1.4.1993 and 31.3.2017 starts transmission or distribution by laying a network of new transmission or distribution lines at any time during the period from 1.4.1999 and 31.3.2017. However, the deduction shall be allowed only in respect of profits derived from the laying of such network of new lines for transmission or distribution undertakes substantial renovation and modernisation of the existing network of transmission or distribution lines at any time during the period beginning on 1.4.2004 and ending on 31.3.2017

Meaning of “Substantial renovation and modernisation”:

‘Substantial renovation and modernisation’ means an increase in the plant and machinery in the network of transmission or distribution lines by at least fifty per cent of the book value of such plant and machinery as on 1st April, 2004.

(iv) Undertakings owned by an Indian company and set up for reconstruction or revival of a power generating plant:

Rate of Deduction

The amount of deduction available will be 100% of the profits and gains derived from such business for ten consecutive assessment years commencing at any time during the periods specified in period of tax holiday/concession below.

Period of tax holiday/concession

	Eligible business	Period of tax holiday
1.	For all eligible business except business mentioned in point 2.	Assessee has the option to claim deduction for 10 consecutive assessment years out of 15 years beginning from the year in which the undertaking or the enterprise develops or begins to operate the infrastructure facility or develops industrial park or generates power or commences transmission or distribution of power or undertakes substantial renovation and modernization of the existing transmission or distribution lines.
2.	In case of an infrastructure facility being a public facility like – (i) a road, including a toll road, bridge or rail system; or (ii) a highway project including housing or other activities which are an integral part of the highway project; or (iii) a water supply project, water treatment system, irrigation project, sanitation and sewerage system or solid waste management system	Assessee has the option to claim deduction for 10 consecutive assessment years out of 20 years beginning from the year in which the undertaking or the enterprise develops or begins to operate the eligible business

- (1) Eligible business to be considered as the only source of income: For the purpose of computing deduction under this section, the profits and gains of the eligible business shall be computed as if such eligible business were the only source of income of the assessee during the relevant previous years [Sub-section (5)].
- (2) Conditions to exempt profit from housing or other activities, being integral part of highway project: Where housing or other activities are an integral part of a highway project and the profits and gains have been calculated in accordance with the section, the profits shall not be liable to tax if the following conditions have been fulfilled:

- (a) The profit has been transferred to a special reserve account; and
  - (b) the same is actually utilised for the highway project excluding housing and other activities before the expiry of 3 years following the year of transfer to the reserve account;
  - (c) The amount remaining unutilised shall be chargeable to tax as income of the year in which the transfer to the reserve account took place [Sub-section (6)].
- (3) Audit of accounts: The deduction shall be allowed to the undertaking only if the accounts of the undertaking for the relevant previous year have been audited by a chartered accountant and the assessee furnishes the audit report in the prescribed form, duly signed and verified by such accountant along with his return of income [Sub-section (7)].
- (4) Transfer of goods/services between eligible business and other business of the assessee: Where any goods or services held for the purposes of the eligible business are transferred to any other business carried on by the assessee, or vice versa, and if the consideration for such transfer does not correspond with the market value of the goods or services then the profits and gains of the eligible business shall be computed as if the transfer was made at market value.

However, if, in the opinion of the Assessing Officer, such computation presents exceptional difficulties, the Assessing Officer may compute the profits on such reasonable basis as he may deem fit [Sub-section (8)].

For this purpose, the market value, in relation to any goods or services transferred between the eligible business and any other business carried on by the assessee, shall mean –

- (i) the price that such goods or services would ordinarily fetch in the open market; or
  - (ii) the arm's length price as defined under section 92F, where the transfer of such goods or services is a specified domestic transaction referred to in section 92BA.
- (5) Deduction not to exceed profits of eligible business: The deductions claimed and allowed under this section shall not exceed the profits and gains of the eligible business. Further, where deduction is claimed and allowed under this section for any assessment year no deduction in respect of such profits will be allowed under any other section under this chapter under the heading "Deductions in respect of certain incomes". [Sub-section (9)].
- (6) Assessing Officer empowered to make adjustment in case any transaction produces excessive profits to eligible business: The Assessing Officer is empowered to make an adjustment while computing the profit and gains of the eligible business on the basis of the reasonable profit that can be derived from the transaction, in case due to close connection or for any other reason the transaction between the assessee carrying on the eligible business under section 80-IA and any other person is so arranged that the transaction produces excessive profits to the eligible business [Sub-section (10)].

If the aforesaid arrangement between the assessee carrying on the eligible business and any other person is a specified domestic transaction referred to in section 92BA, then, the amount of profit of such transaction shall be determined having regard to arm's length price as defined under section 92F and not as per the reasonable profit from such transaction.

- (7) Central Government empowered to deny deduction to any class of eligible undertaking or enterprise: The section empowers the Central Government to declare any class of industrial undertaking or enterprise as not being entitled to deduction under this section. The denial of exemption shall be with effect from such date as may be specified in the notification issued in the Official Gazette [Sub-section (11)].
- (8) Deduction in case of amalgamation or demerger: In the case of any amalgamation or demerger, by virtue of which the Indian company carrying on the eligible business is transferred to another Indian company, deduction under this section will be available as follows:
- (a) No deduction will be available to the amalgamating company or the demerged company, as the case may be, in the year of amalgamation/ demerger.
  - (b) The provisions of this section will apply to the amalgamated/ resulting company as they would have applied to the amalgamating/ demerged company if the amalgamation/ demerger had not taken place [Sub-section (12)].

However, such transfer of benefit of deduction to the amalgamated/ resulting company would not be available in respect of any enterprise or undertaking which is transferred in a scheme of amalgamation or demerger effected on or after 1.4.2007 [Sub-section (12A)].

- (9) No deduction to any business carrying on specified activities in the nature of a work contract: The tax holiday under section 80-IA would not be available in relation to a business referred to in sub-section (4) which is in the nature of a works contract awarded by any person (including the Central or State Government) and executed by the undertaking or enterprise referred to in section 80-IA(1).

(2) Deduction in respect of profits and gains by an undertaking or enterprise engaged in development of SEZ [Section 80-IAB]

(i) Quantum of deduction:

Sub-section (1) provides for a deduction of 100% of profits and gains derived by an undertaking or an enterprise from any business of developing a SEZ for 10 consecutive assessment years.

(ii) Eligible assessee:

The deduction is available to an assessee, being a Developer, whose gross total income includes any profits and gains derived by an undertaking or an enterprise from any business of developing a SEZ, notified on or after 1st April, 2005 under the SEZ Act, 2005.

Note - No deduction would be available to an assessee, being a developer, where the development of SEZ begins on or after 1st April, 2017.

(iii) Meaning of Developer:

- (a) a person who, or
- (b) a State Government which has been granted a letter of approval by the Central Government under section 3(10) of the SEZ Act, 2005.

A developer includes –

- (a) an authority and
- (b) a Co-developer.

Co-developer means -

- (a) a person who, or
- (b) a State Government which has been granted a letter of approval by the Central Government under section 3(12) of the SEZ Act, 2005.

(iv) Option to choose 10 consecutive A.Y.s out of 15 years to claim deduction:

The assessee has the option of claiming the said deduction for any ten consecutive assessment years out of fifteen years beginning from the year in which a SEZ has been notified by the Central Government.

(v) Deduction to transferee in case of transfer of operation and maintenance of such SEZ:

In a case where an undertaking, being a Developer, who develops a SEZ on or after 1.4.2005 and transfers the operation and maintenance of such SEZ to another Developer, the deduction under sub-section (1) shall be allowed to such transferee Developer for the remaining period in the ten consecutive assessment years as if the operation and maintenance were not so transferred to the transferee Developer.

(vi) The provisions of sub-section (5) and sub-section (7) to (12) of section 80-IA shall apply to the Special Economic Zone for the purpose of allowing deductions under 80-IAB(1).

Lease rent from letting out buildings/developed space along with other amenities in an Industrial Park /SEZ - to be treated as business income [Circular No. 16/2017, dated 25.04.2017]

The issue whether income arising from letting out of premises/developed space along with other amenities in an Industrial Park/SEZ is to be charged under head 'Profits and Gains of Business' or under the head 'Income from House Property' has been subject matter of litigation in recent years. Assessee claim the letting out as business activity, the income arising from which to be charged to tax under the head 'Profits and Gains of Business', whereas the Assessing Officers hold it to be chargeable under the head 'Income from House Property'.

In the case of Velankani Information Systems Pvt Ltd (NJRS Citation [2013-LL-0402-44]), the Karnataka High Court observed that any other interpretation would defeat the object of section 80-IA and Government schemes for development of Industrial Parks in the country. SLPs filed in this case by the Department have been dismissed by the Supreme Court.

In a subsequent judgment dated 30.04.2014 in ITA No. 76 & 78/2012 in the case of CIT v. Information Technology Park Ltd. (NJRS Citation [2014-LL-0430-141], the Karnataka High Court has reaffirmed its earlier views. It has held that, since the assessee-company was engaged in the business of developing, operating and maintaining an Industrial Park and providing infrastructure facilities to different companies as its business, the lease rent received by the assessee from letting out buildings along with other amenities in a software technology park would be chargeable to tax under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" and not under the head "Income from house property". The judgment has been accepted by the CBDT.

In view of the above, it is now a settled position that in the case of an undertaking which develops, develops and operates or maintains and operates an industrial park/SEZ notified in accordance with the scheme framed and notified by the Government, the income from letting out of premises/developed space along with other facilities in an industrial park/SEZ is to be charged to tax under the head 'Profits and Gains of Business'.

(3) Tax incentives for new start-ups [Section 80-IAC]

(i) Objective:

Section 80-IAC provides an incentive to start-ups in order to aid their growth in the early phase of their business.

(ii) Quantum of deduction:

Accordingly, a deduction of 100% of the profits and gains derived by an eligible start-up from an eligible business is allowed for any three consecutive assessment years out of seven years beginning from the year in which the eligible start up is incorporated.

(iii) Meaning of eligible start-up:(iv) Meaning of eligible business:

A business carried out by an eligible start-up engaged in –

- Innovation, development or improvement of products or processes or services or
- a scalable business model with a high potential of employment generation or wealth creation

(v) Conditions to be fulfilled:

This incentive is available to an eligible start-up which fulfils the following conditions:

- (1) It is not formed by splitting up, or the reconstruction, of a business already in existence.

Exception: However, this condition shall not apply in the case of an undertaking which is formed as a result of reconstruction, re-establishment or revival of the business of any undertaking which has been discontinued in any previous year due to extensive damage or destruction of any building, machinery, plant or furniture owned by the assessee and used for the purposes of such business. Further, the reason for damage or destruction is due to any natural calamity or other unforeseen circumstances such as the following:

- (i) Flood, typhoon, hurricane, cyclone, earthquake or other natural calamity, or
- (ii) riot or civil disturbance, or
- (iii) accidental fire or explosion, or
- (iv) enemy action or action taken in combat, and such business is re-established or revived within 3 years from the end of such previous year.

- (2) It is not formed by the transfer to a new business of machinery or plant previously used for any purpose.

Exceptions: However, any machinery or plant which was used outside India by any person other than the assessee shall not be regarded as machinery or plant previously used for any purpose, if all the following conditions are fulfilled, namely:—

- (a) such machinery or plant was not, at any time previous to the date of the installation by the assessee, used in India;
- (b) such machinery or plant is imported into India;
- (c) no deduction on account of depreciation in respect of such machinery or plant has been allowed or is allowable under the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 in computing the total income of any person for any period prior to the date of the installation of the machinery or plant by the assessee.

Further, where in the case of a start-up, any machinery or plant or any part thereof previously used for any purpose is transferred to a new business and the total value of the machinery or plant or part so transferred does not exceed 20% of the total value of the machinery or plant used in the business, then, the condition specified that it should not be formed by transfer to a new business of plant and machinery used for any purpose shall be deemed to have been complied with.

- (vi) The provisions of sub-section (5) and sub-section (7) to (11) of section 80-IA shall apply to the start-ups for the purpose of allowing deductions under 80-IAC(1).

ILLUSTRATION 17

A (P) Ltd. was incorporated on 1.4.2017 and it holds a certificate of eligible business from the notified IMBC<sup>4</sup>. It is engaged in innovation of new products.

Its total turnover and profits and gains from such business for the P.Y.2017-18 to P.Y.2023-24 are as follows:

Particulars	P.Y.	P.Y.	P.Y.	P.Y.	P.Y.	P.Y.	P.Y.
	2017-18	2018-19	2019-20	2020-21	2021-22	2022-23	2023-24
	(₹ in crores)
Total turnover	15.42	18.36	20.21	22.72	24.95	23.52	24.68
Profits/Losses	(2.52)	(1.37)	6.52	8.13	9.87	7.59	9.42

Is A (P) Ltd. eligible for any tax benefit under the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 for A.Y. 2020-21? If yes, what is the benefit available?

<sup>4</sup> Inter-Ministerial Board of Certification

SOLUTION

A (P) Ltd. is an eligible start-up, since –

- (1) it is a company engaged in eligible business of innovation of new products.
- (2) it is incorporated during the period 1.4.2016 to 31.3.2021.
- (3) its total turnover does not exceed ₹ 25 crores in the relevant previous years for which deduction is claimed (i.e., P.Y.2019-20 to P.Y.2021-22 (or) P.Y.2020-21 to P.Y.2022-23 (or) P.Y.2021-22 to P.Y.2023-24)
- (4) it holds a certificate of eligible business from the notified IMBC

Therefore, A (P) Ltd., being an eligible start-up, is eligible for deduction under section 80-IAC of 100% of the profits and gains derived by it from an eligible business for any three consecutive assessment years out of seven years beginning from the year in which the eligible start up is incorporated i.e., P.Y.2017-18.

In the first and second year i.e., P.Y.2017-18 and P.Y.2018-19, A (P) Ltd. has incurred a loss. In the current previous year i.e., P.Y.2019-20, A (P) Ltd. has earned profits from eligible business and can hence, claim 100% of its profits as deduction for any three consecutive assessment years under section 80-IAC from the P.Y.2019-20 to P.Y.2023-24. However, for P.Y.2019-20, the profits eligible for deduction would be the profits after set-off of brought forward losses of P.Y.2017-18 and P.Y. 2018-19.

(4) Deductions in respect of profits and gains from certain industrial undertakings other than infrastructure development undertakings, etc. [Section 80-IB]*Applicability

This section will be applicable to assessees, whose gross total income includes any profits and gains derived from any of the following business activities -

- (1) An industrial undertaking including a small scale industrial undertaking (SSI) in Jammu and Kashmir
- (2) An undertaking which begins commercial production of mineral oil or commercial production of natural gas in licensed blocks.
- (3) An undertaking deriving profits from the business of processing, preservation and packaging of fruits or vegetables or meat and meat products or poultry or marine or dairy products or from the integrated business of handling, storage and transportation of foodgrains.

Conditions to be fulfilled, amount of deduction and period of deduction

The rate and period of deduction and the conditions required to be satisfied by the different categories of businesses are given below:

(1) An industrial undertaking including a small scale industrial undertaking (SSI) in Jammu and Kashmir [Sub-sections (2) and (4)]

Conditions: In order to be eligible to claim deduction under section 80-IB, an industrial undertaking must fulfill the following conditions:

- (i) It manufactures or produces any article or thing or operates a cold storage plant.
- (ii) In case of a manufacturing industrial unit, it should employ 10 or more workers (if manufacture is carried on with the aid of power), or 20 or more workers (if manufacture is carried on without the aid of power).

Quantum and period of deduction: The amount of deduction for an industrial undertaking in Jammu and Kashmir will be 100% of the profits and gains derived from such industrial undertaking for the initial 5 years and thereafter 25% of such profits and gains (in case of a company, the rate is 30%)

The total period of deduction should not exceed 10 consecutive assessment years provided the industrial undertaking begins manufacture or production of articles or things or operation of cold storage plant between 1-4-1993 and 31-3-2012. Where the industrial undertaking is a co-operative society, the deduction will be available for 12 assessment years (instead of 10), including the initial assessment year.

A negative list has also been provided in Part C of the Thirteenth Schedule to specify the commodities which should not be manufactured or produced by such undertakings. The list includes Cigarettes/cigars of tobacco, manufactured tobacco and substitutes, distilled/brewed alcoholic drinks and aerated branded beverages and their concentrates.

Note - Commercial production of mineral oil should have commenced on or before 31.3.2017. No deduction would be available under section 80-IB where the commercial production of mineral oil commences on or after 1.4.2017.

The above deduction for commercial production of mineral oil will not be available for blocks licensed under a contract awarded after 31.3.2011 under the New Exploration

Licensing Policy announced by the Government of India vide Resolution No. O-19018/22/95-ONG.DO.VL, dated 10th February, 1999 or in pursuance of any law for the time being in force or by the Central or a State Government in any other manner.

- (ii) In case of an undertaking engaged in commercial production of natural gas in licensed blocks—
- (a) the blocks are licensed under the VIII Round of bidding for award of exploration contracts ("NELP-VIII") under the New Exploration Licensing Policy announced by the Government of India vide Resolution No.O-19018/22/95-ONG.DO.VL, dated 10th February, 1999; or
  - (b) the blocks are licensed under the IV Round of bidding for award of exploration contracts for Coal Bed Methane blocks and begins commercial production of natural gas on or after 1st April, 2009.

Note - Commercial production of natural gas in licensed blocks should have commenced on or before 31.3.2017. No deduction would be available under section 80-IB where the commercial production of natural gas commence on or after 1.4.2017.

Note – All blocks licensed under a single contract, which has been awarded –

- (1) under the New Exploration Licencing Policy announced by the Government of India vide Resolution No.O-19018/22/95-ONG.DO.VL, dated 10.2.1999 or
- (2) in pursuance of any law for the time being in force or
- (3) by Central or a State Government in any other manner to be treated as a single “undertaking”

Quantum and period of deduction: The deduction will be allowed at 100% of the profits and gains from such business for 7 consecutive assessment years including the initial assessment year i.e. the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which the undertaking commences the commercial production of mineral oil.

- (3) An undertaking deriving profits from the business of processing, preservation and packaging of fruits or vegetables or meat and meat products or poultry or marine or dairy products or from the integrated business of handling, storage and transportation of foodgrains [Sub-section (11A)]

Conditions: In order to claim deduction, the undertaking should fulfill the following conditions:

- (i) It should be deriving profits from the business of processing, preservation and packaging of fruits or vegetables or meat or meat products or poultry or marine or dairy products or from the integrated business of handling, storage and transportation of foodgrains.

- (ii) It should begin to operate such business on or after 1.4.2001.

Quantum and period of deduction: The amount of deduction shall be 100% of the profits and gains derived from such business for 5 assessment years beginning with the initial assessment year i.e. the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which the undertaking begins such business. Thereafter, the deduction allowable is 25%. In the case of a company, the rate of 25% shall be substituted by 30%. The total period of deduction should not exceed 10 consecutive assessment years.

The provisions of sub-section (5) and sub-section (7) to (12) of section 80-IA shall apply to the eligible business under section 80-IB.

Admissibility of deduction under Chapter VI-A on the profits enhanced due to disallowance of expenditure related to business activity [Circular No.37/2016, Dated 02.11.2016]

Chapter VI-A of the Income-tax Act, 1961, provides for deductions in respect of certain incomes. In computing the profits and gains of a business activity, the Assessing Officer may make certain disallowances, such as disallowances pertaining to sections 32, 40(a)(ia), 40A(3), 43B etc., of the Act. At times, disallowance out of specific expenditure claimed may also be made. The effect of such disallowances is an increase in the profits.

The issue is whether such higher profits would also result in claim for a higher profit-linked deduction under Chapter VI-A.

The courts have generally held that if the expenditure disallowed is related to the business activity against which the Chapter VI-A deduction has been claimed, the deduction needs to be allowed on the enhanced profits. Some illustrative cases upholding this view are as follows:

- (i) If an expenditure incurred by assessee for the purpose of developing a housing project was not allowable on account of non-deduction of TDS under law, such disallowance would ultimately increase assessee's profits from business of developing housing project. The ultimate profits of assessee after adjusting disallowance under section 40(a)(ia) would qualify for deduction under section 80-IB.
- (ii) If deduction under section 40A(3) is not allowed, the same would have to be added to the profits of the undertaking on which the assessee would be entitled for deduction under section 80-IB.

In view of the aforesaid judgements, the CBDT has accepted the settled position that the disallowances made under sections 32, 40(a)(ia), 40A(3), 43B, etc. and other specific disallowances, related to the business activity against which the Chapter VI-A deduction has been claimed, result in enhancement of the profits of the eligible business, and that deduction under Chapter VI-A is admissible on the profits so enhanced by the disallowance.

Transport, Power and Interest subsidies received by an Industrial Undertaking - Eligibility for deduction under sections 80-IB, 80-IC etc., [Circular No. 39/2016, dated 29.11.2016]

The issue of whether revenue receipts such as transport, power and interest subsidies received by an Industrial Undertaking/ eligible business are part of profits and gains of business derived from its business activities within the meaning of sections 80-IB/ 80-IC of the Income-tax Act, 1961 and, thus, eligible for claim of corresponding deduction under Chapter VI-A of the Act has been a contentious one. Such receipts are often treated as 'Income from other sources' by the Assessing Officers.

The Hon'ble Supreme Court in its judgment dated 9.3.2016 in the case of Meghalaya Steels Ltd and other cases has held that the subsidies of transport, power and interest given by the Government to the Industrial Undertaking are receipts which have been reimbursed for elements of cost relating to manufacture/sale of the products. Thus, there is a direct nexus between profit and gains of the industrial undertaking/business and reimbursement of such business subsidies. Accordingly, such subsidies are part of profits and gains of business derived from the Industrial Undertaking and are not to be included under the head 'Income from other sources'. Therefore, deduction is admissible under section 80-1B/ 80-IC of the Act on such revenue receipts derived from the Industrial Undertaking.

In view of the above, the CBDT has clarified that revenue subsidies received from the Government towards reimbursement of cost of production/ manufacture or for sale of the manufactured goods are part of profits and gains of business derived from the Industrial Undertaking/ eligible business, and are thus, admissible for applicable deduction under Chapter VI-A of the Income-tax Act, 1961.

(5) Deductions in respect of profits and gains from housing projects [Section 80-IBA]

(i) Objective:

In order to provide impetus to affordable housing sector to achieve the larger objective of 'Housing for All', section 80-IBA has been inserted.

(ii) Quantum of deduction:

Where the gross total income of an assessee includes any profits and gains derived from the business of developing and building housing projects, an amount equal to 100% of the profits and gains derived from such business is allowable as deduction under section 80-IBA, subject to fulfilment of certain conditions.

(iii) Conditions to be fulfilled for claim of deduction:

- (a) the project is approved by the competent authority after 1st June, 2016 but on or before 31st March, 2020;

- (b) the project is completed within a period of five years from the date of approval by the competent authority:

However, in a case where the approval in respect of a housing project is obtained more than once, the project shall be deemed to have been approved on the date on which the building plan of such housing project was first approved by the competent authority and the project shall be deemed to have been completed when a certificate of completion of project as a whole is obtained in writing from the competent authority.

- (c) the carpet area of the shops and other commercial establishments included in the housing project does not exceed 3% of the aggregate carpet area;

Additional conditions to be fulfilled if the project is approved by the competent authority before 1st September, 2019

- (c) The project is the only housing project on the plot of land [referred to in column (3) above].
- (d) the assessee maintains separate books of account in respect of the housing project.
- (e) the stamp duty value of a residential unit in the housing project does not exceed ₹ 45 lakhs.

(iv) No deduction for person executing the housing project as a works contract:

An assessee who merely executes the housing project as a works-contract awarded by any person (including the Central Government or the State Government) would not be eligible for deduction under this section.

(v) Consequence of non-completion of housing project within 5 years:

In a case where the housing project is not completed within the period of five years from the date of approval by the competent authority and in respect of which a deduction has been claimed and allowed under this section, the total amount of deduction so claimed and allowed in one or more previous years, shall be deemed to be the income of the assessee chargeable under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" of the previous year in which the period for completion so expires.

(vi) No deduction under any other provision of the Act in respect of such profits:

Where any amount of profits and gains derived from the business of developing and building housing projects is claimed and allowed under this section for any assessment year, deduction to the extent of such profit and gains shall not be allowed under any other provision of this Act.

(iii) Quantum of deduction and period:

Where the gross total income of an assessee includes any profits and gains derived by such an undertaking, a deduction of 100% of the profits and gains derived from such business for 10 consecutive assessment years commencing with the initial assessment year shall be allowed in computing the total income of the assessee. Initial assessment year means the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which the undertaking begins to manufacture or produce articles or things, or completes substantial expansion.

(iv) No deduction under any other section of Chapter VIA or section 10AA of the Act in respect of such profits:

No benefit to these undertakings will be available under any of the sections in Chapter VIA or in section 10AA in relation to the profits and gains of such undertakings.

(v) Maximum permissible deduction:

While computing the total period of 10 years the period for which the benefit under section 80-IC has already been availed, if any, shall also be included.

(vii) The provisions of sub-section (5) and sub-section (7) to (12) of section 80-IA shall apply to the eligible undertaking under this section.

(8) Deduction in respect of profits and gains from business of collecting and processing of bio-degradable waste [Section 80JJA]

- (i) Eligible business: The deduction is allowable where the gross total income of an assessee includes any profits and gains derived from the business of collecting and processing or treating of bio-degradable waste -
- (1) for generating power, or
  - (2) producing bio-fertilizers, bio-pesticides or other biological agents, or
  - (3) for producing bio-gas, or
  - (4) making pellets or briquettes for fuel or organic manure.
- (ii) Quantum of deduction and period: The deduction allowable under this section is an amount equal to the whole of such profits and gains for a period of five consecutive assessment years beginning with the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which the business commences.

(9) Deduction in respect of employment of new employees [Section 80JJAA]

(i) Quantum and period of deduction:

Where the gross total income of an assessee to whom section 44AB applies, includes any profits and gains derived from business, a deduction of an amount equal to 30% of additional employee cost incurred in the course of such business in the previous year, would be allowed for three assessment years including the assessment year relevant to the previous year in which such employment is provided.

(ii) Conditions to be fulfilled:

The deduction would be allowed only subject to fulfilment of the following conditions:

-  The business should not be formed by splitting up, or the reconstruction, of an existing business
-  The business is not acquired by the assessee by way of transfer from any other person or as a result of any business reorganisation
-  The report of the accountant, giving the prescribed particulars, has to be furnished along with ROI

(iii) Meaning of certain terms:

	Term	Meaning
(a)	Additional employee cost	Total emoluments paid or payable to additional employees employed during the previous year.
		In the case of an existing business The additional employee cost shall be Nil, if— (a) there is no increase in the number of employees from the total number of employees employed as on the last day of the preceding year; (b) emoluments are paid otherwise than by an account payee cheque or account payee bank draft or by use of electronic clearing system through a bank account or through any other prescribed electronic mode.
		In the first year of a new business The emoluments paid or payable to employees employed during that previous year shall be deemed to be the additional employee cost.
(b)	Additional employee	An employee who has been employed during the previous year and whose employment has the effect of increasing the total number of employees employed by the employer as on the last day of the preceding year. Exclusions from the definition: (a) an employee whose total emoluments are more than ₹ 25,000 per month; or (b) an employee for whom the entire contribution is paid by the Government under the Employees' Pension Scheme notified in accordance with the provisions of the Employees' Provident Funds and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952; or (c) an employee employed for a period of less than 240 days during the previous year. In case of an assessee engaged in the business of manufacturing of apparel or footwear or leather products, an employee employed for a period of less than 150 days during the previous year; or

		(e) an employee who does not participate in the recognised provident fund. Note – If an employee is employed during the previous year for less than 240 days or 150 days, as the case may be, but is employed for a period of 240 days or 150 days, as the case may be, in the immediately succeeding year, he shall be deemed to have been employed in the succeeding year. ILLUSTRATION 18

Mr. A has commenced the business of manufacture of computers on 1.4.2019. He employed 350 new employees during the P.Y.2019-20, the details of whom are as follows –

	No. of employees	Date of employment	Regular/Casual	Total monthly emoluments per employee (₹)
(i)	75	1.4.2019	Regular	24,000
(ii)	125	1.5.2019	Regular	26,000
(iii)	50	1.8.2019	Casual	25,500
(iv)	100	1.9.2019	Regular	24,000

The regular employees participate in recognized provident fund while the casual employees do not. Compute the deduction, if any, available to Mr. A for A.Y.2020-21, if the profits and gains derived from manufacture of computers that year is ₹ 75 lakhs and his total turnover is ₹ 2.16 crores.

What would be your answer if Mr. A has commenced the business of manufacture of footwear on 1.4.2019?

SOLUTION

Mr. A is eligible for deduction under section 80JJAA since he is subject to tax audit under section 44AB for A.Y.2020-21, as his total turnover from business exceeds ₹ 1 crore and he has employed “additional employees” during the P.Y.2019-20.

I If Mr. A is engaged in the business of manufacture of computers

Additional employee cost = ₹ 24,000 × 12 × 75 [See Working Note below] = ₹ 2,16,00,000

Deduction under section 80JJAA = 30% of ₹ 2,16,00,000 = ₹ 64,80,000.

Working Note:*Number of additional employees

Particulars	No. of workmen
Total number of employees employed during the year		350
Less: Casual employees employed on 1.8.2019 who do not participate in recognized provident fund	50
Regular employees employed on 1.5.2019, since their total monthly emoluments exceed ₹ 25,000	125
Regular employees employed on 1.9.2019 since they have been employed for less than 240 days in the P.Y.2019-20.	100	275
Number of “additional employees”		75

Notes –

(i) Since casual employees do not participate in recognized provident fund, they do not qualify as additional employees. Further, 125 regular employees employed on 1.5.2019 also do not qualify as additional employees since their monthly emoluments exceed ₹ 25,000. Also, 100 regular employees employed on 1.9.2019 do not qualify as additional employees for the P.Y.2019-20, since they are employed for less than 240 days in that year.

Therefore, only 75 employees employed on 1.4.2019 qualify as additional employees, and the total emoluments paid or payable to them during the P.Y.2019-20 is deemed to be the additional employee cost.

(ii) As regards 100 regular employees employed on 1.9.2019, they would be treated as additional employees for previous year 2020-21, if they continue to be employees in that year for a minimum period of 240 days. Accordingly, 30% of additional employee cost in respect of such employees would be allowable as deduction under section 80JJAA in the hands of Mr. A for the A.Y. 2021-22.

II If Mr. A is engaged in the business of manufacture of footwear

If Mr. A is engaged in the business of manufacture of footwear, then, he would be entitled to deduction under section 80JJAA in respect of employee cost of regular employees employed on 1.9.2019, since they have been employed for more than 150 days in the previous year 2019-20.

Additional employee cost = ₹ 2,16,00,000 + ₹ 24,000 × 7 × 100 = ₹ 3,84,00,000

Deduction under section 80JJAA = 30% of ₹ 3,84,00,000 = ₹ 1,15,20,000

(10) Deduction in respect of certain income of Offshore Banking Units and International Financial Services Centre [Section 80LA]

(i) Eligible assessee:

This section is applicable to the following assessees -

- (a) a scheduled bank having an Offshore Banking Unit in a SEZ; or

- (a) The report of a Chartered Accountant in the prescribed form certifying that the deduction has been correctly claimed in accordance with the provisions of this section, should be submitted along with the return of income.
- (b) A copy of the permission obtained under section 23(1)(a) of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949 should also be furnished along with the return of income.

(11) Deduction in respect of income of co-operative societies [Section 80P]

(i) Applicability:

Under this section, certain specified income of a co-operative society would be allowed as a deduction, provided such income is included in the gross total income of the society.

(ii) Eligible income for deduction and quantum of deduction:

Deduction in respect of profit attributable to certain specified activities

100% deduction shall be allowed in respect of profits and gains attributable to any one or more of the following activities to a co-operative society engaged in -

- (1) carrying on the business of banking or providing credit facilities to its members; or
- (2) a cottage industry; or
- (3) the marketing of the agricultural produce grown by its members; or

- (4) the purchase of agricultural implements, seeds, livestock or other articles intended for agriculture or for the purpose of supplying them to its members; or
- (5) the processing without the aid of power, of the agricultural produce of its members; or
- (6) the collective disposal of the labour to its member; or
- (7) fishing and other allied pursuits, such as catching, curing, processing, preserving, storing and marketing of fish or the purchase of materials and equipment in connection therewith for the purpose of supplying them to their members.

However, the exemption in respect of income referred to in (6) or (7) will be available only in the case of those co-operative societies which, under their rules and by-laws, restrict the voting rights to

- (i) members who contribute their labour force or who actually carry on the fishing or other allied activities,
- (ii) the co-operative credit societies which provide financial assistance to the society and
- (iii) the State Government.

Deduction in respect of profit of primary co-operative societies

100% of the profits and gains of the business would be allowed as deduction from the gross total income of the co-operative society in case of a primary co-operative society engaged in supplying milk, oilseeds, fruits or vegetables raised or grown by its members to –

- a federal co-operative society engaged in supplying milk, oilseeds, fruits or vegetables, as the case may be, or
- the Government or a local authority or
- a Government company as defined in section 617<sup>5</sup> of the Companies Act, 1956 or a corporation established by or under a Central, State or Provincial Act (engaged in supplying milk, oilseeds, fruits or vegetables, as the case may be, to the public),

Deduction in respect of other activities

A co-operative society which is engaged in activities other than to those mentioned above either independently of, or in addition to, all or any of the activities so specified, is eligible for deduction upto ₹ 50,000 to the extent of its business income arising from other activities. The limit is ₹ 1,00,000 in the case of consumer co-operative societies.

For this purpose, consumer co-operative society means a society for the benefit of the consumers.

Deduction in respect of Interest or dividend income

Any income arising to a co-operative society by way of any interest and dividends derived from its investments with any other co-operative society is deductible in full under this section.

Deduction in respect of letting-out income for certain purpose

The income derived by a co-operative society from the letting out of godowns or warehouses for storage, processing or facilitating the marketing of commodities is fully allowable as deduction.

Deduction in respect of interest on securities and income from house property to certain co-operative societies

Any income arising to a co-operative society by way of 'Interest on securities' or 'Income from house property' (chargeable under section 22) is fully deductible under this section where the gross total income of the co-operative society does not exceed ₹ 20,000 and it is not a housing society or an urban consumer's society or a society carrying on transport business or a society engaged in the performance of any manufacturing operations with the aid of power. Thus, a majority of small co-operative societies would not have to pay any income-tax.

(iii) Meaning of urban consumers' co-operative society:

It means a society for the benefit of the consumers within the limits of a municipal corporation, municipality, municipal committee, notified area committee, town area or cantonment.

(iv) Deduction under other section of Chapter VI-A of the Act:

Where the co-operative society is also entitled to the deduction available under section 80-IA, the deduction under this section shall be allowed with reference to the gross total income as reduced by the deduction allowable under section 80-IA.

(v) Non-eligible co-operative societies:

The benefit under section 80P has been withdrawn in respect of all co-operative banks, other than primary agricultural credit societies (i.e. as defined in Part V of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949) and primary co-operative agricultural and rural development banks (i.e. societies having its area of operation confined to a taluk and the principal object of which is to provide for long-term credit for agricultural and rural development activities). This is for the purpose of treating co-operative banks at par with other commercial banks, which do not enjoy similar tax benefits.

(vi) Regional Rural Banks not eligible for deduction under section 80P:

The CBDT has, through Circular No. 6/2010 dated 20.9.2010, reiterated that Regional Rural Banks are not eligible for deduction under section 80P of the Income-tax Act, 1961 from the assessment year 2007-08 onwards. It has also been clarified that the Circular No. 319 dated 11-1-1982 deeming any Regional Rural Bank to be cooperative society stands withdrawn for application with effect from A.Y.2007-08.

This is consequent to the amendment in section 80P by the Finance Act, 2006, providing specifically that w.e.f. 1-4-2007, the provisions of section 80P will not apply to any co-operative bank other than a Primary Agricultural Credit Society or a Primary Cooperative Agricultural and Rural Development Bank. The same has been further clarified by this circular.

(12) Deduction in respect of certain income of Producer Companies [Section 80PA]*(i) Applicability:

Under section 80P, 100% deduction is available in respect of profits of co-operative society which provide assistance to its members engaged in primary agricultural activities.

A similar benefit has been extended, by insertion of new section 80PA, to Farm Producer Companies (FPC), having a total turnover of less than ₹ 100 crore in any previous year, whose gross total income includes any profits and gains derived from eligible business.

(ii) Meaning of Eligible Business:

Eligible business means -

- (a) the marketing of agricultural produce grown by its members, or
- (b) the purchase of agricultural implements, seeds, livestock or other articles intended for agriculture for the purpose of supplying them to its members, or
- (c) the processing of the agricultural produce of its members

(iii) Quantum of deduction:

100% of profits and gains attributable to eligible business for the previous year relevant to A.Y.2019-20 to A.Y.2024-25

In a case where the assessee is entitled also to deduction under any other provision of Chapter VI-A, the deduction under this section shall be allowed with reference to the income, if any, as referred to in this section included in the gross total income as reduced by the deductions under such other provision of this Chapter.

(iv) Meaning of certain terms:

	Term	Meaning [Section 581A of the Companies Act, 1956]
(i)	Member	A person or Producer institution (whether incorporated or not) admitted as a Member of a Producer Company and who retains the qualifications necessary for continuance as such.

(13) Deduction in respect of royalty income, etc., of authors of certain books other than text books [Section 80QQB]

- (i) Eligible assessee and Quantum of deduction: Under section 80QQB, deduction of up to a maximum ₹ 3,00,000 is allowed to an individual resident in India, being an author including a joint author in respect of income derived by him in the exercise of his profession i.e., the deduction shall be the income derived as author or ₹ 3,00,000, whichever is less.
- (ii) Eligible income:
- This income may be received either by way of a lumpsum consideration for the assignment or grant of any of his interests in the copyright of any book.
  - Such book should be a work of literary, artistic or scientific nature, or of royalties or copyright fees (whether receivable in lump sum or otherwise) in respect of such book.
  - This deduction shall not, however, be available in respect of royalty income from brochures, commentaries, diaries, guides, journals, magazines, newspapers, pamphlets, textbook for schools, tracts and other publications of similar nature.

Note - Where an assessee claims deduction under this section, no deduction in respect of the same income may be claimed under any other provision of the Income-tax Act, 1961.

- (iii) Manner of computation of deduction: For the purpose of calculating the deduction under this section, the amount of eligible income (royalty or copyright fee received otherwise than by way of lumpsum) before allowing expenses attributable to such income, shall not exceed 15% of the value of the books sold during the relevant previous year.

However, this condition is not applicable where the royalty or copyright fees is receivable in lump sum in lieu of all rights of the author in the book.

(iv) Conditions:

- Furnishing of certificate in prescribed form: For claiming the deduction, the assessee shall have to furnish a certificate in the prescribed manner in the prescribed format, duly verified by the person responsible for making such payment, setting forth such particulars as may be prescribed.
- Period for repatriation of income earned outside India: Where the assessee earns any income from any source outside India, he should bring such income into India in convertible foreign exchange within a period of six months from the end of the previous year in which such income is earned or within such further period as the competent authority may allow in this behalf for the purpose of claiming deduction under this section.

The competent authority shall mean the Reserve Bank of India or such other authority as is authorised under any law for the time being in force for regulating payments and dealings in foreign exchange.

(14) Deduction in respect of royalty on patents [Section 80RRB]

- (i) Eligible assessee: This deduction shall be available only to a resident individual who is registered as the true and first inventor in respect of an invention under the Patents Act, 1970, including the co-owner of the patent and earning income by way of royalty of a patent registered on or after 1.4.2003.
- (ii) Quantum of deduction: This section allows deduction to a resident individual in respect of income by way of royalty of a patent registered on or after 1.4.03 up to an amount of ₹ 3 lakhs.

Note - No deduction in respect of such income will be allowed under any other provision of the Income-tax Act, 1961

- (iii) Eligible income: This deduction shall be restricted to the royalty income including consideration for transfer of rights in the patent or for providing information for working or use of a patent, use of a patent or the rendering of any services in connection with these activities.

The deduction shall not be available on any consideration for sale of product manufactured with the use of the patented process or patented article for commercial use.

(iv) Conditions:

(a) In respect of any such income which is earned from sources outside India, the deduction shall be restricted to such sum as is brought to India in convertible foreign exchange within a period of 6 months or extended period as is allowed by the competent authority (Reserve Bank of India).

(b) For claiming this deduction the assessee shall be required to furnish a certificate in the prescribed form signed by the prescribed authority, alongwith the return of income.

- (v) Rectification of assessment where patent is revoked subsequently: Where the patent is subsequently revoked or the name of the assessee was excluded from the patents register as patentee in respect of that patent, the deduction allowed during the period shall be deemed to have been wrongly allowed and the assessment shall be rectified under the provisions of section 155.

The period of 4 years for rectification shall be reckoned from the end of the previous year in which the order of the revocation of the patent is passed.

11.4 DEDUCTIONS IN RESPECT OF OTHER INCOME

(1) Deduction in respect of interest on deposits in savings accounts [Section 80TTA]

- (i) Eligible assessee and Quantum of deduction: Section 80TTA provides that in case the gross total income of an assessee, being an individual or a Hindu Undivided Family, includes any income by way of an interest on deposits in a saving account (not being time deposits, which are deposits repayable on expiry of fixed periods), deduction up to ₹ 10,000 in aggregate shall be allowed while computing the total income of such assessee. Such deduction shall be allowed in case the saving account is maintained with:
- (a) a banking company to which the Banking Regulation Act, 1949, applies (including any bank or banking institution referred to in section 51 of that Act);
  - (b) a co-operative society engaged in carrying on the business of banking (including a co-operative land mortgage bank or a co-operative land development bank); or
  - (c) a post office.

Note - Deduction under this section would, however, not be available to a resident senior citizen eligible for deduction under section 80TTB.

- (ii) Restriction: If the aforesaid income is derived from any deposit in a savings account held by, or on behalf of, a firm, an AOP/BOI, no deduction shall be allowed in respect of such income in computing the total income of any partner of the firm or any member of the AOP or any individual of the BOI.

In effect, the deduction under this section shall be allowed only in respect of the income derived in form of the interest on the saving bank deposit (other than time deposits) made by the individual or Hindu Undivided Family directly.

(2) Deduction in respect of interest on deposits in case of senior citizens [Section 80TTB]

- (i) Eligible assessee: A senior citizen (a resident individual who is of the age of 60 years or more at any time during the relevant previous year), whose gross total income includes income by way of interest on deposits with –
- (a) a banking company to which Banking Regulation Act, 1949 applies
  - (b) a co-operative society engaged in carrying on the business of banking (including a co-operative land mortgage bank or a co-operative land development bank)
  - (c) a Post Office.

- (ii) Quantum of deduction: Actual amount of interest on deposits or ₹ 50,000, whichever is lower.
- (iii) Non-availability of deduction to partner/member, where deposit held by firm/AOP/BOI: Where interest income is derived from any deposit held by, or on behalf of, a firm, an AOP or a BOI, the partner of the firm or member of AOP/BOI would not be allowed deduction in respect of such income while computing their total income.

ILLUSTRATION 19

Mr. A, a resident individual aged about 61 years, has earned business income (computed) of ₹ 1,35,000, lottery income of ₹ 1,20,000 (gross) during the P.Y. 2019-20. He also has interest on Fixed Deposit of ₹ 30,000 with banks. He invested an amount of ₹ 1,50,000 in Public Provident Fund account. What is the total income of Mr. A for the A.Y.2020-21?

SOLUTION

Computation of total income of Mr. A for A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	₹	₹
Profits and gains of business or profession		1,35,000
Income from other sources
- Interest on Fixed Deposit with banks		30,000
- lottery income		1,20,000
Gross Total Income		2,85,000
Less: Deductions under Chapter VIA [See Note below]
Under section 80C
- Deposit in Public Provident Fund	1,50,000
Under section 80TTB
- Interest on fixed deposits with banks	30,000
	1,80,000
Restricted to		1,65,000
Total Income		1,20,000

Note: In case of resident individuals of the age of 60 years or more, interest on bank fixed deposits qualifies for deduction upto ₹ 50,000 under section 80TTB.

Though the value of eligible deductions is ₹ 1,80,000, however, deduction under Chapter VI-A cannot exceed the gross total income exclusive of long term capital gains taxable under section 112 and section 112A, short-term capital gains covered under section 111A and winnings of lotteries of the assessee.

Therefore, the maximum permissible deduction under Chapter VI-A = ₹ 2,85,000 – ₹ 1,20,000 = ₹ 1,65,000.

ILLUSTRATION 20

Mr. Gurnam, aged 42 years, has salary income (computed) of ₹ 5,50,000 for the previous year ended 31.03.2020. He has earned interest of ₹ 14,500 on the saving bank account with State Bank of India during the year. Compute the total income of Mr. Gurnam for the assessment year 2020-21 from the following particulars:

- (i) Life insurance premium paid to Birla Sunlife Insurance in cash amounting to ₹ 25,000 for insurance of life of his dependant parents. The insurance policy was taken on 15.07.2017 and the sum assured on life of his dependant parents is ₹ 2,00,000.
- (ii) Life insurance premium of ₹ 25,500 paid for the insurance of life of his major son who is not dependant on him. The sum assured on life of his son is ₹ 2,50,000 and the life insurance policy was taken on 30.3.2012.
- (iii) Life insurance premium paid by cheque of ₹ 22,500 for insurance of his life. The insurance policy was taken on 08.09.2016 and the sum assured is ₹ 2,00,000.
- (iv) Premium of ₹ 26,000 paid by cheque for health insurance of self and his wife.
- (v) ₹ 1,500 paid in cash for his health check-up and ₹ 4,500 paid in cheque for health check-up for his parents, who are senior citizens.
- (vi) Paid interest of ₹ 6,500 on loan taken from bank for MBA course pursued by his daughter.
- (vii) A sum of ₹ 15,000 donated in cash to an institution approved for purpose of section 80G for promoting family planning.

SOLUTION*Computation of total income of Mr. Gurnam for the Assessment Year 2020-21

Particulars	₹	₹	₹
Income from salary			5,50,000
Interest on saving bank deposit			14,500
Gross Total Income			5,64,500
Less: Deduction under Chapter VI-A
Under section 80C (See Note 1)
Life insurance premium paid for life insurance of:
- major son	25,500
- self ₹ 22,500 restricted to 10% of ₹ 2,00,000	20,000	45,500
Under section 80D (See Note 2)
Premium paid for ₹ 26,000 health insurance of self and wife by cheque, restricted to	25,000
Payment made for health check-up for parents:	4,500	29,500

Under section 80E
For payment of interest on loan taken from bank for MBA course of his daughter		6,500
Under section 80TTA (See Note 4)
Interest on savings bank account ₹ 14,500 restricted to		10,000	91,500
Total Income			4,73,000

Notes:

- (1) As per section 80C, no deduction is allowed in respect of premium paid for life insurance of parents whether they are dependant or not. Therefore, no deduction is allowable in respect of ₹ 25,000 paid as premium for life insurance of dependant parents of Mr. Gurnam.

In respect of insurance policy issued on or after 01.04.2012, deduction shall be allowed for life insurance premium paid only to the extent of 10% of sum assured. In case the insurance policy is issued before 01.04.2012, deduction of premium paid on life insurance policy shall be allowed up to 20% of sum assured.

Therefore, in the present case, deduction of ₹ 25,500 is allowable in respect of life insurance of Mr. Gurnam's son since the insurance policy was issued before 01.04.2012 and the premium amount is less than 20% of ₹ 2,50,000. However, in respect of premium paid for life insurance policy of Mr. Gurnam himself, deduction is allowable only up to 10% of ₹ 2,00,000 since the policy was issued after 01.04.2012 and the premium amount exceeds 10% of sum assured.

- (2) As per section 80D, in case the premium is paid in respect of health of a person specified therein and for health check-up of such person, deduction shall be allowed up to ₹ 25,000. Further, deduction up to ₹ 5,000 in aggregate shall be allowed in respect of health check-up of self, spouse, children and parents. In order to claim deduction under section 80D, the payment for health-checkup can be made in any mode including cash. However, the payment for health insurance premium has to be paid in any mode other than cash.

Therefore, in the present case, in respect of premium of ₹ 26,000 paid for health insurance of self and wife, deduction would be restricted to ₹ 25,000. Since the limit of ₹ 25,000 has been exhausted against medical insurance premium, no deduction is allowable for preventive health check-up for self and wife. However, deduction of ₹ 4,500 is allowable in respect of health check-up of his parents, since it falls within the limit of ₹ 5,000.

- (3) No deduction shall be allowed under section 80G in case the donation is made in cash of a sum exceeding ₹ 2,000. Therefore, deduction under section 80G is not allowable in respect of cash donation of ₹ 15,000 made to an institution approved for the purpose of section 80G for promotion of family planning.

- (4) As per section 80TTA, deduction shall be allowed from the gross total income of an individual or Hindu Undivided Family in respect of income by way of interest on deposit in the savings account included in the assessee's gross total income, subject to a maximum of ₹ 10,000. Therefore, a deduction of ₹ 10,000 is allowable from the gross total income of Mr. Gurnam, though the interest from savings bank account is ₹ 14,500.

11.5 OTHER DEDUCTIONS

Deduction in the case of a person with disability [Section 80U]

- (1) Section 80U harmonizes the criteria for defining disability as existing under the Income-tax Rules with the criteria prescribed under the Persons with Disability (Equal Opportunities, Protection of Rights and Full Participation) Act, 1995.
- (2) Eligible assessee: This section is applicable to a resident individual, who, at any time during the previous year, is certified by the medical authority to be a person with disability.

The benefit of deduction under this section has also been extended to persons suffering from autism, cerebral palsy and multiple disabilities.

- (3) Quantum of deduction A deduction of ₹ 75,000 in respect of a person with disability and ₹ 1,25,000 in respect of a person with severe disability (having disability over 80%) is allowable under this section.
- (4) Conditions:
- (a) The assessee claiming a deduction under this section shall furnish a copy of the certificate issued by the medical authority in the form and manner, as may be prescribed, along with the return of income under section 139, in respect of the assessment year for which the deduction is claimed.
- (b) Where the condition of disability requires reassessment, a fresh certificate from the medical authority shall have to be obtained after the expiry of the period mentioned on the original certificate in order to continue to claim the deduction.

EXERCISE

Question 1

Mr. Srinivasan, aged 61 years, furnishes the following particulars for the year ending 31.03.2020:

- (a) Life Insurance Premium paid – ₹ 15,000, actual capital sum of the policy assured for ₹ 1,40,000. The insurance policy was taken on 31.03.2012;
- (b) Contribution to Public Provident Fund – ₹ 40,000 in the name of father;
- (c) Tuition fee payment – ₹ 8,000 each for 2 sons pursuing full time graduation course in Calcutta; Tuition fee for daughter pursuing PHD in Kellogg University, USA – ₹ 2.50 Lacs;
- (d) Housing loan principal repayment – ₹ 32,000 to Axis Bank. This property is under construction at Calcutta as on 31.03.2020;
- (e) Principal repayment of housing loan taken from a relative – ₹ 70,000. The property is self-occupied situated at Pune;
- (f) Deposit under Senior Citizens Savings Scheme – ₹ 15,000;
- (g) Five-year deposits in an account under Post Office Time Deposit Scheme – ₹ 50,000;
- (h) Investment in National Savings Certificate – ₹ 70,000;

Compute the deduction eligible under appropriate provisions of section 80C for A.Y. 2020-21.

Answer

Computation of eligible deduction under section 80C for A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	₹
Life Insurance Premium ( See Note 1 )	15,000
Contribution to Public Provident fund ( See Note 2 )	Nil
Tuition fee of 2 sons for graduation course ( See Note 3 )	16,000
Housing loan principal repayment ( See Notes 4 &amp; 5 )	Nil
Senior Citizen Savings Scheme deposit ( See Note 6 )	15,000
Post Office Time Deposit Scheme ( See Note 6 )	50,000
Investment in National Savings Certificate	70,000
Total Investment	1,66,000
Eligible deduction under section 80C restricted to	1,50,000

Notes:

1. Any amount of life insurance premium paid in excess of the specified percentage of actual capital sum assured shall be ignored for the purpose of deduction under section 80C. In the given case, since the insurance policy has been issued before 1.04.2012, therefore, premium paid upto 20% of actual capital sum assured i.e., ₹ 28,000 shall be allowed as deduction. Hence, the premium of ₹ 15,000 paid during the year is allowable as deduction under section 80C.
2. In the case of an individual, contribution to PPF can be made in his name or in the name of his spouse or children to qualify for deduction under section 80C. As the contribution was made in the name of his father, deduction is not allowable.
3. Tuition fee paid is eligible for deduction under section 80C for a maximum of two children. Therefore, ₹ 16,000 shall be allowed as deduction. Tuition fee paid to an educational institution situated outside India is not eligible for deduction.
4. In order to claim the principal repayment on loan borrowed for house property as deduction, the construction of such property should have been completed and should be chargeable to tax under the head "Income from house property". In the given case, since the property is under construction, principal repayment does not qualify for deduction.
5. Repayment of principal on housing loan is not allowed as deduction in case the loan is borrowed from friends, relatives etc. In order to qualify for deduction, the loan should have been obtained from Central Government / State Government / bank / specified employer / institution.
6. The following investments are also eligible for deduction under section 80C:-
  - (1) five year time deposit in an account under Post Office Time Deposit Rules, 1981; and
  - (2) deposit in an account under the Senior Citizens Savings Scheme Rules, 2004.

Question 2

X Ltd. has two units, unit 'N' and unit 'Y'. Unit 'N' engaged in the business of power generation installed a windmill in March, 2018 and had a profit of ₹ 100 lakhs in Assessment Year 2020-21. X Ltd. claimed depreciation of ₹ 120 lakhs on windmill against the profit of ₹ 100 lakhs from power generation business which was eligible for deduction under section 80-IA. Unit 'Y', engaged in manufacturing of wires, non-eligible business, had a profit of ₹ 70 lakhs for Assessment Year 2020-21.

The loss of ₹ 20 lakhs, i.e., balance depreciation not set off pertaining to unit 'N' was set-off against the profits of unit 'Y' carrying on non-eligible business, by the assessee, X Ltd. The Assessing Officer was of the view that depreciation relating to a business eligible for deduction under section 80-IA cannot be set-off against non-eligible business income. Hence, unabsorbed depreciation should be carried forward to the subsequent year to be set off against eligible business income of the assessee of that year.

Examine the correctness of the action of the Assessing Officer.

Answer

In CIT v. Swarnagiri Wire Insulations Pvt. Ltd. (2012) 349 ITR 245, the Karnataka High Court observed that it is a generally accepted principle that the deeming provision of a particular section cannot be breathed into another section. Therefore, the deeming provision contained in section 80-IA(5) cannot override the provisions of section 70(1).

In this case, X Ltd. had incurred loss in eligible business (power generation) on account of claiming depreciation of ₹ 120 lakhs. Hence, section 80-IA becomes insignificant, since there is no profit from which this deduction can be claimed.

It is, thereafter, that section 70(1) comes into play, whereby an assessee is entitled to set off the losses from one source against income from another source under the same head of income. Accordingly, X Ltd. is entitled to the benefit of set off of loss of ₹ 20 lakhs (representing balance depreciation not set-off) pertaining to Unit N engaged in eligible business of power generation against profit of ₹ 70 lakhs of Unit Y carrying on non-eligible business. Therefore, the net profit of ₹ 50 lakhs would be taxable in the A.Y.2020-21.

However, once set-off is allowed under section 70(1) against income from another source under the same head, a deduction to such extent is not possible in any subsequent assessment year i.e., the loss (arising on account of balance depreciation of eligible business) so set-off under section 70(1) has to be first deducted while computing profits eligible for deduction under section 80-IA in the subsequent year. Accordingly, in the A.Y.2021-22, the net profits of Unit N has to be reduced by ₹ 20 lacs for computing the profits eligible for deduction under section 80-IA in that year.

The action of the Assessing Officer in not permitting set-off of loss of eligible business against profits of non-eligible business in this case is, therefore, not correct.

(4)	Deduction in respect of interest and principal repayment of housing loan Mr. B is eligible for a maximum deduction of ₹ 2,00,000 under section 24 in respect of interest on housing loan taken in respect of a self-occupied property, for which he is claiming benefit of "Nil" annual value. Therefore, ₹ 2,00,000 would represent his loss from house property. Further, the maximum amount eligible for deduction under section 80C should not exceed ₹ 1,50,000. Since, Mr. B has no other investment under section 80C during the previous year 2019-20, he would be eligible for deduction of ₹ 1,50,000 in respect of principal repayment of housing loan.
(5)	Contribution to National Children's Fund qualifies for 100% deduction under section 80G. Therefore, Mr. A is entitled to 100% deduction of the sum of ₹ 30,000 contributed by him by way of cheque to National Children's Fund.
(6)	Mr. B is eligible for deduction under section 80GGC in respect of donation to a political party made otherwise than by way of cash. However, cash donations to electoral trust do not qualify for deduction under section 80GGC.

Question 4

Following issues have been raised by Navi Limited in connection with its eligibility for claiming deduction under section 80-IB for your consideration and advice for the assessment year 2020-21:

- (i) It operates two separate industrial units. One unit is eligible for deduction under section 80-IB, while the other unit is not eligible for such deduction. If the eligible unit has profit and the other unit has loss, should it claim deduction after setting off the loss of the other unit against profit of the eligible unit?*
- (ii) Its profit from one unit includes sale of import entitlement, duty drawback and interest from customers for delayed payment. Is it permissible to claim deduction on these items of income?*

Answer

- (i) Section 80-IB(13) provides that the provisions contained in section 80-IA(5) shall, so far as may be, apply to the eligible business under section 80-IB. Accordingly, for the purpose of computing the deduction under section 80-IB, the profits and gains of an eligible business shall be computed as if such eligible business was the only source of income of the assessee.

Therefore, Navi Limited should claim deduction under section 80-IB on profit from the eligible unit without setting off loss suffered in the other unit. It may be noted that the aggregate deduction under Chapter VI-A, however, cannot exceed the gross total income of the assessee.

- (ii) Under section 80-IB, where the gross total income of an assessee includes any profits and gains derived from an industrial undertaking referred to in the section, there shall be allowed, in computing the total income of the assessee, a deduction from such profits and gains at the specified percentage and for such number of years as specified in the section. In CIT vs. Sterling Foods (1999) 237 ITR 579 (SC) and Liberty India vs. CIT (2009) 317 ITR 218 (SC), it was held that sale of import entitlement and duty drawback cannot be construed as income derived from industrial undertaking. Therefore, such income cannot be included in computing income for the purpose of deduction under section 80-IB.

Interest income derived by an undertaking on delayed collection of sale proceeds shall be treated as income derived from the industrial undertaking, and therefore, the same would be eligible for deduction under section 80-IB. [Phatela Cotgin Industries Private Limited vs CIT (2008) 303 ITR 411 (P & H)].

Question 5

PQR Co-operative Bank, a co-operative society, having its area of operation confined to Gubbi Taluk and the principal object of which is to provide for long-term credit for agricultural and rural development activities, has received the following amounts during the year ending 31.3.2020:

- (i) Interest amounting to ₹ 1,00,000 from its members on loans advanced to them.
- (ii) Interest amounting to ₹ 1,50,000 on deposits with other co-operative societies.
- (iii) Rent amounting to ₹ 2,00,000 from letting out its godowns for storage of commodities.

PQR Co-operative Bank seeks your advice in the matter of taxability of the above amounts and the eligibility for deduction, if any, in respect thereof for the assessment year 2020-21.

Answer

Sub-clause (viiia) to section 2(24) includes within the scope of definition of income, the profits and gains of any business of banking (including providing credit facilities) carried on by a co-operative society with its members. Hence, the interest of ₹ 1,00,000 received by PQR Co-operative Bank on loans advanced to its members constitutes its income.

Further, interest received amounting to ₹ 1,50,000 on deposits with other co-operative societies and rent amounting to ₹ 2,00,000 received from letting out its godowns for storage of commodities also constitute the income of the co-operative bank.

Sub-section (4) of section 80P provides that section 80P shall not apply to any co-operative bank other than a primary agricultural credit society or a primary co-operative agricultural and rural development bank.

Explanation to section 80P(4) defines a primary co-operative agricultural and rural development bank to mean a society having its area of operation confined to a taluk and the principal object of which is to provide for long-term credit for agricultural and rural development activities.

PQR Co-operative Bank is a primary co-operative agricultural and rural development bank as defined in the said Explanation since it is a co-operative society having its area of operation confined to Gubbi Taluk and its principal object is to provide long-term credit for agricultural and rural development activities. Therefore, it is eligible for deduction under section 80P.

Interest of ₹ 1,00,000 received by the bank on loans advanced to its members is eligible for deduction in full under section 80P(2)(a)(i).

Interest of ₹ 1,50,000 received by the bank from deposits with other co-operative societies qualifies for deduction in full under section 80P(2)(d).

Rent of ₹ 2,00,000 received by the bank from letting out its godowns for storage of commodities is eligible for deduction in full under section 80P(2)(e).

SIGNIFICANT SELECT CASES

1. Can the Commissioner reject an application for grant of approval under section 80G(5) on the ground that the trust has failed to apply 85% of its income for charitable purposes?

CIT v. Shree Govindbhai Jethalal Nathavani Charitable Trust (2015) 373 ITR 619 (Guj)

Facts of the case: The assessee trust filed an application in Form 10G for grant of approval under section 80G(5)<sup>6</sup>. It also filed copies of trust deed and registration certificate dated 18th August, 2011 with the approving authority. As per the trust deed, the main objects of the trust are educational, social activities, etc. In order to verify the facts stated in the application, the trust was asked to produce books of account, relevant vouchers, donation book and minutes in original. On perusal of the books for financial year 2011-12, it was found that the trust had not applied 85% of its income and therefore, the Commissioner rejected the application of the assessee seeking approval under section 80G(5) and Rule 11AA of the Income-tax Rules, 1962.

Tribunal's view: On appeal, the Tribunal noted the decision of Punjab and Haryana High Court in the case of CIT v. O.P. Jindal Global University (2013) 38 Taxmann 366, in which it was held that at the time of granting approval of exemption under section 80G, only the objects of the trust are required to be examined and the aspect of application of funds can be examined by the Assessing Officer at the time of framing the assessment. Consequently, the Tribunal held that the Commissioner has erred in refusing to grant recognition to the trust under section 80G(5).

High Court's Observations: The High Court was of the view that the issue in the present case is now not res integra in view of the decision of the Division Bench of this Court in the case of N.N. Desai Charitable Trust v. CIT (2000) 246 ITR 452 (Guj). In that case, the Division Bench observed that, while considering the application for the purpose of section 80G, the authority cannot act as an assessing authority and the enquiry should be confined to finding out if the institution satisfies the prescribed conditions. The Division Bench also made the following observations:

- (i) Section 80G does not relate to assessment of the trust or the institution whose income is not liable to be included in the computation of taxable income under various provisions of the Act. Primarily, section 80G is related to giving deduction in respect of donations made by a person to such trusts and institutions.

<sup>6</sup> Section 80G(5)(i) provides that donation to any institution or fund would qualify for deduction thereunder only if it is established in India for a charitable purpose and derives such income which would not be liable to inclusion in its total income under the provisions of sections 11 and 12 or section 10(23AA)/(23C).

- (ii) There are two distinct concepts. The first is whether an institution or fund is such whose income is not liable to be included in the computation of total income, has to be determined on the basis of its status or character. The second is the actual assessment of income, which necessarily takes place in future after donation is received by the donee, on fulfilment of other conditions about application of income by the eligible trusts, which in the very nature of things can operate only after receipt of income. The two are different concepts.
- (iii) The liability to assessment is neither affected on account of grant of recognition under section 80G nor on whether the donor ultimately gets deduction in respect of such donation. Once a trust is registered under section 12AA, its income from property includes donation which is covered by section 11(1)(d) or under section 12. Such donations are deemed to be income from property, which are not to be included in the total income under section 11 or section 12. The enquiry under section 80G, hence, cannot go beyond that.
- (iv) The scope of enquiry cannot include an enquiry as to whether, at the close of the previous year, the donee-trust will actually be able to apply 85% of its income because non-fulfillment of some conditions by the donee-trust as regards application or accumulation cannot be ascertained in praesenti, when the donation is made. The question of whether the trust will be able to apply 85% of its income can be determined only from the facts existing at the close of the assessment year.

The High Court also noted that similar views were expressed by the Punjab and Haryana High Court in the case of CIT v. O. P. Jindal Global University (2013) 38 Taxmann.com 366.

High Court's Decision: The High Court, thus, concurred with the decision of the Tribunal setting aside the order passed by the Commissioner refusing to grant registration under section 80G(5) to the assessee-trust due to the reason that it has not applied 85% of its income for charitable purposes.

2. Can Inland Container Depots (ICDs) be treated as infrastructure facility, for profits derived therefrom to be eligible for deduction under section 80-IA?

CIT v. Container Corporation of India Limited [2018] 404 ITR 397 (SC)

Facts of the case: M/s. Container Corporation of India Ltd. (CONCOR) is a Government company engaged in the business of handling and transportation of containerized cargo. Its operating activities are mainly carried out at its Inland Container Depots, Container Freight Stations and Port Side Container Terminals. CONCOR filed its income-tax returns for the relevant assessment years and claimed deduction under various heads including deduction under section 80-IA for profits derived from inland container depots. The claim for deduction on the profits earned from inland container depots was, however, rejected by the Assessing Officer.

Issue: The issue under consideration is whether profits derived from inland container depots can be treated as an infrastructure facility eligible for deduction under section 80-IA.

Supreme Court's Observations: Inland Container Depots function for the benefit of exporters and importers located in industrial centres which are situated at distance from sea ports. The purpose of establishing them was to promote the export and import in the country as these depots acts as a facilitator and reduce inconvenience to the exporter or importer.

Section 80-IA provides for a deduction of profits derived from operation of an infrastructure facility. The Finance Act, 2001 substituted section 80-IA(4), consequent to which the definition of "infrastructure facility" in Explanation to section 80-IA(4)(i) included an inland port. The Supreme Court observed that, considering the nature of work such as custom clearance carried out at inland container depots, it can be considered as an inland port within the meaning of section 80-IA(4). Thus, deduction under section 80-IA can be claimed in respect of income earned therefrom.

Supreme Court's Decision: The Supreme Court, accordingly, upheld the decision of the division bench of the High Court and held that CONCOR can claim for deduction under Section 80-IA in respect of profits derived from Inland Container Depots.

3. Would an assessee who enters into an agreement with the Gujarat State Road Development Corporation for an infrastructure development project be entitled to deduction under section 80-IA(4), even though as per the requirement contained therein, the agreement has to be entered into with the Central Government or State Government or a local authority or any other statutory body?

CIT v. Ranjit Projects Private Limited [2018] 408 ITR 274 (Guj)

Facts of the Case: The assessee is a private limited company engaged in implementing infrastructure development projects. For the relevant assessment year, it claimed deduction of Rs. 4.97 crores under section 80-IA(4). The assessee contended that it had undertaken a road development project, for which, it had entered into an agreement with the Gujarat State Road Development Corporation (GSRDC) which was set up by the Government for the special purpose.

The Assessing Officer doubted whether such agreement would satisfy the requirements of section 80-IA(4). The assessee, however, contended that the GSRDC was performing all the functions of the State Government and therefore, the concession agreement executed by GSRDC should be treated to have been entered into by the State Government. The Assessing Officer, however, did not accept the assessee's contention and rejected the assessee's claim of deduction under section 80-IA(4). However, the Commissioner (Appeals) and the Tribunal allowed the assessee's claim for deduction under section 80-IA(4).

Relevant provision of the Income-tax Act, 1961: Section 80-IA provides for a certain deduction in respect of profits and gains from undertakings or enterprises engaged in infrastructure development. Section 80-IA(4) provides that such section would, inter alia, apply to any enterprise carrying on the business of developing or operating and maintaining or developing, operating and maintaining any infrastructure facility. One of the conditions to be fulfilled for claiming deduction is that the assessee should have entered into an agreement with the Central Government or a State Government or a local authority or any other statutory body for developing or operating and maintaining or developing, operating and maintaining a new infrastructure facility.

Issue: The issue under consideration is whether an assessee who enters into an agreement with Gujarat State Road Development Corporation for an infrastructure development project would be entitled to deduction under section 80-IA(4), even though as per the requirement contained therein, the agreement has to be entered into with the Central Government or State Government or a local authority or any other statutory body.

High Court's Observations: The High Court observed that GSRDC is a wholly Government owned company incorporated pursuant to the State Government's resolution dated February 28, 1999. The memorandum of association shows that the Government enjoys total control over GSRDC. GSRDC was constituted by the State Government as a nodal agency for the purpose of executing road development projects through private participation. Hence, GSRDC is a Government agency as defined in section 2(e) of the Gujarat Infrastructure Development Act, 1999.

High Court's Decision: The High Court held that since the assessee has entered into an agreement with GSRDC, a government agency constituted by the State Government for the purposes of executing road development projects, it is entitled to deduction under Section 80-IA.

Note – The SLP filed by the Department against the judgement was dismissed.

4. Can unabsorbed depreciation of a business of an industrial undertaking eligible for deduction under section 80-IA be set off against income of another non-eligible business of the assessee?

CIT v. Swarnagiri Wire Insulations Pvt. Ltd. (2012) 349 ITR 245 (Kar.)

Facts of the case: The assessee was in the business of manufacture of wires. It installed a windmill for power generation. The assessee claimed depreciation on windmill against income from power generation, which was eligible for deduction under section 80-IA. The balance depreciation was set off against the profits from manufacturing of wires, being a non-eligible business.

Assessing Officer's contention: The Assessing Officer contended that depreciation relating to a business eligible for deduction under section 80-IA cannot be set off against non-eligible business income. Therefore, unabsorbed depreciation was to be carried forward to the subsequent year to be set off against the eligible business income of the assessee of that year.

Tribunal's Observations: The Tribunal observed that the balance depreciation of the eligible business is required to be carried forward for set-off against eligible business income of the next year while determining the profits eligible for deduction under section 80-IA in that year. However, the Tribunal noted that section 80-IA is a beneficial section permitting certain deduction in respect of certain income under Chapter VI-A. A provision granting tax incentive for economic growth should be construed liberally and any restriction placed should also be construed in a reasonable and purposive manner to advance the objects of the provision.

High Court's Observations and Decision: The High Court observed that it is a generally accepted principle that deeming provision of a particular section cannot be breathed into another section. Therefore, the deeming provision contained in section 80-IA(5) cannot override the provisions of section 70(1). The assessee had incurred loss in eligible business after claiming depreciation. Hence, section 80-IA becomes insignificant, since there is no profit from which this deduction can be claimed. It is thereafter that section 70(1) comes into play, whereby the assessee is entitled to set off the losses from one source against income from another source under the same head of income. The Court, therefore, held that the assessee was entitled to the benefit of set off of loss of eligible business against the profits of non-eligible business. However, once set-off is allowed under section 70(1) against income from another source under the same head, a deduction to such extent is not possible in any subsequent assessment year i.e., the loss (arising on account of balance depreciation of eligible business) so set-off under section 70(1) has to be first deducted while computing profits eligible for deduction under section 80-IA in the subsequent year.

Note – The crux of the above decision can be explained with a simple example. Let us consider a company, X Ltd., having two units, Unit A and Unit B. If Unit A engaged in eligible business (say, power generation) has a profit of ₹ 100 lacs in A.Y.2019-20, before claiming depreciation of ₹ 120 lacs and Unit B engaged in non-eligible business (say, manufacture of wires) has a profit of ₹ 70 lacs, then, as per the above decision, the loss of ₹ 20 lacs (representing balance depreciation not set-off) pertaining to Unit A can be set-off against profit of ₹ 70 lacs of Unit B carrying on non-eligible business. Therefore, the net profit of ₹ 50 lacs would be taxable in the A.Y.2019-20. If in the next year, i.e. A.Y.2020-21, the net profits of Unit A and Unit B are ₹ 200 lacs and ₹ 80 lacs, respectively, then the eligible deduction under section 80-IA for that year would be ₹ 180 lacs (i.e., ₹ 200 lacs minus ₹ 20 lacs, being loss (representing balance depreciation) set-off in the A.Y.2019-20 against other income).

5. Is the increase in gross total income consequent to disallowance under section 40(a)(ia) eligible for profit-linked deduction under Chapter VI-A?

CIT v. Sunil Vishwambharnath Tiwari (2016) 388 ITR 630 (Bom)

Facts of the case: The assessee engaged in development of housing projects filed his return of income for the relevant assessment year after claiming deduction of Rs.16.82 lakhs under section 80-IB(10) [now, section 80-IBA]. The return was selected for scrutiny. In the assessment, a sum of Rs.83 lakhs towards sub-contract payment; Rs.1.75 lakh as commission payment and Rs.7.96 lakhs towards advertisement expenses were disallowed for non-deduction of tax at source by invoking section 40(a)(ia). While based on the assessment, the total income was fixed at Rs.92.71 lakhs, the Revenue authority limited the deduction under section 80-IB(10) to the original amount claimed by the assessee.

Appellate Authorities' Views: The CIT (Appeals) held in favour of the assessee by stating that there cannot be a separate treatment for addition to income and deductions from gross total income i.e., the amount which is added to gross total income would be eligible for corresponding deduction from gross total income. The Tribunal affirmed the view of CIT (Appeals).

Issue: Whether the increase in gross total income on account of disallowance of expenditure under section 40(a)(ia) must be considered for the purpose of deduction under section 80-IB in the absence of any explicit restriction therein?

High Court's Observations: The High Court observed that the fact that the assessee had not deducted tax at source was undisputed. On account of such non-deduction, expenses had been disallowed under section 40(a)(ia) which goes on to increase the income chargeable under the head 'Profits and gains of business or profession'. As deduction under section 80-IB(10) is with reference to the assessee's gross total income, such enhanced income becomes eligible for deduction. Disallowance under section 40(a)(ia) would, thus, be tax neutral for the assessee, on account of the enhanced profit-linked deduction available to him.

High Court's Decision: Affirming the Tribunal's order, the High Court held that the assessee is entitled to claim deduction under section 80-IB(10) in respect of the enhanced gross total income as a consequence of disallowance of expenditure under section 40(a)(ia).

Notes:

- (1) Section 80-IB(10) allows deduction at 100% of the profits in respect of housing projects approved before 31.03.2008. Students may note that, presently, section 80-IBA provides for such deduction @100% of the profits and gains from housing project subject to satisfaction of the conditions mentioned therein.
- (2) The CBDT has, in its Circular No.37/2016 dated 2.11.2016, mentioned that the courts have generally held that if the expenditure disallowed is related to the business activity against which the Chapter VI-A deduction has been claimed, the deduction needs to be allowed on the enhanced profits. Thus, the settled position is that the disallowances made under sections 32, 40(a)(ia), 40A(3), 43B, etc. and other specific disallowances, relating to the business activity against which the Chapter VI-A deduction has been claimed, result in enhancement of the profits of the eligible business, and that deduction under Chapter VI-A is admissible on the profits so enhanced on account of such disallowance.

6. Can transport subsidy, interest subsidy and power subsidy received from the Government be treated as profits “derived from” business or undertaking to qualify for deduction under section 80-IB?

CIT v. Meghalaya Steels Ltd (2016) 383 ITR 217 (SC)

Facts of the case: The assessee-company, engaged in the business of manufacture of steel and ferro silicon, claimed deduction under section 80-IB on the profits and gains of the business/undertaking which included transport subsidy, interest subsidy and power subsidy received from Government.

Revenue’s Contentions: The Assessing Officer was of the view that these subsidies were not eligible for deduction under section 80-IB(4) and hence, disallowed the same, contending that the source of the subsidies was the Government and not the business of the assessee, these subsidies have a close and direct nexus with the grants of the Government and not the business of the assessee. Hence, these subsidies, included in the profits, were “attributable to the business” but not “derived from” business to qualify for deduction under section 80-IB. The Commissioner (Appeals) upheld the view of the Assessing Officer. However, the Appellate Tribunal and High Court allowed the deduction in respect of such subsidies.

Supreme Court’s Observations: The Supreme Court observed that an important test to determine whether the profits and gains are “derived from” business or an undertaking is that there should be a direct nexus between such profits and gains and the undertaking or business. Such nexus should not be only incidental. As long as profits and gains emanate directly from the business itself, the fact that the immediate source of the subsidies is the Government would make no difference. The profits and gains referred to in section 80-IB has reference to net profit, which can be calculated by deducting from the sale price of an article, all elements of cost which go into manufacturing or selling it. Thus, the profits arrived at after deducting manufacturing costs and selling costs reimbursed to the assessee by the Government, is the profits and gains “derived from” the business of the assessee.

The Supreme Court observed that section 28(iii)(b) specifically states that income from cash assistance, by whatever name called, received or receivable by any person against exports under any scheme of the Government of India, will be income chargeable to income-tax under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession”. The Apex Court further observed that if cash assistance received or receivable against exports schemes are being included as income under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession”, subsidies which go towards reimbursement of cost of production of goods of a particular business would also have to be included under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession”, and not under the head “Income from other sources”.

Supreme Court’s Decision: The Supreme Court, accordingly, held that transport subsidy, interest subsidy and power subsidy from Government were revenue receipts which were reimbursed to the assessee for elements of cost relating to manufacture or sale of their products.

Therefore, there is a direct nexus between profits and gains of the undertaking or business, and reimbursement of such subsidies. The subsidies were only in order to reimburse, wholly or partially, costs actually incurred by the assessee in the manufacturing and selling of its products. Accordingly, these subsidies qualify for deduction under section 80-IB.

7. Can Duty Drawback be treated as profit derived from the business of the industrial undertaking to be eligible for deduction under section 80-IB?

CIT v. Orchev Pharma P. Ltd. (2013) 354 ITR 227 (SC)

Supreme Court’s Decision: On this issue, the Supreme Court, following the decision in case of Liberty India v. CIT (2009) 317 ITR 218 (SC) held that Duty Drawback receipts cannot be said to be profits derived from the business of industrial undertaking for the purpose of computation of deduction under section 80-IB.

Note - In the case of Liberty India v. CIT (2009) 317 ITR 218 (SC), the Supreme Court observed that DEPB / Duty drawback are incentives which flow from the schemes framed by the Central Government or from section 75 of the Customs Act, 1962. Section 80-IB provides for the allowing of deduction in respect of profits and gains derived from eligible business. However, incentive profits are not profits derived from eligible business under section 80-IB. They belong to the category of ancillary profits of such undertaking. Profits derived by way of incentives such as DEPB/Duty drawback cannot be credited against the cost of manufacture of goods debited in the profit and loss account and they do not fall within the expression “profits derived from industrial undertaking” under section 80-IB. Hence, Duty drawback receipts and DEPB benefits do not form part of the profits derived from the eligible business for the purpose of the deduction under section 80-IB.

8. Does the period of exemption under section 80-IB commence from the year of trial production or year of commercial production? Would it make a difference if sale was effected from out of the trial production?

CIT v. Nestor Pharmaceuticals Ltd. / Sidwal Refrigerations Ind Ltd. v. DCIT (2010) 322 ITR 631 (Delhi)

Facts of the case: In this case, the assessee had started trial production in March 1998 whereas commercial production started only in April, 1998. Therefore, the assessee claimed deduction under section 80-IB for the assessment years 1999-2000 to 2003-04, whereas the Assessing Officer denied deduction for A.Y.2003-04 on the ground that the five year period would be reckoned from A.Y.1998-99, since the trial production began in March, 1998.

Tribunal's Observations: The Tribunal observed that not only the trial production had started in March 1998 but there was in fact sale of one water cooler and air-conditioner in the month of March 1998. The explanation of the assessee was that this was done to file the registration under the Excise Act and Sales-tax Act.

High Court's Observations & Decision: The High Court observed that with mere trial production, the manufacture for the purpose of marketing the goods had not started which starts only with commercial production, namely, when the final product to the satisfaction of the manufacturer has been brought into existence and is fit for marketing. However, in this case, since the assessee had effected sale in March 1998, it had crossed the stage of trial production and the final saleable product had been manufactured and sold. The quantum of commercial sale and the purpose of sale (namely, to obtain registration of excise / sales-tax) is not material. With the sale of those articles, marketable quality was established. Therefore, the conditions stipulated in section 80-IB were fulfilled with the commercial sale of the two items in that assessment year, and hence the five year period has to be reckoned from A.Y.1998-99.

Note – Though this decision was in relation to deduction under section 80-IA, as it stood prior to its substitution by the Finance Act, 1999 w.e.f. 1.4.2000, presently, it is relevant in the context of section 80-IB.

9. Can an assessee who has not claimed deduction under section 80-IB in the initial years, start claiming deduction thereunder for the remaining years during the period of eligibility, if the conditions are satisfied?

Praveen Soni v. CIT (2011) 333 ITR 324 (Delhi)

High Court's Decision: On the above issue, the Delhi High Court held that the provisions of section 80-IB nowhere stipulated a condition that the claim for deduction under this section had to be made from the first year of qualification of deduction failing which the claim will not be allowed in the remaining years of eligibility. Therefore, the deduction under section 80-IB should be allowed to the assessee for the remaining years up to the period for which his entitlement would accrue, provided the conditions mentioned under section 80-IB are fulfilled.

10. Can an assessee who has set up a new industrial undertaking and availed deduction @100% of profits under section 80-IC(3) for the five years, once again claim deduction@100% of profits on the basis of having undertaken substantial expansion thereafter?

CIT v. Classic Binding Industries [2018] 407 ITR 429 (SC)

Facts of the case: The assessee-firm started its business on July 11, 2005 and its initial assessment year for the purpose of deduction under section 80-IC was A.Y. 2006-07. The assessee claimed deduction under section 80-IC to the extent of 100 % of eligible profits for five assessment years from A.Y.2006-07 to A.Y.2010-11. Thereafter, the assessee once again claimed 100% deduction against eligible profits in the A.Y.2012-13 on the ground that it had carried out substantial expansion in the F.Y.2011-12.

The Assessing Officer restricted the deduction to 25% of the eligible profits for the assessment year under consideration, namely, A.Y.2012-13 (i.e., the seventh assessment year) on the ground that the assessee had already claimed deduction@100% of the eligible profits under section 80-IC for assessment years 2006-07 to 2010-11. The finding of the Assessing Officer was affirmed by the Commissioner (Appeals) and the Tribunal, but reversed by the High Court. Hence, the Department filed an appeal to the Supreme Court.

Relevant provision of the Income-tax Act, 1961: Section 80-IC applies to an undertaking or enterprise which has begun or begins to manufacture any specified article or thing therein by setting up a new factory, inter alia, in the State of Himachal Pradesh. As per section 80-IC(3), the category of undertakings or enterprises to which the assessee belongs, is entitled to deduction@100% of profits and gains for five assessment years commencing from the initial assessment year and, thereafter, deduction@25% of profits and gains for the next five years. The period of deduction is, thus, 10 years, namely, deduction@100% for the first five years and @25% for the remaining five years.

Issue: The issue under consideration is whether an assessee who has set up a new industrial undertaking and availed deduction@100% of profits under section 80-IC(3) for the first five years, can once again claim deduction@100% of profits on the basis of having undertaken substantial expansion thereafter in a subsequent year.

Supreme Court's Observations: The Supreme Court observed that upon a pragmatic and reasonable interpretation, once the assessee satisfies the eligibility conditions under section 80-IC and the initial assessment year commences from a certain assessment year for claim of deduction@100% of profits for a certain period, five years in this case, there cannot be another "initial assessment year", commencing after the expiry of the said period on the basis of substantial expansion.

Supreme Court's Decision: The Supreme Court held that within the period of ten years, having claimed deduction@100% of profits for the first five years, the assessee cannot once again claim deduction@100% of profits for a fresh period of five years thereafter on the basis of substantial expansion as section 80-IC (3), in no uncertain terms, provides for deduction only at 25% of profits in respect of the next five year period.

12.1 ASSESSMENT OF COMPANIES

(1) Meaning of 'Company' for purposes of income-tax

Under the Income-tax Act, 1961, the term "company" has a much wider meaning than what has been given to it under the Companies Act. The company is considered as a 'person' for all purposes of assessment proceedings [Section 2(31)(iii)].

Section 2(17) of the Income-tax Act, 1961 defines a company for income-tax purposes. Accordingly, 'company' means –

- (i) any Indian company as defined in section 2(26); or
- (ii) anybody corporate incorporated by or under the laws of a country outside India, i.e., any foreign company; or
- (iii) any institution, association or body which is assessable or was assessed as a company for any assessment year under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 or for any assessment year commencing on or before 1.4.1970 under the present Act; or
- (iv) any institution, association or body, whether incorporated or not and whether Indian or non-Indian, which is declared by a general or special order of the CBDT to be a company.

Such institution, association etc. shall be deemed to be a company for such assessment years as may be specified in the CBDT's order.

(2) Classes of Companies

- ◆ Domestic and Foreign Company: Companies can be classified into two groups, viz. (i) Domestic company and (ii) Foreign company.

- (i) Domestic company means an Indian company or any other company, which, in respect of its income liable to tax, has made the prescribed arrangements for the declaration and payment of the dividends (including dividends on preferential shares) within India, payable out of such income [Section 2(22A)].

Indian Company [Section 2(26)] - A company has to satisfy the following two conditions so that it can be regarded as an Indian company –

- (a) the company should have been formed and registered under Companies Act, 1956<sup>1</sup>
- (b) the registered office or the principal office of the company should be in India.

The expression 'Indian Company' also includes the following provided their registered or principal office is in India:

- (i) a company formed and registered under any law relating to companies which was or is in force in any part of India;

<sup>1</sup> The Companies Act, 2013

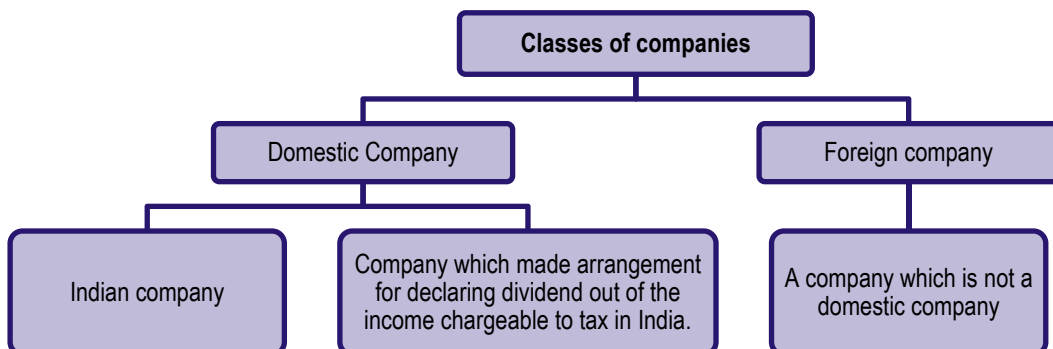

- (ii) a corporation established by or under a Central, State or Provincial Act (like Financial Corporation or a State Road Transport Corporation);
- (iii) an institution or association or body which is declared by the Board to be a company under section 2(17)(iv);
- (iv) in the case of any of the Union territories of Dadra and Nagar Haveli, Goa, Daman and Diu, and Pondicherry, a company formed and registered under any law for the time being in force in that Union territory.

Prescribed arrangements for the declaration and payment of dividends within India [Rule 27]: The arrangements referred to in sections 194 and 236 to be made by a company for declaration and payment of dividends (including dividends on preference shares) within India are as follows:

- (i) The share register of the company concerned for all its shareholders shall be maintained regularly at its principal place of business within India in respect of any assessment year from a date not later than 1st April of such year.
- (ii) The general meeting for passing the accounts of the previous year relevant to the assessment year and for declaring any dividends in respect thereof shall be held only at a place within India.
- (iii) The dividends declared, if any, shall be made payable only within India to all the shareholders.

It is obligatory for Indian companies to make the prescribed arrangements stated above; non-Indian companies will be treated as domestic companies only if they make the prescribed arrangements for the declaration and payment of dividends in India.

- (ii) Foreign Company: A company that is not a domestic company is a foreign company [Section 2(23A)].

- ◆ Closely-held and widely-held Company: Domestic companies are again divided into broad groups, viz
  - (1) companies in which public are substantially interested and
  - (2) companies in which public are not substantially interested.

The former types of companies are also referred to as 'widely-held companies' while the latter are also referred to as 'closely-held companies'.

To determine whether a company is one in which the public are substantially interested, one has to apply the tests laid down in section 2(18). Briefly, the following companies fall under this category:

- (i) A company owned by the Government (either Central or State but not Foreign) or the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) or in which not less than 40% of the shares are held by the Government or the RBI or corporation owned by that bank.
- (ii) A company which is registered under section 25 of the Companies Act, 1956<sup>2</sup> (formed for promoting commerce, arts, science, religion, charity or any other useful object and which prohibits payment of dividends to its members).
- (iii) A company having no share capital which is declared by the Board for the specified assessment years to be a company in which the public are substantially interested.
- (iv) A mutual benefit finance company which carries on its principal business of accepting deposits from its members and which is declared by the Central Government under section 620A of the Companies Act, 1956<sup>3</sup> to be Nidhi or a Mutual Benefit Society.
- (v) A company whose equity shares (not being shares entitled to a fixed rate of dividend) carrying at least 50% of the voting power have been allotted unconditionally to or acquired unconditionally by and were beneficially held throughout the relevant previous year by one or more co-operative societies.
- (vi) A company which is not a private company as defined in the Companies Act, 1956<sup>4</sup> and which fulfills any of the following conditions:
  - its equity shares should have, as on the last day of the relevant previous year, been listed in a recognized stock exchange in India; or

---

<sup>2</sup> Section 8 of Companies Act, 2013

- its equity shares carrying at least 50% (40% in case of an Indian company in ship construction business or in the manufacture or processing of goods or in mining or in generation or distribution of electricity or any other form of power) voting power should have been unconditionally allotted to or acquired by and should have been beneficially held throughout the relevant previous year by
  - (a) Government or
  - (b) a Statutory Corporation or
  - (c) a company in which public are substantially interested or
  - (d) any wholly owned subsidiary of company mentioned in (c).

Thus, it should be noted that all public limited companies must automatically be treated as companies in which public are substantially interested, whereas all private limited companies will be treated as companies in which public are not substantially interested.

◆ Relevance of the above classification:

- (1) The distinction between domestic and foreign companies is significant for the purpose of rates of tax prescribed.

Domestic companies are taxed at 30% but where the total turnover or gross receipt in the previous year 2017-18 does not exceed ₹ 400 crore, it shall be taxed at 25% of the total income. However, a foreign company will be taxed at 40%. In respect of specified royalties and fees for technical services received from Government or an Indian concern in pursuance of an agreement, approved by the Central Government, made by the foreign company with the Government or Indian concern between 1.4.1961 and 31.3.1976 (in case of royalties) and between 1.3.1964 and 31.3.1976 (in case of FTS), the rate of tax is 50%. A surcharge @ 7% of the tax payable is leviable in the case of domestic companies and @2% of tax payable in the case of foreign companies, if the total income exceeds ₹ 1 crore but does not exceed ₹ 10 crore. Surcharge@12% of the tax payable is leviable in the case of domestic companies and @5% of tax payable in the case of foreign companies, if the total income exceeds ₹ 10 crore.

Note – The Taxation Laws (Amendment) Ordinance, 2019 was promulgated by the President of India on 20.9.2019 to amend the Income-tax Act, 1961 and the Finance (No.2) Act, 2019 and is in force<sup>5</sup>. This Ordinance has inserted two new sections, section 115BAA and 115BAB, in the Income-tax Act, 1961 to be applicable from A.Y.2020-21.

Section 115BAA provides for concessional rate of tax@22% (plus surcharge@10% and HEC@4%) for domestic companies, subject to certain conditions, like non-availability of profit-linked deductions and investment-linked tax deduction under the Act, non-availability of deduction (weighted or otherwise) for contribution to research and development, additional depreciation etc.

Section 115BAB provides for concessional rate of tax@15% (plus surcharge@10% plus HEC@4%) to new manufacturing domestic companies set up and registered on or after 1.10.2019, and commences manufacturing on or before 31.3.2023, subject to certain conditions, like non-availability of profit-linked deductions and investment-linked tax deduction under the Act, non-availability of deduction (weighted or otherwise) for contribution to research and development, additional depreciation etc.

Domestic Companies have to exercise the option to be governed by these special provisions of the Act. The option for section 115BAB has to be exercised in the very first year in which the eligible company is set up, failing which it cannot exercise such option in the future years. However, a company eligible to exercise option u/s 115BAA can defer exercise of such option to a future year, if it is availing sizable profit-linked or investment-linked deductions or additional depreciation in the P.Y.2019-20. However, once the company exercises such option under section 115BAA or 115BAB, as the case may be, in a year, it would continue to be governed by the special provisions u/s 115BAA or 115BAB, as the case may be, thereafter and cannot opt for regular provisions in any subsequent year.

It may be noted that companies exercising option under section 115BAA or section 115BAB are not liable to minimum alternate tax under section 115JB.

These two sections, namely sections 115BAA and 115BAB have been detailed in Annexure – 1 at the end of this chapter. These sections would come into effect from A.Y.2020-21 after passing of the Taxation Laws (Amendment) Ordinance, 2019 by the Parliament.

- (2) The question as to whether a company is one in which public are substantially interested or not is relevant for application of certain provisions which are applicable only to closely held company.

There are certain special provisions which are applicable only to companies in which public are not substantially interested. The list of such special provisions is as follow:

S. No.	Section	Provision
1	2(22)(e)	Advance or loan by a closely held company - deemed dividend

2	56(2)(viib)	Consideration received in excess of FMV of shares issued by a closely held company to be treated as income of such company, where shares are issued at a premium
3	68	Taxation of sum received by closely held company as share application money, share capital, share premium and the explanation offered by company is not satisfactory
4	79	Carry forward and set-off of losses in case of closely held companies
5	179	Liability of directors of private company in liquidation

(3) Concessional rate of tax on dividends received by Indian companies from specified foreign companies [Section 115BBD]

- (i) Concessional rate - Dividends received by Indian companies from specified foreign companies to be subject to a concessional rate of 15% (as against the general rate of 30% applicable to Indian companies).
- (ii) No expenditure is allowed - This rate of 15% would be applied on gross dividend, in the sense, that no expenditure would be allowable in respect of such dividend.
- (iii) Meaning of specified foreign company - Specified foreign company means a foreign company in which the Indian company holds 26% or more in nominal value of the equity share capital of the company. Therefore, this concessional rate would not be applicable in respect of dividend received from a foreign company in which the holding of the Indian company is less than 26% of the nominal value of the equity share capital.

(4) Minimum Alternate Tax on companies [Section 115JB]

(i) Applicability of MAT

As per section 115JB(1), in case of company (domestic or foreign), if the income-tax payable on the total income computed under the Income-tax Act, 1961 is less than, 15% of its book profit, such book profit shall be deemed to be the total income of the assessee and the tax payable by the assessee on such total income shall be the amount of income-tax at the rate of 15% (add surcharge, if applicable, i.e., 7% for domestic companies and 2% for foreign companies, where the total income exceeds ₹ 1 crore but does not exceed ₹ 10 crore, and 12% for domestic companies and 5% for foreign companies where the total income exceeds ₹ 10 crore). Further, health and education cess @ 4% shall be added on the aggregate of income-tax and surcharge.

(ii) Maintenance of statement of profit and loss [Section 115JB(2)]

- (a) Every company other than a company referred to in clause (b) of section 115JB(2) shall for the purpose of this section, prepare its statement of profit and loss for the relevant previous year in accordance with the provisions of Schedule III to the Companies Act, 2013 [Clause (a) of section 115JB(2)].

- (b) Insurance companies, banking companies, companies engaged in generation or supply of electricity or any other class of company for which a form of financial statement has been specified in or under the Act governing such class of company, shall for the purposes of this section, prepare its statement of profit and loss for the relevant previous year in accordance with the provisions of the Act governing such company [Clause (b) of section 115JB(2)].
- (c) The section also specifies that the statement of profit and loss for the relevant previous year has to be drawn in accordance with Schedule III to the Companies Act, 2013. Further, while preparing the annual accounts,-
- (i) the accounting policies,
  - (ii) the accounting standards followed for preparing such accounts, including statement of profit and loss
  - (iii) the method and rates for calculating depreciation
- shall be the same as have been adopted for the purpose of preparing such accounts including statement of profit and loss and laid before the company at its annual general meeting.
- (d) Where the financial year adopted by the company under the Companies Act, 2013<sup>6</sup> is different from the previous year under the Income-tax Act, 1961, the accounting policies, accounting standards and methods and rates adopted for calculating depreciation shall correspond to the accounting policies followed for preparing such accounts including statement of profit and loss for the financial year.

(iii) Computation of book profit [Explanation 1 below section 115JB(2)]

For computing the book profit, the profit shall be increased by the following amounts, if the amount referred in (a) to (i) is debited to the statement of profit and loss

- (a) Income-tax: Income-tax paid or payable, and the provision therefor;

[It may be noted that income-tax includes –

- (1) dividend distribution tax under section 115-O/ tax on distributed income under section 115R;
- (2) interest;
- (3) surcharge;
- (4) health and education cess (Explanation 2 to section 115JB)].

---

<sup>6</sup> As per section 2(41) of the Companies Act, 2013, the financial year of a company shall be the period ending 31st March of every year. If a company is incorporated on or after 1st January of a year, then the financial year shall be the period ending 31st March of the following year.

- (b) Amount carried to Reserves: Amount carried to any reserves, by whatever name called;
- (c) Provisions: Amounts set aside to provisions for meeting liabilities other than ascertained liabilities;
- (d) Provisions for losses of subsidiary companies: Amount of provision for losses of subsidiary companies;
- (e) Dividends: Amount of dividends paid or proposed; or
- (f) Expenditure relatable to exempt income: Amount of expenditure relatable to any income to which section 10 or sections 11 or 12 apply;
- (fa) Expenditure relatable to share of an assessee in the income of an AOP or BOI: Amount of expenditure relatable to income, being share of the assessee in the income of an AOPs or BOIs, on which no income-tax is payable in accordance with the provisions of section 86;
- (fb) Expenditure relatable to income accruing to foreign company: The amount or amounts of expenditure relatable to income accruing or arising to an assessee, being a foreign company, from –
  - (A) the capital gains arising on transactions in securities; or
  - (B) the interest, royalty or fees for technical services chargeable to tax at the rate or rates specified in Chapter XII i.e., section 115Aif the income-tax payable thereon in accordance with the provisions of the Act, other than the provisions of this Chapter, is at a rate less than 15%;
- (fc) Notional loss on the units of business trust: The amount representing-
  - notional loss on transfer of a capital asset, being share or a special purpose vehicle to a business trust in exchange of units allotted by that trust; or
  - notional loss resulting from any change in carrying amount of said units or
  - loss on transfer of such units
- (fd) Amount of expenditure relatable to income referred under section 115BBF: The amount or amounts of expenditure relatable to income by way of royalty in respect of patent chargeable to tax under section 115BBF;
- (g) Depreciation: The amount of depreciation;
- (h) Deferred tax: The amount of deferred tax and provision therefor;
- (i) Provision for diminution in the value of any asset: The amount set aside as provision for diminution in the value of any asset.

- (j) Amount standing in the revaluation reserve: The profit shall also be increased by the amount standing in revaluation reserve relating to the revalued asset on the retirement or disposal of such asset, in case the same is not credited to the profit and loss account.
- (k) Amount of gain arise on transfer units of business trust: When units of business trust are actually transferred, the amount of gain on such transfer has to be added to compute the book profit, since notional gains on transfer of share of a special purpose vehicle to a business trust in exchange for the units of the business trust and notional gains resulting from change in carrying amount of such units have been deducted to compute book profit.

In a case where the shares are carried at cost: The amount of gain has to be computed by taking into consideration the cost of shares exchanged with the units of the business trust.

In a case where the shares are carried at a value other than the cost through statement of profit and loss: The carrying amount of shares at the time of exchange would be taken into consideration for computing the amount of gain. The amount of gain on such transfer, if any, credited to statement of profit and loss will be reduced.

The profit shall be reduced by the following amounts:

- (i) Amount withdrawn from any reserve: The amount withdrawn from any reserve or provision, if any such amount is credited to the statement of profit and loss.
However, the amount withdrawn from reserves/ provisions shall not be reduced from the book profit unless the book profit of that year has been increased by those reserves/ provisions;
- (ii) Exempt income: Amount of income to which section 10 or sections 11 or 12 apply, if such amount is credited to the statement of profit and loss;
- (iia) Depreciation: The amount of depreciation debited to the statement of profit and loss (excluding the claim of depreciation on account of revaluation of assets);
- (iib) Amount withdrawn from the revaluation reserve: The amount withdrawn from the revaluation reserve and credited to the statement of profit and loss, to the extent it does not exceed the amount of depreciation on revaluation of assets;
- (iic) Share of the assessee in the income of an AOPs or BOIs: The amount of income, being the share of the assessee in the income of an AOPs or BOIs, on which no income-tax is payable in accordance with the provisions of section 86, if any such amount is credited to the statement of profit and loss;
- (iid) Income accruing to foreign company: The amount of income accruing or arising to an assessee, being a foreign company, from, -
  - (A) the capital gains arising on transactions in securities; or

(B) the interest, royalty or fees for technical services chargeable to tax at the rate or rates specified in Chapter XII i.e., section 115A,

if such income is credited to the statement of profit and loss and the income-tax payable thereon in accordance with the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961, other than the provisions of Chapter XII-B, is at a rate less than 15%;

(iie) Notional gain on the units of business trust: The amount representing –

(A) the notional gain on transfer of a capital asset, being a share of a SPV to a business trust in exchange of units allotted by the business trust;

(B) notional gain resulting from any change in carrying amount of said units;

(C) gain on transfer of such units,

if any, credited to statement of profit and loss;

(iif) Loss on transfer of units: The amount of loss on transfer of units acquired in exchange of shares of SPV computed by taking into account the cost of the shares exchanged with the units, where the shares are carried at cost. In case shares are carried at a value other than cost through statement of profit and loss, the amount of loss on transfer of such units has to be computed by taking into account the carrying amount of the shares at the time of exchange;

(iih) Brought forward loss and unabsorbed depreciation: Aggregate amount of unabsorbed depreciation and loss brought forward in case of a –

(A) company, and its subsidiary and the subsidiary of such subsidiary, where, the Tribunal, on an application moved by the Central Government under section 241 of the Companies Act, 2013 has suspended the Board of Directors of such company and has appointed new directors who are nominated by the Central Government under section 242 of the said Act;

(B) company against whom an application for corporate insolvency resolution process has been admitted by the Adjudicating Authority under section 7 or section 9 or section 10 of the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code, 2016.

It may be noted that loss does not include depreciation.

A company would be a subsidiary of another company if such other company holds more than half in the nominal value of equity share capital of the company.

- (iii) Brought forward loss or unabsorbed depreciation in case of other companies: Amount of brought forward loss or unabsorbed depreciation, whichever is less, in case of other companies as per books of account.

The loss shall not include depreciation; If either the figure of brought forward loss or unabsorbed depreciation is “NIL”, no deduction will be allowed from the book profit of the relevant year;

- (vii) Profits of sick industrial company: The amount of profits of a sick industrial company (BIFR company) commencing from the previous year in which the company became sick and ending with the assessment year during which the entire net worth of such company becomes equal to or exceeds the accumulated losses. For this purpose, “net worth” shall have the same meaning as assigned under section 3(1)(ga) of the Sick Industrial Companies (Special Provisions) Act, 1985.

- (viii) Deferred tax: The amount of deferred tax, if any such amount is credited to the statement of profit and loss.

(iv) Computation of Book Profit for Ind AS compliant companies:

The Central Government has notified the Indian Accounting Standards (Ind AS) which are converged with International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) and prescribed the Companies (Indian Accounting Standards) Rules, 2015 which lay down the roadmap for implementation of these Ind AS.

As the book profit based on Ind AS compliant financial statements is likely to be different from the book profit based on existing Indian GAAP, sub-sections (2A), (2B) and (2C) of section 115JB provides the framework for computation of book profit for Ind AS compliant companies in the year of adoption and thereafter.

I MAT on Ind AS compliant financial statement [Section 115JB(2A)]

In case of a company whose financial statements are drawn up in compliance with the Indian Accounting Standards (Ind ASs) specified in Annexure to the Companies (Indian Accounting Standards) Rules, 2015, the following additional adjustments shall be done to the book profit as computed above in point no. (iii) as per section 115JB(2) read with Explanation 1-

- (a) increased by all amounts credited to other comprehensive income in the statement of profit and loss under the head "Items that will not be re-classified to profit or loss";
- (b) decreased by all amounts debited to other comprehensive income in the statement of profit and loss under the head "Items that will not be re-classified to profit or loss";

However, no adjustment shall be made where the amount credited or debited to other comprehensive income under the head "Items that will not be re-classified to profit or loss", in respect of —

- (i) Revaluation surplus for assets in accordance with the Indian Accounting Standards 16 and Indian Accounting Standards 38; or
- (ii) Gains or losses from investments in equity instruments designated at fair value through other comprehensive income in accordance with the Indian Accounting Standards 109. [First proviso to section 115JB(2A)]

However, the book profit of the previous year, in which such asset or investment is retired, disposed, realised or otherwise transferred, shall be increased or decreased, as the case may be, by the amount or the aggregate of the amounts as referred to in the first proviso for the previous year or any of the preceding previous years and relatable to such asset or investment [Second proviso to section 115JB(2A)]

The other comprehensive income (OCI) includes certain items that will permanently be recorded in reserves and hence, never be reclassified to the statement of profit and loss included in the computation of book profits. These items shall be included in book profit for MAT purposes at the point of time as specified below-

Sl.No	Items	Point of time
1	Changes in revaluation surplus of Property, Plant or Equipment (PPE) and Intangible assets (Ind AS 16 and Ind AS 38)	To be included in book profits at the time of realisation/ disposal/ retirement or otherwise transferred
2	Gains and losses from investments in equity instruments designated at fair value through other comprehensive income (Ind AS 109)	To be included in book profits at the time of realisation/ disposal/ retirement or otherwise transferred
3	Remeasurements of defined	To be included in book profits every year as the re-measurements gains

	benefit plans (Ind AS 19)	and losses arise
4	Any other item	To be included in book profits every year as the gains and losses arise

- (c) Increased by amounts or aggregate of the amounts debited to the statement of profit and loss on distribution of non-cash assets to shareholders in a demerger in accordance with Appendix A of the Indian Accounting Standards 10;
- (d) Decreased by all amounts or aggregate of the amounts credited to the statement of profit and loss on distribution of non-cash assets to shareholders in a demerger in accordance with Appendix A of the Indian Accounting Standards 10;

Appendix A of Ind AS 10 provides that any distributions of non-cash assets to shareholders in a demerger shall be accounted for at fair value. The difference between the carrying value of the assets and the fair value is recorded in the statement of profit and loss.

Correspondingly, the reserves are debited at fair value to record the distribution as a 'deemed dividend' to the shareholders. As there is a corresponding adjustment in retained earnings, this difference arising on demerger shall be excluded from the book profits.

- II Sub-section (2B) states that in demerger, in the case of a resulting company, the property and the liabilities of the undertaking or undertakings being received by it are recorded at values different from values appearing in the books of account of the demerged company immediately before the demerger, any change in such value shall be ignored for the purpose of computation of book profit of the resulting company under this section.
- III MAT on first time adoption [Section 115JB(2C)]:

In case of Ind AS compliant company, the book profit of the year of convergence and each of the following four previous years, shall be further increased or decreased, as the case may be, by one fifth of the transition amount.

In the first year of adoption of Ind AS, the companies would prepare Ind AS financial statement for reporting year with a comparative financial statement for immediately preceding year. As per Ind AS 101, a company would make all Ind AS adjustments on the opening date of the comparative financial year. The entity is also required to present an equity reconciliation between previous Indian GAAP and Ind AS amounts, both on the opening date of preceding year as well as on the closing date of the preceding year.

For the purposes of computation of book profits of the year of adoption and for adjustments, the amounts adjusted as on the opening date of the first year of adoption shall be considered.

For example, companies which adopt Ind AS with effect from 1 April 2016 are required to prepare their financial statements for the year 2016-17 as per the requirements of Ind AS. Such companies are also required to prepare an opening balance sheet as of 1st April 2015 and restate the financial statements for the comparative period 2015-16.

In such a case, the first time adoption adjustments as of 31 March 2016 shall be considered for computation of MAT liability for previous year 2016-17 (Assessment year 2017-18) and thereafter.

Further, in this case, the five years period shall be previous years 2016-17, 2017-18, 2018-19, 2019-20 and 2020-21.

However, the book profit of the previous year in which the asset or investment referred to in sub clauses (B) to (E) of clause (iii) of the Explanation is retired, disposed, realised or otherwise transferred shall be increased or decreased, as the case may be, by the amount of the aggregate of the amounts referred to in the said sub-clause relating to such asset or investment: [First proviso to section 115JB(2C)]

Further, the book profit of the previous year in which the foreign operation referred to in sub clause (F) of clause (iii) of the Explanation is disposed or otherwise transferred, shall be increased or decreased, as the case may be, by the amount of the aggregate of the amounts referred to in the said sub-clause relating to such foreign operations. [Second proviso to sub-section (2C)]

Transitional adjustments: Analysis

(i)	The adjustments arising on account of transition to Ind AS from existing Indian GAAP is required to be recorded directly in Other Equity at the date of transition to Ind AS. These adjustments has to be made in the following manner:
(a)	The book profit of the year of convergence and the following four previous years shall be increased or decreased with the transitional adjustments recorded directly in Other Equity excluding capital reserve and securities premium reserve and excluding the amounts referred in (A) to (F) (in the definition of Transition Amount), on the convergence date.
(b)	Those adjustments recorded in other comprehensive income referred in (A) above (in the definition of Transition Amount) and which would subsequently be reclassified to the profit and loss, shall be included in book profits in the year in which these are reclassified to the profit and loss, therefore these amounts are excluded from the transition amount.
(c)	Those adjustments recorded in other comprehensive income referred in (B) and (C) (in the definition of Transition Amount) above and which would never be subsequently reclassified to the profit and loss shall be included in book profits as specified hereunder:

(iii)	Section 115JB of the Act already provides for adjustments on account of deferred tax and its provision. Any deferred tax adjustments recorded in Reserves and Surplus on account of transition to Ind AS shall also be ignored.

(v) Clarifications on computation of book profit for the purposes of levy of Minimum Alternate Tax (MAT) under section 115JB of the Income-tax Act, 1961 for Ind AS compliant companies [Circular No. 24/2017 dated 25.07.2017]

After amendment in section 115JB for computation of book profit for the purposes of levy of Minimum Alternate Tax (MAT) for Indian Accounting Standards (Ind AS) compliant companies, CBDT received representations from various stakeholders seeking clarifications on certain issues arising therefrom.

Accordingly, the CBDT has vide this circular, clarified these issues by way of the following FAQs:

Question 1: The profit for the period may include Marked to market (MTM) gains/ losses on account of fair value adjustments on various financial instruments recognised through profit or loss (FVTPL). A situation may arise where the losses on account of fair value adjustments could be added back in view of clause (i) of Explanation 1 to section 115JB(2) of the Act. Whether the losses on such instruments require any adjustment for computing book profits for the purposes of MAT?

Answer: Since MTM gains recognised through profit or loss on FVTPL classified financial instruments are included in book profits for MAT computation, it is clarified that MTM losses on such instruments recognised through profit or loss shall not require any adjustments as provided under clause (i) of Explanation 1 to section 115JB(2) of the Act. However, in case of provision for diminution/ impairment in value of assets other than FVTPL financial instruments, the existing adjustment of clause (i) of Explanation 1 to section 115JB (2) of the Act shall apply.

It is further clarified that for financial instruments where gains and losses are recognised through Other Comprehensive income (OCI), the amended provisions of MAT shall continue to apply.

Question 2: For the purposes of section 115JB of the Act, what shall be the starting point for computing Book profits for Ind AS compliant companies? Whether Profit before other comprehensive income [Item number XIII in Part 2 (Statement of Profit and Loss) of Division II of Schedule III to the Companies Act 2013] or Total Comprehensive Income (including other comprehensive income) [Item number XV in Part 2 (Statement of Profit and Loss) of Division II of Schedule III to the Companies Act 2013] shall be the starting point?

Answer: Starting point for computing Book profits for Ind AS compliant companies shall be Profit before other comprehensive income [Item number XIII in Part 2 (Statement of Profit and Loss) of Division II of Schedule III to the Companies Act 2013].

Question 3: As per Explanation to Section 115JB(2C) of the Act, the convergence date is defined as the first day of the first Indian Accounting standards reporting period as defined in Ind AS 101. The Memorandum explaining the provisions of the Finance Bill 2017 mentions that the adjustment as on the last day of the comparative period is to be considered. It may be clarified as to what would be the appropriate manner for computation of transition amount on convergence date, 1st April i.e. at the start of the day or at the end of the day?

Answer: In the first year of adoption of Ind AS, the companies would prepare Ind AS financial statement for reporting year with a comparative financial statement for immediately preceding year. As per Ind AS 101, a company would make all Ind AS adjustments on the opening date of the comparative financial year. The entity is also required to present an equity reconciliation between previous Indian GAAP and Ind AS amounts, both on the opening date of preceding year as well as on the closing date of the preceding year. The amounts as on start of the opening date of the first year of adoption should be considered for the purposes of computation of transition amount.

For example, companies which adopt Ind AS with effect from 1st day of April 2016 are required to prepare their financial statements for the year 2016-17 as per requirements of Ind AS. Such companies are also required to prepare an opening balance sheet as of 1st day of April 2015 and restate the financial statements for the comparative period 2015-16. In such a case, the first time adoption adjustments as of 31st day of March 2016 should be considered [i.e. the start of business on 1st day of April 2016 (or, equivalently, close of business on 31st day of March 2016)] for computation of MAT liability for previous year 2016-17 (Assessment year 2017-18) and thereafter.

Question 4: As per Indian GAAP, proposed dividend was required to be recognized in the financial statements for the year for which it pertained to even though these were declared in the subsequent year. Section 115JB of the Act already provides for adjustments for dividend for computation of book profit. As per Ind AS, the amount of proposed dividend (including dividend distribution taxes) is required to be recognized in the year in which it has been declared rather than the year for which it pertains to. Accordingly, on transition to Ind AS, the amount of proposed dividend for FY 2015-16 which was recognized in profit and loss account in FY 2015-16 is required to be reversed and credited to Retained Earnings. For the computation of MAT, whether these balances would form part of the transition amount and thus be adjusted over a period of 5 years?

Answer: Adjustment of proposed dividend (including dividend distribution taxes) shall not form part of the transition amount.

Question 5: Under Ind AS, adjustments on the transition date may have a corresponding impact on deferred taxes. Should the deferred taxes on such amounts be considered for the purpose of transition amount?

Answer: Any deferred taxes adjustments recorded on the transition date shall be ignored for the purpose of computing Transition Amount.

Question 6: As mentioned in Question No.1, clause (i) of Explanation 1 to Section 115JB(2) of the Act provides for adjustments for computation of book profit for the amount or amounts set aside as provision for diminution in the value of any asset. Convergence date adjustments may include adjustment for Provision for Bad and Doubtful Debts (Expected Credit Loss adjustment) at the time of transition. Whether these adjustments would form part of the transition amount referred to in section 115JB(2C) of the Act?

Answer: Adjustments relating to provision for diminution in the value of any assets other than the ones mentioned in Question Number 1 above, shall not be considered for the purpose of computation of the Transition Amount. Therefore, adjustments relating to provision for doubtful debts shall not be considered for the purpose of computation of the transition amount.

Question 7: Under Section 115JB of the Act, transition amount has been defined as the amount or the aggregate of the amounts adjusted in the 'Other Equity' (excluding capital reserve and securities premium reserve) on the convergence date. Whether changes in share application money on reclassification to 'Other Equity' would form part of the Transition Amount?

Answer: Share application money pending allotment which is reclassified to Other Equity on transition date shall not be considered for the purpose of computing Transition Amount.

Question 8: Under Ind AS, Investments in preference share is considered to be a liability and the corresponding dividend expense is debited to Profit and loss account as interest cost. Should such interest expenses on preference shares be deducted for the purpose of MAT computation?

Answer: For the purpose of computation of MAT, profit/Transition Amount shall be increased by dividend/interest on preference share (including dividend distribution taxes) whether presented as dividend or interest.

Question 9: How do we account for items such as equity component, if any, of financial instruments like Non-Convertible debentures (NCDs), Interest free loan etc. included in other equity as per Ind AS for the computation of transition amount under MAT?

Answer: Items such as equity component of financial instruments like NCD's, Interest free loan etc. would be included in the Transition Amount.

Question 10: Where revaluation/fair value adjustments have been made to items of Property, Plant & Equipment (PPE) under Ind AS, as per section 115JB of the Act, the book profit of the previous year in which the items of PPE are retired, disposed or realised shall be increased or decreased, as the case may be, by the revaluation amount relating to such items of PPE. Whether the revaluation amount to be considered for adjustment should be the gross amount of the revaluation or the amount after adjustment of the depreciation on the revaluation amount?

Answer: The book profit of the previous year in which the items of PPE are retired, disposed, realised or otherwise transferred shall be increased or decreased, as the case may be, by the revaluation amount after adjustment of the depreciation on the revaluation amount relating to such asset. This has been explained by an illustration as under:

Particulars	Erstwhile Indian GAAP	Ind-AS (considering fair value/revaluation adjustment on PPE)	Fair Value/ Revaluation Adjustments and corresponding depreciation
WDV/Deemed Cost as on 1 April 2015	100	1000	900
Depreciation @ 10% for F.Y. 2015-16	10	100	90
WDV as on 1 April 2016	90	900	810
Depreciation @ 10% for F.Y. 2016-17	9	90	81
WDV as on 1 April 2017	81	810	729*
Sale value as on 1 April 2017	900	900
Profit on sale credited to P & L	819	90
Adjustment for MAT - revaluation amount after adjustment of the depreciation	0	729*
Profit on sale to be considered for MAT	819	819

Question 11: How should adjustments for service concession arrangements be treated for the purpose of computation of book profit under MAT?

Answer: Adjustments on account of Service Concession arrangements would be included in the Transition Amount and also on an ongoing basis.

Question 12: Existing clause (iii) of explanation to section 115JB(2) of the Act provides for deduction of lower of the amount of loss brought forward or unabsorbed depreciation as per books of account for computation of book profits. In case where, on adjustment of transition amount, the losses as per books of account gets wiped off, whether deduction for the said amount would be available for assessment year 2017-2018 onwards?

Answer: For assessment year 2017-2018, the deduction of lower of depreciation or losses shall be allowed based on the position as on 31 March 2016. For the subsequent periods, the position as per books of account drawn as per Ind AS shall be considered for computing lower of loss brought forward or unabsorbed depreciation.

Question 13: How Capital Reserves or Securities Premium existing as per old Indian GAAP reclassified to Retained Earnings/ Other Reserves on Convergence date be treated for MAT purpose.

Answer: The Capital Reserves or Securities Premium existing as on the convergence date as per the erstwhile Indian GAAP which are reclassified to Retained Earnings/ Other Reserves under Ind AS and vice versa, shall not be considered for the purposes of Transition Amount.

It is further clarified, that even after such reclassifications, the amount of revaluation reserve shall continue to be considered as revaluation reserve for the purposes of computation of book profit and shall also include transfer to any other reserves by whatever name called or capitalised.

Question 14: Companies which follow accounting year other than March, 2017 ending for Companies Act purposes and are required to transition to Ind AS will have to prepare financial statements for MAT purposes for FY 2016-17 partly under Indian GAAP and partly under Ind AS. How should such companies compute MAT on transition to Ind AS?

Answer: In view of second proviso to section 115JB(2) of the Act, companies will be required to follow Indian GAAP for the pre-convergence period and Ind AS for the balance period.

For example, a Company following December ending will be required to prepare, accounts for MAT purposes under Indian GAAP for 9 months upto December 2016 and under Ind AS for 3 months thereafter. The transition amount will be calculated with reference to 1st January, 2017.

(vi) Compulsory filing of return of income and furnishing of report from Chartered Accountant

The section also provides that every company to which this section applies shall furnish, along with the return of income filed under section 139(1) or in response to a notice under section 142(1)(i), a report from a chartered accountant certifying that the book profit has been computed in accordance with the provisions of this section [Section 115JB(4)].

(vii) Allowability of carry forward of losses

In respect of the relevant previous year, the amounts determined under the provisions of section 32(2) or section 72(1)(ii) or section 73 or section 74 or section 74A(3), shall be allowed to be carried forward [Section 115JB(3)].

(viii) Applicability of other provisions of the Act

All other provisions of the Act shall apply to every assessee, being a company mentioned in this section [Section 115JB(5)].

(ix) Non-applicability of MAT [Section 115JB(5A)].

The provisions of MAT u/s 115JB shall not apply to any income accruing or arising to a company from life insurance business referred to in section 115B

(x) Non-applicability of MAT in respect of certain foreign companies

Explanation 4 to section 115JB with retrospective effect from 01.04.2001 provides for non-applicability of levy of MAT under section 115JB in the following cases:

	Existence of DTAA with the country of residence of the foreign company	Additional condition to be satisfied for non-applicability of MAT
(i)	The foreign company is a resident of a country or a specified territory with which India has a DTAA under section 90(1) or the Central Government has adopted any agreement between specified associations for double taxation relief under section 90A(1)	It should not have a permanent establishment in India in accordance with the provisions of such Agreement
(ii)	The foreign company is a resident of a country with which India does not have an agreement of the nature referred to in clause (i) above	It is not required to seek registration under any law for the time being in force relating to companies.

Explanation 4A to section 115JB has been inserted with retrospective effect from 01.04.2001 to clarify that MAT provisions shall not be applicable to an assessee, being a foreign company, where its total income comprises solely of profits and gains from business referred to in section 44B or section 44BB or section 44BBA and such income has been offered to tax at the presumptive rates specified in these sections.

(xi) Concessional rate of MAT for unit located in IFSC

In case of a company, being a unit located in International Financial Services Centre and deriving its income solely in convertible foreign exchange, the minimum alternate tax shall be chargeable at the rate of 9% instead of 15%. [Section 115JB(7)]

A domestic company, ABC Ltd., furnishes the following particulars in respect of Assessment Year 2020-21 and seeks your opinion on the application of section 115JB. You are also required to compute the total income and tax payable.

(1)	Profits as per Statement of profit and loss as per the Companies Act, 2013	₹ 215 Lacs
(2)	Statement of Profit and Loss includes:
	(a) Credits: Dividend income from Indian companies	₹ 20 Lacs
	Excess realized on sale of land held as investment	₹ 30 Lacs
	(b) Debits: Depreciation on straight line method basis	₹ 100 Lacs
	Provision for loss of subsidiary company	₹ 60 Lacs
(3)	Depreciation allowable as per the Income-tax Rules, 1962	₹ 150 Lacs

- (4) Short term Capital gains on sale of land mentioned above as computed under Income-tax Act, 1961 ₹ 40 Lacs
- (5) Losses brought forward as per books of account and as per Income-tax Act, 1961:
- |                         |           |
|-------------------------|-----------|
| Business loss           | ₹ 50 Lacs |
| Unabsorbed depreciation | ₹ 60 Lacs |

The company has represented to you that the excess realized on sale of land cannot form part of the book profit for purposes of section 115JB. You will have to deal with this issue assuming that ABC Ltd. is not required to comply with the Indian Accounting Standards. Ignore the provisions of section 115BAA.

Note - The turnover of ABC Ltd. for the P.Y.2017-18 was ₹ 390 crore.

SOLUTION

In the case of a company, it has been provided that where tax on 15% of book profit exceeds tax on total income computed as per normal provisions, the book profit shall be deemed to be the total income for tax purposes.

It is therefore necessary to compute total income as per Income-tax Act, 1961 as well as book profits.

I. Computation of Total income as per the Income-tax Act, 1961

Particulars	₹ (in Lacs)
Net profit as per statement of profit and loss		215
Add: Depreciation debited to statement of profit and loss	100
Provision for losses of subsidiary company	60	160
		375
Less: Dividend income – exempt under section 10(34)	20
Excess realized on sale of land (considered separately)	30
Depreciation allowable as per Income-tax Rules, 1962	150	200
Business Income		175
Less: Set-off of brought forward business loss		50
		125
Capital gains (Short term capital gains)		40
		165
Less: Set-off of unabsorbed depreciation		60
Total Income as per Income-tax Act, 1961		105

II. Computation of book profit under section 115JB

Particulars	₹ in Lacs
Net profit as per statement of profit and loss		215
Add: Provision for loss of subsidiary		60
Depreciation		100
		375
Less: Dividend income exempt under section 10(34)	20
Depreciation	100
Business loss which is less than unabsorbed depreciation	50	170
“Book Profit”		205

III. Computation of Tax liability under the normal provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961

Total income as per the Income-tax Act, 1961 is ₹ 105 Lacs,

Particulars	₹
Tax payable ₹ 105 Lacs @ 25%, since the turnover of the company for the previous year 2017-18 does not exceed ₹ 400 crore.	26,25,000
Add: Surcharge @ 7%	1,83,750
	28,08,750
Add: Health and education cess @ 4%	1,12,350
Total Tax payable	29,21,100

IV. Computation of Minimum Alternate Tax

Particulars	₹
Tax @ 15% of book profit of ₹ 205 lacs	30,75,000
Add: Surcharge @ 7%	2,15,250
	32,90,250
Add: Health and education cess @ 4%	1,31,610
Minimum Alternate Tax payable	34,21,860

Since 15% of book profit exceeds the tax payable as per the Income-tax Act, 1961, the book profit of ₹ 205 lacs would be deemed to be the total income and the tax payable on such total income shall be 15% thereof i.e. ₹ 30,75,000 plus surcharge @ 7% being ₹ 2,15,250 plus health and education cess @ 4% (of tax and surcharge) being ₹ 1,31,610. Total tax liability would be ₹ 34,21,860.

Note: With regard to the company's representation, in respect of capital gain whether liable for book profit tax under section 115JB, it may be noted that since the excess realized on sale of land has been included in net profit computed under Schedule III of the Companies Act, 2013, it will form part of book profit [Bombay High Court judgment in CIT v. Veekay Lal Investment Co. Pvt. Ltd. (2001) 249 ITR 597].

ILLUSTRATION 2

Maitri Jeans (P) Ltd. is in the business of manufacturing jeans. For the assessment year 2020-21, it paid tax @ 15% on its book profit computed under section 115JB. The Assessing Officer though satisfied that it is liable to pay book profit tax U/s. 115JB, wants to charge interest under sections 234B and 234C as no advance tax was paid during the financial year 2019-20. The company seeks your opinion on the proposed levy of interest. Advice.

SOLUTION

The issue under consideration is whether interest under sections 234B and 234C can be levied where a company is assessed on the basis of its book profit under section 115JB.

The Supreme Court, in Joint CIT v. Rolta India Ltd. (2011) 330 ITR 470, observed that there is a specific provision in section 115JB(5) providing that all other provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 shall apply to every assessee, being a company, mentioned in that section. Section 115JB is a self-contained code pertaining to MAT, and by virtue of sub-section (5) thereof, the liability for payment of advance tax would be attracted.

According to section 207, tax shall be payable in advance during any financial year, in accordance with the provisions of sections 208 to 219 (both inclusive), in respect of the total income of the assessee which would be chargeable to tax for the assessment year immediately following that financial year.

Under section 115JB(1), where the tax payable on total income is less than 15% of "book profit" of a company, the "book profit" would be deemed to be the total income and tax would be payable at the rate of 15%.

Since in such cases, the book profit is deemed to be the total income, therefore, as per the provisions of section 207, tax shall be payable in advance in respect of such book profit (which is deemed to be the total income) also.

Therefore, if a company defaults in payment of advance tax in respect of tax payable under section 115JB, it would be liable to pay interest under sections 234B and 234C.

Therefore, even though Maitri Jeans (P) Ltd. is assessed on the basis of its book profit under section 115JB for A.Y.2020-21, it is liable to pay advance tax. Since Maitri Jeans (P) Ltd. has not paid any advance tax during the financial year 2019-20, the levy of interest under section 234B and 234C is valid.

Computation of "Book Profit" for levy of MAT under section 115JB for A.Y.2020-21

Particulars	₹	₹
Net Profit as per Statement of Profit and Loss		15,00,000
Add: Net profit to be increased by the following amounts as per Explanation 1 to section 115JB:

- Provision for the loss of subsidiary	70,000
- Provision for doubtful debts, being the amount set aside as provision for diminution in the value of any asset	75,000
- Provision for income-tax [As per Explanation 2 to section 115JB, income-tax shall include, inter alia , any interest charged under the Act. Therefore, whole of the amount of provision for income-tax including ₹ 45,000 towards interest payable has to be added]	1,05,000
- Depreciation	3,60,000	6,10,000
		21,10,000
Less: Net profit to be decreased by the following amounts as per Explanation 1 to section 115JB:
- Share in income of an AOP as a member [In a case, where AOP has paid tax on its total income at maximum marginal rate, no income-tax is payable by the company, being a member of AOP, in accordance with the provisions of section 86. Therefore, share in income of an AOP on which no income-tax is payable in accordance with the provisions of section 86, would be reduced while computing book profit, since the same has been credited to statement of profit and loss]	1,00,000
- Income from units in UTI [Income from units in UTI shall be reduced while computing the book profits, since the same is exempt under section 10(35)]	75,000

- Unabsorbed depreciation or brought forward business loss, whichever is less, as per the books of account. [Lower of unabsorbed depreciation ₹ 4,00,000 and brought forward business loss ₹ 6,00,000 as per books of accounts has to be reduced while computing the book profit]	4,00,000	7,85,000
Book Profit		13,25,000

Computation of MAT liability under section 115JB

Particulars	₹
15% of book profit	1,98,750
Add: Health and education cess @ 4%	7,950
Minimum Alternate Tax liability	2,06,700

Notes:

- (1) It is only the specific items mentioned under Explanation 1 to section 115JB, which can be adjusted from the net profit as per the Statement of Profit and Loss prepared as per the Companies Act for computing book profit for levy of MAT. Since the following items are not specified thereunder, the same cannot be adjusted for computing book profit:
  - Interest to financial institution (unpaid before filing of return) and
  - Penalty for infraction of law
- (2) Provision for gratuity based on actuarial valuation is an ascertained liability [CIT v. Echjay Forgings (P) Ltd. (2001) 251 ITR 15 (Bom.)]. Hence, the same should not be added back to compute book profit.
- (3) As per proviso to section 115JB(6), the profits from unit established in special economic zone cannot be excluded while computing the book profit, and hence, such income would be liable for MAT.
- (4) Long-term capital gains cannot be deducted while computing book profit even if such amount of capital gains is invested in specified assets under section 54EC, since book profit has to be computed by adding/ deducting the items mentioned under Explanation 1 to section 115JB alone. Capital Gains reflected in the statement of profit and loss shall be part of book profit under section 115JB. Capital gains exempted under section 54EC cannot also be excluded for computing book profit. [CIT v. Veekaylal Investment Co. P. Ltd. (2001) 249 ITR 597 (Bom.) & N J Jose and Co. (P) Ltd. v. ACIT (2010) 321 ITR 132 (Ker.)]

(xii) Set-off of credit of tax paid under section 115JB [Section 115JAA]

- (1) This section provides that where tax is paid in any assessment year in relation to the deemed income under section 115JB(1), the excess of tax so paid over and above the tax payable under the other provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961, will be allowed as tax credit in the subsequent years. However, no interest would be payable on the tax credit allowed.
- (2) The tax credit is, therefore, the difference between the tax paid under section 115JB(1) and the tax payable on the total income computed in accordance with the other provisions of the Act.
- (3) This tax credit is allowed to be carried forward for 15 assessment years succeeding the assessment year in which the credit became allowable.
- (4) Such credit is allowed to be set off against the tax payable on the total income in an assessment year in which the tax is computed in accordance with the provisions of the Act, other than 115JB, to the extent of excess of such tax payable over the tax payable on book profits in that year.
- (5) Where as a result of order passed, the amount of tax payable is reduced or increased, the amount of tax credit allowed shall also be reduced or increased accordingly.

- (6) In case of conversion of a private company or unlisted public company into an LLP, the tax credit under section 115JAA for MAT paid by the company under section 115JB would not be allowed to the successor LLP.
- (7) Where the amount of tax credit in respect of any income-tax paid in any country or specified territory outside India, under section 90 or section 90A or section 91, allowed against the tax payable under the provisions of section 115JB(1) exceeds the amount of such tax credit admissible against the tax payable by the assessee on its income in accordance with the other provisions of this Act, then, while computing the amount of credit under this sub-section, such excess amount shall be ignored.

In other words, the amount of tax credit in respect of MAT shall not be allowed to be carried forward to subsequent year to the extent such credit relates to the difference between the amount of foreign tax credit (FTC) allowed against MAT and FTC allowable against the tax computed under regular provisions of Act other than the provisions relating to MAT.

Note – The Taxation Laws (Amendment) Ordinance, 2019, promulgated by the President of India on 20.9.2019, has reduced the rate of MAT from 18.5% of book profit (upto A.Y.2019-20) to 15% of book profit (from A.Y.2020-21). In this chapter, MAT has been computed applying the rate of 15% of book profit.

Further, domestic companies eligible to opt for special provisions under section 115BAA and 115BAB from A.Y.2020-21 would not be liable to pay MAT under section 115JB. A company opting for section 115BAA from A.Y.2020-21 or any subsequent year cannot set-off MAT credit available to it under section 115JAA from the year in which it exercises such option. The provisions of section 115BAA and 115BAB are discussed in detail in Annexure - 1 at the end of this chapter.

These amendments by the Taxation Laws (Amendment) Ordinance, 2019 would be effective from A.Y.2020-21, after the same is passed by the Parliament.

(5) Tax on distributed profit of domestic companies: Chapter XII D [Section 115-O]

The amounts declared, distributed or paid on or after 1.4.2003 by a domestic company by way of dividends are charged to additional income-tax at the flat rate of 15%, in addition to normal income-tax chargeable on the income of the company. Dividend received from domestic companies on or after 1.4.03 are exempt in the hands of shareholders subject to the amount of dividend chargeable to tax under section 115BBDA [Section 115-O(1)]

However, in respect of dividend referred to in section 2(22)(e), the rate of dividend distribution tax would be 30%.

(i) Removal of cascading effect of dividend distribution effect:

- (a) Section 115-O(1A) seeks to provide relief from double taxation of dividends by removing the cascading effect of dividend distribution tax in a multi-tier corporate structure. A domestic holding company receiving dividend from its subsidiary company can reduce the same from dividends declared, distributed or paid by it.

However, there are certain conditions to be fulfilled to avail this benefit. They are –

Status of subsidiary company	Conditions
Where subsidiary is a domestic company	the subsidiary should have paid the dividend distribution tax, as payable on such dividend
Where subsidiary is a foreign company	the tax is payable by the domestic company under section 115BBD on such dividend

Meaning of holding company - For this purpose, a holding company is one which holds more than 50% of the nominal value of equity shares of the subsidiary.

- (b) The NPS [Non-Pension System] Trust is exempted from the applicability of dividend distribution tax in respect of dividend paid to any person for, or on behalf of, the NPS Trust. Hence, the dividend paid to any person for, or on behalf of, the NPS Trust would not be subject to dividend distribution tax. Therefore, for the purpose of calculating dividend distribution tax, a company can reduce such dividend from the dividends declared, distributed or paid by it. [Section 115-O(1A)]

(ii) Grossing up of dividend distributed:

Section 115-O(1B) provides that for the purposes of determining the tax on distributed profits payable in accordance with the section 115-O, any amount by way of dividends referred to in section 115-O(1), as reduced by the amount referred to in section 115-O(1A) [referred to as net distributed profits], shall be increased to such amount as would, after reduction of the tax on such increased amount at the rate specified in section 115-O(1), be equal to the net distributed profits.

However, this provision does not apply in respect of dividend referred to in section 2(22)(e).

Yaman Limited is a company in which 60% of the shares are held by Pilo Limited. Yaman Limited declared a dividend amounting to ₹ 35 lacs to its shareholders for the financial year 2018-19 in its Annual General Meeting held on 10th July, 2019. Dividend distribution tax was paid by Yaman Limited on 21st July, 2019. Pilo Limited declared an interim dividend amounting to ₹ 50 lacs on 15th October, 2019.

Compute the amount of tax on dividend payable by Pilo Limited.

What would be your answer, if 58% shares of Pilo Limited are held by Kafi Limited, an Indian company?

SOLUTION

As per section 115-O, dividend distribution tax at the rate of 17.472% (i.e., 15% plus surcharge @ 12% and health and education cess @ 4%) is leviable on dividend declared, distributed or paid by a domestic company. As per section 115-O(1A), a holding company receiving dividend from its domestic subsidiary company can reduce the same from dividend declared, distributed or paid by it. The dividend from its domestic subsidiary company should be received in the same financial <sup>7</sup> As per sub-section (1B) of section 115-O, for the purpose of grossing up, the rate specified in sub-section (1) has to be considered. The rate specified in sub-section (1) is 15%. Further, in the example given in the Explanatory Memorandum to the Finance (No.2) Bill, 2014, grossing up has been done at the rate of 15%.

However, it is also possible to take a view that grossing up should be done at the rate of 17.472% (that is, 15% plus surcharge @ 12% plus health and education cess @ 4%), which is the effective rate of dividend distribution tax.

year in which the holding company declares, distributes or pays the dividend. Further, the dividend shall not be considered for reduction more than once.

The conditions to be fulfilled for this purpose are as follows:

- (1) The domestic subsidiary company should have paid the dividend distribution tax which is payable on such dividend;
- (2) The recipient holding company should be a domestic company;

For this purpose, a holding company is a company which holds more than 50% of the nominal value of equity shares capital of another company.

Section 115-O (1B) provides that for the purposes of determining the tax on distributed profits payable in accordance with section 115-O, any amount by way of dividends referred to in section 115-O(1), as reduced by the amount referred to in section 115-O(1A) [referred to as net distributed profits], shall be increased to such amount as would, after reduction of the tax on such increased amount at the rate specified in section 115-O(1), be equal to the net distributed profits.

On the basis of the aforesaid provision, dividend distribution tax payable by Piloo Limited shall be computed as follows:

Particulars	₹ in lakh
Dividend distributed by Piloo Ltd.	50.00
Less: Dividend received from subsidiary Yaman Ltd. (60% of ₹ 35 lacs)	21.00
Net distributed profits	29.00
Add: Increase for the purpose of grossing up of dividend ₹ 29 x 100 / 85 = ₹ 34.12 minus ₹ 29.00	5.12
Gross dividend	34.12
Additional income-tax payable by Piloo Ltd. u/s 115-O [15% of ₹ 34.12 lakh]	5.12
Add: Surcharge @ 12%	0.61
	5.73
Add: Health and education cess @ 4%	0.23
	5.96

In order to remove the cascading effect of DDT in a multi-tier corporate structure, section 115-O provides that, in case any domestic company (Piloo Ltd., in this case) receives any dividend during the year from any subsidiary company (Yaman Ltd., in this case) and such subsidiary company (Yaman Ltd.) has paid the DDT as payable on such dividend, then, dividend distributed by the holding company (Piloo Ltd.) in the same year to the extent of dividend received from the subsidiary (Yaman Ltd.), shall not be subject to DDT under section 115-O, irrespective of whether the holding company (Piloo Ltd.) is a subsidiary of any other company (Kafi Ltd., in this case).

Therefore, in spite of the fact that Piloo Ltd. is a subsidiary of Kafi Ltd., it can reduce the amount of dividend received from Yaman Ltd. for computation of dividend distribution tax. Therefore, dividend distribution tax payable by Piloo Ltd. shall be 17.472% of ₹ 34.12 lacs (grossed up amount) i.e. ₹ 5.96 lacs.

(iii) Payment of DDT even if no income-tax is payable by the company

Even if no income-tax is payable by a domestic company on its total income computed in accordance with the provisions of Income-tax Act, 1961, the tax on distributed profits shall be payable by such company [Section 115-O(2)].

(iv) Prescribed period for payment of DDT

Additional income-tax must be paid to the credit of the Central Government within fourteen days from the date of

- (a) declaration of any dividend or
- (b) distribution of any dividend or
- (c) payment of any dividend, whichever is earliest [Section 115-O(3)].

(v) No credit of DDT paid

The tax on distributed profits so paid by the company shall be treated as the final payment of tax in respect of the amount declared, distributed or paid as dividends and no further credit therefore shall be claimed by the company or by any other person in respect of the amount of tax so paid [Section 115-O(4)].

(vi) No deduction under any other provisions

No deduction under any of the provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 shall be allowed to the company or shareholder in respect of the dividend income or DDT [Section 115-O(5)].

(vii) Exemption from levy of DDT on distributions by a SPV to a business trust

Non-levy of DDT on distributed profits in respect of any amount declared, distributed or paid by way of dividends (whether interim or otherwise) out of its current income –

- (a) By a specified domestic company i.e., by a domestic company in which a business trust has become a holder of the whole of the nominal value of equity share capital of the company (excluding the equity share capital required to be held mandatorily by any other person in accordance with any law for the time being in force or any directions of Government or any regulatory authority or equity share capital held by any Government or Government body).

- (b) On or after the specified date i.e., on or after the date of acquisition of such holding referred to in (a) above by the business trust. [Section 115-O(7)].

However, this exemption would not be applicable in respect of any amount declared, distributed or paid at any time by the specified domestic company out of its accumulated profits or current profits upto the date of acquisition by the business trust of the specified holding [as per (a) above] in the SPV.

(viii) Exemption from levy of DDT on distributions by unit located in International Financial Services Centre

No tax on distributed profits shall be chargeable in respect of the total income of a company, being a unit located in International Financial Services Centre, deriving income solely in convertible foreign exchange, for any assessment year on any amount declared, distributed or paid by such company, by way of dividends (whether interim or otherwise) on or after 1st April, 2017 out of its current income, either in the hands of the company or the person receiving such dividend.

Further, any dividend paid out of income accumulated as a unit of International Financial Services Centre after 1st April, 2017 shall not be liable for tax on distributed profits either in the hands of the company or the person receiving such dividend [Section 115-O(8)].

(ix) Interest on non-payment or delayed payment of additional income-tax by the company

Section 115P provides that non-payment of dividend distribution tax within the time allowed under section 115-O(3) attracts simple interest @ 1% for every month or part thereof on the amount of such tax for the period beginning from the date following the date on which the tax was payable and ending with the date on which the tax is actually paid. The Principal Officer of a domestic company and the company is liable to pay interest on such non-payment or delayed payment.

(x) Deemed assessee-in-default

Section 115Q provides that the Principal Officer and the company would be deemed to be an assessee-in-default if they fail to pay the tax in accordance with the provisions of section 115-O.

(6) Levy of additional income-tax on distributed income of a domestic company on account of buy-back of shares [Chapter XII-DA]

- (i) Under section 115-O, dividend distribution tax (DDT) is levied on a company at the time when it distributes, declares or pays any dividend to its shareholders. Consequently, the amount of dividend received by the shareholders is not included in the total income of the shareholder, by virtue of exemption provided under section 10(34) subject to the amount of dividend chargeable to tax under section 115BBDA.

- (ii) So far, the consideration received by a shareholder on buy-back of shares by a company is not treated as dividend but is taxable as capital gains under section 46A.
- (iii) While payment of dividend is one option available to a company to distribute its reserves to its shareholders, another option available is to buy-back its own shares at a consideration determined by it. If the company exercises the former option, the payment of dividend would be subject to DDT under section 115-O and income in the hands of shareholders would be exempt as per section 10(34) subject to section 115BBDA. However, if the company prefers the second option, the income would be taxed in the hands of shareholder under section 46A as capital gains.
- (iv) In order to discourage the practice of domestic companies resorting to buy back of unlisted shares instead of payment of dividends in order to avoid payment of tax by way of DDT, especially if the capital gains arising to the shareholders are either not chargeable to tax or are taxable at a lower rate, Chapter XII-DA, comprising of sections 115QA, 115QB and 115QC, levies additional income-tax on buy back of such shares by domestic companies. The income arising to the shareholders in respect of such buy back of unlisted shares by the domestic company would be exempt under section 10(34A), where the company is liable to pay the additional income-tax on the buy-back of shares.
- (v) Levy of additional income-tax @ 20% on buyback of shares [Section 115QA]

The Finance (No. 2) Act, 2019 has extended the levy of additional income-tax on buy back to all companies including listed companies with effect from 5.7.2019. Thus, hereafter, In case of buyback of shares (whether listed or unlisted) by domestic companies, additional income-tax @20% (plus surcharge@12% and cess@4%) is leviable in the hands of the company.

Consequently, the income arising to the shareholders in respect of such buyback of shares by the domestic company would be exempt under section 10(34A), since the domestic company is liable to pay additional income-tax on the buyback of shares.

It means additional income tax is applicable to all companies, whether listed or unlisted, with effect from 5th July, 2019, However, the provision of this sub-section shall not apply to such buy of shares being the shares listed on recognized stock exchange in respect of which public announcement has been made before 5th July, 2019 in accordance with the provisions of SEBI (Buy Back Of Securities) Regulation 2018 made under the SEBI Act, 1992 as amended from time to time.

Note: Prior to 5.7.2019, additional income-tax was attracted only in case of buy-back of unlisted shares by domestic companies. Consequently, only holders of unlisted shares were entitled to exemption under section 10(34A).

XYZ Ltd., a domestic company, purchases its own unlisted shares on 4th July, 2019. The consideration for buyback amounted to ₹ 21 lakh, which was paid on the same day. The amount received by the company two years back for issue of such shares determined in the manner specified in Rule 40BB was ₹ 13 lakh. Compute the additional income-tax payable by XYZ Ltd. Compute the interest, if any, payable if such tax is paid to the credit of the Central Government on 29th September, 2019.

What would be your answer if the shares purchased were listed shares, other facts remaining the same?

SOLUTION

XYZ Ltd is liable to pay ₹ 1,86,368 as additional income-tax, which is the amount calculated @ 23.296% (20% plus surcharge @ 12% plus health and education cess @ 4%) on ₹ 8 lakh, being its distributed income (i.e., ₹ 21 lakh – ₹ 13 lakh).

The additional income-tax was payable on or before 18th July, 2019. However, the same was paid only on 29th September 2019.

Period for which interest @ 1% per month or part of a month is leviable -

Period	No. of months/part of month
19 th July – 18 th August, 2019 (whole of first month)	1
19 th August – 18 th September, 2019 (whole of second month)	1
19 th September – 29 th September, 2019 (part of third month)	1
Total number of months	3

Interest under section 115QB is payable @ 1% per month for 3 months on the amount of additional tax payable i.e., ₹ 1,86,300 (rounded off as per Rule 119A). Therefore, interest payable under section 115QB is ₹ 5,589.

If the shares purchased were listed shares, additional income-tax would not be attracted in the hands of XYZ Ltd., since the purchase was made before 5.7.2019.

(7) Special provisions relating to income of shipping companies

To make the Indian shipping industry more competitive, a tonnage tax scheme for taxation of shipping profits has been introduced. Tonnage tax will induce more ships to fly the Indian Flag.

Chapter XII-G, containing sections 115V to 115VZC, provides for special provisions relating to taxation of the income of shipping companies. With the introduction of tonnage tax scheme, the companies have to exercise the option to be assessed under this scheme or under the normal provisions of the Income-tax Act. The salient features of the scheme are as follows:

- A company owning at least one qualifying ship may join.
- A qualifying ship is one with a minimum tonnage of 15 tons and having a valid certificate.
- If a company is incorporated after the initial period or a company which is incorporated before the initial period but becomes a qualifying company for the first time after the initial period, this application is required to be made within three months of the date of incorporation or the date on which it becomes a qualifying company, as the case may be.

(I) Computation of Tonnage Income from Business of Operating Qualifying Ships*Computation of profits and gains from the business of operating qualifying ships [Section 115VA]

- (1) A company has the option to compute the income from the business of operating qualifying ships in accordance with the provisions of this Chapter.
- (2) Such income is deemed to be the income chargeable to tax under the head “Profits and gains of business or profession” in respect of such business.

Operating ships [Section 115VB]

- (1) A company shall be regarded as operating a ship if it operates any ship whether owned or chartered by it.
- (2) Even if only a part of the ship has been chartered in by it in an arrangement such as slot charter, space charter or joint charter, the company would be regarded as operating a ship.
- (3) However, a company will not be regarded as the operator of a ship which has been chartered out on bareboat charter-cum-demise terms or on bareboat charter terms for a period exceeding three years.
- (4) “Bareboat charter” means hiring of a ship for a stipulated period on terms which give the charterer possession and control of the ship, including the right to appoint the master and crew;
- (5) “Bareboat charter-cum-demise” means a bareboat charter where the ownership of the ship is intended to be transferred after a specified period to the company to whom it has been chartered;

Meaning of “Qualifying company” [Section 115VC]

- (1) A company will be a qualifying company if -
  - (a) it is an Indian company;
  - (b) the place of effective management of the company is in India;
  - (c) it owns at least one qualifying ship; and
  - (d) the main object of the company is to carry on the business of operating ships.
- (2) The expression “place of effective management of the company” has been defined in the Explanation to the section to mean –
  - (a) the place where the board of directors of the company or its executive directors make their decisions; or
  - (b) in a case where the board of directors routinely approve the commercial and strategic decisions made by the executive directors or officers of the company, the place where such executive directors or officers of the company perform their functions.

Meaning of “Qualifying ship” [Section 115VD]

- (1) A ship is a qualifying ship if
  - (i) it is a seagoing ship or vessel of 15 net tonnage or more;
  - (ii) it is registered –
    - (a) under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1958; or
    - (b) outside India in respect of which a licence has been issued by the Director-General of Shipping under section 406 or 407 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1958
  - (iii) there is a valid certificate in force indicating the net tonnage of such a ship;
- (2) However, the following ships are not “qualifying ships” –
